Queen, Prince Welcomed At Gander Airport

The royal couple spent one hour and eight minutes at this big Newfoundland airport while their four-jet VC-10 airliner refuelled for the second lap of its 11-hour flight from London.

They appeared happy and unmindful of Canadian winter weather, with its snowflurries and below-freezing temperature. They greeted officials and school children with cheery comment and waved frequently at the crowd, estimated at 4,000.

The British Overseas Airways Corp. plane landed at 11:33 a.m. NST (10:03 a.m. EST) after a fast flight across the Atlantic. They will spend five weeks in the sunny West Indies, visiting 12 British territories in the Caribbean area.

The roped-off walkway to the terminal building was wet from repeated clearing. About 25 to 30 people stood outside waiting for the blue and silver aircraft to come alongside.

PREMIER ARRIVES

RCMP and other police lined the reception area.

An official greeting party walked across the tarmac as the door of the aircraft opened and the gangway was rolled up.

There were 13 officials and two scarlet-coated RCMP officers in the official party, which included Premier Smallwood and Lt.-Gov. Fabian O'Dea.

CHAT WITH PARTY

Prince Philip wore a camel-colored topcoat. The Royal couple shook hands and chatted with members of the official greeting party. the queen

Russia Again Attempts Soft Moon Landing

MOSCOW (AP)—With the experience of a near-miss last time stored into its mechanical mind, a Soviet space vehicle sped toward the moon today to try a historic first soft landing.

Luna IX will try Thursday to lower itself onto the moon and then message back data on the lunar surface.

A success would be a major step toward putting men on the moon, yielding information needed to design the equipment for the first lunar explorers.

The last Soviet attempt to set instruments down in working order on the moon, in early December, almost succeeded. The knowledge gained then and in three earlier failures made prospects better this time.

The Russians announced Dec. [illegible] that checks on Luna VIII "showed that the systems of the station were functioning normally at all stages of the landing except the final touch-down."

That appeared to mean that the retrorockets had fired, braking the speed of some 6,000 miles an hour, but that in the last few dozen feet the spacecraft was going too fast and smashed up.

The Russians had four failures in their moon program in 1965—three crashes on the moon and a complete miss. The Americans plan to launch their first surveyor space craft next May, and their first four launchings are to be "engineering tests," to see how various components of the incredibly complicated device will work. The designation indicates that American [illegible] scientists do not expect a soft landing in the first four shots.

Texas-bred Storm Heading Towards Us With More Snow

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

More snow fell in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes Monday, bringing most transportation to a standstill as roads and highways became clogged. Schools were closed in many communities.

The snow came on the heels of a weekend storm, packing winds from 50 to 80 miles an hour, which left as much as 25 inches of snow in some areas.

More of the same was in store today as a Texas-bred storm moved toward Ontario and a disturbance headed for Newfoundland.

Montreal and Quebec City were digging out from under 12-to-25 inches of snow. High winds piled the snow in drifts forcing motorists to abandon cars in cities and on highways.

Ottawa was the hardest hit Ontario centre with about 20 inches of snow since Sunday and more reported on the way.

By mid-day Monday 17.8 inches of snow had fallen—in Ottawa—second only to the 19.3 inches that fell in a 24-hour period on March 3, 1947, the transport department weather office reported in a revision of an earlier statement.

Subdivision areas were only partially open to traffic Monday and government officials estimated some 70 per cent of the 60,000-member civil service work force was late or absent. Ottawa's troubles increased when owners pulled 350 snow-removal trucks out of service in a pay dispute.

Train and bus services to Toronto were disrupted and Air Canada flights to and from Ottawa were cancelled early Monday because of drifting snow.

At least one death was attributed to the storm in Ontario. Gerald Wilcox, 59, collapsed and died after walking about 500 feet in heavy snow near his home at Queenston, near Niagara Falls.

Schools were closed Monday in Hamilton and Ottawa. Morning sessions of the Ontario Supreme Court were cancelled in Toronto when Mr. Justice E. A. Richardson was stranded in nearby Orangeville.

Eastern U.S. Storm Abates

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Snowfall eased today in the big eastern U.S. storm, but cold, gusty winds continued to pile drifts, bedeviling efforts to clear roads. And a new storm spread four to eight inches of snow northeastward out of the southern plains.

The weather bureau said that the record January snowfall included 43 inches at Worchester, Mass., 41 inches at both Burlington, Vt., and Roanoke, Va., and 32 inches at Lynchburg, Ga.

Deloro Smelting Demolition Head Called To Stand

A man freed on two separate conspiracy charges in the looting of the federal cobalt stockpile at Deloro today was called as a surprise witness against Leonard and Sam Vigodda.

William Regan, 70-year-old demolition superintendent at the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company site, where the cobalt was stored, was the first witness to take the stand as the preliminary hearing of conspiracy charges against the father and son scrapyard dealers entered its second day.

Regan was acquitted of a conspiracy charge at a preliminary hearing last October along with Peterborough scrapdealer Irving Moldaver. Yesterday, a second conspiracy count was withdrawn and the Crown proceeded only against the Vigoddas.

HAD DEMOLITION RIGHTS

Regan told the hearing before Magistrate R. C. Jackson that the Vigoddas' Markel Metals and Minerals operation were granted demolition rights of a primary treatment plant on the Deloro site in May 1964. "However," he said, "they did not begin shipping material out of the plant until about November or December of that year."

He said other demolition rights at the site were granted Finkle Machine of Belleville and a man named Shea in Prince Edward County.

Regan said as far as he was concerned material stored in an old hydro substation at Deloro was cobalt.

" . . . Did any of the contracts which you were supervising concern the contents of this power station?" asked Crown Attorney John Pringle.

"Not that I'm aware of sir," answered Regan.

Regan said he dealt with Leonard Vigodda in the demolition of the primary treatment plant and had no conversation with him regarding the contents of the substation.

FOLLOWED ORDERS

He allowed the Markel trucks on the site when it was approved by the Belleville office. Regan said usually he personally let them back off the site — "but not all the time."

Regan testified he only took inventory at the substation when requested by the Belleville office and then usually sent two men to check the stockpile. He personally counted the barrels himself in 1963 but last year went with Deloro general manager J.C. Houston to the warehouse. It was while Mr. Houston was counting the barrels that a hollow drum unexpectedly revealed cobalt was missing.

Defence counsel Joseph Sedgwick queried the witness on the Moldaver case.

"I am told he (Moldaver) took a considerable amount of cobalt

PC Chief Sharply Attacked

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — The eight-day Commons throne speech debate ended on a quiet note Monday night a few hours after Guy Favreau, president of the Privy Council, sharply attacked Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Favreau, the minority Liberal government's Quebec leader, said a "theatrical monologue" Thursday by Mr. Diefenbaker was an "attempt to demolish the truth."

He accused the Opposition leader of wrongly interpreting a Jan. 22 speech he made in Montreal on constitutional amendments.

However, the Conservative Opposition made no attempt to embarrass the government when it came time to vote on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, which outlined the government's legislative proposals.

FAR CRY

It was a far cry from three non-confidence motions—two by the Conservatives and one by the NDP — which the government weathered during the sometimes-fractious debate that put the 27th Parliament in motion. Votes on these motions were formal roll-call affairs in which defeat of the government would have triggered a new election.

Following approval of the throne speech motion, the Commons gave similar routine acceptance to a series of government motions clearing the way for a two-day supply debate on spending estimates for the current fiscal year, 1965-66. It will start today.

The supply debate is to end no later than Wednesday, setting the stage for a Thursday start on the detailed study of spending estimates for the current fiscal year.

First to face opposition queries will be the external affairs department followed by trade and commerce, then transport.

With the subdued climax to the throne speech debate, the Favreau rebuttal of the Diefenbaker speech provided the last flurry of real controversy.

CLAIMS AROUSED

Mr. Favreau had been aroused by claims by the Conservative leader that he had blamed the Conservatives for the rejection of the Fulton-Favreau formula by Premier Lesage of Quebec. The formula, which would have allowed the amendment of the constitution in Canada rather than Britain, now is regarded as a dead issue.

In his reply, Mr. Favreau said his speech had nothing to do with the Fulton-Favreau formula. Moreover, Mr. Diefenbaker's suggestion that he had prior knowledge of the Lesage letter killing the proposal was wrong.

Mr. Favreau said the Diefenbaker claims—he also accused Mr. Favreau of slandering the Conservatives— produced confusion in the minds of the public.

Mr. Diefenbaker sat quietly across the aisle from Mr. Favreau during the cabinet minister's address, delivered almost entirely in French.

In other Commons business Monday, Transport Minister Pickersgill said the establishment of a parliamentary committee to inquire into the whole field of railway passenger services is under consideration. The CPR's Dominion was recently cancelled.

Trade Minister Winters announced the government has suspended export quotas for scrap copper and is withholding further export permits until the market is stabilized.

Liberals Enter Debate

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson entered the debate on the speech from the throne in the Ontario legislature Monday with a 130-minute speech and a motion of non-confidence in the Conservative government of Premier John Robarts.

Overshadowed by the throne debate, the house also:

—Heard Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) attack Canadian abortion laws;

—Had a private member's bill introduced to limit campaign costs.

The non-confidence motion, which had eight points in all, will be voted on when the debate comes to an end in a week or more.

Among other things, Mr. Thompson condemned the government for allegedly not protecting citizens against "the ever-growing encroachment of the bureaucratic process"; its alleged failure to provide equal educational opportunities for all citizens; its alleged failure to ensure that farmers receive a fair share of the economy; and its refusal to allow public employees the right to decide through collective bargaining whether their pensions should be stacked or integrated with the Canada Pension Plan.

URGED LABOR FORUM

Mr. Thomspon also urged the government to set up a labor-management forum in the hope that such a body might be able to ward off government intervention in labor disputes.

On educational policy, the Liberal leader said there "is a real danger" that proposed community colleges will become little more than trade schools.

He said his party would follow policies which involve setting up of regional education centres where teachers could take "brush-up" courses; expansion of the system of Ontario bursaries; and helping high school students get useful summer jobs in Indian reserves, provincial parks and conservation areas.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A new and intensifying storm presently over the central Mississippi Valley is moving rapidly northeastward. As it moves by to the south of the lower lakes it will give a light fall of snow to the southern fringes of Ontario.

UN Security Council Hears U.S. Plea It Arrange Talks About Peace Parley

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United States proposed today that both North Viet Nam and South Viet Nam be invited to take part in United Nations discussions on a conference to seek peace in Viet Nam.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg told the UN Security Council that he believes it would be useful to have representatives of Saigon and Hanoi appear during current council debate.

The U.S. delegate took the floor as the 15-nation council met to consider a U.S. proposal for preliminary talks on arranging a Viet Nam peace conference.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko listened intently as Goldberg spoke. Fedorenko had declined to tell correspondents in advance of the session whether he would oppose council debate.

UN diplomats, however, noted a dispatch by the Soviet news agency Tass from Hanoi quoting the North Vietnamese government as declaring it would consider any Security Council resolutions invalid.

Goldberg explained in detail U.S. reasons for bringing the Viet Nam problem to the UN. He said President Johnson had acted after every other effort had failed to bring about peace negotiations.

"Our resort to the Security Council, despite what anyone may say or speculate about it," he said, "is briefly and simply further evidence of our resolve to settle this conflict peaceably, a resolve that stems from a deep and abiding belief that a negotiated settlement rather than a military solution is obviously to the best interest of the Vietnamese people as a whole."

Goldberg told the council the U.S. had tried to create a favorable atmosphere by suspending the bombing of North Viet Nam, but that the lull had been continued against Hanoi's "unyielding intransigence, against a background of no assurance whatever that it would yield."

He said the U.S. had two objectives—to find out whether the bombings were a factor in preventing negotiations and to determine whether the North Viet Nam government wanted to reduce the armed conflict in Viet Nam.

"Our restraint was unrewarded," he said. "There was no positive response from North Viet Nam. There was only name-calling, vituperation."

Goldberg put the Viet Nam conflict before the council late Monday in a resolution which asked that a place and date be fixed for immediate and unconditional discussions of arrangements for the proposed peace conference.

Fulbright Will Not Probe LBJ's Policies Until UN Has Considered Peace Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator J. W. Fulbright said today his Senate foreign relations committee will not press its inquiries into President Johnson's Viet Nam policy until the United Nations has debated the Johnson administration's new peace effort.

"If this starts debate in the United Nations," the Arkansas Democrat said, "the administration should have [illegible]ortunity to submit its ca[illegible]."

But Fulbright, who wanted the administration to lengthen the now-shattered lull in bomb[illegible] of North Viet Nam, said [illegible]e remains "grave apprehension" in Congress about the air war and other facets of Johnson's policy.

There was also substantial backing on Capitol Hill for Johnson's decision to loose new air strikes on the north.

Elsewhere in the world, the reaction to Johnson's decision Monday to renew the bombings after the 37-day lull was mixed.

Support came from the British government which said North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh had laid down a new, unacceptable condition in his letter last week demanding recognition of the Communist National Liberation Front as a sole representative of the South Vietnamese people.

Vatican sources said Pope Paul was disappointed but still hopes for peace in Southeast Asia.

Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons the government had hoped the month-old pause in bombing might be continued until all possible approaches had been exhausted in efforts to bring the dispute from the battlefield to the conference table.

While North Viet Nam might be intransigent, Pearson said there is still a possibility of some softening in its position.

Pearson said he received a message Monday morning from Ho saying there could be no negotiated settlement as long as United States forces were in Viet Nam and the Viet Cong was not recognized as the sole government of South Viet Nam.

Pearson added that on the basis of his Dec. 29 talk in Ottawa with McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's special assistant, he believes the possibility of a further pause in bombings has not been closed.

At United Nations headquarters, the general reaction among diplomats was considered to be critical of the U.S. decision.

Johnson Has Ruled Out Any Bombing of Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has told administration officials he intends to keep a tight rein on any expansion of the Vietnamese war. He is understood to have ruled out any bombing of Hanoi or Haiphong for the immediate future.

Officials said today the president is determined at this time, having resumed the bombing in the North, to stick to a middle-course policy. They said he intends to avoid any show of a lack of determination, on the one hand, and any unnecessary escalation on the other.

The pattern of attacks in the new phase of the war following the peace offensive is expected to be consistent with a pattern followed before the pause began.

FIRST CALL with Ben Wicks

No Place to Hide

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Atomic Energy Commission disclosed Monday the United States may be close to significant breakthroughs in enhancing the powers of American nuclear-tipped intercontinental missiles to penetrate an enemy's anti-missile defences.

It did so in a report saying also that:

1. The U.S. already leads the world in the "nuclear defence" field.

2. Improved nuclear weapons of various types including "demolition munitions" such as atomic land-mines were added last year to the stockpile.

3. U.S. nuclear weaponeers are working toward developing even more advanced types.

The AEC's annual report to the U.S. Congress did not specifically describe the latter.

But apparently they entail still further progress towards assuring that American missiles-launched at an enemy country after an attack on the United States—would at least partially be able to foil, decoy and penetrate enemy counter-measures—including their own missiles and ground-based electronic detection devices.

Council in Lengthy Session Approves of Many Projects

City council had another lengthy session last night, sitting for more than three hours before business of the meeting was completed.

It was the second meeting since the inception of the new council procedure in which informal discussions and the regular meeting were held at the same sitting.

Council aproved of the 1966 estimate of expenditures for the county Children's Aid Society, the city's share of which is expected to be $321,884.

Two weeks ago the estimates were referred back to allow an official of the CAS to explain the increase in society costs. The CAS director, Bruce Kerr, said the Society staff had been increased and assured that the figure was a minimum budget for the year.

LIGHTING PLAN APPROVED

Council approved the 1966 street lighting program recommended by the city public utilities commission.

Capital expenditure for new street lighting will be in the neighborhood of $38,000 including new lights on Pinnacle Street from Dundas to Station streets.

Plans for Pinnacle Street are for the use of mercury vapor luminaires atop new concrete poles on the west side of the street. The west side of the street installation will have the advantage of cleaning up the appearance of the utilities' distribution system and present a better appearing installation.

A 1966 operating budget of [illegible] was approved for the [illegible] water pollution control plant as compared with a budget of $47,000 for last year.

The plant, a primary treatment plant utilizing two stage digestion is operated by three men. Its design capacity is for 3,000,000 gallons per day, estimated flow for 1965 5.5 million gallons per day.

SIDEWALK APPROVED

Council approved construction of a five foot concrete sidewalk on the west side of Herchimer Ave at an estimated cost of $7,330.

Council accepted the report of a special committee under the chairmanship of Ald. Kenneth Soden which was appointed late last year to look into the advisability of dissolving or retaining certain city boards and commissions.

The committee recommended retaining the Parks Board of Management; the Library Board; the Board of Health (until formation of a county health unit); Community Centres Boards; the Public Utilities Commission; the Transit Commission and the Belleville Parking Authority.

With respect to the transit commission, the committee felt legislation should be amended to permit council representation on the commission, while it felt that members of councils should also be allowed to sit on suburban roads commissions.

The committee felt the Belleville Parking Authority should be retained as established subject to two conditions 1. that membership be broadened to include a representative of the business section, professional and institutional section and a representative of the taxpayers at large, and 2. that administration fees paid to the secretary and treasurer should be brought in line with fees paid by parks board and Transit Commission.

Car Allowances For Civic Officials Raised

City hall personnel, who use their cars in connection with their duties on city business are going to have their car allowances raised.

Council yesterday aproved of the increased car allowances which this year will cost the city $1,040 per month or $12,480 per year. Eighteen employee owned vehicles are involved.

The various increases are based on car rental costs, but the total will be approximately $1,000 a year less than if the city supplied the vehicles.

The Woolsack, a square red couch, was placed in the House of Lords during the reign of Edward III in the 14th Century.

Service Station Operators Want Closing Bylaw Rescinded

City service station operators want to throw out the early by-law which they had city council pass back in 1959.

Yesterday a delegation of operators representing 25 of the 47 service stations in the city attended council in support of a petition asking rescinding of the by-law calling for closing at seven p.m.

Spokesman for the group, Mr. Hugh Kennedy of Kennedy-Chrysler Motors, said the by-law was placing the city operators in a non-competitive position with stations operating in the fringe areas outside of the city, some of which remain open 24 hours per day.

Delegation members intimated that it would be a personal choice on the part of operators whether or not they remained open in the evenings.

Council members showed a little concern over whether rescinding of the early closing by-law could result in no stations remaining open, but operators assured this woul not occur.

Council agreed to the preparation of a rescinding by-law to be passed at the next regular meeting of council on Feb. 14th.

Square Dancers Enjoy Caller From Sask.

It takes more than winter's worst weather to keep enthusiastic square dancers at home, especially when they have the privilege of dancing to such a fine caller as Martin Mallard from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

Close to two hundred dancers filled the gym at Quinte Secondary School on Saturday. night. Couples from as far away as Montreal and Ottawa joined the fun. Peterborough was well represented with fifty or more dancers arriving by bus. Kingston, Trenton and Campbellford made up the other out of town people. Our own four clubs were well represented also.

This dance was sponsored by the Quinte Twirlers Square Dance Organization who operate under the auspices of the Belleville Recreation Commission. During the Square Dance Year (Sept. to June), the organization sponsors four dances bringing in "name" callers. These dances are open to all graduate dancers, that is dancers who have completed a series of lessons and attained a graduation diploma.

Six O'clock Swill Over

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Australians here today took their last "six o'clock swill" with sighs of relief, and an era ended for the drinkers of Victoria State.

For the last 50 years they have been gulping down their beer because bars close at 6 p.m. after opening at 9:05 a.m. This did not give them much time to enjoy their after-work drink.

Under a new law passed by the state government last year, drinking hours are to be extended to 10 p.m.

Buster Keaton Dies of Cancer In Hollywood

A spokesman said he died of lung cancer at his home in suburban Woodland Hills.

His wife of about 25 years, Eleanor, was at his side. Keaton had two sons by actress Natalie Talmadge.

Keaton had been under treatment for cancer for about three months.

In recent years he had done character spots in movies and guest shots on television shows.

Keaton's trademark was his dour deadpan expression in the face of any disaster, comic or genuine. That and a straw hat that he usually wore when performing.

City Engineer Advocates Standard Garbage Holders

Garbage collection was still a topic of discussion at council yesterday and the city fathers will support the public works department in its campaign to clean up the city — and to encourage the use of standard type garbage containers.

Council approved the report of City Engineer Wilbur Purcell outlining his reasons for requiring use of regulation type containers and also approved of a common change in the collection schedule following holidays.

During the past year when a regular collection day was lost because of a holiday, it has been the practice to catch up on the collection the following day.

But this apparently hasn't worked out as it meant the entire city had to be collected on the day following a holiday and as result collection times were disrupted.

GIVES REASONS TO COUNCIL

In view of this the city will return to the previous method of making missed collections on the next regular garbage collection day.

Mr. Purcell told council just why it was important that standard type garbage containers be used.

Such pails have sloped sides which lend themselves to easier dumping, whereas with straight-sided cans garbage freezes to the sides making them almost impossible to dump in winter weather.

The engineer noted that it was all a matter of educating the public.

"Why is it," he asked, "that a householder expects a garbage can to last forever when at the same time he will buy a new car every three years or so."

Use of the proper type garbage containers in the long run would result in lower garbage collection costs, he said.

Conviction For Contempt Is Reversed

QUEBEC (CP)—A contempt of court conviction against Montreal author Jacques Hebert was reversed Monday by a 3 to 2 decision of the Quebec Court of Appeals.

Mr. Hebert had been sentenced to 30 days in jail and a fine of $3,000 after being found guilty Feb. 23, 1965, of contempt of court for various statements in his book, "I Accuse the Assassins of Coffin."

The book dealt with the case of Wilbert Coffin, a Gaspe prospector convicted in 1954 of the murder of one of three United States bear hunters. The trio were found dead in the Gaspe bush. Coffin was hanged in 1956.

IN MEMORIAM VERSES

A Booklet, from which In Memoriam verses may be selected, is available at the Classified Advertising Counter of The Intelligencer.

CARTER — In loving memory of my dear husband, Fred Carter, who passed away Feb. 1, 1956.

I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own,
And day by day I miss him more,
As I walk through life alone.

—Ever remembered by wife May.

CALBERRY — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Myrtle Mary Calberry, who passed away Feb. 1, 1965.

In tears we saw you sinking.
We watched you fade away,
Our hearts were almost broken
You fought so hard to stay.
But when we saw you sleeping
So peacefully free from pain,
We could not wish you back
To suffer that again.

—Sadly missed by son George, daughter-in-law, Barb. Grandchildren, Teddy, Terry and Trudy.

CALBERRY — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Myrtle Calberry, who passed away, Feb. 1, 1965.

Oh how patient was thy suffering,
When no hand could give thee ease.
God the helper of the helpless,
Saw thy pain and gave thee peace.

—Never forgotten by sons Peter, Raymond, Joseph and daughters-in-law Jean, Evelyn and grandchildren.

Swimming Anyone?

The world is made up of all types of persons.

Into this world we have been thrown and must struggle to do our best, always remembering to understand our fellow man.

Sunday afternoon, the temperature was near zero, the cutting wind was ferocious, the snow was driving, cars were stalling, snow plows were breaking down, the Quinte Aqua Divers' Club and R.C.A.F. Flying Frogmen were swimming in the Bay . . .

Wait a minute?

That's right. Swimming in the Bay.

Ridiculous!

Perhaps.

Mad!

Likely.

Unbelievable!

Ed Imhoff, president of the Quinte Aqua Divers' Club, explained the whole thing to me.

"It's not really as bad as it looks," he said. (B-r-r-r) "There's the initial shock of course, (of course) but after that it's not too bad."

After that you're petrified people.

"We've been doing this for the last seven years," he said. "It's terrific.

"This is the most beautiful time of the year to dive. Everything around you is the brightest silver imaginable. The air bubbles for instance, are almost too bright to look at.

"Visibility is fabulous.

"In the summer of course the water is constantly being stirred by boats and things and the weeds are high. In the winter though, the weeds are gone and the water is still under the ice.

And so off they went, down into the crystal depths of the chilly Bay of Quinte.

I almost froze just watching them.

My camera did freeze.

Ed Imhoff was first in. He ducked under the ice for a little refresher, then came up and sat on the edge of the ice.

I discovered then how instant ice is made.

Can you imagine someone coming to your door Sunday, knocking, and saying, "May I borrow your axe please?"

"Why?" you ask.

You'd give him the axe for sure. Who's going to argue with a guy like that?

Consequently, they got the axe and headed under the Bay Bridge to chop a hole through the foot-thick ice.

Chop. Chop. Chop. Chop.

Splash.

There is a lot involved in this diving business you know. Each diver has a rope tied about his middle. The rope is lead in from the top of the hole. Keeps the diver from getting lost under the ice somewhere.

They had hoped for 15 or 20 divers, but many of the divers did not have the necessary equipment for such cold weather diving.

Most people wouldn't be interested no matter how much equipment they had.

One fellow caught my eye He was standing near the divers, huddled under a mammoth jacket, with about 18,001 scarfs wrapped around his head.

I asked him if he was a diver.

He almost cried.

Rubbing his hands together tenaciously, he turned, took in a big breath of the brisk air and said, "Some guys get all the luck. If I didn't have this bad cold, I'd be right there with him."

I agreed it was most unfortunate for him.

I was afraid not to agree.

Needless to say, (but I'll say it anyway), the divers did not stay in long. They went in for a few minutes, came up, went back in, and so on.

What really bothered me about it was they were enjoying themselves.

I just stood and shook my head. I couldn't shake anything else if I had wanted to. Everything else was frozen.

Finally, I said to the man beside me, "Are you a diver?"

"Yes," he said.

"Why aren't you diving?" I asked.

"I don't have all the equipment or I would be."

"Are they crazy?"

"No," he said, "But it helps if you are."

Amen to that.

Frazil Ice Could Be Partly Responsible for Flooding of Basements

Frazil ice conditions beneath the ice at the mouth of the Moira River could be partly responsible for the present high level of the river which is causing flooding of basements in the downtown area.

Several stores on the west side of Front Street report water in their basements necessitating pumping action to keep the level down, while slush two feet deep covers the entrance to Victoria Park.

TAKE SOUNDINGS

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said works department men were sounding in the area south of the CPR bridge in an effort to determine the blockage. If possible remedial action will be taken but the city engineer says his workers at the moment are merely experimenting to see what can be done.

The Moira River Conservation Authority and the local Emergency Measures Organization officials were reported watching the river closely.

DOUBT EXPRESSED

At city council last night doubt was expressed that the Bell Telephone doffer dam now being removed from the river north of the lower bridge was responsible for the flooding.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said that removal of the dam was practically completed and Inspiration Contractors were scheduled to work throughout the night in removing the remainder of the dam.

This morning, however, equipment was still working in the river.

Frazil ice in the river is formed when sub-zero weather freezes ice particles in moving open stretches of the river. These particles are swept under the ice and become lodged at the river mouth, when the current lessens.

Will Use Portable Classrooms For Hillcrest Area Students

The Belleville public school board will use portabale classrooms to meet a school accommodation lack in the Hillcrest area instead of building extra classrooms as had originally been intended.

Board chairman Mac Smith told city council yesterday that the Hillcrest school, one of the schools "inherited" from the township of Thurlow as result of annexation, was not up to standard and board members felt it would be unwise to make permanent additions to the structure.

Instead two portable classrooms will be acquired and will be used until a decision as to future of the Hillcrest area is made by city council.

According to city hall plans part of Hillcrest may become an industrial area with result that future school accommodation requirements in that area are indefinite.

WILL RESCIND MOTION

Several weeks ago council approved financing for a $60,000 two room addition to the Hillcrest school, but this motion will now be rescinded and the board will proceed immediately with plans for their proposed new five-roomed school north of the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Council yesterday approved of a board request for a by-law authorizing the school construction at a cost of approximately $210,000, the school to be ready for occupancy by September of this year.

Detailed plans will be drawn and following the necessary approvals tenders will be called as soon as possible.

Nine-month Trial Ends

Jury Rules Cancer Drug Not Proven to Be Useless

CHICAGO (AP) — The four chief supporters of krebiozen have been acquitted, but what of the future of the drug?

The foreman of the jury which Monday acquitted Dr. Stevan Durovic, developer of the drug, said the jury was convinced that the government had not proved krebiozen was worthless.

Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, internationally known physiologist who with two other defendants was acquitted Saturday, has called again for a government test of the substance.

In Washington, the Food and Drug Administration has reiterated its contention that krebiozen is worthless in the treatment of cancer and cannot be sold inter-state.

The U.S. District Court jury acquitted Dr. Durovic, 60, and the Krebiozen Research Foundation, thus clearing all five defendants. The four men and the foundation were charged in a multi-count indictment with mail fraud and conspiracy in the sale and promotion of the drug.

The trial, the longest federal criminal trial in Chicago history, lasted nine months and three days. The jurors, seven women and five men, listened to 178 witnesses fill 22,000 pages of transcript which formed a stack seven feet high.

The two other defendants are Marko Durovic, 64, a lawyer and Stevan's brother, and Dr. William F. P. Phillips, 52, a general practitioner who administered krebiozen to patients.

Adolph J. Beranek, 59, the jury foreman, said after the trial:

"There was no proof that krebiozen wasn't worth anything. Most of us felt it does have a value. . . .

"Dr. Ivy's reputation as a scientist was a big factor in our verdict acquitting him, I don't think that a man who would work 50 years for humanity would just dump all that overboard."

Queen's Alters Admission Requirements

KINGSTON — Changes in the admissions requirements for the 1967-68 academic year were announced today by Dr. J. A. Corry, principal of Queen's University.

Students seeking to enter the faculty of arts and science will require, in most instances, four subjects at the grade 13 level, instead of the five now required.

Students who plan to take a general or honors program in the humanities, for instance, will require English a language and two options.

On the other hand those students who intend to study for a general bachelor of arts degree in science, or an honor arts degree with a science minor, will require mathematics, an option and two of biology, physics and chemistry.

In all cases students entering the faculty of arts and science will be required to have an average of 60 per cent or better.

PARKDALE AUXILIARY

The ladies of the 18th Parkdale Cubs and Scouts Auxiliary braved sub zero weather to hold their January meeting at the president's home, Marg White and 17 were present.

Plans were completed for the skating party which will be held at the Parkdale Community Centre on Saturday evening. The admission is free. Refreshments will be available in the Community Hall and everyone is cordially invited.

On behalf of the Auxiliary, Marg White presented a gift of appreciation to past president Madeline Blute, who has worked so diligently for the past two years. Mrs. Blute thanked the ladies for being so helpful during her term.

The next meeting set for Feb. 25th will be held at the home of Joyce Goldie, 43 Village Drive. The father and son banquet will be held on March 16th.

57 Cattle Found Starved

WARDSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Fifty-seven cattle were found dead of starvation and exposure and 33 others seized by Humane Society officials on a farm near here during the weekend.

Gordon Brackett of London, an inspector for the society, said Sunday the steers, seized from the farm of Ronald Neville, were "emaciated and dehydrated."

The animals were found in an open compound, a barn, shed and garage in near - zero weather, he said.

Mr. Neville said the dead animals had been disposed of earlier. They hadn't been dead "very long."

Mr. Brackett said samples of the dead animals had been sent to the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph for pathological tests.

Women's Club Members Take Part in Blitz

TRENTON — The Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club, working in conjunction with the Winter Employment Committee, launched a Telephone Blitz last night, to step up winter employment in the Trenton area. The campaign will continue until Feb. 5 and is designed to encourage local householders and businessmen to find jobs for those who otherwise would be unemployed for several weeks.

The club members and the committee members feel many jobs could be done at this time of year rather than waiting until spring when employment opens up in local factories or in the field of road work.

Doug Whitley Takes Oath Of Office

TRENTON — Douglas Whitley, chairman of finance with the Trenton Board of Education, was sworn into office by Clerk Comptroller O. W. Larry at the town hall, Monday morning. Mr. Whitley was vacationing with his family in Florida on January 12 when the other board members were sworn.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitley and the children didn't really miss the winter by holidaying in the south as there was snow on the ground in Jacksonville before they left on Wednesday, and this increased to 14 inches by the time they reached Georgia.

In Georgia, Mr. Whitley told a reporter, the snow seemed literally to "throw" the residents, as lunch bars and gasoline stations remained snowbound and were closed. At one bridge in Georgia, prison gangs had been called out to remove the snow, and they were shovelling with blunt nosed shovels under the watchful eye of armed guards.

THIEF MISSES PAYROLL

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP)—A Centre Garment Co. car was stolen Sunday and recovered Monday. The company's $3,800 cash payroll n the trunk was untouched, police said.

Drug Research Quite Costly Rotarians Told

TRENTON — Trenton Rotarians were told of the immense amount of research which goes into the developing of new drugs by R. Henderson of the pharmaceutical firm of Smith, Kline and French of Montreal at the weekly meeting of Rotary, last night.

Mr. Henderson spoke primarily on the benefits and side effects of Cortisone, which was developed at a cost of $25 million. This drug is used for arthritic conditions, asthma, allergies and skin diseases.

"Researchers," said Mr. Henderson, "spend years . . . and millions . . . developing new drugs, only to have them supplanted in a year or so by something newer and more effective."

The Rotary Club last night received two new members, Wm. Norman and Frank Barry Jr.

FEW TURN OUT

Snowy weather, by tradition, is skiing weather, but the Batawa Ski Run saw fewer than expected enthusiasts out over the weekend, owing to high winds and drifting.

The Batawa slope now features Wednesday afternoon skiing and skiing under floodlights every Wednesday night. And of course, the run is open all weekend, with night skiing under the lights.

DRIVE EXTENDED

The March of Dimes fund raising campaign in Trenton, Carrying Place, Glen Miller, RCAF Station, No. 6 RD, Mobile Village, Pine Acres, Middleton Park and Roseland Acres will be held all this week, starting today.

A Blitz Night had been scheduled for last night, but was postponed, owing to the weather.

Chairman of the drive, Mrs. Doris Webb, said today she had received permission from Kingston headquarters to extend the drive. The 1966 objective is $2,600.

STREETCAR INJURES 9

OSLO (Reuters)—A runaway streetcar without a driver raced two miles through the streets of this Norwegian capital Monday night, smashed three cars and injured nine persons, police reported.

15 Permits In January Total $47,850

TRENTON — During January, 15 permits were issued from the office of building inspector William Anderson. Total values were set at $47,850, which, according to Mr. Anderson, is good for this time of year.

Three of the permits were for new home construction, ($42,000); two for dwelling repair, (2,700); one for a carport ($1,500); two for signs ($1,600) and seven for house demolition, on which no value is set.

WILL BE HOSTS

St. George's Anglican Church will play host this year to ladies from 12 local congregations at the Women's World Day of Prayer, Feb. 25, starting at 2 p.m. Mrs. O. W. Larry is general convener.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. James Utley of Belleville, formerly of Trenton.

A nursery will be provided for the small children, so that the mothers may attend the service.

MEET ON WEDNESDAY

The quarterly meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial, scheduled for Monday night in Grace United Church in Trenton, was postponed until Wednesday night, owing to the weather. Dinner will start at 6 p.m. and business will be conducted from 7 p.m. until it is concluded. This is the first time in three years the local church has played host to the 60 some members of the presbytery, who come from an area bounded by Napanee on the east, Trenton on the west, Marmora and Madoc on the north, and Picton on the south.

STAY HIGH HAT

ETON, England (AP) — Authorities at Eton College, Britain's swankiest private school for boys, voted Saturday to keep students wearing the traditional top hat, white tie, starched collar, tails and striped trousers. Progressives among the school masters had wanted to permit school boys to wear tweed jackets and grey-flannel slacks to class.

Rural Education

Rural areas of Ontario, like their urban neighbors, are caught up with the need for additional educational facilities. This is no more apparent than in Tyendinaga township.

As outlined in The Intelligencer recently, the township is faced with a choice of several courses of action. It may come as a surprise to many to learn, for example, that there are no fewer than ten one-room schools still in use in the west and southern areas of the township. In addition, there is a three-room school in Shannonville.

School board members are thinking of building a new central school to replace the one-room structures, most of which are a century or more old.

However, the board is also contemplating provision of an opportunity class and special services. To make this feasible in terms of sufficient enrolment, it has been suggested the township may combine with the town of Deseronto and the Tyendinaga Indian Reservation to provide a central location for such classes. It is thought the separate schools at Marysville and Read may also be interested in central auxiliary classes.

No decisions were made at the meeting in Shannonville school, but it afforded an opportunity for an interesting exchange of views. Among those present was Howard Rodine, superintendent of education for Indian schools in Ontario.

Mr. Rodine said there would be no obstacle in the way of establishing a central location for auxiliary classes taking in the Reserve. Noting that the Indian Affairs Department would co-operate, he said he felt that from an educational standpoint alone school authorities should look toward an area set-up.

Under such a system, with the township, Deseronto and Tyendinaga Reserve combining, there would be a school population of nearly 1,000 students.

The prospect is an interesting one, having regard to the current drive to improve the lot of Indians in this country. Mr. Rodine said about 50 per cent of Ontario's 14,000 Indian children are now attending classes outside reservations. In this area there are 29 attending public school at Shannonville and Milltown.

Whether they should think in terms of further integration, as such a plan envisages, must remain, however, a decision for the Mohawks at Tyendinaga.

If they do decide in favor, and the township and Deseronto feel the same way, it would surely be a progressive step, and one opening up exciting new possibilities for education in this rural area of Quinte. A new central school in the area could pave the way for similar co-operation in other parts of Ontario.

Centennial Thoughts

The Royal Bank of Canada, in its monthly letter says the occasion of next year's centennial celebrations is not only a time to refurbish old monuments, create new amenities, and bolster existing cultural activities.

"We wish to know by what road our ancestors travelled to make it possible for Canada to celebrate a hundred years as a nation ... Our past was not drab. It was exciting and diversified and full of sharp contrasts, both in motive of exploration and method of settlement."

In one expressive passage, the letter puts it thus: "We must not be seduced by our bravery of tall office buildings and our abundance of suburban villas into forgetting the old decaying log cabins from which our forefathers sallied forth to build our society and our economy."

Certainly Canadians are a forward-looking people. Yet in recent years we have been made more aware of our historic past, a heritage going back even further than our mere 100 years as a nation. Historic spots like Upper Canada Village have helped to awaken this interest in our forebears and in the events that shaped the nation.

The bank commentator sums it up well with the comment, "it is true we cannot drive into the future looking in a rear-vision mirror, but as Edmund Burke said: "People will not look forward to posterity who never look back to their ancestors."

Highway Toll

The highway toll is a depressing subject. Yet it is one that cannot be ignored so long as people continue to die violently in auto accidents.

As the number of dead are announced in newspapers each Monday it seems as if no amount of urging or advice will prevent accidents. The law of averages wreaks its grim toll and that is that.

Nevertheless, Canadians cannot afford to take a defeatist attitude on highway safety. Nor can they afford to be indifferent. W. Arch Bryce, executive director of the Canadian Highway Safety Council says that when society accepts the seriousness of the highway traffic situation and demands action, the accident trend will swing downward.

Meanwhile, Mr. Bryce has announced a four-point plan for highway safety. It includes further training of young drivers, driver improvement courses, motor vehicle inspection and control of the drinking driver.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 1st, 1946.

Praising hospital personnel, including thousands of volunteer workers, for their devotion to duty during the war and postwar emergency, Dr. Irvin Abell, of Louisville, chairman of the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons, today announced that results of the 28th annual Hospital Standardization Survey in 1945 shows 80.8 per cent of those under survey, as meeting the minimum standard for approval. Included in the list of newly approved hospitals in the United States and Canada is the Belleville General Hospital.

30 YEARS AGO

February 1st, 1936.

There is a steady decrease in the number of transients who apply for a night's lodging at the police station. During December there were 297; during January there were 267, last night there were 8 applicants.

Only one building permit was issued at the city engineer's office during January; this was issued to Miss Elizabeth Corbett for alterations to a store on Front St.

Miss N. P. Merry and Mr. Douglas Newby are in Kingston today to attend a meeting of the Regional Drama Festival committee.

40 YEARS AGO

February 1st, 1926.

Mr. J. H. Legate is spending a few days in Montreal on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parrott and son Jack, Kingston Rd. are spending some holidays in Philadelphia.

Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P. was in town today on his way home from Ottawa.

Rev. Father Killeen of St. Michael's Church was presented with a purse containing $1200 prior to his departure on a two months vacation to the West Indies.

50 YEARS AGO

February 1st, 1916.

Owing to the mild weather the ice in the river moved down to the vicinity of the C.P.R. and C.N.R. bridges. The result was that with the blockade of ice at the piers of the bridges the water was backed up to an unusual height. Several cellars in business places contained water to a depth of 12 to 18 inches, merchants had taken the precaution to move goods from the basements of their stores and little damage resulted.

Mrs. T. Blackburn showed the Intelligencer a spray of pansies which she had picked in her garden this morning; there were three or four developed plants and some buds.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Feb. 1, 1966 . . .

Mary Baker Eddy, a 45-year-old New England teacher, was seriously injured by a fall 100 years ago today—in 1866—which proved the immediate foundation of Christian Science. Mrs. Eddy turned to the Bible when medical care failed and soon appeared completely recovered. For the rest of her long life she wrote devotional works and gave herself to the establishment of the Christian Science Church, which had 2,370 congregations a dozen years after her death. Mrs. Eddy made an early enemy of Mark Twain, who ridiculed faith-healing and accused her of plagiarising some of her books.

To Your Good Health

No Flour, No Sugar Diet Is Impossible

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has a trace of diabetes. The hospital gave him a diet to follow, but our doctor changed it to a no-flour, no - sugar regimen. Where can I get information on such a diet? Almost everything one buys today contains sugar or flour. — Mrs. D. L.

Diet for a diabetic is such an individualized matter that printed diet lists usually require at least a little custom-tailoring to fit a case.

I wonder if there could be some misunderstanding as to what your doctor meant. Flour (of various kinds) and sugar (also of various kinds) furnish a good share of our carbohydrate, and we all need some for energy purposes.

Most foods contain sugar to some extent — about 5 percent in leafy vegetables, twice that in round vegetables, such as beets or carrots; 15 percent in apples; potatoes, corn rice, bananas approach 20 percent. Meat, while high in protein, is broken down in digestion and a considerable proportion of it is glucose, which is a common form of sugar.

A "no-sugar" diet is virtually impossible. But if your doctor said "Avoid anything requiring flour or sugar in the cooking," that means something else. He might well have been trying to have you avoid desserts containing sugar, cake-frosting, gravies and cream sauces, and so on, which contain flour.

Taken at face value, "no flour" would eliminate even bread or toast, and I doubt that he meant that, although he might very well mean to keep bread within limits.

Since you live in a metropolitan area, Mrs. D. L., there are hospitals, health departments and Visiting Nurse Associations with dietetic services. Your doctor can refer you to one of them to have the ins and outs of such a special diet explained to you.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have kidney stones and my doctor said analysis showed calcium, so he took me off all dairy products. What about my need for calcium? Can I get this through some other foods? — W. E.

Many people would be healthier and happier with more calcium; however, a comparative few, like you, must keep it to a minimum.

Milk and milk products are very rich in calcium, so your doctor has, quite rightly, told you to avoid this source of calcium in food. He wants to reduce your total intake of it in as simple a way as possible.

But don't worry about getting enough calcium — and you need quite a bit, both for bone structure and for healing of any wounds you may get. Calcium is important in forming clots at bleeding sites. Nearly all foods contain some calcium, since that element is an abundant one in Nature.

In your particular case, W.E., keep your calcium intake at a moderate level; most people can use more instead of less. Also, your urine should be kept acid (I'm sure your doctor is examining it from time to time and it should be kept dilute, meaning that you should drink ample liquids.

Yes, because your system of elimination doesn't need a daily enema. It's something like asking, "Is it harmful to whip a horse every time I drive him?" After a time the horse won't move at all unless whipped. Better get back to letting the horse — or your elimination — work naturally. This can be done by establishing more regular bowel habits, increased water intake and providing more bulk in the diet.

Snow Boosts Water Level

Montreal Gazette

The extremely heavy snowfall of this winter, coming, as it does, after an exceptionally rainy autumn will almost certainly mean that the worries over low water levels on the St. Lawrence will be over.

Yet this is scarcely a time to consider that the problems of low water can be forgotten. What it does mean is that methods have to be found for providing methods of equalizing the extremes.

This was fully proved during why the efforts of such a body lem was admitted to be serious, and thought it was frequently discussed, and at the highest levels, so much planning was needed, as well as the co-operation of so many different levels of government in Canada and in the United States, that little more could be done than to speak of what was necessary.

This is the very best reason why the efforts of such a body as the Montreal Port Council should be encouraged. It was active in promoting seminars during the period of low water, when experts gave their opinions on the problem. It should continue its work. And the federal Government should look upon any temporary relief from low water problems on the St. Lawrence Route as an opportunity to be seized in working out long-term solutions.

Those big piles of snow should not bring a sense of relief, for those concerned with shipping. They should give a greater sense of urgency than ever.

Chile Axes The Siesta

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

It's too bad to see Chile banning the siesta. Many of us have sometimes thought—when we had time for it, or weren't too nervous, or didn't have too many things on our minds already, or weren't too sleepy — that the siesta would be pretty good for us too. While we never got around to actually taking it up, still it is a little discouraging to see others already getting around to laying it down.

By official decree, no less. Of course the Chilean two-hour lunch took a big hunk out of the working day, but that has been cut to half an hour by the same austerity orders, so there wouldn't be much mid-day dining and wining to sleep off even if there were a siesta to do it in.

The Santiago government excuses these dicta on grounds that the austerities are necessary in order to maintain the staggering of the exodus of workers from the downtown city evenings (and take some of the heat off the already hot-boxed public transit system.) That's a good reason, though if they can stagger the exodus why can't they save the siesta by staggering it too? It's just an [illegible] we'd be glad to go [illegible]her if anyone would car[illegible] around.

Adaptability Key To Future

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If, this June, your son received a Ph.D. degree in aerospace engineering, half of what he knows when he graduates will be obsolete in 10 years. For fully half of what he needs to know for the next 10 years is completely unknown today.

This "obsolescence of knowledge," especially in scientific fields, is changing the whole idea of what constitutes a 'good' college education. And it reaffirms those of us who have been saying for a long time that learning how to learn is the most important part of education.

The real reason that vocational and "specialist" training is largely pointless today lies in the rapid outdating of so much technical knowledge and skills. Even our newest profession — that of programming computers — will soon be obsolete, when the computers are built that will program themselves.

What the new society of the future calls for are versatility and flexibility and creativity. These cannot be learned in a technical sense; they are part of a liberal education, which teaches men and women how to think, not just how to put things together and make them work. The new machines will be able to put things together much better than people can.

It is no accident that, for the first time, the prestigious Massachusetts Institute of Technology has appointed a president who is neither a scientist nor a technician. Or that business schools such as those at Harvard and Columbia, have shifted their emphasis from the technical aspects of business administration to a broader program of liberal arts.

In a recent talk, Dr. Arnold Ducoffe, director of Georgia Tech's School of Aerospace Engineering, remarked that this obsolesence of knowledge is the big reason that today's engineering schools no longer stress the "mechanical," but rather the "philosophical" elements in science — not how to do something, but why something is true. If we learn the reasons behind phenomena, then we can cope with changing conditions.

Our pressing need is for men and women who can adapt to needs and acquire skills that are barely on the horizon today. More and more, the function of the specialist is being taken over by the machines; it is the "generalist," who can make decisions based on an imaginative projection of the future, we so desperately require to keep the wheels turning.

In the past, the average man would change his job three times during his lifetime. In the future, we are told, the average man may have to change his vocation three times during his lifetime. Unless he learns how to learn, in a philosophical sense, the specialist may become a dropout from the economic community.

Churchill Trust Fund Lags

Hamilton Spectator

When the Churchill Trust Fund drive for $15 million was announced shortly after the great man's death last January it was confidently expected that Canadians would contribute at least $3 million.

For a variety of reasons, Canadians have not yet had the opportunity to give. The Australians have given $4 million and over $9 million has been raised in Britain.

The fund is for an excellent cause. With the money raised, its administrators plan to finance students and professional persons (they will be called Churchill Fellows) from Britain, Canada, the United States, New Zealand and Australia, to help them continue their studies and research abroad.

Canada's effort to play a fair role in this noble undertaking has an embarrassingly woebegone appearance. The fact that its Canadian organizer, the Hon. George Drew, has been ill was at first a good excuse but it no longer holds water. If Mr. Drew's health still does not permit his participation, another organizer should volunteer to take his place.

The other excuse for the failure to get the fund-raising campaign under way in Canada was the number of other campaigns that were held last year. But there are campaigns every year that are bound to interfere. That's a fact of fund-raising life that campaigners must learn to live with.

It is now more than a year since Sir Winston died at the age of 90. It is a now-or-never time for the Churchill fund drive in Canada. Leave it for another year, or even for six months, and this affluent country won't even come close to achieving Australia's notable contribution.

As Fred O'Breche, a leader of Canada's Legion, said, "We would have been better to launch it soon after Sir Winston's death . . . but now I hope we'll be able to get it going on the first anniversary of his death."

Let's get moving.

New Stamps Brighten Mail

Pictou Advocate

Dr. Henry D. Hicks, president of Dalhousie University, is also a Fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society. He deplores the increasing number of commemoration and special stamps isued by all countries,particularly his own Canada.

It would be a sad day indeed if the issuing of postage stamps were to be controlled for the benefit of a few hundred collectors.

The trouble with stamp collectors is that they seem to think they should be able to collect complete sets of any one country. Why?

Does a librarian expect to have a copy of every book that's ever published in a particular language?

A large college library may have a million volumes, but a small home library may have only 100. The solution is to adapt one's appetite according to the pocketbook.

We believe Canada's postmaster - general is making a good start in introducing more meaningful and colorful postage stamps. Canada is far behind in this regard.

On a stormy winter's day it's a welcome bit of cheer to receive a letter with a tiny picture of a hyacinth or a scarlet tanager in the upper right hand corner. We ought not to depend solely on foreign governments for this little bit of extra color in our lives.

And let us think of the letters we send. When writing to Timbuctoo or Turkey or Tahiti it means something to be able to show that Canadians have an eye for color and design.

The Canada goose, the beaver, the maple leaf flag, the provincial flowers have provided very attractive postage stamps.

Please let us have more. Where else can you buy a miniature work of art for five cents.

Soviet Sub Is Noisy Craft

Detroit Free Press

The 1965-66 edition of Jane's Fighting Ships says Soviet submarines regularly keep station off the United States, Australia and Communist China.

This is not only highly probable. It would be most peculiar were it not true.

The Russians, again according to Jane's, have the world's largest submarine fleet 425 against our 200 and a navy can't be kept in any reasonable state of training if its vessels—submersible or otherwise—stay in port or only cruise home waters.

Also, submarines are ideal for covert surveillance. And in this era nations tend to keep a close eye on even their best friends—to say nothing of possible enemies. Ours, too, are doubtless keeping station in useful places.

Possibly, however ,this isn't so easy to verify as it is in the case of the Russians. Our subs can leave any of many harbors and at once be on the high seas. The Russians can get there only via a few narrow waterways which can be easily watched—and are.

This applies not only to the Baltic and Black Seas, but to the Seas of Okhotsk and Japan, which lie between Siberia's eastern seaboard and the Pacific.

Moreover ,say our anti-submarine people, the Soviet sailors haven't the hang of silent sailing beneath the waves. Comparatively, they will tell you, Soviet submarines are noisy boats and kindergarten stuff for modern submarine detection equipment.

Not only are the comings and going of Russian sumbmariners noted, they are methodically followed on their travels.

All this goes far to explain how Jane's can be so positive about what the Reds do with their submarines. It also makes the numbers-game measure of United States vis-a-vis Soviet submarine strength a good deal less impressive.

In-laws and Marital Ties

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Is it true what they say about mothers-in-law.

A survey of 7,000 wrecked marriages has convinced Rev. Francis Ripley, head of the Roman Catholic Information Office in Liverpool, England, that it is.

And while Father Ripley blames the husband's mother more than the wife's for stirring up marital trouble, he includes mothers-in-law on both sides in pleading with them to keep hands off the married lives of their children.

To the married couples themselves, he suggests:

"Get a home of your own far enough away to make it a bit of an effort for mothers to visit it too often."

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed as morning trading slowed on the Toronto stock Exchange today.

Interest in speculative mining issues diminished although Silvermaque turned over more than 210,000 shares in the first hour. Around noon it was unchanged at 63 cents after touching a high of 72 cents. D'Eldona, which triggered the recent boom in speculatives and has fluctuated between 90 cents and 3.50 in the last three weeks, advanced 10 cents to 1.40.

Dome, up a point Monday, advanced a further 1¾ to 44¼ as the gold index jumped 1.45 to 176.67.

On index, industrials fell .29 to 174.46 and the TSE index .20 to 164.84. Base metals were up [illegible] to 90.02 and western oils .16, [illegible] 111.79. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,304,000 shares compared with 1,641,000 at the same time Monday.

Among speculative mining issues, D'Eldona sagged 30 cents to 1.30. Wilco, D'Eldon's neighbor in the Rouyn area of Quebec, tagged along with a 13-cent dip at 63 cents.

In banks, Montreal eased ⅛ to 64, Nova Scotia ⅛ to 73⅛, Imperial Commerce ¼ to 69¼ and Royal Bank ¾ to 78¼. Toronto - Dominion countered the trend with a gain of ½ to 66½.

In steels, Algoma was up ⅜ to 69½ and Dofasco ½ to 29.

Falconbridge fell 2 to 109 and Pine Point 1¾ to 66½ in the base metals list. Inco was up ⅛ to 106½ and Noranda ¼ to 53¼.

On index, industrials were down .11 to 174.75, base metals .54 to 89.71 and the TSE index .13 to 165.04.

Golds were up .18 to 175.22 and western oils .31 to 111.63. Volume was 5,574,000 shares compared with 6,011,000 Friday.

White Cane Club Holds Business Meet

The January business meeting of the White Cane Club was held recently at the Recreation Centre with President Vi Waite in the chair.

Following the general business of the evening, Mrs. Rollins read the correspondence which included excerpts from the January Council Commentary. It isued a warning to all parents with regard to the buying of toys for their children, saying that extreme caution should be exercised at all times. Make sure that there are no detachable or removable parts that can fly into the eyes. Edges should be smooth, corners rounded, springs or gears completely enclosed. The construction should be firm, using shatter-resistant and non-flammable materials. Base the toy selections on the child's maturity and capabilities. Be sure he understands how to handle toys with safety for himself and others.

A disturbing item of news was the fact that more than 150,000 children suffer eye accidents in the United States each year.

An interesting letter from the C.C.B. containing facts about the C.C.B. and the C.N.I.B. was read and caused much favorable comment.

COMPARE GROUPS

A few of the pertinent facts contained in this letter are as follows. The difference between the Canadian Council of the Blind and The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is that the C.C.B. is the national organization of the blind themselves and the C.N.I.B. is the national service agency for the blind. These two organizations complement one another. The institute provides services while the council forms new clubs of the blind and presents to the institute ideas and suggestions which might be implemented.

These two organizations work in partnership by co-operation in mutual and beneficial projects such as legislation, recreation, research, the promotion of public relations and White Cane Week.

CHARTER GRANTED

In the early 1940's the Manitoba League of the Blind originated the idea of a National organization of Clubs of the blind. The London association of the blind took up the suggestion and the C.C.B. was officially formed in February, 1944 with seven member clubs. By 1950 the council had achieved nation-wide recognition and in May of that year a federal charter was granted.

Approximately 4,500 French and English speaking members in over 80 clubs across Canada are served by the council. The C.C.B. was organized to give blind Canadians a united voice in their own affairs. Its principal objectives are to promote the well-being of the blind through higher education, profitable employment and social associations. It also seeks to create a closer relationship between the blind and their sighted friends. Other aims are to develop a nationwide organization of blind persons and groups of blind persons throughout Canada and to promote measures for the conservation of sight and the prevention of blindness.

The C.C.B. achieves these objectives through the initiative, enthusiasm and dedication of its members in Council undertakings.

Doug Huffman was nominated as the delegate to the C.C.B. convention in Sudbury in May, with Vi Waite as the alternate delegate.

MUSICAL SELECTIONS

Arlie Scott introduced the guests who provided the musical entertainement for the evening. Mrs. Irene Reid at the piano, Mr. Jack Hollyoake with his banjo and violinists Mr. J. Winstanley and Mr. Clement delighted their audience with a number of lively tunes.

On behalf of the club, Betty Dobson thanked the entertainers for their music which was so much enjoyed.

30 Million Will Attend Expo 67 Rotarians Told

An estimated 30 million people will attend Expo '67, Canada's centennial extravaganza, Allan Rowan-Legg, Ontario Regional Director of the exhibition, told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

"Centennial year is going to be a very exciting period," said Mr. Rowan-Legg. "Expo 67 will be the home base of all centennial projects and the most unifying force Canada has known, apart from the World Wars."

Some 54 percent of the visitors will come from the United States, and 42 percent from across Canada, of which 22 percent will be from Montreal and Quebec at large. The balance will come from other parts of the world.

"The number coming from Europe will depend on whether the airlines will offer reduced fares and on the degree of prosperity overseas," he said.

Mr. Rowan-Legg said that 75 governments thus far have indicated they will participate in Expo 67, which will run from the end of April until the end of October 1967.

"The whole exhibition is based on man and his world," said Mr. Rowan-Legg. "It will be divided into five categories —man the creator, explorer, producer, provider, and man in the community."

The site of Expo 67 is a group of islands', largely man-made, in the St. Lawrence, only minutes away from downtown Montreal. Centre of the island complex is St. Helen's Island, which itself is being extended to accommodate a marina accommodating 250 yachts, and other attractions.

Mr. Rowan-Legg, describing a period when 800 trucks were dumping fill into the St. Lawrence every 20 seconds, said the building of the pyramids was like "child's play" by comparison.

ATTRACTIONS OUTLINED

Describing some of the international attractions to be seen at Expo 67, Mr. Rowan - Legg said the Canadian pavilion will feature a giant maple leaf structure composed largely of colored slides showing every phase of Canadian life.

There will be an art gallery featuring some old masters never before seen outside their countries of origin, Nobel prizewinners will give lectures, France will send 600 men, horses and jeeps for a military display, Japan will feature a giant tea garden, to remain as a per-will have a $14 million display, manent feature, and Russia

Canada's provinces will have their own displays. The Atlantic provinces, for example, will have seafood flown in daily for their restaurant service, and Maritime boat builders expect a boost from a schooner to be built at their Expo site and launched before the end of the exhibition.

The prairie provinces and British Columbia will feature natural resources.

There will be 125 buildings in all and more than 500 guides will be available.

Mr. Rowan-Legg has been with the Expo 67 organization from the beginning of the project. He said the office staff in Montreal now numbers 1,200 and there are 1,800 working on the site. He anticipated a total payroll of some 5,000 by the time the exhibition opens.

Commissioner-General of the exhibition is Pierre Dupuis, who was the Commonwealth's top spy during the last war.

Rotary President Ernest Burnham presided.

Four Winners Will Be Sent To Main Event

Four winners in this year's Science and Hobby Fair in Belleville will attend the national event in Windsor.

J. C. (Pat) Houston told Rotarians yesterday this is double the number sent to last year's national event.

He said it is hoped the Belleville event on April 1 and 2 will also feature more exhibits of a mobile rather than static character. For example, the organizers are looking for such exhibits as model trains.

More prizes of higher value will be offered this year, particularly to first-time entrants. This is a bid to encourage continuity, with competitors entering again in succeeding years.

Mr. Houston said no program will be issued this year. He said nearly $500 was spent last year on the program for a profit of some $300. It was hoped to raise a like sum this year by other means.

He suggested industries and individuals might like to donate prizes.

Invitations have been sent to 14 schools in Picton, Madoc, Tweed, Marmora and east to Napanee, as well as Belleville.

Recreational Complex North of City Proposed by Local Developers

Belleville may have a two an one-half million dollar recreational complex by Canada's Centennial year.

The complex, to be known as Hastings Pleasure Gardens, is planned for construction just north of the city above Highway 401, south of Cloverleaf Drive and between Sydney Street on the west and Highway 14 on the east.

The complex includes a 5,000-seat capacity arena, a skating and practice hockey ice surface, four sheets of curling, an indoor swimming pool, and gymnasia and convention hall, winter golf school, amusement arcade, shooting range, sports sundry shop, restaurant, driving range, archery range, tennis courts, a par 3 golf course, miniature golf, softball and baseball diamonds and track and field and soccer areas.

Ted Mowers, who owns the land where the proposed complex will be built and who first conceived of the idea, said, "We plan to have the arena opened by November of this year.

'This project is something I've dreamed about since coming to Belleville in 1947. I have travelled a long way in the past few months, talking to many people. Out of this my dream's been born, but it's become more than a dream now, it's going to become a reality.

"All it needs to make it a reality is for the people of Belleville and of this area to get behind it."

BOARD BEING FORMED

The board of directors is being formed and should be completed this week. Mr. Mowers said the company is aiming for a board of 10 men. Besides Mr. Mowers, Ken Soden, Dr. Russell Scott, Richard Ellis, Richard E. Barrett, and Frank Follwell have agreed to sit on the board. Picton mayor Harvey J. McFarland expressed his desire by phone yesterday to sit on the board.

The public can subscribe to the building by contributing $100 to the company. In return, a subscriber will receive a booklet containing space for 250 stamps worth 50 cents each. After a subscriber purchases $1 in stamps each week for two years, then 50 stamps, worth $25, will be given to him by the company. Thus, for his $100 subscription, he receives $125 in stamps.

These stamps will be accepted to apply on admission price to any event or activity held at the recreational complex.

Mr. Mowers said he has been negotiating to have these stamps sold at all local banks and trust companies in the area.

A 70 x 10 foot plaque will be erected at the entrance to the complex listing all persons who purchased the prepaid admissions, thus making the complex a reality.

NEED LEADERSHIP

Speaking at the press conference last night, Mr. Mowers said, "I think you are behind me in this project, but you think it is an awfully big project for Belleville.

"It is big.

"It's like an army of ants trying to move a cow. One couldn't do it alone, but if all the ants worked together, they could move the cow.

"Similarly, if all the citizens of Belleville get behind this project, it will be built.

"The need is certainly here. The benefits it would bring to Belleville are tremendous.

"I think it would make Belleville an even better place in which to live, the envy of the nation, and to be a "Builder of a Better Belleville" is what we all should be.

When asked if professional fund raisers would be employed to promote the new complex, Mr. Mowers said, "This will be the biggest fund raising campaign you have ever seen. This job is too big for any one man to do, so professionals will be called in.

"You must remember, this complex will be a commercial enterprise and therefore must be run well because it must be made to pay."

The meeting last night was chaired by Harry Rollins. Mr. Rollins said, "This is something we've been dreaming about for many years, but till now we've never had a person with the foresight, willing to risk everything so that you and I and generations yet unborn could enjoy the possibilities which lie in this plan.

"All we need now is leadership.

A COMMUNITY PROJECT

"This is a project, not for one individual, or two individuals, but is a community project.

Ald. Ken Soden said, "Last fall the recreation conference in Belleville enjoyed a large attendance. Everyone wanted to know when we could have more facilities for recreation in the city.

"Ted Mowers has spent the last six months putting this complex together and presenting it to us.

"We need as many people as possible who can see the need for this — and there is a need, a great need; and who can see what it can mean for Belleville, and who will get behind it and boost it wholeheartedly.

"I'm 100 percent behind the project and I hope we will get enough other people behind it to get it off the ground.

"This project needs everybody's support. You've got to support anything that is going to boost Belleville.

"It is an ambitious scheme. But it can be completed with the help of enough people."

Mr. Rollins asked persons attending the conference for opinions on the project.

City planning director P. J. Beavis said, "I agree that facilities such as this would be an asset to the area.

MUST ANSWER QUESTIONS

"As a technician, I would query many of the areas of the complex's planning. As a private citizen, I would have a little more to say. There are questions of financing that must be answered.

"However, the planning board will certainly give every cooperation it can to this development and I wish the planners every success in this venture."

Mrs. Dorothy Brown, of the Business and Professional Women's Association, said, "It is a little too early to say too much. Certainly, anything of this sort is going to boost Belleville.

"As a parent, naturally I am interested in recreation. As a citizen, I am interested in the welfare and the improvement of the city and am in favor of anything that will work for it.

"It would be a year - round drawing card for people. I've long been interested in some place for live theatre, ballet and opera. This complex would provide that area, and this appeals to me personally."

Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson said "Speaking as a mother and as a nurse, I am in favor of anything that is going to help improve the physical conditioning of the people.

"We're supposed to have more leisure time than ever. Our children need things to do and places to go.

"Something like this would be just wonderful. I hope it will get off the ground."

Dr. John M. Clarke said, "It is a marvellous idea. We've all had dreams about something like this.

WOULD BRING ATTENTION

"It certainly would bring attention to Belleville, but I'm skeptical of where we're going to get the money to do it."

Jack Devine of CJBQ said, "There's no doubt our facilities in Belleville are limited and this plan would fill the need.

"It is going to take a lot of hard work, but I think the people of this city have shown they are capable of good hard work."

Lloyd "Red" Doran, City Recreational Director said, "When we speak of recreation for the city, we think in terms of the need. The need is certainly here but if we have to wait for the tax dollar to build it, it certainly won't be built, at least not in the near future.

"We need it, and if we want it, this is the only way we are going to get it."

Assistant Recreational Director Norm Carter said, "Promotion is the main thing in this plan. If it isn't promoted in the proper way, it will fall flat on its face. I feel it's up to each one of us to promote it.

"It's a far reaching plan and if we all reach out far enough it will become a reality.

DESERVES CREDIT

Roy Dulmage, secretary of the Quinte District High School Board said, "I feel Ted Mowers deserves a great deal of credit for even thinking of a plan of this size.

"You'll recall some people tried to get a large auditorium at the new high school and could not. A program of this nature could fill that need."

Paul Mercier said, "This is big.

"I am glad to see people think big. The publicity we got from the world championship would be nothing compared to the publicity we would get with this."

Don Barrett said, "As to whether it can be done or not, that remains to be seen. But if the perserverance of Ted (Mowers) is consistent with what it has been in the past, then I am sure it will be done."

Mrs. K. Weaver, Stirling, Heads Presbyterial UCW

The annual meeting of the Belleville Presbytery United Church Women continued on Wednesday following Tuesday evening's opening procedures and was opened with the call to worship and greetings from Mrs. D. G. Williams, president of Bridge Street U.C.W., Belleville.

Conference president Mrs. L. F. Richardson of Whitby gave a message for thought, "A United Church Woman — What is She?" and quoted five basis for U.C.W. — "Appreciation, Evaluation, Anticipation, Dedication and Infantation." She asked each to apply these to her real life to see how each measures up remembering "You can trace a real Christian by the lights he leaves burning." To stop rushing around and give God a Chance to Speak to Each of Us. That we are each responsible to make the world in which we live a better place. This is 1966 What are We Going to do With It?" Her twelve rules for living are: live a simple life; spend less than you earn; think constructively; cultivate a yielding disposition; be grateful; rule your moods; give generously; work with right motives; be interested in others; live one day at a time; have a hobby; seek God's guidance daily; build a tradition rather than to preserve one.

Mrs. M. Clancy, literature secretary assisted by Mrs. J. Good left no doubt that help aids were available in plenty for assistance in all departments of U.C.W. work.

Holy Communion followed with the Rev. H. Davis of Bridge St. United Church officiating. He was assisted by eight lady elders from various churches in the Presbyterial.

At noon members adjourned to the basement for dinner served by the U.C.W.

The afternoon session opened with worshrip and solo by Mrs. P. Miedema. Mrs. F. Smith spoke briefly and thanked the ladies for their loyalty during her two years as president and expressed her hope for the continuation of the work in the years to come.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. A. Benvie introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. L. A. VanDuzer, past chairman, stewardship and recruiting, board of women, now living in Montreal. She said "As Christians we are Stewards for Christ. That a Christian was one who confesses Christ as Savior and Receives Him as Lord of His Life. That Stewardship meant we must use our abilities, skills, time and money and faith for furthering His Kingdom on Earth. Let us be ready to experiment, to change, to be contemporary women in a contemporary world." Mrs. VanDuzer asked "that as United Church Women we remember not only to minister to those we are in contact with daily but those less fortunate thank ourselves both here and abroad."

Officers for 1966 are: president — Mrs. K. Weaver, Stirling; vice-president — Mrs. H. Pierson, Wellington; vice-presidents for districts: Hastings E. — Mrs. H. Congregational Meeting

EMMANUEL BAPTIST CHURCH

The fourth annual meeting of Emmanuel Baptist church was held Wednesday, January 26, preceded by a delicious turkey supper served (by the ladies of the Church assisted by the girls of the B.H.F. to a hundred persons, members and their families.

The meeting was in charge of Dr. Alf Arthur, chairman of the Deacons Board. In his report the Pastor, Rev. Eric Quirk stated although a number of families were lost by transfer to other places, considerable net gain has been made including four by baptism and three by experience. He further went on to say that he feels the spiritual life today is definitely better than it was a year ago. In addition he stated we are more united. The great need as heretofore has been for individual spiritual renewal or revival. During 1965 Rev. Quirk made five hundred and ninty four Pastoral calls, and in addition has done a great deal of door to door visitation.

Reports from the various committees were received and accepted and a report of the Nomination committee for the coming year was received and passed as follows:

Council of Women Want Military Planning Staff

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Council of Women wants the federal government to set up "a permament military planning staff to anticipate and prepare for needed peace keeping operations around the world.

In a brief Monday to Prime Minister Pearson and his cabinet, the 700,000-member organization commended the government on its support of international peacekeeping, and urged continued efforts to "find an equitable solution to the problems of financing" such operations through the United Nations.

The council, made up of 18,000 federated societies, also asked for registration of all firms manufacturing, importing or selling drugs.

Permission for divorce suits to be filed where the separation took place was requested. Now petitions must be filed in the province where the husband is living, resulting in "serious hardship for a wife who wishes to file for divorce but whose husband has a distant domicile."

OFFER ASSURANCE

Mr. Pearson and five of his cabinet gave the delegation a one-hour hearing Monday and offered some assurance that study will be given to changing Canada's divorce laws.

Mr. Pearson said the question of divorce legislation is under review within the justice department and there are at least seven private members' bills on the subject scheduled to come up at this session of Parliament, a spokesman in Mr. Pearson's office said later.

Resolutions submitted in 1964 and 1965 on dissolution of marriage, birth control laws and abortion were included in the brief.

It was presented to the prime minister by an eight - woman committee led by President Mrs. H. H. Steen of Vancouver who said her group was given a "very patient hearing. They had copies of our brief in advance and assured us that most of the matters were already under consideration. We expect to see results soon."

Woman at 72 Controls Mikes at Massey Hall

TORONTO (CP) — Hilda Speight has been contributing to the success of performances at Massey Hall for 30 years but the audience—from symphony fans to faith - healers — probably doesn't know she exists.

Mrs. Speight, 72, sets up and operates the sound system in the concert hall, operating from a sound-proof control booth at the back of the first balcony.

And if the audience is not aware of her work, the performer certainly is. The late Charles Laughton once kissed her hand after a dramatic reading, thanking her for her "sensitive, sympathetic support."

Mrs. Speight arrives at least an hour before each show, sets up the microphones, tests the pickup and confers with performers on sound levels and cues.

She tells singers who use a microphone: "Your first two notes may not sound perfect but after that you'll sound natural."

Newcomers to Massey Hall usually ask for too much volume, she says. "They don't know the hall's marvelous acoustics. All I have to do is build their tone very slightly for a natural sound.

Mrs. Speight has little patience with jazz groups who keep calling for more volume to overpower their fans. Microphone - swallowers bother her, too. No matter how much she warns them to keep their distance, they continue to caress the mike and distort their voices, she says.

Last year a folk-singing group performed without any problems, but this year they had a new manager who kept sending word to the booth for more sound. Next day the critics moaned over the ear-splitting experience.

"I know my job," said Mrs. Speight.

BELLEVILLE PLAZA

THREE FAVORITE REQUESTS

Herewith is a three-way effort.

In the stack of mail still patiently waiting to be answered are three letters with which today's recipe deals. One girl asked for wtys of using up leftover roast beef; another wants to know how to make Cornish [illegible]ies; another individual [illegible] pies.

These Meat Pasties are a nuisance to make but once done are delicious and any extras may be wrapped and stored and reheated for a future meal. Carefully wrapped they would be a good change from sandwiches in lunch boxes if you have to pack them daily.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

MEAT PASTIES (18 4½"):

Pastry: 2¾ cups stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ⅞ cup shortening, ¼ cup butter, 5½ tablespoons cold water.

Filling: 3 cups ground leftover roast beef (lightly packed), 2 tablespoons chopped (or instant chopped) onion, 2 tablespoons beef drippings, ½ teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup catsup, ½ cup water (or gravy or water and gravy).

To make pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and [illegible] until size of peas. Drizzle [illegible]old water tossing with fork to dampen. Press into ball and roll out into a large sheet on floured board to ⅛" thickness. Cut out with 4 or 4½" round cutter. (I used the top of the coffee canister.)

To make Filling: in frying pan melt drippings and add all filling ingredients and heat through, stirring. Measure out scant 2 tablespoons of meat filling and place on side centre of each, spreading it a little toward edges. Moisten pastry edges wtih water and seal tightly. This is a long tedious step so be patient and philosophical. Place on baking sheets in rows. Prick top of each pastry twice with forktip. Neatly glaze top by brushing with 1 beaten egg yolk dihited with 1 tablespoon cold water. Chill if you have time. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 15 to 17 minutes or until a deep cream color. Serve hot.

NOTE:

For Cornish Pasties use lamb or mutton instead of roast beef.

50 Attend Evangelism Fellowship

Approximately 50 co-workers and interested friends of Child Evangelism Fellowship attended the fellowship evening recently at Bethel Chapel, arranged by the Belleville committee.

Mr. Floyd Cummings was the chairman for the evening's program and was joined by Mrs. Lorne Elliott in the singing of two duets. Miss Marjorie Laing, the area director, showed a number of slides and told of the local work. She also presented a number of visualized songs and stories which are available for teachers of Sunday School classes and Good News Bible Clubs.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHT

The highlight of the program was a challenging address given by Mr. William McRae, Children's Evangelist and conference speaker. Using the familiar story of the "Feeding of the Five Thousand," Mr. McRae stressed a number of implications in presenting the Gospel to children today. He took four of the characters involved in this story which included Philip, a perplexed servant; Andrew, a perceptive servant; the lad a prepared servant; and the Lord, the powerful servant.

Following the message a time of fellowship was enjoyed with refreshments served by the ladies.

Ann Landers

Second Family After Forty Not Impossible

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The answer to my problem is probably clear to everyone but me. I may be reaching for the moon, but when you want something desperately, it's not easy to think clearly.

ANN LANDERS

I have been a widow for ten years and have two children. I never dreamed I'd be lucky enough to find love a second time. The man is exactly my age, 43. He has never been married and he wants a family.

Am I out of my mind to be thinking of a second family at my age? If you say it is best that he marry someone younger I will stop seeing him. Someone must tell me. Please be the one. — TOO LATE.

DEAR TOO LATE: The only way to find out for sure whether you can have a family is to marry him and see.

Some men who marry girls in their 20's find that their wives cannot have children. If they are wise they adopt.

Adopted children will be as dear to you and to him as the children you might have had. So go, girl, and good luck. Don't pass up this chance for happiness.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The least you can do when you refer to a couple by name is to identify the city so you don't [illegible]arrass innocent people.

Recently you printed a letter signed Betty and Don. My name is Betty and my husband's name is Don. Last night we had to take the telephone off the hook to get a night's sleep. Everyone we know called to ask if we had read Ann Landers' column. The letter was about Betty and Don's sex problem. Our friends and neighbors thought it was hilarious.

Your column may do some good, but it also does some harm. Please print this letter and vindicate us. Our last name begins with C and we live in Minneapolis and we are not having any trouble whatsoever. Thank you. — MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

DEAR MISTAKEN: You're not the Betty and Don. It so happens that I made up the signature Betty and Don to protect the couple who wrote. Next time I'll use Murgatroid and Zurline — and then I'll probably get a beef from them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a high school junior, aged 17, and madly in love with my history teacher. Please don't tell me it is puppy love. I am not a puppy, I am a human being.

The teacher is 32 years old, married and has three children. To make matters worse he doesn't know I exist. Half the time he calls me by another girl's name. Whenever I correct him he apologizes with, "I'm sorry, but Henrietta sat in that seat last semester."

Please don't say this is infatuation or I'll scream. Compared [illegible]him high school boys look like babies. I'd rather stay home and think about my secret love than go out with the captain of the football team.

I dread graduation. How can I do well in college when this man is on my mind constantly? Help me. — FRUSTRATED AND HEARTSICK.

DEAR FRUS: Your "illness" is common among high school girls and boys. It is called "Crushonteacheritis."

You'll recover — probably at graduation time. Until then, spend less time in the dream world and get back to reality. It may not be as much fun but it's healthier and more practical.

U.C.W. Meetings

PLAINFIELD U.C.W.

PLAINFIELD — Mrs. Harry McCreary opened her home for the January meeting of Plainfield U.C.W., with 21 members present.

This year, a new system has been adopted, in an effort to obtain a larger attendance. Five "Call Captains" have been appointed to call all members, to remind them of approaching meetings. They are: Mrs. Allen Gibson, Mrs. Arthur Legge, Mrs. Horace Palmer, Mrs. Bob Lightfoot and Mrs. Garnet Denyes.

The past president, Mrs. Clarence Hall, opened the meeting with a poem. After the installation of the 1966 officers, by Rev. George Southall, the new president, Mrs. Frank Hodgen, took charge.

Mrs. Grant Kerr conducted the worship service, using as her theme, "The First Commandment."

Mr. Southall led the Bible study session.

An invitation was received to join with Bethel Zion U.C.W. for the World's Day of Prayer Service on February 25th. The starting of a church library was approved. A meeting to discuss amalgamation of the three churches on this pastoral charge was announced for February 9th in Plainfield Hall. It was agreed to save nylon hosiery for Korea and postage stamps for lepers in India. Mrs. George Southall is in charge of this project.

Mrs Clarence Hall took charge of the mission study. It concerned the 42 years spent by Dr. McClure in India, among leprosy, tuberculosis and poliomyelitis patients. Mrs. Ed Emerson assisted.

Successful Living

Loveless Marriage Not to Be Encouraged

DEAR DORIS: I do not believe the Kinsey report on sex holds everywhere and intend to hold the line for my daughters 15 and 19. Also, I have to keep my faith in God to preserve my sanity.

DORIS CLARK

My husband and his relatives blame me daily. But I do not believe fists and force will change the heart of anyone but a coward. Rena left home at 17, and later met a naturalized new Canadian. Now she is four months pregnant, but says she is not ready for marriage. My husband insists. Yet he resents "foreigners."

Would cutting her off from us straighten her thinking? The young man is scared that he will not get along with her as a wife and has yet seen no happy marriages.

I insist it is what you put into the deal, the ideals you have, that make it a success. Does one really "live" when alone? — CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED: Parents rarely realize the pressure toward sex indulgence under which teen-agers are living. The ones with the loving, level-headed mothers and fathers survive best; not those whose parents rule with fists or cut them off for having erred.

Marriage in this case would be jumping straight from frying pan into fire. One does indeed "live" when alone; far more triumphantly than when cramped by a marriage without love.

(According to one psychologist, single women, in general, are happier than married women!)

DEAR DORIS: Although your column seems to be mainly for and about women, I as a man am interested to read about "Country Homemaker" wanting to learn to play the piano. I am also in the same position and would appreciate it very much if you would send me the names of the three beginner's books. — JUST JOE.

DEAR JOE: I have sent them to you.

True, more women than men write to me, but I have it on good authority that male readership is high. Could it be that women express themselves more freely, while men tend to bottle things up?

The likelihood is that women are more concerned with people-problems; men with thing-problems. But you just can't generalize too much. Individuals differ. Vive la difference!

NOTE TO FAMILY COOK: There is a 70-page booklet called "Poultry — How to buy; How to cook." Sections describe marketing, storing, preparing, cooking, carving, freezing and a fine assortment of recipes using various fowl. It is a publication of the Canada Department of Agriculture, with statements on the nutritional value of poultry approved by the Nutrition Division, Department of National Health and Welfare.

You may get a copy by writing to the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, Canada, enclosing 75 cents, and asking for Publication 1189, entitled "Poultry — How to buy; How to cook."

Confidential to MOM: Reading between the lines, I'd guess Johnnie is far too trusting. He sees all girls as like his well-loved mother and sister; so that Babsie, with her easy warmth, is easy to believe.

To stand by her to the point of marriage when she is faithless and pregnant by someone else is just too noble. And unwise. Help the girl by getting her to the child care agency where you are.

DEAR DORIS: I am 18. I was married last year to a man who is 41 (and very handsome). My widowed mother is 38 and she seems to be falling in love with my husband. She is becoming more and more dependent on him (escorting and driving her all around town.)

I have mentioned this to my husband, but he says that it is all silly. Just the way he looks at her makes me very jealous.

Please answer this in the paper as she reads this and it is the only way I know to approach her.—JEALOUS OF MOTHER.

DEAR J.O.M.: Could be your mother is merely indulging herself in the services of a male relative, since she no longer has her own man to wait on her. I hope so.

Until you find out otherwise, believe the best. Devote yourself to becoming a capable homemaker and wife; and let your supposedly mature husband realize you intend to be respected as an adult, in full charge of your home and your man. That your mother is his mother-in-law, and no more.

It may take wisdom beyond your years; and if you need counselling help to keep steady, seek it.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

SPRINGBROOK - BONARLAW

BONARLAW — The January meeting of the Springbrook - Bonarlaw Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Barlow with a good number present. The president, Mrs. M. Cassidy, was in the chair and opened the meeting.

All members signed a card to be sent to Mrs. Tom Webb, an honorary member who is a patient in Campbellford hospital and who celebrated her 94th birthday on Wednesday, January 26.

Fifty chairs have been purchased for the WI meetings and are to be used at Harold hall.

It was announced another card party will be held in Harold hall on February 4. A quilting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Ross Dickie on Tuesday, February 1.

Mrs. James Spry was in charge of the grandmothers program. She called on the guest speaker, Mrs. Barton Haggerty, the district president.

Mrs. Spry showed pictures of old time dresses and Mrs. E. Heath gave a reading. Mrs. George Williams spoke on farm teenage work in the 1920s and Mrs. A. V. Brown and Mrs. A. Burkitt gave readings.

Mrs. Haggerty acted as auctioneer for the sale of home-made candy. The hostess and her assistants served lunch.

Mrs. Everett Heath will be the hostess for the February meeting.

out of this premises. Do you know anything about that?"

"No," answered Regan. "Only what the papers say."

He said he had never seen Moldaver nor any of his employees inside the substation.

"If Mr. Moldaver took some cobalt from this building then you don't know how he got it out?" asked Mr. Sedgwick.

"I don't know a thing about it," Regan replied.

After 1963 the key to the substation was in a filing cabinet in the gatehouse.

"Did you ever lend that key to Mr. Vigodda?" asked counsel.

"No."

"Nor to Mr. Moldaver?"

"No."

MONDAY'S EVIDENCE

Yesterday, the opening day of the hearing brought this developments and testimony:

(1) Three men, Bernard Boulter, William Regan and Herbert Maracle were released of conspiracy charges at the Crown's request;

(2) Boulter was called back to testify against his former employers and alleged metal-filled drums had been taken from Deloro to the Vigodda scrapyards and later sold in the United States;

(3) A Texas firm, visited by Canadian police seeking the missing federal cobalt had purchased a quantity from a Maryland firm — then resold samples to the Canadian government at a profit.

While investigations into the stockpile looting ranged continent - wide, one location was repeatedly in the geographic spotlight at yesterday's hearing — Baltimore Maryland.

The hearing was connected with the U.S. city through a succession of references introduced in evidence, from waybills to cheques — and even a birthday telegram.

STAR WITNESS

A star witness called by the prosecution yesterday was Bernard Boulter originally arrested along with the Vigoddas and charged with conspiracy to steal the cobalt.

Freed of the charge before the hearing began yesterday after Mr. Pringle asked the count be withdrawn, he was later recalled to face his former employers across the courtroom as they sat in the dock.

He alleged drums containing metal had been taken from the Deloro warehouse, emptied at Vigoddas' Markel Metals and Minerals yards in Belleville, filled with sand and gravel and returned to the warehouse. The metal later was shipped to Baltimore, Maryland.

He said he first went to Deloro with Herbert Maracle and Leonard Vigodda and moved a number of barrels back to Belleville.

"And what did you do with them there?" queried Mr. Pringle.

"They were emptied out into other containers and stored".

"And what did you do with the empty ones?"

"They were filled with the sand and gravel and returned" Boulter said he and Maracle later made about four or five other such trips transporting 12 to 15 barrels each time.

"And what specific name did you give to the contents of these barrels?" asked Mr. Pringle.

"Stainless steel."

UNLOADED IN U.S.

"Have you ever discussed the price of this material?" the Crown asked later.

"Just that it is expensive", said Boulter.

"Did you ever discuss who owned this material?"

"No I figured it was owned by Deloro Smelting".

Boulter said the metal later was trucked to the United States. The first shipment was covered by a topping of steel pieces and transported into the United States by way of the Ivy Lea Bridge. Leonard Vigodda supplied the customs' documents, said the witness.

The witness testified the truckload was driven to Baltimore, Maryland and unloaded at the yards of Klaff Metals.

SOLD COBALT SAMPLES

Yesterday's preliminary also heard from a Texas foundry buyer that his company, caught up in the continent - wide hunt for the federal - owned cobalt, had sold cobalt samples to the Canadian government.

C. E. Jewett, a buyer for Cameron [illegible]

cobalt in the firm's stock area when Ontario investigators arrived last August.

The cobalt had been purchased from K. Hettleman and Sons, a Baltimore, Maryland dealer.

"That's a bill of lading for the 50 pounds of sample material sold to the Canadian government", he replied.

He told defence counsel Joseph Sedgwick the Houston foundry had bought the cobalt for $1.45 a pound and resold it to the Canadian government for $1.68.

"That's fair enough — you must make a profit", commented Mr. Sedgwick dryly.

NO INSPECTION MADE

Echoes of the last prosecution in the investigation were raised by the appearance of Raymond Cornell.

Cornell was one of the leading witnesses in the trial of his employer, Peterborough scrap dealer Irving Moldaver, acquitted two weeks ago of theft in the disappearance of some of the cobalt.

Cornell, for his third appearance before a court hearing the cobalt - theft allegations, again told of his trips to the stockpile warehouse on Moldaver's instructions to partially empty some 30 barrels of the metal in October 1963. (At Moldaver's trial it was shown the haul was sold to a U.S. firm for $43,000).

While removing the material he said no inspection was made of it at the gatehouse by superintendent William Regan.

"It seems strange," commented Mr. Sedgwick as he asked the witness why Regan didn't question the nature of the shipment.

Cornell agreed he thought Regan knew the "purpose" of their trip.

"You figured Regan knew you were going there for the purpose of taking the cobalt, is that right?" asked Mr. Sedgwick.

"That's right," answered Cornell.

"Did you ever have any dealings at all with these gentlemen - Mr. Vigodda junior and Mr. Vigodda senior?"

"No."

Mr. Sedgwick again probed the witness on the inspection of their truck by Mr. Regan as they left the site.

"Whether you had 30 barrels full or 30 barrels empty he wouldn't know?"

"No," replied the truck driver.

OPENED BANK ACCOUNT

Robert F. Phillips, an officer of the First National Bank of Northern New York, said Leonard Vigodda opened an account at the bank's Clayton, N.Y., branch June 12, 1964. It was closed out May 6, 1965.

Between times $246,900 had been deposited in the account — and Mr. Phillips produced more than 60 cheques and other banking documents detailing the transactions put through the account.

Among the more sizeable were six cheques originating from Baltimore, Maryland, between October 1964 and January 1965, ranging in value from $16,000 to $33,400. The withdrawals ranged from $20,000 made out to cash and signed by the younger Vigodda down to a $10 cheque for New York State.

Among the withdrawals was a $918 cheque to the "Stereo Sound Shop."

There were several made out to cash for a Dorothy Vigodda, the younger accused's mother, among them a $14,000 cheque processed in August 1965.

One time he saw Sam Vigodda in the bank together with a woman whom he believed was Mrs. Dorothy Vigodda.

At that time there was a $10,000 withdrawal, said the bank officer.

"I offered to put the $10,000 in cash in a bag but I believe some of it was put in a money belt," he added.

DEMANDED CASH CLAIM

There was $48,513 in the account when Leonard Vigodda closed out the account last May, he said.

"Mr. Vigodda came into the bank and demanded that amount in cash. I remember distinctly having to greatly deplete out cash reserves to make good the check, and we wound up paying a good portion of this in small bills," testified Mr. Phillips. [illegible] conversation with Mr. Vigodda as to what he was going to do with this money," asked Mr. Pringle.

"To the best of my knowledge he said he was going to buy some sort of machinery in connection with his business which we believed was scrap metal business," replied the witness.

He said the money was put in a canvas bank bag and given the younger Vigodda.

OPP constable Maurice Douglas, member of a raiding party on Leonard Vigodda's home at 18 Leslie Drive last July 30, told of finding several invoices in a desk at the house.

Among them was a waybill that mentioned cobalt shot, and a birthday telegram to Vigodda's wife from Baltimore, Md.

A simultaneous raid was led on the Markel Metals yard by OPP Detective Sergeant Lloyd Lyle, the first senior officer on the case.

Among several invoices found made out to the Klaff firm in Baltimore there was no mention of cobalt or cobalt shot, the sergeant said.

HELPED LOAD METAL

He said he heard the elder Vigodda mention the case when he arrested the accused August 14 last.

"I put it to you what he said was he knew nothing about the matter," suggested Mr. Sedgwick.

"That was part of it," answered the officer.

James Cross, a Deloro man employed by Markel Metals from November 1964 to early 1965, said he had helped load scrap at the Deloro demolition site.

The usual procedure was to have the materials checked out at the gatehouse where payment arrangements with the Deloro Belleville office would be made and the scrap released.

He said he never saw any "specific container" taken from the site in the shipments.

talked with the lieutenant-governor and the prince chatted with Premier Smallwood.

The Queen did not wave as she walked down the ramp. The prince was bareheaded. They walked toward the terminal building and disappeared from sight.

Their jet aircraft arrived just about as scheduled although it had to make up 30 minutes on the transatlantic flight after a bomb threat delayed its departure from London Airport.

Uncertain weather had raised some doubts the plane would land at Gander. However, the plane landed here as scheduled for the 45-minute refuelling stop.

Pickets Stage Demonstration In Oshawa

OSHAWA (CP) — More than 100 pickets surrounded the plant of the strikebound Oshawa Times today despite a court injunction issued in Toronto Monday limiting the number of pickets to 10.

Printers and pressmen, who have not crossed the picket line since the strike called by the Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild began last Thursday, did not attempt to cross it today, indicating that the daily newspaper again would not be able to publish. The Times has not published since the strike began after breakdown of contract negotiations with the guild.

The Oshawa and District Labor Council Monday night issued leaflets protesting "the abuse by management of court injunctions to smash legal strikes." meanwhile some 250 pickets from various unions embraced by the labor council staged a demonstration in front of The Times build

Two Suspended Orderlies Deny Any Brutality

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Two orderlies suspended from the Victoria County Home for the Aged after allegations of brutality denied Monday they had mistreated any residents of the home.

Mel Morton and Robert Park were testifying at a judicial inquiry which had been adjourned earlier in the day when a woman witness became hysterical in the witness box.

Morton and Park denied charges by James Growden, 61, an unemployed laborer of Lindsay, that he had seen them beat and mistreat residents.

In the morning session Mrs. Rose Aldrich, 52, who had asked to be recalled as a witness, was led from the witness box screaming "the truth, the truth, the truth."

Last week she had testified she saw residents slapped with a flyswatter by a nurse. She said nothing Monday except "God help me; I speak the truth."

Morton told judge H. E. Richardson that the only time he slapped a resident was when one man, who has a rash on his face, was scratching it after it had been treated with lotion.

He also denied testimony by previous witnesses that he had banged one resident's head against the wall and had beaten another with wet underwear.

Morton said he could not recall giving a bath to one resident who, another witness testified, had a cold and died two weeks after a forced bath.

Park denied testimony by Mr. Growden that he (Park) had punched an elderly resident in the face and broke a broom handle over the resident's back.

He denied ever hitting anyone with a broom and said the punch described by Mr. Growden was actually just a tap on the shoulder.

Whites Poison Indian Tribe In Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—A Roman Catholic missionary said Saturday white rubber tappers wiped out half a tribe of Indians in Amazon territory last year by putting arsenic in sugar they gave them.

"Now they want to do away with the rest of the tribe," said Rev. Valdemar Weber. He said the itinerant tappers want Indian land in the northern part of Mato Grasso state between the Xingu and Tapajos Rivers.

The Jesuit priest raised charges of white massacres of Indians while here to raise funds for his missions.

The charges brought a response from Agriculture Minister Ney Braga, whose department runs Brazil's highly respected Indian Protection Service.

After Maj. Luiz Vinhas Neves, chief of the protection service, told Braga that the priest's claims probably were true, Braga ordered the formation of a commission to see what could be done to help the Indians.

Neves said his service is undermanned and unable to provide Indians continuous protection because of the vastness of Indian territory.

The rubber tappers roam the jungles collecting raw rubber and selling it at outposts. They want the land occupied by the Indians and in some cases have already sold it in the coastal cities, the priest said.

REJECT SMITH'S STAMPS

GIBRALTAR (AP) — Postage stamps issued by the white-minority government in Rhodesia will not be recognized here. The post office says mail bearing Rhodesia will not be recognized here. The post office says mail bearing Rhodesian stamps will be subject to postage charges on entering this British possession. Rhodesia unilaterally declared its independence from Britain last November.

Drifting Snow Blocks Roads, Country Schools Are Closed

NAPANEE — By Monday afternoon all streets in Deseronto were in good shape, comparatively. It was possible to go anywhere with a car. Because of drifting, plows had to keep going, however. Highways were open, but some county roads and side roads were blocked. No attempt had yet been made by the town to clear the walks and citizens who had done so the night before had to repeat the process Monday.

All Tyendinaga schools were closed, as were all schools on the Reserve. Roads plowed Sunday night were drifted full again Monday morning. Road men had thrown up their hands in defeat until the wind died down.

NAPANEE ROADS OPEN

Napanee police reported Monday that the streets in the town were "a mess." Plows had been going around the clock, and had kept the roadways open. No attempt had been made to remove snow or to clear walks, except in the business section, where the snow was blowing back almost as fast as it was removed. "It's just an old-fashioned storm, and we can't do anything but sit it out," Constable Tom McCrea remarked.

In the Napanee District Secondary School it was "business is usual" for those who were able to get there. Only one bus made it, from the southern part of Richmond township which operates largely on Highway 2. Approximately 60 per cent of the pupils could not get through, five teachers were weather-bound, and the office was operating with one secretary instead of five. "But we are carrying on the best we can," Principal Charles Froud stated.

HIGHWAY CONDITIONS "GRIM"

The Napanee OPP reported that the situation on the highways near Napanee was "pretty grim." Visibility was bad, plows doing their best but fighting a losing battle. Traffic was at a minimum, fortunately. Several minor accidents had been reported, but the highest damage was only $200 and no injuries were sustained. Highway 33 was blocked at Millhaven Monday morning but was soon cleared.

Plows are working on a 24-hour basis, County Engineer Moffat stated. They go to the end of the line and come back, finding conditions almost as bad as at first. Drifting is very bad, but all county roads are passable, although some have only one lane, he stated. "This storm is supposed to be going east, but I wish it would get a move on," he remarked ruefully.

Most, if not all schools in Richmond and North Fredericksburg remained closed, among them the new H. H. Langford school at Little Creek, scheduled to open its doors Monday for the first time.

It all goes to show that man, with all his science and modern equipment, cannot conquer the elements. In some ways, we are back in grandfather's day.

Eaton's Store Officially Closes Doors

NAPANEE — Eaton's of Canada closed its store in Napanee last Saturday night, and when the store opens, it will be known as the Beamish Department Store.

Meanwhile Eaton's has leased the former Gray's Drug Store across the street for three months, and has set up its order office there. By that time the present Beamish store will be vacant, and Eaton's order office will be moved there.

Monday morning, carpenters, electricians, painters, moved in and by afternoon everything was going full blast. A new floor is being installed on the main floor, and the second floor and the windows are to have new lights. New lights were installed on the main floor not long ago. The whole building, three floors and basement, will have a coat of fresh paint.

New manager of the Beamish Department Store will be Napanee's Herb Hayes, born and educated here, and with 19 years of training with Eaton's of Canada. For 15 years he has been assistant manager of Eaton's, and acting manager since last July.

Eaton's had a permanent staff of 20, and 14 who worked part time. All of these are to be paid until February 14,, Mr. Hayes told this reporter. Most of them will be re - hired to work in the Beamish Department Store, he stated.

Police Patrol Mail Beat

NAPANEE — When you are in trouble a policeman is your best friend.

Sunday evening a Napanee woman with important mail to reach the Post Office by seven o'clock, found herself in difficulty. With the streets blocked, cars trapped in the garages by snow drifts, and no taxis running, she was in a dilemma.

However, a call to the local police office brought a car and a constable to her door within minutes and her problem was solved.

Question: How did the police manage to get through when even the taxis were tied up?

Confused Caterpillar Mixes It's Signals

NAPANEE — Tom McCrea, Napanee's genial Irish police constable, has lost all faith in weather signs.

Last Wednesday, Constable McCrea found a brown and black Woolly Bear on the bare walk in the sun in front of his home, a bit disconsolate, perhaps, but nevertheless alive. Warm hearted as he is, Constable McCrea moved the visitor to a pile of dried leaves in the breezeway. Next day it began to snow and by Sunday morning the warm-nest was covered with a two-foot drift.

In case you do not know, a Woolly Bear is a caterpillar, and its appearance in January is a sure sign of warm weather. At least, that is what Constable McCrea had always been told. Now he knows better.

Skating Star Guest of Napanee Girl

NAPANEE — Susan Heuhnergard, champion figure skater, was an overnight guest in Napanee during the weekend, visiting Susan Davis of Mill Street. The two have been friends since Susan Davis skated at the Tam O'Shanter Skating Club in Toronto last winter.

Susan Heuhnergard and her brother Paul are Canadian senior pairs champions for 1965 and are members of the Canadian world team. They were guest stars at the Kingston Ice Revue Friday and Saturday.

Church Groups

ST. MARK'S WA

DESERONTO — The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Mark's Anglican Church in Deseronto was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Edward Robinson, with a good attendance.

Following the opening hymn, the rector, the Rev. A. F. Dowdell, conducted the service, taking his subject from "The Living Message". Miss Sadie Hetherington read the scripture lesson.

The correspondence read by the secretary, Mrs. W. B. Crabb, included several letters of thanks from people who had been remembered at Christmas. Mrs. A. G. Wakelin read the board report. Reports read by secretaries of the different departments were gratifying.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, the rector took the chair for the election of officers. Mrs. R. A. Tuck is again the president, and Miss Sadie Hetherington, vice-president. Treasurer is Mrs. Harold Topping, and secretary, Mrs. A. G. Wakelin. Dorcas secretary is Mrs. Arthur Brim, and the social secretary, Mrs. Reginald Wessman, will be assisted by Mrs. Dowdell, wife of the rector. Mrs. Dowdell will also be the leader of the Junior Auxiliary. Mrs. J. A. Layfield and Miss Alice Jackson were appointed leaders of the Girls' Auxiliary.

Miss Hetherington invited the ladies to meet at her home for the February meeting. After the meeting had been adjourned and the closing prayer had been said, the hostess served refreshments, with the assistance of Mrs. Charles Gray and Mrs. John Lyons.

APPROVE CATECHISM

OTTAWA (CP) — A modern, standard catechism for primary school children has been approved in principle by the Roman Catholic bishops of Canada, it was announced Monday. Archbishop Louis Levesque of Rimouski, Que., chairman of the Canadian Catholic Conference, told a press conference that the English version for Grade 1 will be available in June. The French version was introduced in Quebec Catholic schools last September.

Communists Virtually Invite Johnson to Resume Bombing

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ho Chi Minh appears virtually to have invited President Johnson to resume U.S. bombardment of North Viet Nam by rejecting all pleas for a political compromise and by making tough conditions for peace talks.

Not only does President Ho demand American troops get out of South Viet Nam as a condition for peace, but also that the Viet Cong guerrillas be recognized as a full-fledged participant at any peace conference.

It is assumed, in the Western view, that the frail, elderly North Vietnamese Communist leader is not an independent agent in the quarrel with the United States and that the voice of China is whispering vital commands in Hanoi. But it is also evident that Johnson's quest for peace talks received no helping hand from the Soviet Union.

CONCERN DEEPENS

In contrast, resumption of aerial assaults after a 37-day pause has deepened concern in a world troubled by fears that the war in Viet Nam may eventually embrace the entire globe in conflict. Hanoi is well aware of the split over the bombing. The division has spread into American voter ranks.

Johnson may take this into consideration in deciding how extensive the new bombings can be. He has said military targets are being controlled "with the greatest of care."

The puzzling element in the Communist strategy is why Ho is willing to accept the risks of bombing when it is evident that in return for a truce, he can hope to win many concessions at the conference table.

NOT WON AT TABLE

The Americans must be swept out of South Viet Nam and taught a brutal lesson not to interfere.

The stakes are hgh, for it is not only South Viet Nam the Chinese are believed to want under their influence, but all of Southeast Asia. Peking has already warned that Thailand is next in line for "revolution."

Unleashing of the new U.S. aerial assaults undoubtedly will be met by a new Communist propaganda storm.

MONDAY, Jan. 31, 1966

The Commons completed the eight-day throne speech debate, passing the main government motion without a recorded vote.

Justice Minister Cardin had earlier rejected opposition demands for such an inquiry, saying it was not necessary.

Mr. Pearson also agreed to consider a suggestion that a committee investigate cancellation of the CPR's Dominion train.

Federal and provincial health ministers opened a two-day conference that turns today to the issue of medical insurance.

TUESDAY, Feb. 1

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EST to open debate on a supply motion. The Senate meets at 8 p.m.

New Bargaining Chief for Union Not Optimistic

TORONTO (CP) — Ray Taggart, the new bargaining chief for the Teamsters' union in Ontario, says he's not optimistic of an early settlement or resumed negotiations in the current trucking industry dispute.

He said in a telephone interview from his Hamilton home Monday night that despite a round of meetings and telephone talks he has had since taking office last Wednesday, no immediate changes seem likely in the situation which has stopped operations at 55 trucking companies.

The president of Hamilton local 879 of the international Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) said he'll meet today with the Teamsters' 24-man bargaining committee.

He met Monday in Toronto with representatives of the federal and provincial labor departments and assured them the union is prepared to negotiate the dispute.

But he said the union wants a far wider basis of negotiation than the owners say they are prepared to accept.

At least 17 points are known to be outstanding as far as the union is concerned in negotiating a new contract with the companies. He said the companies want to restrict negotiations to three or four points, but he would not say what these were.

Mr. Taggart became head of the bargaining committee last Wednesday when the committee removed Kenneth McDougall, president of Toronto local 938, as its chairman.

Prince Philip Will Fly Own Plane on Tour

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip said Monday he will fly his Twin-engine Andover airplane throughout most of his two-week visit to the United States and Canada in March.

"There's nothing unusual about that," said the 45-year-old Prince.

"I've flown the thing about quite a bit, you know. If you travel on scheduled flights you always get the stewards coming along and waking you up."

He will begin a 15-day North American tour in Miami, Fla., March 9. During the tour he will visit Toronto March 20-21.

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government expects to learn today whether its July 1, 1967, target date for starting a national medical insurance program will be met or whether the provinces will balk at meeting the federal conditions.

Health Minister MacEachen, optimistic the target can still be met, asked his provincial counterparts recently to come to the federal-provincial health conference prepared to state their views on Ottawa's proposals.

Last summer Prime Minister Pearson offered to pay half the cost of insurance programs run by the provinces providing it met four conditions.

He said they must be universally available to the residents of a province, provide a full range of medical services, be publicly-run or publicly-audited and portable from province to province.

So far only Saskatchewan has a plan that meets the conditions, and federal officials say Newfoundland has indicated it will enter.

ALBERTA HESITANT

Alberta, where Premier Manning has criticized the proposals on the grounds the universal feature will remove an individuals freedom of choice, plans to give no indication to the provinces at this conference.

The conference delegates spent the first day discussing how to operate the $500,000,000 health resources fund Mr Pearson has offered for medical training during the next 15 years.

Eric Kierans, the Quebec health minister, said his government insists the money be paid to the provincial governments to distribute as they see fit.

Matthew Dymond, the Ontario health minister, repeated earlier criticism that the fund was not large enough But he said it is a good start and could be increased during the 15 years.

He was opposed to an "implication" in a report prepared by a federal-provincial committee that recommended that nursing courses in hospitals should not qualify for aid from the fund.

These courses play an important role in training nurses, he said.

Ice Fishermen Scramble Back To Their Huts

SUTTON, Ont. (CP)—Ice fishermen are a hardy lot. Even after being stranded all night in snow-bound wooden huts on Lake Simcoe, it only took quick-spreading stories of excellent fishing to get them scrambling back to the ice hole Monday.

An estimated 500 anglers remained in huts on the lake, 50 miles north of Toronto, from Sunday night to mid-day Monday when a wind and snow storm made it impossible to get them to shore.

They ate their light lunches and boiled some fish as they kept warm around wood or oil portable heaters. By Monday afternoon, police and fishing-hut operators managed to bring most into shore with snowmobiles and other tracked vehicles.

Then the stories about a good run of lake trout and whitefish started making the rounds and crowds of anglers began heading back out on the lake. Police reported that things seemed back to normal today.

Rescue operations, hampered by breakdowns of four snowmobiles, were in force all day Monday. They were completed about midnight when the last two persons stranded on the ice were brought in.

Howard Comer of Pefferlaw, operator of the vehicle, said that both men, from Clarkson, Ont., were in the same hut and had enough fuel "to last them for a month." They also had sufficient food and suffered no injuries, he said.

Rescue operations, hampered by breakdowns of four snowmobiles, were in force all day Monday. By nightfall police reported the lake clear, except possibly for two anglers in separate huts about two miles north of Georgina island, some five miles north of this south shore village.

Snowmobiles had to churn through five-foot drifts checking hundreds of huts to make sure those inside had left. Some huts were nine miles out on the lake, which is 30 miles long and 28 miles wide.

Before they had gone fishing Sunday Const. Victor Higgs of Sutton had warned the anglers about the storm.

"It was like a blizzard, snow blowing, weather worsening, and I warned them about going on the lake," he said Monday.

"But some of these people are a bunch of damned fools."

Horse Must Trot Off To Stable

HAMILTON (CP) — Jimmy, the horse, has been ordered evicted.

The health office issued the eviction order to Mrs. Robert McDermott who has kept the animal in the cellar of her home since August.

She said she moved it into the house to nurse it back to health after buying it for $30 for her three teen-age daughters.

"We intended to build him a stable but never did get round to it," said Mrs. McDermott.

The horse's hostel was discovered last week by a fire inspector. The health office said Jimmy is a health hazard and must trot off to a stable.

U.S. Rejects Planes Bought By Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The U.S. Air Force has rejected the American Northrop F-5 Freedom Fighter, the plane which the Canadian government purchased last year as the RCAF's new tactical jet fighter-bomber.

Tucked away in President Johnson's budget message to Congress Jan. 24 was a sentence saying that the U.S. Air Force will procure more McDonnell F-4s and the Ling-Tempco-Vought A-7. Both these planes were rejected by the Canadian defence department though the RCAF's preference was the F-4.

Sources here said the U.S. Air Force turned down the F-5 after combat trials with a dozen of them in Viet Nam.

The Canadian defence department will spend $215,000,000 to obtain 125 Canadian-built CF-5s (C is for Canadian). The first ones will come off the Canadair Ltd. assembly line at Montreal next year.

Informants here said difficulties have arisen with plans for aerial refuelling of the CF-5. The defence department has said that one reason it bought the plane was that it could be deployed anywhere in the world. They also said the CF-5 won't be able to operate from unprepared runways as originally advertised.

The reason, they said, is that the underslung bomb load, as on the CF-104 jet bomber is so close to the ground that perfect runways are required.

Many RCAF officers say the CF-5 will be of little use except for training, but that it will be excellent for that purpose.

OTTAWA (CP) — Associate Defence Minister Cadieux said Monday night the purchase by the RCAF of eight French Falcon jet aircraft at a cost of $10,000,000 is under active consideration.

Mr. Cadieux denied, however, during a Commons adjournment debate that the aircraft would be used solely to transport cabinet ministers and officials.

There was a service requirement to replace a large number of Cosmopolitan aircraft with a small number of swifter and more efficient Falcons.

Maintenance costs of a Falcon are little more than half that of a Cosmopolitan, he said in answer to Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster).

Child Taken Out of School By Court

TORONTO (CP)—Jamie, a nine-year-old deaf and emotionally-disturbed boy who has been in the Ontario School for the Deaf at nearby Milton for four months, has been taken out of the school because it couldn't handle him, a family court judge said Monday.

Judge William T. Little said the boy has been sent to stay with his foster parents at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

The boy had been running away from the school, he said.

The judge said Jamie's case would be reviewed again to see if he could be sent back to school next September.

Jamie was brought before Judge Little last April by his mother who claimed the boy was incorrigible. The judge had assigned care of the child to foster parents at Niagara-on-the-Lake and had ordered him sent to Milton in the fall.

Rooney's Wife Said Killed By Her Lover

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Police say the planned reconciliation of Mickey Rooney and his fifth wife has resulted in her murder and the suicide of the young Yugoslav actor accused by Rooney of being her lover.

The bodies of Barbara Thomason Rooney, 29, and Milos Milocevic, 25, an actor known professionally as Milos Milos, were found Monday in the bathroom of the $150,000 Brentwood home Rooney once shared with his wife and four young children.

Police theorized that Milocevic shot Mrs. Rooney, then turned the .38-calibre chrome-plated pistol on himself because she was planning to resume her marriage, with the diminutive actor.

Rooney himself was under sedation in hospital in nearby Santa Monica, being treated for an intestinal infection acquired during filming in The Philippines.

No gunshots were heard even though a maid in the house and three of the Rooney children—Kelly, 5; Kerry, 4; and Kyle, 3—were in a bedroom 30 feet away.

A fourth child, Kimmie, 1, was at the home of Mrs. Rooney's parents, who said they would seek custody of the children.

Rooney, who began his film career at age 2 and was the screen's top box office star in 1939-40-41, appeared finally to have grasped happiness with his eight-year marriage to Barbara Thomason, a former model.

Hedda Hopper Critically Ill With Pneumonia

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hollywood gossip columnist Hedda Hopper victim of a severe attack of pneumonia — was reported in critical condition early today at Cedars of Lebanon hospital.

Miss Hopper, 75, was stricken by a virus infection Friday, and her condition worsened Sunday, an aide said.

She was taken to the hospital shortly before noon Sunday, where she "remains critical, and the prognosis is very grave," a hospital spokesman said.

Personnel Shortage In Armed Forces Becoming Critical

OTTAWA (CP) — The shortage of trained personnel in the armed forces is starting to become critical, authorities say.

And the situation is expected to get worse, they add. The main reason is the continuing boom in the economy.

Some 110 flight lieutenant pilots in the RCAF who were due to retire in 1967 have been offered two-year extensions in flying jobs, a defence department spokesman said.

The air force is short of pilots less than two years after 500 aircrew were compulsorily retired because flying jobs could not be found for them.

Officials said it couldn't be foreseen at that time that the commercial airline business would boom to the extent that it has. United Air Lines, for instance, is trying to recruit 1,600 pilots and navigators in the next two years with a promise of possible earnings of up to $33,000 a year.

Nearly one-fifth of the navy's fleet now is tied up in Halifax and Esquimalt, B.C., because there aren't enough trained men to sail all the ships.

Several sources said the trained manpower shortage is becoming so acute that Canada may have to give up some of its defence commitments, temporarily at least.

The defence department last fall attained its planned reduction of 10,000 military personnel to a manpower strength of 110,000 but since has been unable to put on the brakes.

At the end of November, last date for which official figures are available, the strength of the armed forces was down to 109,625, including a few hundred on retirement leave.

One source said the strength now is down to 107,000 or less and that it may well fall to some 100,000 by late spring.

Defence Minister Hellyer has appealed for recruits. A total of 9,157 were taken into the forces in the first 11 months of 1965, a drop of 650 from the corresponding period in 1964.

Strong Opposition Attacks To Throne Speeches Heard

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strong Opposition attacks were the order of the day in the three legislatures in session Monday.

In both British Columbia and Ontario, there were strong replies to the throne speeches and in New Brunswick, Premier Louis J. Robichaud was on the defensive against C. B. Sherwood, leader of the Progressive Conservative Opposition.

In Victoria, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan accused the Social Credit government of acting in favor of its supporters and treating non-supporters harshly. At one stage, he called on Municipal Affairs Minister Donald Campbell to resign.

Mr. Strachan said this year's speech from the throne had a "different wording" and said that Al Williamson, convicted in a letter forgery case, had admitted working for the government as a public relations man and writing the throne speeches since 1956.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said the statements were not true but he was met by a barrage of demands asking why he had not refuted Williamson's testimony by giving evidence at the trial.

In Toronto, Andrew Thompson, leader of the Liberal Opposition embarked on a 130-minute speech and motion of no confidence in the Progressive Conservative government of John Robarts. The motion will be voted on when the throne speech debate ends.

In Fredericton, Mr. Sherwood alleged that proposed amendments to a controversial assessment act were drafted before a committee that recommended the amendments presented its report to the house.

He said some of the amendments appeared to represent second thoughts by the government or the draftsmen or somebody else.

Mr. Robichaud praised the committee and said he favored making it a permanent committee of the legislature.

Rebel Leader Publicly Hanged

ZOMBA, Malawi (Reuters)—Medson Evans Silombela, a rebel leader whom Prime Minister Hastings Banda said he wanted publicly hanged, was executed at Zomba prison today.

Relatives of people Silombela was alleged to have murdered watched the execution.

General Motors Had Profit of Two Billion

NEW YORK (AP)—General Motors Monday became the first corporation to report a profit of more than $2,000,000,000 a year. The giant automaker said its 1965 earnings soared 23 per cent to a record $2,120,000,000.

A company that has become a yardstick of corporate size, General Motors said its sales last year totalled a record $20,700,000,000—an amount almost one-fifth the size of the U.S. federal budget.

The world's largest manufacturing concern also logged records in 1965 for dividends paid, payroll, worldwide employment and worldwide sales of cars and trucks. General Motors paid a total of $1,960,000,000 in U.S. income taxes, an amount that exceeded what most other U.S. corporations take in as total revenues in a year.

One major measure of the bulging automobile market was GM's breaking of back-to-back records in most major categories. Most were set in 1964. The increase in dollar sales alone was 22 per cent.

GM said it sold 7,278,000 cars and trucks, 19 per cent more than in 1964.

Per-share earnings amounted to $7.41, compared with $6.05 in 1964. GM's 1964 profits totalled $1,730,000,000 and its sales $17,000,000,000.

Viet Cong Force Caught in Vise

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes hammered targets in North Viet Nam again today, while on the ground U.S. and allied forces caught the Viet Cong in a giant vise along South Viet Nam's coastal plains and sent them sprawling into retreat after 488 were reported killed.

An air force spokesman said three U.S. planes—one air force and two navy jets—were lost in the first day of air attacks on the north after the 37-day bombing pause. There were no details on the second day of the raids.

The pilots of the two navy planes were rescued, but the air force pilot was missing.

Radio Hanoi claimed Monday that North Vietnamese gunners shot down five American planes and damaged 10 others.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

He was as debonair as a fashion model in his silk-suited sartorial attire, every inch of his five-foot-two.

Twenty-two years ago you would have recognized him by his RCAF corporal's jacket with matching trousers in the popular air force blue.

Girls' softball aficiondos of two decades ago will remember Vic and his famous Mountain View Bomberettes, a gaggle of uniformed gals that turned a lot of civvy heads in the Bridge and Pinnacle streets bleachers that bordered the "Lawn Stadium" of the armouries.

Vic is now one of Toronto's leading boxing impresarios, following a family custom. You probably saw his name in the public prints the other day as the guy who offered George Chuvalo and Eduard Corletti $5,000 each for a rematch to be fought in Toronto.

Always an opportunist Vic steered the conversation to his favorite topic, boxing. There followed as the dull grey dawn of the morning after stalks the night uproarious, Chuvalo, his past and present, potential and possibilities.

Vic, who can still launch a mean left jab or hook, a habit learned in his early ring days, has implicit faith in the Canadian heavyweight champion.

Vic fondled a long-stemmed beaker of "Welland Rose", waved a well-manicured finger clockwise around the table and announced, "George Chuvalo will be a world champion".

I thought I heard a few underbreaths, "Oh yeah", from filet-mignon gorging knights of this particular round table.

Vic shrugged it off. He jabbed a thumb in my direction. "Chuvalo," he said, "is something like a good recipe in the hands of poor cooks. The ingredients are there, but nobody seems to be able to bring out the best of them to make a successful whole."

Vic didn't pull any punches. "This boy," he said, "has what it takes to be a champion, but his record to date, set back by the recent defeat in England at the hands of Corletti, is the result of poor management and poor handling at ringside."

"The main trouble with George," Vic went on, "is that he has been poorly handled by the people in his corner. Look at Clay. In his first fight with Liston he complained of something in his eyes. He wanted to quit. His seconds and manager pushed him back in the ring and told him to go fight. You know the rest."

"Chuvalo has been defeated by Terrell and Corletti in his last two fights — and both were back-pedallers and jab artists," Bagnato said.

"I knew this years ago when he was an undefeated amateur champion," he said. "He was cocky and I realized that he has been meeting a certain style of opposition but not a jabbing retreating fighter.

"I went to Buffalo, Windsor and other places to find a fast-jabbing, back-pedalling fighter. I found one and he handed Chuvalo his first defeat. His present day handlers should have known his vulnerable points. They didn't show that they did."

Vic turned thumbs down when someone suggested that he had offered Chuvalo and Cordelli $5,000 each to fight in Toronto because of the home town environment.

"Nothing of the kind," Bagnato said. "The score in the first fight was four for Cordelli, three for Chuvalo and three rounds tied. What closer do you want that's that? Unanimous decision? My eye."

"Faith in him?" Give him the proper training and management, a little time and we'll have the first heavyweight title holder since the days of Tommy Burns."

"If I didn't believe in him," said Vic, "why would I be making the offer to have him fight Corletti again?"

I think Signor Bagnato has something there. At least the conversation, like the filet-mignon, the "Welland Rose" and the company, was good. So was Vic.

Mikita, Ullman Battle For Second

BOBBY BOYLE

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Hull continued to roll along in high gear last week while the National Hockey League standings tightened up.

Statistics released by NHL headquarters today showed that Chicago Black Hawks' all-star left winger scored four goals in Chicago's four games last week and added another three assists, giving him 68 points so far this season.

Hull has 42 goals with 26 games left to play in which to score nine goals necessary to set an all-time record for most goals in a season.

Hull's nearest rival, Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings, has 52 points, including 24 goals, second - highest total in the league.

Ullman's grip on second place, however, has slipped to one point over Stan Mikita of Chicago.

ADDS 4 POINTS

The Black Hawk centre missed two games last week but still scored once and assisted on three others to boost his season's point total to 51, which includes a league-leading 30 assists.

Gordie Howe of Detroit is fourth with 48 points and needs only one more goal to hit the 20 mark for the 17th consecutive season in his 20-year NHL career.

Alex Delvecchio of Detroit climbed into a fifth-place tie with Montreal's Bobby Rousseau, each with 46 points, three more than Henri Richard of Montreal.

Bob Nevin of New York Rangers and Jean Beliveau of the Canadiens are tied for eighth place with 42 points, three more than Bob Pulford of Toronto Maple Leafs. Nevin and Pulford have each scored 20 goals.

DETROIT GOALIES LEAD

The goaltending race remains tight with Detroit's combination of Roger Crozier and Hank Bassen holding a slim lead over Montreal's Lorne Worsley and Charlie Hodge. Crozier leads the league in shutouts with seven.

Ted Green of Boston Bruins continues to lead in penalties with 113 minutes while New York is the most penalized team with 576 minutes.

Detroit and Chicago are tied for first place in the standings with 52 points each, one more than third place Canadiens. In fourth place are Toronto Maple Leafs with 45 points, followed by New York with 30 and Boston with 26.

Young Back In Trouble

VANCOUVER (CP)—Howie Young, the bad-boy defenceman whose tantrums and tactics helped shunt him out of the National Hockey League, is in trouble again.

Lynn Patrick, coach of Los Angeles Blades, was quoted here as saying Young has been benched for a "vicious" stick attack on Vancouver Canucks' Bob McCusker.

McCusker suffered a 10-stitch gash in his face when struck by Young's stick in a Western Hockey League game in Los Angeles Saturday.

"I thought it was vicious," Patrick told a reporter.

After the second - period incident, referee Lloyd Gilmour informed the Los Angeles bench "that if Young as much as went near any Vancouver player he would get a penalty," Patrick said.

Patrick benched Young for the remainder of the game and left him in Los Angeles when the Blades started a three-game road trip Sunday.

"Young has personal problems and they were in evidence before this incident and before this game," Patrick said.

Gilmour admitted later he did not see Young strike McCusker while the two were battling for the puck behind net. He said he would make a report of the incident to NHL President Al Leader.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Adios Dominion, a six-year-old bay owned by Ken Galbraith of Chesley, Ont., and Chesley Rushton of Nobleton, Ont., won the featured eighth race Monday night at Windsor Raceway.

Adios Dominion paced the mile in 2:10 4-5 for a 2½ length victory in the $1,500 event. Galbraith was in the sulky.

Beard Finished Second

Venturi's 66 Wins Lucky Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ken Venturi the golfer who refused to say quit, won the $57,000 Lucky International open golf tournament.

His 66 over the Harding Park municipal course Monday brought him the $8,500 first prize, his first victory since a circulatory ailment threatened his career in 1964 after he won the U.S. Open title.

Venturi came back from prolonged and agonizing slump to win the national title in 1964 but after the ailment attacked he collected just $295 in official money last year.

Carrying hand - warmers to give him feeling when he swung the clubs, Venturi started four strokes off the pace and even with his 33 on the first nine was still four back of leader Frank Beard.

Then Beard faltered and went one-over-par on three of the first four holes while Venturi shot even par to move within a stroke of the leader. Beard parred the 14th, but Venturi found the putting secret of the day to sink a 25-footer, and they were even. When Venturi sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the 16th he had the winning stroke.

Archer, a former San Francisco city champion, carded the best individual 18-hole round of the tournament with a 65.

VENTURI SINKS FINAL WINNING PUTT — Ken Venturi drops his club and raises his arms as he sank putt on 18th to card a 66 and 273 to win the Lucky International Golf Tournament in San Francisco. Venturi's final round clipped five strokes off the par 36-36-71 of the 6,692-yard Harding Park Course. (AP Wirephoto)

League Fighting, Not Ignoring Order

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball lawyers say the National League isn't ignoring a Wisconsin court order. In fact, they say, they'll be trying to knock it out of the box later this week.

Bowie Kuhn, attorney for the league, told Circuit Court Judge Elmer Roller Monday that his order was unjustified, was issued without a proper hearing and did not have "sufficient certainty and specifity for us to comply with it."

But, Kuhn said, the league isn't ignoring the order which directs it to prepare to field a baseball team in Milwaukee this spring, either the Atlanta-bound Braves or a still unborn expansion club.

Kuhn said the league will move later this week if possible to have the order vacated.

But his remarks didn't stop the state from having a rhetorical field day at baseball's expense as it pressed for and won an advance in the trial date of its antitrust action against the game.

RESCHEDULED TRIAL

The trial, moved back last week to March 7, is now scheduled to begin Feb. 28 before Roller.

"The state finds it hard to believe," said William S. Stafford, special counsel, "that the National League, which takes such pains to present an Eagle Scout image of its ball players, would be so irresponsible as to flout a court order . . . truly it is in the character of the monopolistic men we are dealing with."

If baseball wanted to save time, Stafford said, it could put baseball owners on the stand instead of using time to take depositions from them. The lawyer referred to the owners as "fugitives," drawing a report from Kuhn.

Kuhn disputed the use of the phrase and said the owners would be "delighted to appear in any court at any time" provided they could without harassment. Kuhn quoted a Milwaukee politician as saying baseball will be harassed into submission and said, "these threats have precluded a defence here."

Bobby Orr Cuts Lead Of Lacroix

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Orr, Oshawa Generals' star defenceman, sliced six points from Andre Lacroix's scoring lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last week, but the Peterborough Petes forward is in little danger.

Lacroix still holds a 14-point bulge over Orr with more than three-quarters of the schedule completed. Lacroix has 94 points on 26 goals and 68 assists. Orr, racking up seven points in three games, moved into second spot with 80 points on 31 goals and 49 assists.

Danny Grant, Lacroix linemate, dropped to third place with 76 points on a league-leading 37 goals and 39 assists. Peterborough's Mickey Redmond is fourth with 71 points on 33 goals and 38 assists and Danny O'Shea of Oshawa is fifth with 70 points on 31 goals and 39 assists.

Brian Caley of the Petes regained the lead in the goaltending race last week, replacing Bobby Ring of Niagara Falls Flyers. Caley has a 3.12 goals-against average compared with 3.16 for Ring and Ted Oulmet of Montreal Junior Canadiens.

Will Enter Top Team In Games

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada must enter a championship-calibre baseball team in the 1967 Pan - American Games here, game organizers agreed Monday

Organizers also decided to hold a national baseball tournament with representation from each province. At the conclusion of the tournament, an all-star team will be selected.

A location and date for the tournament has not yet been decided but Winnipeg and Regina were named as favorite sites.

Trenton Whips Cobourg 10-4

It was "over and out" for the Cobourg Cougars in OHA Eastern Junior "B" action last night.

Out of the running for a playoff berth, the Cougars were whipped by Trenton Apple Kings, in Cobourg.

The win tightened the race for playoff positions all the more with Trenton trailing Belleville and Peterborough by a slim two points.

The next scheduled games are on Friday, when Peterborough visits Trenton in a big one, Cobourg comes to Belleville and Kingston visits Oshawa.

Following is the current team standing:

	W.	L.	T.	PTS.
Kingston	16	7	2	34
Oshawa	16	9	2	34
* - Belleville	11	10	0	26
* - Peterborough	9	12	2	26
Trenton	10	10	4	24
* - Cobourg	3	17	2	10

* - Peterborough has won 3 4-pointers, Belleville 2 and Cobourg 1.

Fire Destroys 40 Horses At Bowie

Five Barns Levelled

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—Fire levelled five barns at hard-luck Bowie race course Monday, killing at least 40 race horses, injuring others and setting off a stampede that reached a shopping centre four miles away.

Officials said the bodies of 40 horses were found and that the number of dead might reach 60. The damage to animals and buildings was estimated at $500,000.

The blaze, fanned by high winds, followed Maryland's worst snow storm in years. Temperatures were near zero, and snow drifts were 3½ feet high on parts of the track.

Firemen used hand shovels to clear a path to the stable area, then fought the blaze for two hours before getting it under control.

About 150 horses were freed from burning buildings by grooms and exercise boys. Some of the horses galloped down Route 301 to the Bel Air shopping centre, four miles away. Others thrashed about in nearby woods and snow drifts.

HORSES INJURED

Track officials said some of the horses that escaped probably were injured so badly they would have to be destroyed.

Richard D. Ferris, a trainer who lives near the track, said he assumes his entire string of nine horses was lost, including Sport Casey, valued at $25,000.

The fire started in Barn 22, where horses trained by Ferris, Sid Watters, Al Dankow and Carroll D. Lee were stabled.

No persons were reported injured.

The fire was the 15th, and most costly, wince Bowie opened in 1914. The last fire was in January, 1964, at a private barn rented out by a farmer near the track. Twelve horses died then.

In 1958, a blizzard stranded thousands of racegoers at Bowie, a pioneer in winter racing. On Feb. 3, 1961, a special race train ran down a bank, killing six persons and injuring more than 100.

This year, seven horses at Bowie were thought to have swamp fever and one died.

A track spokesman said each horse was insured for maximum of $5,000 under a blanket policy. He said it will be at least Wednesday before Bowie reopens.

Simmons, Cullen To Baltimore

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers of the National Hockey League sent two players to their Baltimore affiliate of the American Hockey League Monday and promoted a third for an NHL trial.

Sent-to Baltimore were veteran goaltender Don Simmons and centre Ray Cullen. Simmons, 34, had served as New York's back-up goalie and allowed 37 goals in 8½ games this season. Cullen, brought up from Baltimore two weeks ago, had one goal and three assists in seven games in New York.

Called up is 19-year-old Allan Hamilton for a four-game trial. Hamilton, a defenceman, had been playing with Edmonton Oil Kings of the Alberta Senior League.

Bower, Pronovost Out

Leafs Get Double Jolt

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs' efforts to close the gap on the top three National Hockey League teams suffered two severe jolts during the weekend.

Goalie Johnny Bower will be lost to the team for an indefinite period with a pulled groin muscle suffered during the warmup prior to Saturday's 6-3 win here over Boston Bruins.

When the Leafs were humiliated 8-4 by the Rangers at New York Sunday, defenceman Marcel Pronovost suffered strained ligaments to his left leg and is expected to be out of action for two to three weeks.

Pronovost has been one of the club's steadiest defenders recently while Bower has a 13-7 won-lost record. Terry Sawchuk has registered seven wins while losing nine.

Three-Ply Track Meet Planned

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Track and Field Association announced Monday it hopes to stage a track meet involving athletes from Canada, Great Britain and France in 1967.

The meet would serve as the association's centennial project and would be held following the Canadian age-class championships normally staged in August. No location was named.

A national training camp for young Canadian athletes is planned this summer at the University of Alberta in Edmonton. The camp, to be operated by the Royal Canadian Legion, will be directed by Geoff Dyson, the legion's track-and-field director.

The association also announced it will not hold an indoor meet at the 1967 Winter Games in Quebec City. The association felt track and field should be on the summer program in 1967.

Weather Halts Sledders

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP) — Warm weather threatened today to wreck the world four - man bobsledding championship, being defended by Canada.

Fears of cancellation rose as unseasonable heat ate away at the walls of the 1,860-yard ice chute with the Feb. 5-8 event drawing near.

Spring temperatures descended on this alpine resort Monday. By noon it was so warm skiers in shirt sleeves and girls sun-bathing in bikinis were a common sight.

"We need all the practice we can get to beat the Italians on their home ground," said Olympic and world champion, Victor Emery of Montreal, captain of the No. 1 Canadian sled.

Other members of the No. 1 Canadian sled are second Peter Kirby of Montreal, third Douglas Anakin of Montreal and brakeman Mike Young of Port Credit, Ont.

The No. 2 Canadian sled has a crew of driver Lamont Gordon of Harriston, Ont., second Purvis MacDougall of Montreal, third Bob Storey of Collingwood, Ont., and brakeman Paul Levesque of Montreal.

Bunt, Not Blast Is Strategy

Mantle, Maris To Pull Punches

NEW YORK (AP) — The mighty New York Yankees are going to substitute the jab for the hay-maker.

Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle are going to do more bunting this year in manager Johnny Keane's new plan of attack.

"We're not going to sit back and wait for the home run," said Keane, who was bitterly disappointed last year when the injured Yanks floundred and finished sixth.

"We are going to do more bunting. What's wrong with having Mantle bunt? With men on first and second and nobody out, Mr. Maris is going to bunt."

Keane made his remarks at a news conference Monday, called to announce the signing of pitcher Bob Friend and shortstop Ruben Amaro. Friend reportedly got $42,000, but there were no estimates of Amaro's salary.

Ralph Houk, Yankee general manager, said the latest report from Rochester, Minn., was that Mantle would be in full swing in mid-March and ready for opening day. He said he expected Mantle to start working out March 1 when the club reports at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Mickey recently underwent an operation at the Mayo Clinic for the removal of a bone particle from his right shoulder.

Barkley Doing Nicely

Barkley, struck in the eye by a stick, underwent surgery at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital to stop hemmorhaging and repair a slight tear in the back of the eye.

Dr. Milton Kosley, Red Wings' physician, said Monday it will be two or three days before it can be determined whether any permanent damage will result to the eye.

"There is always the possibility of complications but normally people recover from the operation without their vision being impaired," the doctor said.

Barkley is expected to remain in hospital about 10 days and will be out of action a minimum of two weeks.

Stratton Retains Top Spot

A native of Winnipeg, Stratton has scored 18 goals and picked up 41 assists for 59 points.

Paul Andrea right winger for Minnesota Rangers, holds second place with 53 points on 22 goals and 31 assists.

Russell, 25, a second-year political science student at the University of Manitoba, was injured here Jan. 24 when a deflected puck struck him in the eye during an exhibition game between the national team and Memphis Wings of the Central Professional Hockey League.

A benefit game is scheduled Feb. 10 at the Winnipeg Arena between Nationals and Manitoba Old - Timers. All proceeds will go to a trust fund to help Russell complete his university education.

Russell played junior hockey in Winnipeg and was a member of the 1963 senior Allan Cup champions, Winnipeg Maroons. He also was a member of the national team which finished fourth in Tampere, Finland, during the 1965 world hockey championships.

Quebec Bonspiel

128 Rinks Eye 14 Cups

QUEBEC (CP) — One title holder was sidelined, another came on strong, and several new faces emerged as potential champions in Monday's first and second rounds of the 53rd annual Quebec international bonspiel.

A total of 128 rinks started out in competition for the 14 trophies at stake.

A relative unknown—Dr. M. Piuze — skipped his Matane, Que., rink to an overwhelming 12-3 win over Quebec Jacques Cartier foursome in the second round of Francois Jobin gold cup section B play.

Dr. Piuze had guided his foursome to a narrow 9-8 margin over Beecher Menzies' Seaforth, Ont., rink in the opening round.

Bert White of the Oshawa Curling Club also brought his rink home a double winner in the Jobin competition. He beat George Abraham of Port Alfred, Que., 9-7 in Monday night's second round after defeating George Bell's Burlington, Ont., team by an identical score in the first round.

Melrose

MELROSE — The January meeting of Melrose U.C.W. was held at the home Mrs. Ken McMechan with the newly elected officers assuming their new duties. Mrs. Roy Badgley was program leader and as special feature for evening was films and slides on Brazil and Trinidad. Previously, a study had been made on the country and island so the pictures were a suitable follow up and were thoroughly enjoyed.

Wednesday evening's euchre drew the largest attendance of the season with 16 tables in play. Lady winners were Mrs. Charles Wood, Mrs. Roy McLaren and Mrs. Pepper. The men and boys receiving prizes were Michael Lazier, Mr. W. Van Dusen and Ted Abrams with Alan Gordon lone hand prize and Ricky Howard, the lucky draw.

A number from Melrose attended the euchre at Gilead hall on Saturday evening.

Snow ploughs were busy during Sunday afternoon and evening so the school buses had no difficulty in transporting the students on Monday morning.

Mr. John Walsh is still confined to Kingston hospital. Members of the family visited him several times during the week.

Mr. Lloyd Greatrix has returned to his home after being a patient in the Kingston Hospital for about ten days.

Mrs. Milton Crawford is a patient in the Kingston hospital.

Mrs. Archie Greatrix and Mrs. Manley Mitchell convened a euchre on Friday night at the Neighbors Aid Hall. Thirteen tables were in play with prizes won by Mrs. Frank Bedell, Mrs. Ruth McEathron, Mrs. Charles Wood, Mrs. Clarence Hall, Mr. Harry Thomson and Glenn Stratton. The lucky draw was won by Peter Langervin. Next euchre will be held January 28, with Mrs. Gene Stratton and Mrs. Bruce Portt as conveners.

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Rosemary Forsyth is a long-legged blonde from Montreal who achieved the dream of millions of star-struck girls.

Her photograph on a maga zine cover caught the eye of a Hollywood casting director and she was summoned for a serie of screen tests. Shortly after wards, Universal Pictures gav the unknown model a seven year contract, sent her for a extensive course in dramati training and launched her into full-blown star in Shenandoah playing opposite James Stewart

In her second movie, Th War Lord, the blue-eyed, 2 year-old actress plays an 11th century peasant girl who capt vates veteran epic hero Charlto Heston, playing a feudal No man ruler.

Her next movie, Texas Acro the River, will be a comed western with Dean Martin an the French heart-throb Alai Delon, which she hopes wil give her scope to blossom as comedienne.

Movie men are predictin a great future for Rosemar and British newspaper men descended in hordes on her London hotel suite when she flew into this city recently after a continental tour promoting The War Lord.

UNAWED BY FAME

Relaxing in a chintz chair after the last cameraman had taken the last cheesecake shot, Rosemary appeared totally unawed by her meteoric streak to success.

"Sometimes I think I'd really be happier staying home cooking and washing dishes," she said with a grin. "I'm very much a home person."

Acting ambitions? "I'd like to be as good an actress as I can, and to have good meaty parts I can get my teeth into. But my career would definitely come second when I get married.

"Marriage is certainly the most important thing to me. I've seen enough of Hollywood to know that I could not be an actress and a wife at the same time."

She has no romantic ties at the moment, and her regular dates are mostly older men, several of them in advertising.

"I don't think a man is a man until he is 30. With men of my own age I feel much older than them—I seem to have lived through more, experienced more."

The daughter of a Scots-Canadian father and Irish-American mother, Rosemary was born in Montreal but left at the age of three for New York. She still lives in Manhattan, in a 14th-floor East Side apartment with panoramic views of which she is intensely houseproud.

"If I hadn't gone into acting I would have become an interior decorator," she said. "If things go wrong with acting I may still become one."

SHUNS LIMELIGHT

The girl whom American movie writers have described as combining the regal beauty of Grace Kelly with the naturalness and warmth of Ingrid Bergman has something of the cool detachment of Greta Garbo when it comes to the tinsel whirl of Hollywood ballyhoo. The anxious yearning to be accepted and embraced by the movie capital that has bruised so many stars — most tragically, Marilyn Monroe—could not be farther from Rosemary Forsyth's determination to lead a normal life.

"I think I've only been to four Hollywood parties in the past two years," she said. "It is possible to avoid being sucked into the vortex, and most of my friends there are unknown anyway, so we manage to make our own entertainment and have our own parties.

"I did once date a very famous Hollywood figure, but we were followed everywhere all the time by cameramen and columnists. That sort of thing is not for me, and if people are disappointed that I don't act more like a film star, well, that's just too bad."

Lounging elegantly in a black sleeveless dress with no jewelry except an ornate gold ring, no makeup and her long blonde hair falling carelessly about her shoulder, Rosemary said she found no difficulty in being herself despite the pressures of star publicity.

"I guess I'm just too lazy to try keeping up an image all the time."

DURELLE BEATEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Bizien of Jersey City, N.J., jabbed his way to a 10-round welterweight unanimous decision over Joey Durelle, of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., Monday night.

A STAR FROM THE START—Rosemary Forsyth was a beautiful but unknown model when her picture caught the eye of a Hollywood casting director. She starred in her first role in Shenandoah and again (above) as the Norman peasant girl with Charlton Heston in The War Lord. A great future has been predicted for the Montreal-born girl who has been described as combining the beauty of Grace Kelly, the warmth of Ingrid Bergman and the detachment of Greta Garbo. (CP Photo)

Sydney's Vice Is Hidden Beneath Veneer of Neon

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) The entertainment centre of Australia's largest city hides a world of vice, brutality, crime and greed beneath a veneer of night-time neon.

The casual observer, strolling through its crowded streets, might describe it as unconventional or risque.

He would see no more than a carnival of lights, touts beckoning from the doors of strip clubs, over-priced restaurants, souvenir shops, coffee lounges, hotels and hundreds of tourists looking at hundreds of other tourists.

But King's Cross is also a warren of gunmen, prostitutes, gamblers, con - men, homosexuals, junkies and pushers, thieves and fences.

The heart of the Cross, a mile from downtown Sydney, is where five streets melt into neon, brightly painted night-club fronts, traffic—a raucous symphony of light and noise.

Prostitutes have divided the area into territories. Their earnings average about $220 a week, of which almost half is spent on operating costs—fines and protection money.

PERVERSION DECLINES

Houses of perversion have declined in recent years, but there is one establishment in Bayswater Road which announces delights which "we dare not offer to beginners."

One of the smallest streets in the Cross is probably the most active in terms of illegal business behind closed doors.

It has one of Sydney's biggest bookmaking shops, a "sly grog" shop—rare in Sydney because of liberal liquor laws—and a baccarat school, where small fortunes are won and lost between 10 p.m. and dawn.

Off the main thoroughfares, a "reefer" of locally-grown hemp can be bought for 25 cents, or one of Cuban or Panamanian weed, which is highly prized, for $1.

Sensational allegations made in a Sydney court prompted the resignation of the then chief of the vice squad. Since then some attempts have been made to clean up the area.

But Sydney's streets of sin have been stamped on before—and rose again.

Western American History Kicked Around in TV Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Jesse James? Why—he really was one of the good guys. The only reason he went around robbing banks and killing people was because people shoved him around and didn't understand him.

Besides, according to the current ABC television series version, Jesse James was "cursed with a quick and restless gun."

Daniel Boone? Oh, he's a tall fellow who drops his "Gs", lives in a stockade and fights Injuns—except his best friend, an Injun who went to Harvard and speaks better English than Dan'l. Anyway that's how he is on ABC.

Ulysses S. Grant? He was president of the United States or something a long time ago and spent most of his time hiring secret agents. He had one named James West, according to CBS, who rode around in a private railway car, keeping deranged inventors from destroying the nation and protecting important visitors.

On NBC, Grant has another agent, a man kicked out of the cavalry for cowardice. Grant of course knew this fellow was no coward but didn't do anything about it because he had lots of secret missions for him.

Youngsters certainly could get a strange version of Western American history if their exposure to it were confined to television series.

Andy Williams' NBC show Monday night was a pocket version of the Academy Awards as the Golden Globes of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association were distributed. The committee in charge of the academy's annual show could take some tips from the disciplined way it was handled.

Demorestville

DEMORESTVILLE — The Women's Institute meeting was held Tuesday evening at Mrs. Roy Coverts.

The P.C.W. met Wednesday evening at Mrs. Charlie Harringtons.

Mrs. Roy Covert spent the weekend in Bloomfield.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Potter, who will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary, Saturday, January 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammel of Manilla, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sallans.

AT THE BELLE — Doris Day and Rod Taylor star in "Do Not Disturb", a 20th Century-Fox release in CinemaScope and DeLuxe color opening Thursday at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

COULDN'T BREAK GROUND

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A couple of dozen people turned out in a howling snowstorm and near-zero temperatures Sunday for ground-breaking ceremonies for St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church. It was so cold that church officials had to pour gasoline on the ground and light it to melt ice and snow so Rev. Arthur M. Hornish could chip away a handful of earth.

Queensboro

QUEENSBORO — The card party held in the Orange Hall on Friday night was a decided success. The party was sponsored by the Women's Institute and the proceeds are to be used to help build a rink for the children of the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Thompson and family of Belleville were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lynn and children of Cobourg spent the weekend with Mrs. William Lynn.

The sympathy of this community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Goldie Holmes in the death of their daughter, Mrs. Earl Wannamaker.

Group one of the United Church Women held the regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. John Thompson on Thursdday afternoon. Group two meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Sexsmith on Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes were guests at the home of their son Mr. Leslie Holmes on Sunday, January 23rd on the occasion of their 48th wedding anniversary. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Allan Sager Queensboro, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wood and Mr. Robert Sager Oshawa and Miss Shirley Derry of Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Martin and children spent a few days this week with Mrs. R. A. Sager.

Mrs. Bruce Leslie, Mrs. Roy Rollins, Mrs. R. A. Sager and Miss Roberta Sager spent Tuesday in Peterborough and visited Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Starke.

Mrs. Frank O'Rourke has returned home after spending 3 weeks in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moore, Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wagner Toronto and Mrs. John Devitt, Oshawa were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Westfall and Miss Betty Westfall attended the funeral of Mr. Edward Hogle of Trenton on Saturday at the Weaver Funeral Home.

Mrs. William Baird of Toronto spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Mallory.

Mrs. Samuel Reid and Margo, accompanied by Mrs. Lois Bailey of Trenton, spent the weekend with Mrs. Reid's sister and her husband Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Orser of Carrying Place.

Mrs. Lorne Mallory and Mrs. William Baird of Toronto were Wednesday visitors of the former's sister, Mrs. Walter Jones.

Word was received on Sunday by the family of the sudden death of Mr. Arthur Westfall of Sudbury, formerly of Bayside.

Low Prices Protested by Local 171 OFU

BONARLAW — The January meeting of the Ontario Farmers' Union was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mumby.

The Provincial convention is to be held in Hastings County in 1966. A brief is to be presented to the cabinet at the Parliament Buildings in Toronto and Bob Cosbey, Walter Acker and Edna Bateman are to be present from Local 171.

Shirley Reid spoke on organization and expressed the hope for more membership. The next meeting is to be held February 8th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cosbey.

At the county road meeting January 4th the following resolution supported by Local 171 was made by Joe Murphy and seconded by Allan Gibson: "The District of Hastings reaffirms its support of the Board of Directors' decision for a mass demonstration at Queen's Park if the government does not take immediate action to come to grips with the Ontario farmers' problems of inadequate prices for farm products." This resolution was approved by the members present.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — St. Mark's held a successful card party in the church hall on Wednesday evening with ten tables playing. Winners were Alvin Heath, Mrs. Ray Scott, Mrs. G. Burkitt and Don Leonard.

Rawdon firemen responded to a call from Campbellford on Thursday morning. Several stores in Campbellford were burned, a great loss to the community where many do their shopping from a large surrounding area.

Friends received word of the death of Tillie Reid, wife of the late John Spry at Wyandotte, Michigan. Mrs. Spry was born and educated near Springbrook and Mr. and Mrs. Spry farmed for many years in Spry Settlement near Bonarlaw before going to the United States. She is survived by one daughter and three sons living in Wyandotte. Service was at Duffin-Hogle Funeral Home and burial was in Mount Nebo Cemetery.

Mr. Bill Thompson of Dorset spent the weekend at the home of his mother, Mrs. Reta Thompson. Bill is taking a course with the Lands and [illegible]est at Dorset.

Mr. a. Mrs. [illegible] [illegible]arborough have purchased Camp Eagle Eye, on Bonarlaw mail route from Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Reid are spending a holiday in Arizona, New Orleans and other southern States.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert McCoy visited Mr. and Mrs. Harold James of New Jersey, at a friend's home in Oshawa on Wednesday.

The annual vestry meeting was held at St. Mark's Anglican Church on Thursday evening with a good attendance.

IT'S COLD 'OUTSIDE'

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)— Supt. Thomas F. Riley of the Monroe County penitentiary says two men whose jail terms were over Monday asked to spend the night in their old cells. The snow was too deep and it was too cold outside, they said. Riley granted their request.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. Will Jackson acompanied Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Hudgins to Oshawa on Sunday, where they visited Mrs. Jackson's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks.

The combined annual meeting of St. Andrew's Church, Wellington and Christ Church, Hillier, the smorgasbord dinner and the vestry meeting were all cancelled on Sunday due to the severe snow storm. It will be held at a future date.

Mrs. William Miller of Whitby is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Elijah Thompson for a few days.

Mr. Joe Lavender entered the Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital on Thursday. On Friday he underwent surgery on his knee.

Mrs. W. E. Jones and sons, Bill and Bob of Markham were weekend guests of her parents, Lt.-Col. and Mrs. W. A. Davern.

Mrs. James Way spent several days last week with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lott and family in Belleville.

Mrs. Clarence Way's name should have been added to the list of Wellington W.I. members who had joined the Wellington Branch during the years from 1912 to 1940.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Osterhout and Janice of Toronto were recent guests of his mother, Mrs. Nina Osterhout, Burrs and overnight guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Baitley.

Mr. Gerry Bakker of Kingston spent several days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright.

Wellington friends of Mr. Gordon Henry were sorry to hear of his sudden death on Monday morning, January 24th. Mr. Henry suffered a fatal heart attack while shovelling snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Greatrix entertained the Swamp College euchre club at their home on Thursday evening.

UNDER WRAPS FOR THE WINTER—The Russian winter stopped Napoleon and still stops most Moscow drivers. When cold weather hits the cars go under wraps and up on blocks until spring arrives. Moscow motorists say the problem is a lack of decent anti-freeze. The only type available on the open market will wreck the engine in one winter. (CP Photo)

The Communists Have Something: They Put Cars Under Wraps in Winter

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — When you see cars covered with ghost-like shrouds and sitting forlornly motionless, you know that winter has arrived in Moscow.

Thousands of vehicles go under canvas when the frosts set in and remain that way until the spring thaws, up to five months later.

It's not just that private car owners here are cowed by the thought of winter driving. The chief reason for placing cars in hibernation is lack of good anti-freeze. Moscow car owners swear that the only type available on the open market here does more harm than good.

It erodes the inside of the radiator, they contend, opening the way to all sorts of driving difficulties after the winter is over.

So when the cold weather sets in, these people simply drain the water out of the radiator, remove the battery and lock the car up until spring.

Many put canvas covers, costing the equivalent of about $60, over their vehicles. This makes them look sad and neglected, even ghostly, as they squat through wind and snow at the back of some apartment block or on a small side road.

FEW HAVE GARAGES

Often the tires also are removed and the car is jacked up on wooden blocks for the winter.

Garages are virtually nonexistent in this city of 7,000,000 though a few owners have primitive, tin-roof affairs that at least provide shelter for their cars. They are unheated.

During the last year or so, some co-operative groups have been formed to build heated brick garages. Sometimes you see an advertisement in one of the Moscow newspapers, seeking to recruit new members for this or that co-op group.

Usually it costs about 800 rubles—$960—for a car owner to belong to such an organization and obtain a place for his car in a warm garage. The typical co-op has 40 to 50 members.

It's impossible to say how the idea is working out, since few if any heated garages have been completed. In any case they don't solve the problem of low-grade anti-freeze. They simply provide a warm place for cars to spend the winter.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

NURSE IN TRAINING

A nurse in training may be claimed by the parents up until the time she graduates, regardless of her age, as a nurses' training school is recognized as an academic institution for taxation purposes.

The parents will have no claim for her in the year of graduation, if her income after graduation exceeds $950. Prior to 1964 a nurse in training could only be claimed by the parents, but following amendments to the Income Tax Act in 1964 and 1965 a nurse - in - training may be claimed by a brother, sister, uncle or aunt who may be supporting her and financing her education.

This column receives numerous letters each year asking if the same regulations as apply to a nurse-intraining are applicable to a dependant over 21 who may be training for an X-ray or laboratory technician I can only advise that up to the present there are no provisions in the Income Tax Act or its regulations, that will permit such a dependent to be claimed. Their argument is that as such persons also usually train in a hospital, they should be allowed the same consideration as a nurse - in - training. It may be discrimination as the parents claim it to be, but nothing can be done until such time as it is written into the Income Tax Act.

If you have problem not covered in this article, contact your local district Income Tax office or a letter to me following the instructions below will bring you a prompt reply.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed, FIVE cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1. My daughter graduated as a nurse in June. She stayed on at the hospital where she trained as a registered nurse. Can I claim her for the part of the year she was in training.

Answer. No. You have no claim at all if her income after graduation exceeded $950 in 1965.

Question 2. I have a son 22 and a daughter 23 both in training at the same hospital; my daughter as a nurse and my son as a laboratory technician. Can I claim both for $550 each.

Answer. No. You may only claim your daughter

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured inflamed tissue.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

CUEVAS DE ALMANZORA (AP)—The collision of two U.S. planes miles above the Spanish coast has plunged the people of this region into a nuclear age—and left them astonished, perplexed, and fearful.

The crash Jan. 17 of a B-52 carrying nuclear bombs and the jet tanker refuelling it—likely to become one of the most expensive accidents in U.S. Air Force history—exploded with international repercussions. But it was the quiet people of the Mediterranean coast, the truck farmers and the fisherfolk, who were affected most intimately.

The massive land and sea search for a nuclear bomb still missing has failed to quiet their fears.

The U.S. government is anxious to prevent the bomb from falling into Communist hands and to reassure allied governments—who may develop fears about U.S. bombers flying over their territory with nuclear bombs aboard.

Although the search sector near this area of 13,000 persons is heavily guarded, it is conceivable someone might stumble on secret material and hand it over to a Communist agent—wittingly or unwittingly.

It also is conceivable Soviet military men might discover the weapon or its parts.

BOMB IN SEA?

The missing bomb is believed to be 1,000 feet deep in the Mediterranean off Almeria. The Soviet Union operates subs and surface ships in the Mediterranean.

The search seems to have quieted down for the moment, while the searchers wait for the arrival from the United States of two midget submarines which can dive to that depth.

As long as the bomb is missing, it is feared other countries might follow Spain's lead and ban U.S. nuclear - armed planes from flying over their territories. Once it is found, it is believed other governments will be reassured.

People living in the area complain they were told too little and too late what the crash could mean.

"We wanted to help those poor airmen," said one grizzled farmer. "We all rushed to the wreckage. We weren't told until much later that it could be radioactive. I think if it happened again most of us would stay away from the scene."

WRECKAGE HIT FARMS

When the rain of wreckage fell, most of it along the shore and across truck gardens and farms. It missed a school, in which nearly 500 children from the area were gathering, by about 1½ miles. No Spaniard was injured by the falling debris.

"But when the word spread that the bomber carried nuclear arms — something of which we know little here—there was a quick wave of fear," said the mayor of one village.

"Doctors came from Madrid, and they told us to wash frequently and to wash all our clothes to prevent contamination by something we can't see and can't feel. A month's supply of soap and detergent was brought up and used in two days."

Four survivors of the crash were rescued by fishermen and whisked away to a U.S. Air Force hospital near Madrid. Squads of U.S. and Spanish military descended from helicopters and recovered the burned remains of seven other crew numbers.

More U.S. airmen came, clearing the wreckage, searching the area and making friends with the people of the region. They quieted much of the fear when they began eating ripe tomatoes from the local gardens—U.S. damage estimators had already promised reimbursement for this year's crop and maybe the next.

MEN CAN'T FISH

Garrucha, a nearby fishing village of 4,500 persons, is most affected by the sea search. Fishermen are unable to go to sea, and they sit idly in the sun, watching frogmen and diving bells in action off the coast. They too, were promised prompt reimbursement for fish lost due to the nuclear search.

There were other major repercussions elsewhere.

There was heavy pressure from the Spanish government to suspend further refuelling flights of the big bombers over Spanish territory and waters. The U.S. government announced that orders had been issued limiting such refuelling areas over international waters.

Spain went even further and ordered that no more planes carrying nuclear arms could be flown over Spanish territory.

"This accident gives Spain a lot of bargaining power over future agreements with the United States," said one experienced observer. "The sooner it's over and all signs erased, the lower the cost of new understandings should be."

U.S. Forces In Viet Nam Over 197,000

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military forces in Viet Nam are approaching the peak strength of Americans who fought in the Korean war and may top that total by the end of this year.

Ashore in Viet Nam, according to the most recently announced official figures, are about 197,300 army, marine corps, navy, air force and coast guard men.

But when other forces assigned to fight or support the Viet Nam war from other neighboring locations are added, the over-all total runs to about [illegible]000.

At peak strength, in mid-1953 as hostilities tapered to an end, the United States had about 472,000 men deployed in Korea or conducting action from bases and waters in adjacent areas.

China's Fear of War With U.S. Beginning to Sound Genuine

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Correspondent

China's professed fear of war with the United States is beginning to sound more genuine.

All the evidence indicates China expects the United States must get out of Viet Nam eventually and in the long run the Communists will dominate all of Indochina—Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia. Yet the Peking leadership seems afraid the U.S. may become exasperated and attack China from the air.

This apprehension may account for notes from Peking that suggest the Chinese leadership feels isolated and in danger. Indeed, there are hints some China military leaders sought a reconciliation with Moscow so that Soviet nuclear power might serve as a protection against American attack.

If there was such a move, it seems to have been halted before it got beyond Peking.

PREDICT 'HAWKS' VICTORY

Peking has been paying strict attention to the debates going on in Washington, between the "hawks and doves." It expects the "hawks" to prevail and to see the war in Viet Nam extended to Laos and perhaps Cambodia. China would consider any U.S. movement in that direction to be an immediate threat to its own security.

A dominating theme in Peking propaganda is the danger of war. As one domestic broadcast put it, "we are planning all our tasks on the basis of the assumption that U.S. imperialism will forcibly impose a war on us."

Peking accuses Moscow of collaborating with other countries in a new anti-China campaign. So far as the Chinese leaders are concerned, the Russians are guilty of "the three shams." These are "sham opposition to imperialism, sham support for world revolution, and sham unity."

20 Die In New York State Storm--Drifts Reach 30 Feet

Nadja Kyryczenko and about 40 other employees of Mohawk [illegible]es welcomed the plows Tuesday and hugged the drivers who rescued them from 12-foot drifts.

Shiela Mason, 19, said they passed the time by "mostly staying on the job."

"We've had 50,000 calls since Sunday night," mostly from stranded travellers, she said.

Elsewhere in Syracuse, drifts reached 30 feet in depth and state police there marshalled a convoy of plows to open state Thruway—closed since Sunday—from there to Buffalo.

Earlier, 350 miles of the superhighway, from Albany to the Pennsylvania state line, had been closed by blowing, drifting snow.

At least 20 persons died in storm-attributed deaths as more than 100 inches of snow buried the Lake Ontario city of Oswego and up to 60 inches covered other areas.

In eastern New York, plows battered open rural roads—but residents braced for new snow today that the weather bureau said could reach up to four inches.

Snow swirled down on New York city Tuesday night, with a depth of four inches predicted before the snow ends today.

At least one city ground to a complete standstill. Oswego's Mayor Ralph Shapiro said not one of the city's 87 miles of streets was open.

Eastern Canada Threatened With Invasion by U.S. Gale

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eastern Canada, still clearing up after a weekend storm which brought up to 21 inches of snow in some areas, faces the prospect of more snow.

The threat lies in a storm out of New York that is expected to cross sections of the Atlantic provinces today.

Martin Defends Policy

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — A sharp New Democratic attack on American actions in Viet Nam and an unscheduled reply by External Affairs Minister Martin dominated discussion as the Commons opened a two - day supply debate Tuesday.

David Lewis, NDP deputy house leader, condemned the resumption Monday of U.S. bombing raids on North Viet Nam as "unfortunate and reckless, since it is likely to postpone for many years the possibility of a negotiated settlement."

Escalation of the war by the U.S. was likely to result only in escalation by the Communists and the threat of a nuclear holocaust would thus be increased.

He accused the U.S. government of showing insincerity and cynicism by talking peace at the United Nations while intensifying the war in Viet Nam. And he criticized the Canadian government for being too timid and tepid in its statements on U.S. policy.

The UN Security Council should require the U.S. to halt its bombing raids immediately

Absence Of China From UN Is Bar To Peace Parley

By BORIS MISKEW

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The absence of Communist China from the United Nations appeared today to be a major obstacle to any successful solution to the Vietnamese war by the UN Security Council.

The 15-nation council was scheduled to vote this afternoon on a United States proposal to place the Vietnamese issue on the council agenda, despite opposition led by the Soviet Union and France.

Most of the countries opposing the U.S. proposal support the stand taken by French Ambassador Roger Seydoux, who said that in the absence of China and also of North and South Viet Nam, any UN intervention would merely lead to misunderstanding.

Chief S. O. Adebo, the Nigerian ambassador, said the situation in southeast Asia revolves around the question of Communist China. He said he regrets the absence of China from the United Nations.

The absence of the People's Republic of China and of North Viet Nam make it difficult for the council to deal with this problem, he said.

A proper discussion on the Vietnamese situation required the participation of all parties, including the governments in Peking and Hanoi, and the National Liberation Front (the Viet Cong).

Apollo K. Kironde, Uganda's ambassador, said he welcomes the U.S. attempt to "rectify past mistakes." However, the council could only reach the right conclusion by hearing the views of Communist China, the National Liberation Front, and North and South Viet Nam.

Postponement of a vote on the U.S. proposal came Tuesday night on the suggestion of Jordan, after it became apparent that the United States was short one vote in getting Viet Nam placed on the agenda for a full-scale debate. Nine votes were needed to assure further debate. The big - power veto could not be applied in the vote.

Britain, New Zealand, Argentina, Japan, Nationalist China (Formosa), The Netherlands and Uruguay joined the United States in calling for UN action to bring peace to Viet Nam.

Supporting the Franco-Soviet stand were Bulgaria and Mali, while Nigeria and Uganda indicated they will abstain. Jordan had not decided how it would vote, and therefore held the key to whether the issue would be debated in the council.

The United States requested the council meeting Monday after Washington ordered the resumption of bombing of North Vietnamese targets. The resumption of the raids for the first time since Dec. 24 was criticized by nations opposing Security Council action.

University Professor Suspended

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — An assistant professor of psychology at Lakehead University has been suspended from the faculty pending an investigation of his academic background and other credentials.

The man, David Macdonald, is also a member of the board of education in neighboring Port Arthur.

His whereabouts were unknown Tuesday when' the suspension was announced by University President W. G. Tamblyn, who said a personal check of Macdonald's background and academic degrees prompted him to turn the file over to the Port Arthur Crown attorney.

Macdonald joined Lakehead's faculty on a part-time basis in 1963 and assumed full - time teaching duties in 1964, although he was never a member of the permanent staff.

Mr. Tamblyn said he claimed degrees from universities in Missouri and Washington State.

SAYS HE'S FAKE

In a copyright story from Port Arthur, the Toronto Globe and Mail says MacDonald is a fake who obtained copies of degrees belonging to a psychology professor at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

The newspaper says David George McDonald, a different spelling of the last name, saw a copy of Lakehead University's calendar two weeks ago. It quotes him as saying in a telephone interview:

"I looked at the faculty list and there was my name with my degrees. It was frightening. "I am not missing any of my papers. I don't know how it happened."

The Missouri professor received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Missouri in 1955, a master's degree and a doctorate of philosophy from Washington Uni-

NDP Fires Salvos

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's New Democratic Party leader fired salvos in the legislature Tuesday at both the Bell Telephone Co. and the Conservative government during the debate on the throne speech.

Donald C. MacDonald later moved an amendment for an address in reply to the throne speech that "this house regrets governmental failure to achieve even the basic prerequisites necessary to eliminate poverty. . . ."

In other business Tuesday:

—Education Minister Davis announced the government will assume a greater proportion of education costs this year through increased grants to local school boards.

—Stanley Randall, economics and development minister, announced the Ontario Housing Corp. is investigating whether public housing rentals of up to 30.2 per cent of income may be imposing a hardship on some tenants.

CALL SPOONER

—The legislature's standing committee on government commissions agreed to call Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner and officials of the Ontario Municipal Employees Retirement System before it next Tuesday.

Mr. MacDonald said that the Bell Telephone Co. has for more than six years made more profit than authorized by the board of transport commissioners and the provincial government has not once "protested this exploitation of the consumer."

He said that by 1964, Bell's over-all capital earnings were 6.3 per cent, though the allowed level was 5.9 per cent, and that common equity earnings were 7.3 per cent compared with the 6.6-per-cent level permitted.

Cobalt Case Is Adjourned Until March 21

Two Belleville scrap dealers — Leonard Vigodda and his father Samuel — must now wait out seven weeks before discovering if they will stand trial for conspiracy in the Deloro cobalt mystery.

A preliminary hearing scrutinizing evidence against them yesterday was postponed to March 21 so the Crown can call two key witnesses from the United States.

The witnesses — believed to be businessmen from Baltimore, Maryland — were unable to travel to Canada for the preliminary hearing Monday because of stormy weather. The delay ruled out their availability until some time in March.

The date for concluding testimony supporting the Crown's allegations against the Vigoddas in the disappearance of cobalt from the federal stockpile at Deloro, was reached after consultation between Crown Attorney John Pringle, defence counsel Joseph Sedgwick and Magistrate R. C. Jackson.

CONTINUE ON BAIL

In the meantime the two scrap dealers continue on $10,000 bail each put up after their arrest last August.

They were among seven men arrested when more than $600,000 in cobalt was discovered missing from the stockpile. The cobalt, in shot form was stored in 268 1,300-pound barrels in a Deloro warehouse. Only 21 barrels were still filled with the metal slugs when the discovery was made last May.

Yesterday's long adjournment came after two days of testimony from 20 witnesses called by the Crown.

Among the last key witnesses yesterday the prosecution called two former Vigodda employees, Bernard Boulter and Vernon Brant, both of whom had trucked for the dealers' Markel Metals and Minerals operation in Belleville.

TOLD OF TRIPS MADE

Boulter, first called Monday after a conspiracy charge in the case against him was withdrawn, went back in the stand

Opening Channel in River Helps to Relieve Flooding

Water pressure beneath the ice which has been building up in the Moira River since the weekend, resulting in flooding of several Front Street store basements, was relieved somewhat today with the opening of a channel south of the CPR bridge.

Beneath the ice pressure broke the ice away on the east bank of the river just below the railway bridge and the water surged over the Victoria Park entranceway and into the Belleville Harbor.

At noon city public works employees under the direction of City Engineer Wilbur Purcell and works superintendent Gordon McInroy were working to further enlarge the channel to allow a greater volume of water to get away.

Yesterday, on the surmise that frazil ice and slush conditions beneath the ice at the river mouth were causing the increase in the water level, city workmen drilled a series of test holes.

The test holes confirmed what had been suspected.

SEVERAL HOLES DRILLED

"We drilled a number of holes in the river ice, both below and above the CPR bridge and found slush and frazil ice right to the river bottom," stated the city engineer.

There is about a foot of ice in the river with a water depth beneath the ice of from eight to ten feet — considerably greater than normal at this time of year.

Today the works department intended to continue sawing out channels in the ice and to bring in a dragline in an attempt to clear out the frazil ice and slush and get the current moving.

But before this could be done the ice at the Victoria Park entrance south of the railway bridge broke away and water started rolling across the roadway and into Belleville harbor.

PUMPS ARE USED

Since the weekend there had been numerous reports of flooding of store basements on the west side of Front Street with several stores taking out basement stock.

In other stores pumps were put into action in an attempt to keep the water level down.

Also flooding was reported at the Morch Manufacturing works on Water Street, but here the water level lowered during the night and conditions were improved this morning.

Today Inspiration Contractors were still at work removing the last of the earth coffer dam put in to allow installation of an underground Bell telephone cable conduit across the river.

It is not believed that the coffer dam in the river is to any extent responsible for the recently increased water level but the river situation is being carefully watched with the view of preparing for the possibilities of a flood during the spring break-up.

MAY USE COAL DUST

Had the Bell Telephone coffer dam remained in the river until the spring break-up it could have increased the possibilities of a flood.

In the meantime everything possible will be done to lessen the possibility of a flood when the break-up does come.

City Engineer Purcell said he was thinking of the possibility of using coal dust to spread on the river ice to retain the heat of the sun's rays and thus speed the melting process.

Also, he said he was interested in a magazine article entitled "Ice Engineering" written by a now deceased Montreal professor who advocated the use of thermite in melting ice.

In the article, written some years ago, the writer claims to have averted a spring flood at Belleville in the 1920's by the use of thermite.

Royal Ship Sets Sail For Guiana

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuters) — The royal yacht Britannia with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip aboard, headed for British Guiana today on the first leg of a five-week Caribbean tour.

The couple were due to arrive in tightly-policed Georgetown Friday.

Earlier Tuesday thousands of persons in sunny Barbados enthusiastically greeted the first reigning monarch to visit them, as the Queen and Prince Philip arrived from London on a jetliner to board the royal yacht.

After a welcome from Premier Errol Barow and Mrs. Barrow, they drove past cheering crowds along a 12-mile route covered with gay arches, bunting and waving union jacks.

Wants to Take Appeal to Supreme Court

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Former justice of the peace David Lockett says he wants to take a bill for $16,000 against the city of Kingston to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Donald Good, lawyer for Mr. Lockett, said today he is seeking leave to appeal the case to the Supreme Court.

Earlier this month, the Ontario Court of Appeals ruled that Mr. Lockett was not entitled to the claim against the city. The decision reversed an earlier ruling by the Ontario Supreme Court which allowed the claim.

Mr. Lockett made the claim for fees he said the city owed him for summonses, informations, warrants and other documents issued from 1960-64.

Academic Freedom Not Sacred Must Meet Society's Needs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's university affairs minister warned universities Tuesday night that their academic freedom is not sacred and could be turned aside if they fail to meet society's needs.

William G. Davis said in a speech at York University that he fully supports academic freedom and autonomy, which "were never more important than today when we live in a rather conformity - orientated world."

But, he added, "if they cease to be consistent with the needs of the times, there is no merit in retaining them for their own sake."

Mr. Davis said he could not imagine any society standing idly by if, for example, large numbers of able students must be turned away because the university is not prepared to accept them, or if some fields are ignored despite pressing demands for graduates in those areas.

The minister questioned whether universities have shown enough effort in controlling costs —"It seems reasonable to expect that . . . universities will practise rigid economy whenever and wherever possible."

He added that universities might also have to defer building up graduate schools until over-all demand makes such expansion necessary.

Mr. Davis said the grants to higher education recently announced by the federal government will meet less than a quarter of total operating needs in 1966-67.

"The provincial treasury, therefore, will continue to be the major provider of revenues required by our universities."

19 Puerto Ricans Die as Bus Struck by Diesel in Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Nineteen young Puerto Ricans, who came to Florida's fields to earn some extra dollars, were killed Tuesday when a farm labor bus collided with a diesel engine.

Fifteen others were severely injured as the engine crushed the bus like an accordion and pushed it 432 feet along the tracks.

It was the second worst traffic accident in Florida's history and another in a long series of accidents involving vehicles that carry Florida's field hands.

Conductor Edward B. Shaw said the Seaboard Air Line Railway engine, which carried only a single caboose, was travelling about 30 miles an hour when it reached the crossing, about 15 miles from downtown Miami.

"The bus just ran in front of us," Shaw said. "Then I heard the racket. I looked back and couldn't see anything but dust. Then it settled and I saw bodies lying at the side of the road"

The railway had decided to install a flashing light after another collision several weeks ago when a bus knocked a train off the track Work on the light had not been finished.

One reason that Americans won't go Communist is that when they hear the shout "Workers Arise" they think it's time for the coffee break.

Construction Roundup

Gerald Joyce Realtors report that Stanleypark Ltd. recently took title to 340 acres of land adjacent to and surrounding the Bay of Quinte Golf Course. The land constituted the last farm that belonged to the G. K. Graham estate, which was known for many years as Montrose Farms.

This brings Stanleypark's total land purchases in the Township of Sidney up to 600 acres. Much of this was purchased from the Grahams, including a 160-acre parcel already under development with about 25 homes constructed. A 40-acre parcel, to be known as Huntingwood Hills, and 50-acre Oak Hills were other purchases in the same locale.

The fact that 600 acres of intended residential property have recently been bought in Sidney Township indicates the promise of much future development for that area.

Subdivision planner T. S. Ransom, Ontario Land Surveyor, has been retained to develop the street patterns and general layout of the 340-acre segment, and it has been indicated that some of the land will be divided into rather large lots to accommodate a number of "better class" homes.

Mr. J. M. Parrott, president of Stanleypark Ltd., has already seen his firm develop the largest subdivision in Belleville, Stanley Park, which is now 99% completed".

City Building Inspector Grant Stickle reports that $107,000 was the value of the construction carried out in Belleville during the month of January. Of the ten building permits issued, eight were for new dwellings.

Tatham Contractors and Engineers, along with several other city construction firms, reported a temporary lull in operations for the past week due to the arctic-like weather conditions that Belleville has been experiencing.

However, some Tatham equipment, including their 5-ton "frost-pick", is working "around-the-clock" at removing the coffer dam adjacent to the Lower Bridge. The dam was built up when Bell Telephone recently had installed an underground conduit across the river.

During 1965, 181 dwellings were completed in the city of Belleville, as compared with 294 in 1964. This drop was similar to that experienced in several other Ontario centres of 5,000 population and over, including Kitchener and Ottawa.

Figures, released in "Housing Statistics — Ontario Region" by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, reveal that Belleville had 89 dwellings under construction on December 31st, 1965, against 133 a year earlier.

The report shows that more than 1,000 fewer dwelling units were completed in Ontario's larger municipalities in 1965 than were constructed in 1964.

As of December 31st, 1965, 36,240 dwellings were under construction in Metro Toronto, up 11,0000 from a year ago.

Specifications for the interior fire retardent painting of two hangars in Picton are on display at the Quinte Construction Association office in the Chamber of Commerce building. Tenders for the Department of Defence project are due February 22.

Wilson Concrete Products is involved in a number of projects at present, including four municipal and Department of Highways prestressed concrete bridges, in various stages of construction within a 100-mile radius of Belleville.

Just under way is the new Humanities Building at Queen's University, for which Wilson Concrete is providing the concrete frame and part of the floor and roof system.

The firm has just been awarded a contract to construct 600-foot-long precast concrete arched covers for hydro - electric water sluiceways in Ottawa.

Wilson's have completed production on a $1.2 million contract for the new medium security penitentiary at Warkworth. The installation is expected to be finished in about two weeks.

WAGES RISE HIGH

The average wage in Canadian manufacturing was $87 weekly in 1965, compared with $70 in 1959.

Chamber of Commerce Takes on "New Look"

TRENTON — The Trenton Chamber of Commerce was "reborn" in a sense last night when eight directors swung in behind their president, George Kempf, and agreed on a course of action for 1966.

The "new look" at Chamber business includes an ambitious budget of more than $13,000. The town will be asked to up its grant from last year's $3,000 to $5,000 and the directors hope to make up the remainder by increased memberships. A tentative membership target of 300 was set. The Chamber now has 130 paid up members.

Working on the theory that "the workman is worthy of his hire," the directors voted to raise manager Nostrand Srague's salary, and to provide for him to hire part time secretarial help, leaving him free to keep tab on committee chairmen and attend to other business.

Various committees were formed last night and the chairmen and committee members will set up budgets for the year. Fifteen hundred dollars was allowed for in the overall budget for committee work.

Committees named were a building fund committee; a retail merchants' group; a tourist committee; a public relations committee; a committee to co-ordinate dates of community events and such things as tag days to do away with "overlap."

George Kempf, who will not run for any office this year, will continue to represent the Chamber on town council's industrial committee; Mr. Sprague will represent the Chamber on the town's Centennial committee; Harold Clark will head up the nominating committee; press representatives will work on the public relations committee and Wayne Simmons will be asked to arrange the April 20 annual dinner and election of officers.

WILL OPEN OFFICE

It was decided to hold the official opening of the new chamber office on the afternoon of April 20, and the guest speaker for the evening meeting will be asked to perform the function. D. R. Fraser and Douglas Whitley were delegated to arrange for an outstanding speaker for the annual meeting. Chamber of Commerce Week is April 17 to April 23.

At the outset of the meeting, Mr. Kempf put the issue squarely up to the directors: Does Trenton need a Chamber of Commerce? Are we willing to work to improve the Chamber image?

The answer was an enthusiastic "yes" from the directors, who nevertheless agreed that there was much to be done to pull the Chamber out of the doldrums.

A greater attempt will be made to place others than directors on various committees. Monthly meetings will be held and directors notified of the upcoming meetings by mail. A new Civic Committee wil lbe formed and greater emphasis placed on finding ways to attract tourists to this area, the start of the Trent Canal System.

Mr. Kempf told the directors the new building had cost more than $13,000. Ten thousand of this has been arranged through a mortgage, with monthly payments of $118.11. Donations of materials, services and labor amount to almost $1,600; donations came from the town of Trenton, the utility commission, Leo Shetell Plumbing, Permanent Concrete, H. G. Frid and Claire Bros. Heating, Stradwicks Floor Tile, Erie Technological Products Ltd., Carr's Electric, J. D. Coad, the general contractor, H. Long, painter, Fox Cartage and curtains from the Front street merchants.

The general public will be given the opportunity to donate to the project as soon as the building fund committee gets underway.

Evidence Was Not Conclusive Says Magistrate

TRENTON — A Trenton man, Marcus George Henry, was reminded, (smilingly) by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in court yesterday that the court was "not a Perry Mason" proceeding, when he (Henry) indicated he might wish to recall a police officer to the witness stand. The magistrate said that Henry had a right to question the officer while he was on the stand.

A charge of failing to yield the right of way against Henry was dismissed by the magistrate, who said the evidence was not conclusive one way or another.

Henry, and the driver of a second vehicle, Gary Fitzgibbon, contended they arrived simultaneously at an intersection. Henry further contended Fitzgibbon had been unable to see his car approaching as a large tree and hedge obstructed his view. The accident occurred on Jan. 12 at the intersection of Shuter Street and MacLellan Ave.

Edward Glenn Withers, charged with stealing two car wheels owned by Weese Motors on Sept. 16, was found guilty on the evidence, fined $100 and ordered to pay $15 costs. Defence lawyer, Robert Temple of Belleville, moved for dismissal, as he said his client had not been positively identified as "the man" a Crown witness saw putting a wheel in a car. However, the magistrate said the defence had not proven, "beyond a reasonable doubt," that Withers wasn't the man. No defence testimony was offered.

Presbyterians Well Above Allocations

TRENTON — The most successful year in the history of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was reported by the Kirk Session and the Board of Managers at the 112th annual meeting of the congregation held last night.

The minister of the church, Rev. Douglas A. Wilson, in reporting for the Kirk Session, declared that the spiritual life and work of the congregation is moving steadily ahead, indicated by the receiving of twenty-four new members into communion; increased interest in the Sunday services, the Sunday School, and the Bible Study group. Mr. William Templeton, church treasurer, indicated that the church had budgeted for its highest return in 1965, and had received $16,582.29 or 99.7% of its budgeted allocation. In addition, the congregation has contributed $3,053.54 to home and world missions, well above its allocation set by the Presbytery of Kingston.

The members of the congregation and families sat down to a pot-luck supper, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Following the supper, the meeting was opened with worship by the minister, Mr. Wilson, and the congregation joined in singing "The Church's One Foundation." Following the worship service, the Kirk Session report was presented, and the congregation observed a moment of silent prayer in memory of departed members. Mr. Wm. Templeton was then elected as chairman of the meeting, and Miss Linda Meinster as secretary.

Many improvements have been carried out on the church property during the year, the most notable being the addition of three rooms for the use of the Sunday School and other groups, being made possible by the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth J. Couch. Extensive repairs were made to the foundation of the church, and a large retaining wall was built. A new memorial window, presented by the members of the Bleecker family, original members of the community of Trenton, was presented and dedicated in loving memory of Mr. and Mrs. Dougall Bleecker. Mr. Bleecker was for many years an elder of the church in Trenton.

Reports on the activities and financial standings of all organizations of the church were presented, showing an increase in membership as well as finances.

An expression of gratitude was extended to all leaders of groups, to the organist and members of the junior and senior choirs, to the church custodians, and to all members and friends who have contributed so much to the work and worship of St. Andrew's Church.

Book of Poems Now Available At Library

TRENTON — Trenton Memorial Library has lately acquired the 112 page book of poems, "Cariboo Horses," written by a local poet, Alfred Purdy. The collection of 60 poems, written over the past 30 years, was published by McClelland and Stewart of Toronto last spring. The book received excellent reviews by the critics.

A native son of Wooler, Mr. Purdy moved to Trenton at the age of two and attended Trenton schools. Mr. and Mrs. Purdy, and their son, who is now 18, lived at Ameliasburg for several years.

In 1960, the poet received a Canada Council Fellowship and used the grant to study the habits of the Indians in Northern British Columbia. He has six books of poetry published and has written poetry for radio and TV.

30 Stranded By Snowstorm Arrive Home

30 wedding guests from this city and district, stranded in Rochester since Friday, due to a heavy snowstorm, arrived in this city last night. Mrs. J. Kilburn, Wright Avenue, and four sisters, Mrs. A. Gray and family, Mrs. Thomas Hallam and her son, Glen, daughter Barbara and friend, Bill White, Mrs. Donna Mullins and family, the rest from Kingston were in the party.

The Mo[illegible] had 180 guests, all stormbound and the management supplied free breakfasts and lunches for all, but the guests had to serve themselves and do up the rooms as no help was available.

The guests were notified on Tuesday by the State Troopers the road was opened from Rochester to Toronto and were soon on their way. Everyone was glad to get home and voted no more winter weddings.

Air Defences Strengthened With Computers

The new computer system is known as BUIC for back-up interceptor control and it is designed to take over automatically if the present computer network known as SAGE or any part of it is knocked out.

SAGE—the letters stand for semi-automatic ground environment—collects information from radars, calculates interception courses for jet fighters and missiles seeking the attack bombers and even passes orders automatically to fighters and missiles.

The BUIC system will also provide continuous air surveillance and control of air defence weapons.

Authorities said two BUIC computers will be installed at heavy radar stations in the northern NORAD region, which takes in most of Northern, Central and Eastern Canada and has its headquarters at North Bay. Locations of these installations are secret, officials said.

The two BUIC sites in Canada will cost some $1,800,000, with the U.S paying two-thirds and Canada one-third.

Hees, Drury Cross Swords In Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—Former trade minister George Hees and Industry Minister Drury crossed swords in the Commons Tuesday night on the degree of productivity in Canada.

Mr. Hees (PC—Northumberland) quoted statistics in the annual report of the industry department showing that output per man-hour rose by less than two per cent between 1964 and 1965.

This was a sad state of affairs, since productivity had risen an average of 2.9 per cent each year between 1960 and 1964. He said the industry department was set up in 1963 at great expense to the public, but had failed to do its job—increasing productivity.

Mr. Drury replied that Mr. Hees obviously had not studied the entire report he quoted from Other sections of the report explained that productivity had not climbed sharply in 1964-65 because industry was operating close to full capacity and was hindered by a shortage of skilled workers.

He added that the Canada-United States auto agreement signed last year will increase production greatly in that industry.

Estimate Loss In Barrie Fire At $1,000,000

BARRIE (CP)—A fire which Tuesday night destroyed an Eaton's department store and a bowling alley was brought under control early today after threatening nearby apartments and city administration offices for several hours during the night.

One family, who had been living above the bowling alley, lost all their belongings in the blaze, and about 20 other families from adjacent apartments were evacuated when it was feared the fire would spread.

Barrie Fire Chief Dan Keast said damages could be as high as $1,000,000.

Auditor-General's Report Shows Useless Expenditures

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF in 1961 went ahead with purchase of "bomb toss computers" for the CF-104 jet bomber though three months earlier it had discontinued training on the type of weapon the computer was designed to deliver.

In 1963, all these computers were removed from the CF-104s and in 1964 the RCAF disposed of them, together with all tooling, test equipment and spares.

The cost: $7,210,000.

This is one of several cases of defence department spending which Auditor - General Maxwell Henderson questions in his annual report, submitted to Parliament Tuesday.

The report says the reason the RCAF gave for going ahead with the purchase of the obsolete computers was "to give flexibility of weapon employment for the future."

SHOWED WHERE TO DROP

The computer showed the pilot of a CF-104 when and where to drop his bomb—that is, when to begin the "bomb toss."

The report says that as early as August, 1960, it became known that another type of weapon would very likely become available which would not require the bomb toss computer.

Three months later, it was decided to equip the CF-104 with two weapons delivery devices: The "dual timer" as well as the bomb toss computer. The former cost $1,400 an aircraft compared with $21,900 for the latter.

By July, 1962, the report says, it was determined that the dual timer could do the job of the bomb toss computer just as accurately. But it still was January, 1963, before the decision was made to remove the bomb toss computers.

Other defence department cases listed by the auditor-general:

—Six cases were found where servicemen released on pension had been credited with pensionable service dating in one case from the age of nine and in the five others from ages 11 and 12.

—Canada and the U.S. in 1963 cancelled a program for gap-filler" or low-level radars when it was found proper radars couldn't be developed soon enough. Cost to Canada for property rights and construction: $3,500,000.

—Nine naval officers travelled in their own cars from Halifax to Victoria on temporary duty at a cost to the department of $5,282. The cost would have been $682 by RCAF aircraft.

—The department entered a new agreement to buy natural gas at 23 cents a 1,000 cubic feet for Camp Wainwright, Alta., although it held an option under the previous agreement to buy gas for another four years at 21 cents.

—The RCAF bought 3,400 electrical relays from a U.S. firm for $75,000. They were defective but the firm refused to refund the money. The instruments were turned over to Crown Assets Disposal Corp. and sold for $610 to the firm that made them originally.

—During the 1964-65 fiscal year, 391 servicemen age 40 and under were retired with pensions totalling $472,000 annually. One 32 - year - old serviceman was awarded a full pension though discharged because he had been overweight for four years.

—In June, 1963, 514 acres were expropriated at Penhold, Alta., to extend the runways of the RCAF station there for jet training. It was then found civilian airways were too near to permit jet training. Cost: $15,000.

Special Industrial Tax Advocated by NDP Leader

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A special industrial tax to cover cost of manpower training and rebates to industries which show willingness to train workers was urged Tuesday in the Ontario legislature.

Donald C. Macdonald, New Democratic Party leader, said industry has been unwilling to pay the price or take the lead in development of skilled workers, and the time has come for it to accept its responsibility.

Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick legislatures met Tuesday. A committee of the Manitoba legislature also met in preparation for opening of sittings Thursday.

In a speech critical of government education policies, Mr. Macdonald said "industry should be taxed specifically for manpower training."

"Wherever industry accepts its responsibility to train workers, it should be given a rebate of tax. Where it does no training, nothing should be returned."

SEEKS AMENDMENT

In a private bill, James Renwick (NDP—Riverdale) called for an amendment to the Ontario Human Rights Code making it illegal for professional associations and societies to discriminate against persons on grounds of race, color or religion. A private member's bill has not been passed by the house for 10 years.

In Quebec, Premier Jean Lesage announced the creation of a royal commission to investigate circumstances surrounding a purchase of land in the Montreal suburb of LaSalle by the Quebec Liquor Commission.

A report published Jan. 28 by Montreal La Presse said the land in question was involved in a series of transactions in the 10 days before the liquor board bought it, and its price shot up to $2,122,351 from $947,247.

New Brunswick Progressive Conservative opposition members continued a speaking spree in attempts to stall passage of a new Assessment act in the legislature.

The opposition started discussions Saturday on a motion to start section-by-section study of the act in committee-of-the-whole.

In Winnipeg, Liberal Opposition Leader Gildas Molgat was unsuccessful in an attempt to have a committee of the Manitoba legislature recommend, in principle, the appointment of a provincial ombudsman.

An ombudsman acts as a middleman to handle complaints by citizens directed at government departments and officials. Mr. Molgat's motion was defeated five to three.

Judge's Pay Outside Duties Is Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson has again drawn Parliament's attention to payments made to judges for serving on inquiry and labor dispute commissions, which he questions.

The Judges Act prohibits remuneration for judges beyond their normal salaries "for any duty or service, whether judicial or executive, that (they) may be required to perform for or on behalf of the government of Canada or the government of any province."

But the Judges Act does allow judges to be paid for "such moving or transportation expenses and living allowances" as may be set by order-in-council.

When Mr. Henderson first raised the question in his 1962 report he said allowances of $60 a day seemed excessive and appeared to contain an element of remuneration.

The public accounts committee of the Commons said in a report that if remuneration is to be paid to judges, it should be approved by Parliament. Later, the allowance for one judge was set at $100 a day, and the public accounts committee reiterated its recommendation.

Former justice minister Favreau wrote to the committee in 1964 saying the allowances were subject to income tax and that in his view, they did not contain an element of remuneration.

Mr. Henderson cites two new cases in his 1964-65 report, tabled in the Commons Tuesday.

BOTTLED UP THUGS

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Angel Gilberto Rada came back to his music store after a coffee break to find gunmen robbing the employees. He ran to a hardware store, bought a lock, ran back and closed and locked the steel store-front before calling police to arrest the men trapped inside.

Auditor-General Asks For Action by Cabinet On Report by Glassco

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson is digging deeper each year into faulty money - handling techniques of the federal government but he would like more help from the government.

The auditor-general, an officer of the Parliament of Canada rather than the government, said in his annual report tabled in the Commons Tuesday the "top management" — the cabinet—should act on the remaining recommendations of the three - year - old report of the royal commission on government organization.

Only 100 of the 275 main recommendations of the commission headed by J. Grant Glassco, and less than a quarter of its findings have been acted on, Mr. Henderson said in his report for the fiscal year which ended last March 31.

There are still antiquated, wasteful, and uneconomical procedures and operations in the federal government which need to be rooted out or modernized, he said.

The taxpayers had spent $3,000,000 on the Glassco report and there was no way of estimating what the savings might be, but meanwhile the cost of government is continuing to mount because of higher salaries and material costs.

CITES INCIDENTS

Mr. Henderson reported a series of incidents, ranging from the inability of a Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman to account for $470 of public funds, to the defence department's expenditure of over $7,000,000 on an electronic military device no longer useful to the air force.

And there was a report that over $400,000 had been spent by the former Conservative government for a railway siding at the new harbor at Pointe-au-Pere, Que., that carried only four carloads of traffic in 1962, none in 1963, and has mainly been used to park boxcars in winter as a windbreak for a ferry service.

The report probably will be referred to the public accounts committee fo rdetailed study. But the committee, because of parliamentary and political business last year, still has to take up Mr. Henderson's previous report.

His new report suggested more formal regulations with teeth are needed to govern charitable organizations, to which contributions can be made tax-free. He said the revenue department has a list of 1,200 such organizations, but there is no check made from year to year on how they spend their funds, or even whether they are still charitable bodies.

Four Provinces Ready To Join National Medical Care Insurance Program

OTTAWA (CP)—No province rejected a national medical care insurance plan but only four were ready after a federal-provincial conference Tuesday to join a federally-sponsored program to start July 1, 1967.

Health Minister MacEachen maintained at a press conference that he was encouraged that there were no outright refusals from Ontario, British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

Equally encouraging, he said, were definite "yes" replies from Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan. He said he concludes Quebec favors a national plan since it has endorsed the conditions Ottawa attaches to paying half the cost.

Next step will be a report by Mr. MacEachen to the federal cabinet and possibly reference of the whole matter to a conference of premiers and Prime Minister Pearson in June.

The federal government probably will be making a decision whether to proceed now with federal legislation without awaiting further acceptances after Mr. MacEachen reports to the cabinet.

Ontario's Health Minister Matthew Dymond said in a later starting date than July 1, 1967, would be helpful. He cited difficulties in adjusting the federal plan involving medical manpower, provincial priorities for spending on education and labor agreements in force with health care as a big fringe benefit.

The federal-provincial representatives spent most of the final conference session on medical care after reaching agreement on allocation of the proposed $500,000,000 federal fund to expand medical, dental and nursing training and research facilities.

They agreed that a major portion of the fund — about $300,000,000 will be distributed on a per-capita basis. In addition to this allocation, the four Atlantic provinces will get $25,000,000 to meet their greater need for expanding health resources.

The rest of the fund—about $75,000,000—won't be allocated until after an exchange of correspondence had suggested this sum be allocated when the province's needs are more clearly defined by an advisory committee.

A second major point of the conference was Mr. MacEachen's announcement that the federal government will extend for an extra two years to March 31, 1970, current hospital construction grants.

Britain's Flu Epidemic To Get Worse

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's influenza epidemic has laid low about 500,000 persons and the worst still is to come, medical experts said Monday night.

Two more deaths were reported Monday and in the week ending Jan. 22 the latest for which complete figures are available, 58 persons died.

Viet Nam Dilemma

The attitude of the Soviet Union with regard to the Viet Nam war is anything but helpful or positive. A foreign ministry official in Moscow has been quoted as saying the resumption of U.S. bombing raids on North Viet Nam is "a pity."

"We have already said that if the U.S. wants to stop escalation, it must stop bombing and start negotiations."

But it takes at least two parties to negotiate. How can Washington enter into negotiations when communist North Viet Nam refuses to co-operate?

For 37 days, beginning just before Christmas, the United States ceased all air attacks on North Viet Nam. During this period it bent over backwards to try and persuade the Hanoi government to join in an attempt to achieve a settlement of the conflict. American representatives conferred with presidents and prime ministers around the world, seeking support for U.S. peace overtures. But Hanoi was deaf to every plea.

Meanwhile, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong guerillas used the bombing lull to repair the damage caused by the earlier raids and build up their military strength.

President Johnson has said that if the bombing lull were continued it would mean a greatly increased cost in lives to the United States and its allies. Of this there can be no doubt.

However, the president added that U.S. peace overtures were not being abandoned. He announced that UN ambassador Arthur Goldberg will seek an immediate meeting of the Security Council and present a resolution for "new action toward peace."

It is difficult to see how the Americans could have done more to bring about a peaceful settlement than they did — certainly not without a comparable response from the communist side.

Trade Drive

The province of Ontario is the wealthiest and most highly-developed region in Canada. It shelters a higher proportion of people and industries than any other part of the country. It has important natural resources, particularly water for the provision of hydro power.

Industrially it is growing all the time, and much of this industry and resulting prosperity depends on overseas markets. Recently the president of a Canadian toy company, Tom Vernon, became the 500th salesman to be sent abroad under the Ontario government's trade crusade program.

Mr. Vernon was given a big send-off. Standing in front of a big poster marked 500th he was shown with stewardess Beverley Atkinson who was giving him a hand with his sample case — also marked No. 500 in bold type. A selection of the firm's toys was also shown.

The province is obviously doing brisk business overseas, judging by the number of people it is flying to areas like Britain and Europe where Mr. Vernon was bound. Multiply this by markets like Japan and the Orient at large, and South America ,and it can be realized that Canadian businessmen have a lucrative field overseas.

Tale From Brazil

Everyone knows the old saw about there being "an awful lot of coffee in Brazil." But how many are aware that this Portuguese-speaking, multi-racial nation in South America, larger in area than the United States, harbors some of the world's oldest and most primitive civilizations.

In Brazil some 110,000 Indians live in the jungle interior. Their mode of life is virtually the same as that of early man. Some have never seen white men, but others have and white missionaries have returned with tales of murder and violence. Still others, missionaries and explorers alike, have been received in friendly fashion and have gained the respect and friendship of the Indian tribes. By and large the Indians in Brazil, despite their primitive ways, are friendly, peaceful people, and want only to lead their lives without interference.

Now, however, comes word of pillaging and exploitation of the Indians by white rubber tappers. The story from Rio de Janeiro sounds like one of the early encounters between whites and Indians in this country. Rev. Valdemar Weber, a Jesuit priest, says white rubber tappers have wiped out half a tribe of Indians in Amazon territory by putting arsenic in sugar they gave them.

He claims the tappers roam the jungles collecting raw rubber and selling it at outposts. They take the land occupied by the Indians and, in some cases, already have sold it in the coastal cities.

What an extraordinary tale, in this day and age. Such incidents could not happen here, in a country which once knew similar ruthlessness but has since progressed to more civilized ways.

Brazil does not countenance such brutalities either, but its Indian Protection Service does not have sufficient personnel to cover the vast territory. As a result of Father Weber's revelations, however, a commission has been formed to help the Indians further. One measure being considered is denial of bank loans to develop the rubber trade in Mato Grosso where the Indian civilizations survive.

Exposure to Noise Damaging to Hearing

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How much is known abut occupational deafness? My husband has worked in a sawmill for 17 years and has lost a good deal of his hearing.

He will retire in three or four years and feels this hearing will come back after he leaves, so he hesitates about getting a hearing aid. What do you suggest? — Mrs. R. T. J.

A good deal is known about occupational deafness, or continued exposure to high - level noise, but some of it is quite technical. After about seven inches of type, I'll recommend that your husband take time off to go see an ear specialist. You are far enough from the bigger cities and medical centres so it will mean a trip, and it will add up to several days, but it ought to be worthwhile.

Constant, loud noise can damage the delicate structures of the inner ear. Intensity of noise varies; so does the damage. Time also makes a difference.

Onset of this type of hearing damage is gradual. If detected early, it is reversible — can be corrected or corrects itself. After some years, you can't expect hearing to return to normal.

Age of the individual matters, too. Some degree of deafness must be expected with aging, a loss of about 5 percent at age 50, and 10 percent at 60, other things being equal. Working in a violently noisy place will add to the loss, naturally.

Audiograms (tests of hearing) can measure the amount of deafness, and also the amount of hearing loss involving tones — high notes or low notes. Exposure to high, screechy noise will not have the same effect as exposure to dull but loud thumping noise.

Short of getting away from the noise, the best preventive of further hearing loss is the use of ear plugs. The purpose is the same: to protect the ears from the constant assault of noise.

That's why I suggest that your husband consult a specialist. How much hearing has he lost? What kind of ear plugs will help him for the next few years? And should he start using a hearing aid (when off the job, of course) or wait?

My thought is that a hearing aid now would be a good idea, because practice is necessary, to get used to it, knowing how to regulate the volume, and so on. But I'd rather have your husband get the advice of an ear specialist.

Because of his age, and the number of years he has worked in the mill, I wouldn't want your husband to expect that when he retires his hearing is going to change back to its acuteness of two decades ago. It won't. But he should start preparing for the time when he'll no longer be near the saw.

He also will begin hearing better when he's away from the mill, if he gets a hearing aid suited to his needs.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a boy and girl set of twins possibly be called identical? We have had quite a discussion on this. — Mrs. W. S.

When twins are identical, they are of the same sex. Hence if they are of the different sex, they aren't identical.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have read that some individuals cannot absorb Vitamin C because they lack something else. What is this "something else"? — L. M.

You may have reference to some other substance. Vitamin C is absorbed quite readily, except that those lacking acid in the stomach may have this difficulty, or those having too much alkali (such as folks who take too much bicarbonate of soda or other antacids). Persons who have had the stomach, or most of it, removed may also need supplements of Vitamin C because of diminished absorption.

Strictly Personal

The Psychology of Unrest

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One serious mistake that is commonly made is to assume that because people are "better off" than they were, therefore they will be "less discontented" than they used to be. And we are often surprised when the opposite turns out to be the case.

We should not be surprised, however. Psychologists and social historians have long known it to be true that the degree of discontent is in inverse proportion to the distance of the goal desired. The closer to a goal we are, the more frustrated we become at not being able to attain it.

As Dr. J. A. C. Brown, the British industrial psychologist, points out, "the very poor and utterly oppressed are not frustrated — they accept their condition and rationalize it." Tocqueville noted the same thing in his study of France before the revolution of 1789 — that while the condition of the common people had never improved more rapidly than in the 20 years before the revolution, yet "the French found their position the more intolerable the better it became."

Discontent, indeed, is highest when conditions have so improved that poverty and misery no longer seem inevitable "acts of God," but when hitherto dim ideals seem to be nearly within reach.

Unless we understand, and accept, this psychological truism, then the whole thrust and force of the Negro movement in the U.S. will not make any sense to us — for assuredly they are much better off now than ever before, much closer to full citizenship than their grandfathers ever believed possible.

Contrary to popular belief, for instance, there is less crime and antisocial activity during periods of depression than in times of prosperity. In depressions, people want merely to survive; their aims are low and easily satisfied. But in times of prosperity, when affluence is dangling from every branch, the temptation to grasp a fuller share of it brings a considerable increase in illegal activities.

And a thoroughly oppressed people rarely revolt — they have not the energy or the aspiration to do so. It was the American colonies that broke away from Britain, not the poverty-stricken colonies — because America was closer to the goals of freedom and prosperity than the others.

When we have little, and not much hope of getting more, we are content with little. It is when we have a good deal, and the chance of getting more is open to us, that we feel the greatest discontent at the disparity between the two. To fail to comprehend this pervasive human attitude is to miss entirely the explosive drive behind the new Negro movement.

Universities in Competition

Globe And Mail

Universities competing for students? Hustling? Ten years ago the suggestion would have offended every self-respecting university prseident in the province. Yet, there they are — Ontario's universities — locked in a competitive struggle that would test the mettle of a Madison Avenue advertising executive.

Take Grade 13. Last month, Guelph University announced that a limited number of Grade 13 students would be admitted in April (Guelph operates on a year-round trimester system) without writing final examinations. Three weeks later the University of Toronto announced that it too would soon bypass Grade 13 final examinations as a requirement for admission.

Three weeks ago, Lakehead University went Guelph and Toronto one better by announcing that next year it would admit a limited number of Grade 12 students — never mind Grade 13 — on an experimental basis. Now, Waterloo Lutheran University has undertaken a similar program. In each case, of course, only top-flight students are eligible. But they are what the fight is all about.

Each university wants bright students, and to get them it will adjust its admission requirements and, of course, sell, sell, sell. Last month, Toronto Township guidance teachers organized a college night at Lorne Park Secondary School for Grade 12 and Grade 13 students and their parents. Representatives of 14 Ontario universities were on hand to describe entrance requirements, courses, and philosophies of education — rather like turning loose in one showroom the salesman for 14 different automobiles.

The University of Toronto recently hit upon another approach; a slick, 25-minute, color film titled Light for the Mind. It follows the academic careers of students in chemistry, philosophy, engineering and medicine. At one point the narrator says earnestly, "You are more than a student at the University of Toronto. You are caught up in its vitality. You become a part of it, surrounded by the pulsing life of the great city of Toronto". Soft sell.

This competition is wonderful for the high school students of course — scholarships, color films and no more Grade 13 examinations. And where will it all end! Well, there is still advertising . . . "At York University we try harder. We have to. We're only number two".

Ottawa Offbeat

A Delighted Diefenbaker Diplays Thespian Talents

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

Some even do imitations of imitations.

At stay-up-late parties — you know the kind — the guy who "does" Dief has replaced the joker who used to get his laughs by popping the lampshade on his noggin.

But who, except perhaps for Canadian television and night club comedian Rich Little, can do an imitation of Prime Minister Pearson?

Dief, that's who.

It is a pretty good take-off, too, close enough in certain characteristic mannerisms — like the back-toss of the head, just the faintest hint of that "soft s" and the placing of certain words in what best can be described as "verbal quotes" — to the real thing that even the Prime Minister can grin, perhaps just a bit sheepishly, at JGD as LBP.

Plenty of people long have thought what a truly towering figure was lost to the theatre when Dief, some 45 years ago, turned his impressive dramatic talents to the political stage.

NO CHARGE

In one way, maybe it was a good thing, because this way, Dief, — in any of his dramatic roles in the House of Commons or co-starring with Lester Pearson in the "Election Stock Company" which has made three national tours in the last four years — you get for free.

For Dief on Broadway or in Hollywood, you would have had to lay the admission price on the line at the box office.

Dief's latest, and perhaps greatest dramatic performance — although it was sheer caricature — came the other day on the floor of the Commons.

He was "doing" the Prme Minister.

The scene was 24 Sussex Drive, official residence of the Prime Minister, where, on the night of last January 2, went Quebec Premier Jean Lesage on nobody-seems-to-know-what special mission.

"Can't you just see it?" chortled Dief settling with real relish into his new role as Lester Pearson, and mentally writing the dialogue off the top of his imaginatively inventive head.

"There they were," he whispered dramatically, in secret political rendezvous out at the Prime Minister's home, in the dark of night.

As Dief leaned across his desk with accusing finger pointing at the Prime Minister, he made it sound, with his dramatic air of whispered confidentiality, that something truly mysterious and even ominously secretive had been going on out there on Sussex Drive.

GOT EVERYTHING

Then Dief straightened, paused a moment and said, "I can just hear the Prime Minister saying to the Quebec Premier, 'What do you really want?' "

There was the same toss of the head and the putting of "Really" into those odd "verbal quotes" the Prime Minister seems to use for emphasis

The House roared, with even the Liberals laughing and some of the Conservatives just about falling out of their armchairs and rolling in the aisles.

It was as skilful a Mike Pearson as even Rich Little has done.

And Dief was so delighted with the obvious success of the imitation that he went on with the skit to do a take-out of Premier Lesage.

"Prime Minister," he smiled with that worried but satisfied look that Jean Lesage employs, "Prime Minister, but I have nearly everything."

Here Dief paused again, peering up into space as if waiting inspiration, and then closed the Scene with another turn at being Lester Pearson.

"I can see the Prime Minister," he said with a tone of tension in his voice, "confiding to Premier Lesage, 'Now, you are going to have a provincial election this year (so as to make a good show in Quebec) you go out there and get after us here in Ottawa.' "

And again there was that toss of the head, and you could have sworn he made that "us" sound just a little like "usth."

The House howled, and the Prime Minister, enjoying it as much as anyone,beamed.

Secrecy on Allowances

Sudbury Star

Secrecy in the conduct of public business when it involves the spending of public funds is something we ca[illegible] without. Provincial legislation should prohibit it. School trustees in Ottawa met in camera to discuss their travel allowances, according to a news report from Ottawa. What was the outcome? The trustees wouldn't say.

No elected or appointed municipal body should be permitted to meet in secret to discuss either payments to themselves or to anyone else from the public treasury. The public has a right to know how each elected and appointed representative feels about drawing on the public treasury for any payments whatsoever. If an elected or appointed representative feels he is entitled to the price of fares, tips, meals and cocktails at the public expense he should not be afraid to [illegible] so publicly.

Each ratepayer in a municipality is entitled to a full accounting of public expenditures on request. Because it is his money that is involved he has the right to know all about salaries, contracts, and every other item of public expense. It is the duty of the Ontario government and the Ontario Legislature to make sure the piper knows the tune for which he is paying.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials were lower for their fifth consecutive session today in heavy morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Among key issues Chrysler slid 3½ points to 61½, Royal Bank 1 to 76¾, Aluminium ⅝ to 35⅞ and Toronto - Dominion Bank ¼ to 65¾.

Canadian Westinghouse countered the trend with a gain of 4½ points to 98½, and Bank of Montreal ½ to 64.

Base metals were mainly mixed with Hudson Bay and Noranda each up ¼ to 83¼ and 53 while Falconbridge dropped 1 to 106½ and Cominco ¼ to 47¾.

The gold index was up .88 to 175.95 as Cochenour Willans gained 10 cents to 4.85 and Dickenson 5 cents to 5.30. Dome lost ½ to 42½.

On the speculative side D'Eldona and Radiore rose 7 cents each to 1.49 and 1.16, while Coin Lake was off 4 to 47 cents.

Canadian Export Gas led western oils lower as it lost 15 cents to 3.25.

On index, industrials were down .44 to 172.81, western oils .44 to 109.92, and the TSE .⅜— to 163.30. Base metals were up .11 to 89.70. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,356,000 shares compared with 1,304,000 at the same Time Tuesday.

Investors slashed prices of industrial stocks Tuesday in the wake of a heavy selling of shares on the New York market.

Losses in the main list outnumbered gains by 166 to 95 and all 19 indexes calculated by the exchange were lower.

The bank index fell 1.17 to 147.98 with all five listed chartered banks taking losses. Nova Scotia dipped ⅝ to 73¼, Montreal ½ to 63½, Imperial Commerce ¾ to 68½, Royal ½ to 77¾ and Toronto-Dominion ¼ to 66¼.

Among construction stocks, Dominion Bridge dipped 1⅜ to 26⅛ while Algoma led steels downward with a loss of 1 to 68½. CPR fell ⅝ to 63⅜ and Moore Corp. ¾ to 78¾.

The world's No. 1 and No. 2 nickel producers ran into selling with Inco down 1½ to 105 and Falconbridge 1½ to 107½.

On index, golds lost .15 to 175.07, base metals .12 to 89.59, western oils 1.27 to 110.36 and the TSE index 1.36 to 163.68. Volume was 5,202,000 shares compared with 5,574,000 traded Monday.

Orderly Shoved Elderly Man Says Witness

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP)—A judicial inquiry into allegations of brutality at the Victory County Home for the Aged ended Tuesday after 52 witnesses were heard in five days.

County Court Judge H. E. Richardson, who conducted the inquiry at the request of county council, is not expected to make a report for about one month.

In testimony Tuesday, Mrs. William Laidley of Oakwood said she had seen orderly Melvin Morton shove a crippled resident into a chair and snap the patient's suspenders against his chest violently seven or eight times.

She said her husband also saw the act while both were visiting her father, Frederick Growden, 64, last September.

Mrs. Laidley said she was afraid to launch a complaint because she feared reprisals against her father.

Mr. Morton and Robert Park, employed as a cleaner, were suspended with pay Dec. 17 after James Growden, 61, of Lindsay told the home's board of management he saw four incidents of brutal treatment to residents.

Both Mr. Morton and Mr. Park denied the allegations.

Hidden Pressures Changing Our Lives, Kiwanians Told

Kiwanians were told yesterday to be aware of the hidden pressures around them which are changing their lives, so they will be able to retain their abilities to make choices.

Speaking at the regular weekly meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, Bert Messacar, General Secretary, Belleville Y.M.C.A., said, "While watching a beer commercial on television recently, I began to get indignant at what seemed to me to be dishonest inferences. They suggested if a man were a man he would buy that particular slop, whereas if he didn't buy it, he wasn't really a man.

"This made me think about the ways in which we are being molded, manipulated, pressed into conformity.

"We are being changed. Changed in the kind of things we do, changed in how we relate to each other, how we regard others.

"The question I ask, is how much of this change is by our own choice?"

Mr. Messacar said there is a great use of the "yes" response in advertising today. "Advertisers ask plausible questions to which we answer yes We hear them over and over again. We accept them, and before we know it we're saying yes, we want the product.

SELL STATUS

"One of the biggest selling jobs being done today is the selling of status symbols. They say you're not really "it" if you do not have a certain car or belong to a certain club. It becomes the thing to do.

"We have changed our buying habits. Very few people, even if they have the money, pay cash for big appliances today.

"We recognize social planning. We accept it as a part of our way of life.

"To me, there's a feeling of pressure as others plan for us. I am alarmed at the free acceptance of having other people plan our lives for us.

"One of the most insidious factors in this change is the whole matter of boards, and councils. Most of the time we don't elect people to these boards, yet there is little or no appealing of their decisions.

"We need to take a good look at these planning boards and at government by order-in-council and the effect they have upon us.

FEELING OF FEAR

"Science has played a major role in our changing way of life. There's an undercurrent of fear, particularly among young people, about the dangers concerning science and war. They know about the overkill. They know Russia and the U.S. are only 20 minutes apart by missile. Many young people are fatalistic about it. They say, "Why bother, we won't be around long anyway.'

"We talk about Canadian fitness and get upset if our athletes don't do well. But what about ourselves?

"There is less use of muscle these days. In some respects we have better health than before. TB, polio, tooth decay, these things can be overcome today.

"But what about heart disease?

"Heart trouble can be traced to physical inactivity. Most of it is caused by too much food and a lack of exercise.

"You say it can't happen to you, but you don't know. What's you're blood pressure. How many of you know? When's the last time you had a complete medical?

"I suggest that we often treat the machines in our plants better than we do our own bodies.

"Another influence in our society is we often want to 'be like' somebody. Young people, in their rebellion, often do so because of the pressures they feel because they have to be like what they think adults want them to be.

VALUES CHANGE

"There are changes in scales of values. I'm not making a judgment, but there have been changes in values. What about the change in outlook about Sunday movies and liquor outlets?

"In many ways, we give primacy to the material over the spiritual.

"Some of the changes in our society are good. Some are bad. But do we have to keep feeling we are being pushed around?

"I think we need to get a personal perspective of ourselves. We need to say, 'Who am I?' 'Where am I going?' this is basic. It gets into what we really belive, not what we say we believe.

"We've got to search. To find our own answers. And it has to be a continual search. We have to find out if we really are religious. If we really are sincere.

"We must learn to put first things first. To do something for others. After all, service to others is the rent we pay for the space we occupy on earth.

"We must not be afraid to be characters. We need to dare to be a Daniel. A person with no enemies does nothing constructive.

"We need to work for health, to exercise, to have regular checkups And we need to live for the best we know. We still can tell truth from untruth, love from hate, and should act accordingly.

"We must think through the things we do in our daily lives. Look at the things molding us. Then at least we will be able to make a choice."

Boy Suffers Broken Ribs

A nine-year-old Middleton Park boy suffered broken ribs when he was hit by a car near Trenton air base yesterday.

Police said he was struck near a grocery store on the 6RD road by a car driven by Raymond Ross McCoy, 185 Church Street, Belleville.

Y's Activities

Miss Mildred Gray, Program Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. wishes to announce one short-term aquatic course and one long-term aquatic course to start soon in February. The Y.M.C.A. Junior Instructor course and Girls' Water Ballet are the two courses, and they are explained below.

To be eligible to be a Junior "Y" Instructor, one must hold his Speed Swimmer Crest or Diver Crest. These crests must be acquired through a competition with timers, scorers and starters. During the month of February every Friday evening from 6.00 to 7.00 all "Y" members of card 4 and 5 and advanced cards may attend these speed swim competitions. At the same time in March, those boys and girls holding the Speed Swimmer Crest and the 5th Star Card may attend theory and practical classes for the Junior Instructor certificate. These people must be willing to serve the "Y" as an aquatic assistant under the supervision of a registered instructor, for a total of 10 hours and have passed their 13th birthday and be under 17 years of age.

The girl "Y" members only who hold the 5th Star Card, may attend classes in Water Ballet every Saturday afternoon from 5.00 to 6.00 p.m. It begins Saturday, February 12th.

Group Plans 'Fantasy in Fashion' Show

The Women's Auxiliary to the Hastings and Prince Ed. ward Medical Society held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. R. S. Gibson, George Street, with the president, Mrs. J. Empson in the chair.

During the business meeting the annual financial report was read by the treasurer, Mrs. MacLeod and various plans were discussed for the fashion show, "Fantasy in Fashion," which is to be held in March in the auditorium of B.C.I.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

MERMAID BUTTER SCULPTURE

A little blue plate from which I eat my breakfast egg each morning has the design on it of "The Little Mermaid in Wintertime" (Den Lille Havfrue Ved Vintertid) the famous and beloved statue in Copenhagen harbor.

I love this little mermaid. Imagine my enchantment with a butter sculpture of it in K L M catering kitchens at Schipol Airport, near Amsterdam.

I told you I would be touring these famous kitchens where 3½ million meals per year are prepared for their own world-wide flights and other airlines who are their clients.

Mr. Jan de Boer, garde manger, is their head chef and artist and his sculpture of "The Little Mermaid" in butter was his entry at the Caterers' Convention in London at Hotellympiad, in late January.

Nothing but the finest quality food is used in these kitchens. I was an observer at a test of "soft" chocolate ice cream which is more adaptable to serving in short-stemmed glasses for transporting to and on planes, than familiar hard ice cream. Passengers like it better too for it is easier to eat when they are airborne.

The delicious Netherlands butter, which is not as salty as Canadian, made me resolve to make a new and better butter cake and one is just coming out of the oven. I am whipping up a European type Mocha Cream Frosting for it too.

BUTTER CAKE WITH MOCHA CREAM FROSTING:

2/3 cup butter (or 1/3 cup each butter and shortening — room temperature), 1½ cups sugar, 3 large eggs, 2¼ cups sifted all-purpose or cake flour, 2½ teaspoons single-acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1½ teaspoons vanilla.

Cream together the butter and sugar until very light. Beat in the eggs, one at a time, until airy. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt and fold in alternately, 1/3 of each at a time, with the milk and vanilla. Turn into 8½ x 8½ x 2" pan lined on bottom with wax paper and buttered. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 50 to 55 min. Let stand 5 min. then turn out on cake rack, peel off paper and cool. Frost with Mocha Cream Frosting: Beat ¼ pint 32% cream until stiff. In another bowl beat together (with the unwashed beaters) 1 envelope choco-bake (or 1 square melted and cooked baking chocolate), 3 tablespoons butter (room temperature), 1 cup icing sugar, 1½ teaspoons instant coffee (powder) and 1 tablespoon boiling water until smooth. Fold in whipped cream until blended. Use all of this to cover top and sides of cake.

This cake is at its best when fresh. The skinny ones in your family can have big pieces. If you have gained 5 pounds over the holiday season (like me) you can have a narrow slice.

Ann Landers

Unwilling Papa May Have Change of Heart

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I don't know if I should get an abortion, a divorce or just ask my husband to leave and send the support cheques in the mail.

We've been married eight years. This is my second marriage, Jack's first. My first husband and I wanted children but we never had any. He was killed in an accident a few weeks before our fifth anniversary. When I married Jack, two years later I told him we would probably not have a family and he said it was all right with him because "children only louse up a nice, peaceful life."

Yesterday the doctor told me I am pregnant. I was thrilled. Jack is furious. He said I had misrepresented myself — that I had lied and told him I couldn't have children.

Jack has two cousins who are doctors. They specialize in abortions. He has suggested that I go to them. I want to have this baby and I'm sick at heart that Jack is so against it. I love him in spite of his abnormal feelings about children and I don't want to lose him. What should I do? — CRISIS AT 33.

DEAR CRISIS: Forget about all three alternatives expressed in your opening sentence. The first is illegal and the other two would only hatch more problems.

Have the baby and write to me a year from today. I'll bet your husband will be the proudest papa on the block. (P.S.: It sounds like you married into a great little group.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since you know a lot about teenagers I'm sure you are aware that kids talk about sex. Most of the talking is done in all-girl or all-boy groups. But sometimes when a girl and a boy are alone the conversations turns to sex.

I am almost 16 and I would like to know how to answer some questions. If a boy asks me if I am for sex or against it what should I say? I'm afraid if I say I'm against sex he might think I'm rude or something. On the other hand if I say I'm for sex he could get the idea that I'm giving him the come-on.

So, Ann Landers, what is a girl supposed to say anyway? I need your advice and fast. I think the question will be coming up soon. — WITHOUT ANSWERS.

DEAR WITHOUT: If a boy asks you if you are for sex or against it sex tell him you are 100% for sex — that no marriage should be without it. That should settle his milk shake.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A girl who works in this office wears false eyelashes, a wig, several layers of make-up, contact lenses and her teeth are capped. I can't prove it, but I'll bet her fantastic measurements are phony too — just like the rest of her.

I am no beauty but at least I never have to worry about anything falling off. Furthermore I'm very neat about my person while the patched up job is downright sloppy. So how come she gets asked out five or six nights out seven and I'm lucky to have a date on Saturday night? Does this make sense to you? I am not envious. I am — BAFFLED.

DEAR BAFF: Apparently Miss Loose Parts keeps glued together long enough to make a good impression, and the men must enjoy her company if they continue to take her out. I'll bet the most important thing going for her is the ability to communicate. This quality nobody can fake.

Language No Barrier In Toronto Hospital

The staff of the 73-bed institution can cope with illness in 25 languages.

"We might have trouble with a Danish patient," says the hospital's woman assistant administrator, Dalma Zdrahl. "That's one language no one here understands. But we have a doctor on staff who speaks Arabic who can cope with most patients from the Middle East."

Miss Dalma, as she is known to both patients and staff, speaks three languages herself and can get by in two more. She was born in Hungary.

Central Hospital was founded as a private hospital in 1957 by two doctor-brothers from Hungary, Dr. Paul Rekai, former chief of medicine at the Budapest General Hospital, and Dr. John Rekai, former teacher in surgery at Pazmany University.

Now it is a fully accredited hospital and a member of the Ontario, Canadian and American hospital associations. It became a public hospital Jan. 1, and is eligible for grants from federal, provincial and municipal governments.

ATMOSPHERE IS FOREIGN

Miss Dalma says that 60 per cent of the 103 doctors and 65 nurses on staff took their professional training in foreign countries. Between 60 and 70 per cent of the patients are foreign-born.

The staff calls it the "New Canadian Hospital."

"I think it is particularly important to women to be able to discuss hospital treatment in their own language," says Dr. Paul Rekai. "So many wives and mothers, who don't go out to work, just haven't the opportunity to learn English."

No. 331 Sherbourne street is a huge old house that knew elegant days as the residence of the Gooderham family. Corridors that once echoed to the Anglo-Saxon language of nannies and maids now carry the mingled voices of a new breed of Canadians of international backgrounds.

In the basement kitchens, the beaming head cook, Mrs. Hilkka Karjula, was born in Finland. The assistant cook is from Yugoslavia and pleases the palates of patients of southern European background with her pasta dishes. The head dietitian, Lillian Howden, comes from Jamaica.

Central hospital schedules 18 to 22 operations a day, as many as some of the larger general hospitals. Nearly 500 babies are born in its maternity ward every year. So space is a problem, but won't be if an expansion program now planned is completed. The plans call for a new six-storey building beside the present location.

A CAREER OF CARING — Mrs. George Dolby of Waterloo, Ont., has no children of her own but has mothered 161 during her 50 years of marriage. Mrs. Dolby's first child came from a desperate mother who needed a temporary home for her baby. Others have been placed with her by the Children's Aid Society. Now, (above) she continues her career of caring at a children's home in Waterloo. (CP Photo)

Mothered 161 Children In 50 Years of Marriage

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. George Dolby had 161 children during their 50 years of marriage.

Mrs. Dolby married a family when she was 21. Her husband was a widower, 20 years older, with a son and a daughter who were being raised by an aunt. The Dolbys lived in Guelph until recently.

"I always loved children and looked forward to having a family of my own," Mrs. Dolby said, "but I didn't think I'd mother 161 in 35 years.

"We were married 15 years before we had the first addition to our family. He was a cuddly year-old boy brought to us by a desperate young woman. She was recently divorced and had no one to care for the baby. For a year and a half he filled our home with sunshine until his mother remarried. My heart was broken. It has been broken many times since. Parting with each child, you part with a little bit of yourself.

"Shortly after, the late Amos Tovell, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society in Guelph, called me one day and asked if I would like to do a good deed.

"The good deed was to care for a 20-month-old girl whose mother was ill with tuberculosis. Her five-week-old sister was a patient at Toronto Sick Children's Hospital."

The Dolbys took care of the girl and of her sister, eventually, for four years. Their mother died and their father remarried and took the girls. Now the girls are married and bring their children to visit "grandma."

ABANDONED BY PARENTS

The Dolbys adopted a son and raised another from the time he was five months old.

"Our fourth and fifth sons arrived unexpectedly. An 11-day-old boy was brought to us one night by his parents, asking us to keep him for a few days. Two weeks later his year-old brother arrived, supposedly for the weekend.

"We didn't know it then, but they had been abandoned."

The Dolbys couldn't officially adopt them because Mr. Dolby's health had begun to fail. A few years ago, first one of the boys and then the other applied for adoption themselves and are now formally the sons of the parents who raised them.

Mr. Dolby's health has continued to be uncertain and he is now a patient at Cambridge Nursing Home in Guelph. Mrs. Dolby has found a new set of children to care for.

She worked at a nursing home for the retarded in Fergus near Guelph, until it was closed about seven years ago.

Now she works for the Sunbeam Home in Waterloo.

"It's heaven to be working with children and I have ample time off to visit my husband.

"Our marriage has been a busy, happy one and we are looking forward to our golden anniversary on April 20, a family reunion with many of our 161 children, 24 grandchildren and six greatgrandchildren."

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with the wedding write-up, but should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

Birth Control Program Being Set Up in Chile

SANTIAGO (Reuters) — Chile is preparing a national birth control program aimed at ending illegal abortion and reducing the large number of illegitimate births.

The program, which will be put into effect with the permission of President Eduardo Frei's Christian Democrat government, follows a successful pilot experiment in one of the poor districts of Santiago.

The aim of the public health authorities is to reduce the size of families in the poorest sections of the community and prevent women turning to illegal abortion as a means of solving the family's financial problems.

Statistics issued by the public health services show that in 1964, 290,000 children were born in Chile, and 50,000 abortions became known to the medical authorities.

It is estimated that in 1965, some 140,000 abortions were registered. At least 96,000 of them were criminally provoked.

MORTALITY HIGH

The infant mortality rate of the whole population is put at 111.8 for every 1,000 births. Among the poorer classes, it is still higher.

Faced with these figures, the authorities are determined to eliminate the excessive birth rate rather than see so many doomed to underdevelopment and premature death.

But Dr. Francisco Mardonez, head of national health services, stressed family limitation will be on a voluntary basis and that "the elimination of children already conceived" will be neither recommended nor condoned by the health authorities.

The aim will be to encourage abstinence in the interests of the mother's health and to reduce the death rate due to excessive child-bearing.

Thus, Roman Catholics who form the majority of the population and are not permitted mechanical methods of birth control, will be taught to make use of the infertile period in accordance with the teachings of the church.

LEARN ABOUT PILL

In hospitals, women of the poorer classes may be taught also about the use of the anti-birth pill and mechanical contraceptive devices.

In no case will the public medical services carry out sterilization, except when pathologically and clinically essential.

The pilot experiment in family planning was carried out in the working class district of San Gregorio, where 5,000 people live in about half a square mile and the population has almost tripled during the last 13 years.

According to the health services, 12 per cent of the women in this district were protected by the use of contraceptives. Nine per cent of those treated had their first pregnancy before they were 15 and 50 per cent of them had an abortion, or suffered miscarriages due to their poor physical condition.

A wider family planning campaign now is being launched to cover four more working class districts of Santiago with a population of 362,564 including 77,026 women between 14 and 44.

Martin

as a condition for a UN effort to bring about a peaceful settlement, he added.

IT'S DUTY

"It is our duty to speak out against the reckless military adventure in South Viet Nam."

Mr. Martin said he could not let Mr. Lewis' allegations go unchallenged. He praised the U.S. for resisting Communist aggressiveness in Southeast Asia and for making intensive efforts to open unconditional negotiations.

He noted with approval that the U.S. is ready to accept mediation of the conflict by neutral countries and expressed the hope that the UN will have a role in the peace efforts.

"The honorable gentleman does his country an unintentional injustice when he says we are parroting the propaganda line of the United States," the minister said.

Canada, as a member of the International Control Commission in Viet Nam, formulated its own policy, independently of the U.S. He noted that the socialist government in Britain has strongly supported U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Canada would perform a disservice to the Western Alliance if it attacked U.S. policy in irresponsible public statements. More could be achieved by consultations through diplomatic channels.

After the exchange on Viet Nam, back-benchers took over the debate and ranged over a wide variety of local issues.

The supply debate ends at 6 p.m. EST today and Thursday the House begins a detailed study of the entire government spending program for the fiscal year ending March 31. These spending estimates were not approved last year because of the summer recess and the dissolution of Parliament for the Nov. 8 election.

Government House Leader McIlraith announced just before Tuesday's adjournment the first departments to come under scrutiny starting Thursday will be external affairs, trade and transport.

At some point in the next two weeks, the discussion on estimates would have to be interrupted for debate on an interim supply bill. This will enable the government to meet day-to-day obligations in February pending approval of the estimates.

University

Reporter Michael Valpy of The Globe and Mail says he spent nine hours with MacDonald at the Lakehead Monday.

Mr. Valpy says Macdonald denied that he was actually Ferdinand Waldo Demara, the man who posed as a surgeon-lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Navy and was credited with brilliant surgical operations during the Korean War.

HAS MANY FACES

Demara has also been known to pose as a university professor, zoologist, penologist, monk and several times as a teacher. A book and a movie were based on his exploits. He has since dropped out of sight.

Mr. Valpy says Macdonald claimed to have been born in Nipigon, Ont., but a check with authorities there showed no family records although Macdonald said he had younger brothers and sisters.

Macdonald also gave him a list of his degrees with the years in which he received them, but checks with the various universities showed no record of Macdonald graduating in those years.

No years were given for the degrees listed in the calendar. Macdonald told Mr. Valpy the calendar was in error in listing two degrees from Washington University; it should have been University of Washington, Seattle, Wash.

GIVES YEARS

He also gave his graduating years as 1957, 1959 and 1961—a two-year difference from the dates given by the Missouri professor.

The newspaper says that Macdonald's friends at the Lakehead spoke well of him.

It quotes Mr. Tamblyn as saying: "He did a lot of work in the community. I liked him."

The newspaper also says that a Toronto police identification specialist doubts Macdonald and Demara are the same person. Pictures of the two are of different persons, the specialist said.

Cobalt Case Adjourned Until March 21

to testify on trips to Baltimore with scrap from the Markel yards.

Several times in the latter half of 1964 he drove scrap in barrels to the yards of a Baltimore dealer, Klaff and Sons.

Boulter said he saw metal slugs being removed for testing at the Baltimore yards.

"Had you seen those slugs before any other place than in Baltimore?" asked Mr. Pringle.

"Yes."

"Where had you seen them before?"

"At Deloro and in Markel's yard in Belleville," claimed the witness.

Mr. Sedgwick expressed curiosity over the dropping of police charges against Boulter.

"When did you first become aware that the Crown was not going to proceed against you?" he queried.

"Over the radio yesterday morning," said Boulter.

(Boulter did not turn up in court to answer the charge and was not present when the prosecution sought its withdrawal.)

He said after his arrest in August he made "a very small statement" to Inspector J. A. Duguid of the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch.

"I didn't feel as though I was doing wrong. I gave the statement to clear myself and tell the truth," he told the defence lawyer.

GAVE STATEMENT

He revealed he also gave a statement of "questions and answers" to OPP Detective Sergeant Lloyd Lyle Monday morning.

Vernon Brant said he had been hired in August 1964 by Leonard Vigodda but fired the following January by the elder Vigodda.

He testified he made about four trips with scrap to Klaff's at Baltimore. He described metal he had seen in drums unloaded in Baltimore as stainless steel pellets.

Both men said they had received customs clearance documents from Leonard Vigodda before the trips.

Two laboratory experts from the Attorney General's department also told of running tests on cobalt residues from Deloro, Baltimore, and Houston, Texas. The samples were compared with cobalt from Katanga, a main world source of the metal.

Geologist Oded Frenkel said cobalt debris found at a Houston foundry was similar "in all respects" to that at Deloro.

"The Katanga debris . . . is different. It contains different particles and it doesn't have some of the particles found in the allegedly Canadian cobalt powders.

Chemist E. G. Clair also compared samples obtained in Baltimore with that from Houston and the Deloro stockpile.

All samples were quite close in composition and had a similarity common to all of them "like a fingerprint."

TOLD OF CONTRACT

J. C. (Pat) Houston, general manager of Deloro Stellite, Belleville, now administering affairs of the defunct Deloro Smelting and Refining Company said the company contracted with Markel Metals for demolition of a primary treatment plant at the Deloro site in May 1964.

The deal, transacted by Leonard Vigodda, called for $20,000 payment to Deloro Stellite. Some $5,000 was initially paid by Vigodda and the balance was to be met later.

However, in October that year Leonard Vigodda proposed the contract be met by payment for each load of scrap taken out of the plant on a "cash-and-carry" basis.

Subsequent procedures called for Vigodda to pay in Belleville when a load was ready. Permission was then telephoned to demolition superintendent William Regan at Deloro — since freed of two conspiracy charges in the probe – to release the truck.

Mr. Houston also recalled how he triggered the continent-wide hunt for the missing cobalt when he found an empty drum in the warehouse stockpile last May.

"Were there any signs of forcible entry at the old warehouse?" queried Mr. Pringle.

"No, I didn't see any," replied the witness.

Mother's Helper

IF your little one is a cover-tosser, you can improvise an effective anchor with a plastic clip-type clothes pin fastened to a strip of elastic tape. Sew a loop of elastic loosely around an upright crib bar at the proper spot. Then, when baby is tucked in, clip the sides of his blanket with the clothes pin. He's snug, but safe. Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

It's a great day in the life of your lively one when he tries to feed himself. Of course, the operation's a bit messy but think of the big strides he'll make in manual dexterity and hand-to-mouth co-ordination. A plastic bib will protect clothes from dribbles and stains. Newspaper under his high chair will spare the floor from spills. A bit of paper toweling under the feeding dish will keep the tray relatively tidy.

Happy menu choices for the high-chair crowd . . . each and every Gerber Junior Food. Know why? Because they are prepared by specialists who are wise in the ways of what toddlers will like (and what they need nutritionally). Over 40 choices to banish mealtime monotony. PS. Junior Fruits, Vegetables, Dinners and Desserts, now in large-size glass jars for growing appetites.

Another achievement report. When self-feeding starts, your baby may also start to form real words. And because those first talking-tries are so enchanting it's a temptation to baby-talk back to your cherub. But this won't help baby better his speech. He learns by imitation and will learn more quickly if you speak normally, clearly and slowly.

Time out. If baby walks soon after he talks, he may slow down in his speech attempts temporarily. There is so much concentration required in learning to walk, so many things to discover . . . he doesn't have too much time for talk.

Appetite brighteners. Easiest way in the world to invite an appetite: treat your toddler to Gerber Junior Meat Dinners often. These delicious, "main" dishes have 3 times as much meat as our regular vegetable and meat combination. (That means more protein, too). And all this extra meat is delightfully blended with garden-fresh vegetables for flavour goodness to spare. In jars with re-closable Twist-Pop caps for safe refrigeration of unused portions. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Conventional People Marry Quicker Than Nonconformists

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Secretaries apparently marry more quickly than teachers and conventional people more readily than nonconformists.

Toronto's Scientific Introduction Centre which matches clients on an IBM machine on the basis of age, size, interest and personality preferences, has studied the traits of clients involved in its first 25 to 33 marriages.

Dr. Stephen Neiger, scientific director in the centre officially operated by his wife, Gertrude, says he considers this first sample too small to indicate anything definite but similarities among the people willing to accept a mate and marry quickly.

Prospective clients of the centre fill out forms indicating their preferences in a mate, their own general tastes and backgrounds, their attitudes toward sex and marriage. These are combined with observations made in interviews and the results punched on cards which are processed to sort matching possibilities.

Dr. Neiger says the centre made its first introduction in April, 1964. By October, eight couples had married. By July, 1965, there were 29 marriages, by November, 45.

He says it now has about 500 clients.

MOST ARE SECRETARIES

He says 33 per cent of the centre's female clients are secretaries, and 56 per cent of the women who have married men they met through the centre also are secretaries. In contrast, 17 per cent of all women clients are teachers and only four per cent of the number who have married.

Dr. Neiger speculates that teachers' relatively high salaries partly account for this. He says $5,500 is the average salary for clients.

"Many teachers make up to $7,000 and even $8,000 a year as single women. This scares the men and spoils the women. The girls must choose between their standard of living and perhaps marrying someone who earns less."

He says it also is part of a general indication that the less sophisticated someone is, the more likely he is to marry quickly. Dr. Neiger says the average level of education among the centre's women clients is Grade 13, among the men 13 plus—anything from a technical course to a doctorate. Among the early marriages the average level drops to Grade 12 for the women, Grade 13 for the men.

JOBS ARE FACTOR

He says 52 per cent of the total female clientele are in professions such as teaching, social work or nursing. Only one-third of those who marry early are from this group.

Dr. Neiger says this appears to contradict the indication that conventional people seem to be quicker to marry than nonconformists. The centre uses as its gauges of conventionality the regularity of attendance at school, church, office, the number of friendships with people of the same sex, attitudes toward sex.

He suggests as some explanation, "Conformists with similar backgrounds can communicate quickly with one another. A nonconformist must look for another nonconformist of exactly his own kind."

The centre hopes to do more studies as there are more marriages to work with and to follow them up after three and five years to see how well they are working. Clients sign an agreement to allow occasional queries, although Dr. Neiger admits a few people have already refused to co-operate.

EARL PRENTICE SCHOOL

MARMORA — The January meeting of Marmora Home and School Association was held in the Earl Prentice School last Wednesday with Mrs. Borden Bell presiding.

Membership convener, Mrs. Clinton Nickle, anounced that there were 60 paid up members to date. A floral tribute will be purchased for the late Mrs. Earl Wannamaker.

The president reported that a workshop on Audio Visual Aids was to be held. This event was January 25th at the Harry Clarke School in Belleville. She also announced that the Founders' Day Dinner would be held at 6.30, March 1st at Tabernacle United Church in Belleville.

Mrs. James Cooke took the attendance and banners went to Mr. Barry Turpin and Mrs. Douglas Pack.

Mr. Turpin showed a film entitled "Appointment with Youth", and lunch was served by Grade 4 mothers.

Phone Checks Among Senior Citizens Good

DEAR DORIS: Your message about the senior citizens keeping tab on each other reminded me that my own mother was once party to such an arrangement.

DORIS CLARK

It was in the old home town where there were five of her friends all around their 80's, and there was a twice-a-day informal check on each one of the five by telephone, and often, until a year ago, assisted by a very knowledgeable telephone operator.

I think this arrangement goes on in an informalized way in many areas. They are, as far as I am concerned, commendable and good. —SPECIALIST IN GERIATRICS.

DEAR GERRY: Thank you. Let's hope the senior live-alones who read this will like the idea well enough to get something of this kind going where they are.

DEAR DORIS: We have been asked to give a class discussion on "Common sources of conflicts between teen-agers and parents, and ways of handling these conflicts." We would appreciate any ideas you could give us. — THREE STUDENTS.

DEAR THREE: Their number is legion. Sources of conflict range all the way from dishwashing to choosing a mate. In between we have curfew-time, necking, homework, skirt length, make-up, politics, table manners. Anything on which the generations tend to differ. Which is everything.

As for ways of handling, my constant plea is to talk it over; and, to parents, to have the patience to listen first, resisting the impulse to lay down dogma. To young people I urge the courage to break through the lack-of-sound barrier.

But you wouldn't want me to write your speech for you, would you?

Nerves Can Cause Unhealthy Hair Maintains Montreal Technician

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (P) — Nerves have a lot to do with the condition of the hair and the stepped-up pace of modern living is resulting in an increasing number of cases of unhealthy hair, says a Montreal hair technician.

"I don't think our ancestors lost their hair, for instance, the way we do today," says Helene Robert, a specialist in hair health, scalp treatment and dyeing.

Miss Robert, a former model who became interested in hair while demonstrating cosmetics in beauty parlors, says the problem has grown during her nine years in the field and that oily hair is responsible for 90 per cent of the trouble.

"And these cases take the longest time to cure because oily hair falls quickly and creates dandruff."

Besides treating hair problems herself, Miss Robert teaches hairdressers how to recognize and treat scalp diseases. She says many people have unhealthy hair or a scalp condition without realizing it.

If the case is not too serious, it can be corrected at a clinic similar to the one run by her company (Capilo de Paris). Otherwise the person is referred to a dermatologist.

SHAMPOO PROPERLY

Miss Robert says the first step toward healthy hair is learning to shampoo properly.

"Shampoo should never be applied to dry hair, especially if the hair tends to be oily.

"Hair should first be rinsed with hot water—as hot as you can stand—to get rid of oil and chemicals from such aids as spray net. And massaging the hair is very important."

Miss Robert does professional massaging, using five different brushes for the various parts of the scalp, but she says women can learn to massage their hair properly at home. But if the case is serious, it is best to have this done at a beauty parlor at first.

"It is especially important for people with dandruff to brush their hair frequently. And those who are losing their hair should do the same. They are often afraid to brush, but the dead hair must be removed before new hair can grow."

Miss Robert says the same shampoo must not be used time and again, because the hair gets used to it.

"We use six different types of shampoo for oily hair alone."

Bristle brushes are recommended especially for those with dry hair.

"Dry hair has a lot of electricity and nylon brushes aggravate this condition because they produce more electricity. Generally dry hair can be returned to normal fairly quickly because it does not fall out as quickly."

Split ends—another common hair problem — result from a sickness that shows up under a microscope in a beaded pattern, she said.

"People with this problem often say 'my hair never grows,' but actually it grows from the top and breaks off every quarter inch. Split ends can be caused by too much dye, bleach or spray net.

Miss Robert says spray net with a small amount of lacquer is not damaging to the hair and can be removed by brushing. "But if spray net has a lot of lacquer in it, it is like glue and cannot be removed even by shampooing."

She said teasing the hair is also bad, but that a good hairdresser can do it in a way that allows you to brush it afterwards without breaking the hair.

Dyeing will not damage the hair if it is done properly, but continual bleaching might straighten it.

But those with fragile hair should not use brush rollers. Soft foam rollers are recommended. And sleeping in tight rollers of any kind can be harmful.

A LONG WAIT FOR MOST RUSSIANS — Although the Russian government has indicated that it wants to increase automobile production it will be a long wait for most potential buyers. One of the most common cars seen at present in Russia is this Moskvitch, a small four-cylinder car that sells for about $5,100. Privately-owned cars are rarely seen except in the largest cities. (CP Photo)

Soviet Govt. Wants More Private Cars But No Boost in Production Planned

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — Russians who have been waiting patiently for an opportunity to buy a new car may just have to go on waiting.

Indications are that there is to be no great expansion of passenger car production this year, though the expectation is that such an increase will come eventually.

The government has given several hints that it wants to put more cars at the disposal of Russians. Tangible evidence of its concern came with a widely-publicized visit by the bulk of the Soviet leadership, headed by Premier Kosygin and Communist party First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev, to an exhibition of Soviet-made automobiles here in late November.

They discussed with Alexander Tarasov, automobile industry minister, the models needed to satisfy most fully the "many-sided needs of the country in car transport," said an official announcement.

There have also been reports that along with increased production, the present forbiddingly high prices on cars would be lowered.

The two most common cars seen here are the Volga and the Moskvich. The Volga, about the size of a North American compact, costs the equivalent of about $6,500 while the smaller Moskvich costs about $5,100. Even the tiny Zaporozhets costs about $2,400.

SCAN REPORT

Observers read closely the report of state planning committee chairman N. K. Baibakov to December's meeting of the Supreme Soviet for concrete information on the government's intentions regarding auto production.

But though Baibakov talked about other durable goods—TV sets for instance, output of which is to increase by 17 per cent in the coming year, and refrigerators, output of which is to increase by 32 per cent—he conspicuously neglected to mention cars.

This was taken to mean that auto production will rise only marginally if at all.

Further evidence came a week later with the report of K. M. Gerasimov, chairman of the planning committee of the Russian Federation, to the federation's Supreme Soviet.

It stated that production of cars and trucks together will go up seven per cent, but it didn't give the percentage for each group individually. Attempts to get a breakdown from planning committee headquarters failed.

The supposition was that most of the increase will be in trucks, which have always had far greater priority here than cars.

PLANTS CONCENTRATED

The Russian Federation, largest and most populous of the 15 republics making up the Soviet Union, also has nearly all its automobile manufacturing plant.

Private ownership of a car in the Soviet Union is a rare phenomenon except in the largest cities. Even in Moscow, there is no better than about one car per 70 head of population.

Output of cars last year amounted to about 185,000. By contrast, in 1962 just over 500,000 new cars were sold in Canada, which has less than one-tenth of Russia's population.

Under Premier Nikita Khrushchev car production in the Soviet Union was deliberately held down. Khrushchev's famous dictum was: "Let the people ride buses."

The present leadership has appeared to be taking the opposite approach. Premier Kosygin denounced the Khrushchev policy as "subjective" and economically unfounded.

Recently, Kosygin elaborated on this theme by stating that "the production of [illegible] cars must develop under [illegible] ism just as other sectors of the economy." It would not be easy to bridge the existing gap, "but we will do it."

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

OVER 65 — ADDED EXEMPTION

This section of the Income Tax Act has been in effect for a number of years, but there are still taxpayers who are confused as to its application. It applies only to the person filing the return and not to any dependant he may claim on his return.

A husband and wife, who are both over 65, and the husband has a taxable income with his wife having no income, the husband's exemption is $2500; that is $1500 for himself and $1000 for his wife. This additional exemption may be claimed for the year in which the taxpayer attains that age. If he reached that age on December 31, [illegible] allowed the increased exemption for that year, as the Income Tax Act reads "Anytime" in the year.

Many taxpayers who have attained 65 years forget to claim the extra exemption, then when they discover their omission are perplexed as to what procedure to take to have the claim allowed. In such cases they should wait until they receive their assessment notice, then write to their local district income tax office and request that their return be adjusted, as well as any prior years' returns if the omission was on more than the current year. A birth certificate is not necessary, but one would expedite the adjustment. If a birth certificate is sent with the latter, be sure to request it be returned to you. The space on the return for "Year of Birth" should always be filled in as this is checked by [illegible] sessor to see if the $500 [illegible] exemption applies.

Never write requesting an adjustment for the omission of this extra exemption, until the assessment notice has been received, as the assessor may have included it when processing your return.

For a personal reply, enclose a self addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: My wife reached the age of 65 this year. Do I now claim $1500 for her?

Answer: No. Just $100 as the additional $500 applies only to the taxpayer.

Question 2: I reached 65 years in October. Do I get the full $500 additional exemption or just the part of it for the time I was 65.

Answer: Claim the full [illegible].

Here Is Concise Guide To Signs of Middle Age

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Are you middle-aged?

If you are and don't know it, some of your best friends won't tell you. They think it more kindly to let you go on kidding yourself.

But here's a handy guide to whether you have left the pastures of youth behind. You probably are middle-aged if:

It seems like only yesterday that you used to get your balky car engine started on a wintry morning by hand-cranking it.

You are so used to hearing the children call your wife "mother" that you start doing it, too

You no longer can read the fine print in the telephone directory with the aid of a single lighted match. It takes you two matches to look up a number.

Amid the growing number of credit cards in your wallet is another card that lists your blood type, the miracle drugs you are allergic to, and what person to call in case of an emergency.

WARY OF DOGS

You are slower to pat strange dogs on the head or to try to make new friends.

You think modern literature died with Ernest Hemingway. The only books you read are your bank book and suspense novels about international intrigue.

If one of the girls in the office pins a flower in your lapel on your birthday you brag about it to your wife all week. (You also start a campaign to get the girl a merit raise from the boss.)

If when you overhear a group of high school kids chattering on the bus, you can travel a mile and a half without even understanding the subject of their conversation.

The only time you really enjoy visiting a sick friend in the hospital is when he is suffering from an ailment the symptoms of which you can recognize in yourself.

There are only two kinds of food on any menu—those you like but shouldn't eat, and those you should eat but can't stand.

By such signs cometh middle age. But weep no more, my laddie. All you can do is buck up and face it.

OPPOSES DEATH PENALTY

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church of Canada Tuesday reiterated its stand that the death penalty "is contrary to the spirit of christ." In a meeting of he executive of general council here, a resolution presented by Rev. W. larke MacDonald, chairman of the board of evangelism and social service, was adopted without a dissenting vote.

Possibility Quinte Skyway May Be Opened in June

PICTON (Staff) — The Quinte Skyway which is to link Prince Edward County and the County of Hastings, near Deseronto, could possibly be opened in June. Erection workers are expected to complete the structural steel work by the end of February, according to an announcement by Dominion Bridge Co. of Montreal.

A company spokesman said that a bridge is usually ready for opening about three months after structual steel work has been completed.

The bridge will span an arm of the Bay of Quinte a few miles from Picton, 110 miles east of Toronto. The bridge will be 2,780 feet long and 30 feet wide.

The Rural Scene

PICTON — Through the cooperation of Ontario Department of Health and Ontario Department of Agriculture a course on Concentrated Air Blast Machines is being offered. This course will be held at the Agricultural Service Building in Brighton on Thursday, February 10th. This course is being held in Brighton because of its central location in the Quinte area and its fine facilities. It takes a well informed operator to make the most effective use of this equipment. So here is your chance to learn more and refresh your memory on this subject. Topics to be covered at the meeting will include: Operation of CAB Machines, Calibration of CAB Machines, Factors Involved in the Application of Pesticides, Use of CAB Machines in Apple Orchards and others. Reserve this date now and plan to attend.

SERIES OF MEETINGS

Beginning on Thursday, February 3rd, the first in a series of six weekly meetings will be held in the Bloomfield Town Hall from 1:15 to 3:45 p.m. each Thursday afternoon with the exception of February 24th, when the program will begin at 10 in the morning and conclude at 4 in the afternoon. The speaker on February 3rd will be John Dalrymple, Chief Instructor, Animal Husbandry Division, Kemptville Agricultural School. His topic will be "Care of the Dairy Cow at Calving Time and Raising the Dairy Heifer. On Thursday, February 10th, Mr. Dalrymple will continue the discussion on dairy husbandry when he will speak on "Feeding and Management of the Dairy Cow Throughout the Lactation Period." New developments in feeding, management and general dairy husbandry will be dealt with on both of these programs. All dairy cattle owners and interested farmers are invited to attend.

The annual Prince Edward County meeting of Eastern Breeders Inc. will be held in Baxter's Hall, Bloomfield on Tuesday, February 8th at 1:30 p.m. The speakers at the meeting will be the president, Victor McCalpin of Gananoque or a member of the executive committee, the general manager, Dr. J. McLean or Assistant Director, Dr. R. G. Smiley, the Veterinary Consultant, Dr. M. E. Wilson or Director of Promotion Mel Thomas and the branch supervisor, Bill Potts. The business will include the reports of the County Director and County Holstein representative, the election of one director to the Board of E.B.I., the election of one county representative for the Holstein breed and the election of five voting delegates and five alternate voting delegates to serve during 1966-67.

WILL MEET FARMERS

Farmers wishing advice or engineering assistance on farm buildings, drainage, farm water supply etc. are advised that Gordon Tobey, Engineering Extension Specialist will be at the Ontario Department of Agriculture Office, Picton on Tuesday, February 8th. Anyone wishing an appointment with Mr. Tobey is advised to phone the Agricultural Office not later than 10 a.m. on Tuesday, February 8th. The telephone number to call is Picton 476-3224.

WHEAT PRODUCERS TO MEET

The annual meeting of the Prince Edward Wheat Producers will be held in the Department of Agriculture Board Room, Picton on the evening of Monday, February 7th. Included on the program will be a report of the Marketing Board operation in handling surplus wheat. This meeting will be held in conjunction with the regular monthly meeting of the Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture.

Over-wintering Birds Perish If Extra Food Not Supplied

NAPANEE — "We must fed the birds now. They are just hanging on to life this cold weather," states the Rev. Canon W. L. Simmons of St. Mary Magdelene's Anglican Church in Napanee. "Sunflower sedes. That is what they want. Nearly all birds will eat sunflower seeds, all but the small ones, which like millet."

Canon and Mrs. Simmons have literally hundreds of bird guests every day. "They make a terrible din," Mrs. Simmons says, "principally the grosbeaks. About two o'clock they begin to thin out, probably going to some sheltered quarter for the night."

Last year they had only three or four grosbeaks coming at intervals. This year there are perhaps 200, Canon Simmons estimates. "And they are all very hungry," he adds. "They crowd the three feeding stations and jostle each other on the vereanda floor. Birds prefer to have their feed elevated, but once they trust you, will pick it up anywhere."

Up to date the Simmons have fed 500 pounds of sunflower seed to their hungry friends. The seed this year is poor, the hulls not plump and well filled. This is probably caused by the peculiar weather of last summer.

MANY SPECIES WINTER HERE

In addition to the grosbeaks, Canon and Mrs. Simmons have many other varieties of birds coming$ for a free lunch. There are, of course, the inevitable starlings and house sparows and the other birds which normally spend the winter here, the chickadees and nuthatches and downies and hairy woodpeckers. This year they had a female cardinal visit them only occasionally until the snow came. Now she is a regular guest at their cafeteria. There is also a small flock of tree sparrows.

Last year they had flocks of pine siskins and of purple finches, but have seen none so far this winter. Last year they were here until April.

But they have plenty of bluejays and it is evident that Mrs. Simmons has a soft spot in her heart for them. She acknowledges their faults, but she does love to see them "line up on the sill of the study window and holler for peanuts," she says. They prefer peanuts in the shell, and will fly to a branch and break the shell first on one end and then on the other and smack their lips, figuratively, of course, as they devour their favorite goods.

BIRDS DEPEND ON FEEDING STATIONS

When you begin feeding the birds you must keep it up, the Simmons state. They come to depend on you, they explain. Just now when they need so much food and cannot find it for themselves, it is a kindness to scatter some for them, even dried bread. Best food of all is suet, which they need for fuel. Kitchen fat mixed with rolled oats or some other cereal and put in a conspicuous place may stave off starvation during this lean period. The salt is not a detriment, as is commonly supposed. Grosbeaks in particular love salt. "They will pick up gravel from the roadside which is salty," Mrs. Simmons states.

She adds that, best of all, they love suet and peanut butter mixed together and put into holes drilled in a log. It is the acme of happiness for them to find this treat. All birds, large and small, love this mixture.

Just now, they add, everybody must help to feed our feathered friends or they will die. This is a crisis.

Napanee Personals

NAPANEE — Conservation officer and Mrs. Edmund Buck of Talmer Rapids spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Buck of Strathcona, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Garrison of Centre street.

Orval C. Madden, AOCA, of Toronto, spent last week with his cousin, Miss Mabel Madden of Robert street, leaving Saturday for Gananoque to spend the weekend with his nephew, Donald Best, before returning home.

Mrs. M. R. Reid of Robinson Street is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Ben Matthias and Mr. Matthias of Maumee, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bryson of Toronto were overnight guests Friday of Mrs. Bryson's brother, James Madden and Mrs. Madden of Robinson Street, and Miss Sarah Madden, also of Toronto who accompanied them visited with her sister, Mrs. Ralph Bell and her husband, Robert Street.

Miss Violet Camblin, director of nursing for the Lennox and Addington General Hospital which will open March 1, is to be the guest speaker at the general meeting of the U.C[illegible] of Grace Church Thurs[illegible] afternoon.

NDSS Students Will Present "The Mikado"

NAPANEE — The Glee Club and the Dramatic Club of the Napanee District Secondary School are busy with last minut rehearsals and final touches to costumes and scenery for their production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," Friay and Saturday evenings in the school.

Mr. Robin Fluke, a member of the staff, is singing the [illegible]ado, but all other roles are [illegible]ing sung and played by students.

Carolyn Richmond is the leading soprano, taking the part of Yum Yum. Roland Morrow is Tish Tush, and Katisha is Marion Knight. The "three little maids from school," Pitty Sing, Pooh Bah and Peep Bo, are being played by Judy Dale, Terry Peters and Judy Robertson respectively. David Taylor takes the part of Nanki Poo.

Miss Lily Jean Rombough is the director, with David A. Smith, a student, as assistant director and accompanist. Mr. James Eadie is in charge of publicity and business, and costumes are by Mrs. Kathleen Hopkins and Miss Margaret Pugh. Stage manager and properties manager is Clive Whitfield, a student and students Lindsay Tee and Joe Miller [illegible] designing and painting [illegible] sets. Lighting is being looked after by Lorne Judge and Ken Baird and Brock McPherson will make a tape recording of the production. All three are students.

Enthusiasm is running high in the school, and only last minute details remain to be done. Everybody is scanning the skies and listening to the weather forecasts hoping for good weather and good roads.

DUNDAS ST. W. – BELLEVILLE

OPEN EVERY NIGHT UNTIL 10 P.M.

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1966

Mr. C. [illegible]tton (right) principal of the Belleville School for Retarded Children supervises classroom project demonstrated at last night's "open house" program.

Retarded Children's Work Viewed at 'Open House'

The Belleville school for Retarded Children held "Open House" at its John Street school Tuesday evening with about 70 persons turning out to see what is being done for retarded children in the city and district.

Mrs. Thomas Stovell, president of the school association greeted visitors who later inspected the school and saw senior children at work on class projects. A film was shown and refreshments were served to conclude the evening.

The Belleville School for Retarded Children was opened about eight years ago and since the beginning of 1965 has been under the direction of the Ontario Department of Education which pays operational costs. The school premises, however, is still owned and supplied by the Association.

Chairman of the School Authority is Mr. J. R. Blackbourn manager of the downtown branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. Board secretary - treasurer is Mr. Lee Anderson, administrative assistant for Belleville Public Schools.

The School for now has four classrooms and 31 pupils coming from Belleville, Sidney and Thurlow and Ameliasburg townships.

There are two senior and two junior rooms, the junior pupils attending classes only in the morning. Buses transport the pupils to and from their homes.

School principal is Mr. Carson Stratton with teachers being Mrs. Clarence Gibson, Mrs. Doris Durrand and Mrs. Bradford.

Teamsters Will Seek Aid of Ontario Labor

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—An official of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) says the union will seek the co-operation of the labor movement in Ontario in its dispute with 55 trucking companies.

Ray Taggart, chairman of the Teamsters bargaining committee, said Tuesday the union will ask the movement to refuse to load or unload for any company that is a member of the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau and to co-operate in any other way possible. The bureau represents the companies.

Mr. Taggart accused the companies of trying to starve the union membership into submission by using non-teamster help to drive trucks they still operate or have leased to shippers. Most trucking companies have stopped operating.

He also said that some of the smaller trucking companies are continuing to operate despite the bureau's decision to cease operations.

MOST CLOSE DOWN

Most companies, normally carriers of 70 per cent of Ontario's general road freight, stopped operating last month after teamster employees walked out at some Toronto terminals.

Mr. Taggart said conditions laid down by the bureau make it impossible for the union committee to attempt bargaining at present.

He said he will inform the bureau that the union is prepared to negotiate but that "reprisals" —including damage suits for about $2,000,000—by the companies against the Hamilton local arising out of wildcat strikes last October—must be settled at the outset.

In Ottawa Tuesday, a spokesman for the office of Mr. Justice J. D. Kearney of the Exchequer Court of Canada denied that a decision had been made not to pay the 8,500 out-of-work teamsters unemployment insurance.

The spokesman said a hearing has been set for the week of Feb. 14 at the Unemployment Insurance Commission office in Toronto. Mr. Justice Kearney will act as referee at the hearing.

ONTARIO LEADS SALES

Canada's department store sales were nearly 22 per cent higher during the second week of January than they were in the same week last year, the bureau of statistics reported today. Sales were higher in all provinces by amounts ranging from 7.1 per cent in British Columbia to 31.1 per cent in Ontario.

CPR SELLS HOTEL

Sale of Winnipeg's Royal Alexandra Hotel was announced Tuesday. The 60-year-old, 450-room hotel was purchased from Canadian Pacific by the Winnipeg real estate firm of Allan T. Bass Ltd.

Murdered Man Is Called Sexual Deviate

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A defence lawyer says Jacques Mossler was a ruthless businessman and a sexual deviate with thousands of enemies who could have killed him.

The state of Florida says Mossler was murdered by two persons—his wife, Candace, and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers—because of hatred, love and money.

It was on these lines that the battle was drawn Tuesday for a trial that could be one of the most sensational in Florida history—and the longest. The hearing resumes today.

"If each one of the 39 knife wounds in Jacques Mossler's body was inflicted by a different person," Percy Foreman told the jury, "there still would be many times that number of people left with real or imaginary justification."

The grey - haired Houston, Tex., trial lawyer charged in a 70 - minute opening statement that Mossler "was as ruthless in business as any pirate who ever sailed the seas of commerce."

Foreman also said that Mossler, 69-year-old head of a banking and loan company empire, practised "every conceivable sexual deviation in all psychiatry."

In the worlds of business and homosexuality, he said, Mossler encountered thousands of people who could have killed him, including many who had threatened his life.

Assistant State Attorney Arthur Huttoe told the jury the state would present evidence that there were three motives for Mossler's murder.

The Commons opened a two-day supply debate, the avenue for a series of complaints from opposition MPs.

Defence Minister Hellyer said the U.S. defence department has no intention of buying the F-5, already chosen for the RCAF.

Creditiste Leader Caouette said Quebec is using winter works payments from Ottawa for other than municipal purposes.

Only four of the 10 provinces indicated at the federal-provincial health conference they are ready to accept Ottawa's medicare plan.

No Intention To Buy Planes Says Hellyer

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer said Tuesday in the Commons that the U.S. defence department has had no intention of buying the Northrop F-5 Freedom Fighter for a "long period of time."

He said this was because U.S. requirements were different from those of the Canadian defence department, which last year purchased the plane.

Mr. Hellyer was replying to a barrage of opposition questions concerning U.S. selection of the Ling-Tempco-Vought A-7 as a new fighter - bomber, a plane Canada rejected.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker began the questioning which he based on a Canadian Press story saying the U.S. had rejected the F-5. He asked for an inquiry into Canadian selection of the plane.

Prime Minister Pearson said the Commons defence committee would have an opportunity to go into the subject and "all related matters."

Mr. Hellyer said below 20,000 feet the F-5 is the best type of plane in the world.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether the U.S. had rejected the F-5 after trials with it in Viet Nam.

Mr. Hellyer said the Viet Nam trials prove what a "wonderful plane" the F-5 is.

Sons of Freedom Seem to Be Reformed, Becoming Property-owning Citizens

AGASSIZ, B.C. (CP)—Sons of Freedom Doukhobors are showing new tendencies—all good. Sect members in Mountain Prison are working every day and winning paroles.

The diehards camped outside the prison gates for the last 2½ years have dwindled to 279 from an original 600.

And in the Kootenay, the traditional home of squatters for more than 25 years, Freedomites are buying property. They are expected to build well-serviced homes over the blackened shacks once burned in protests.

Carl Stevenson, national parole board representative here, says fortified, fireproof Mountain Prison, designed especially to house Freedomites convicted of terrorist activities, may soon be almost empty of Freedomites.

In the last three months 11 have been granted parole. They have taken their families from the encampment to Vancouver, 50 miles west.

GO TO SCHOOL

Younger ones have gone back to schools in Vancouver. The others have obtained jobs, some in the construction industry.

Not even a minor parole violation has so far been reported, said Mr. Stevenson.

Most of the prisoners have served about 3½ years on various terrorist-arsonist charges. Nine men who bombed a power pylon in the Kootenay received 15-year terms and a few others are serving more than 10 years.

Prisoners must serve one-third of their sentences or four years, whichever is less, before a parole application is acceptable. The parole program became possible with a recent change in the attitude of the prisoners.

Tom Hall, western director of penitentiaries, credits Simma Holt's book on the sect, Terror in the Name of God, for much of the change.

"The Doukhobors themselves have said that because of being able to read Simma Holt's book they realize that the Canadian government is not to blame for their problems."

AREN'T TERRORISTS

John Green, editor of the Agassiz - Harrison Advance, is convinced the Freedomites need no longer be feared as terrorists.

He believes they still are practising their religion, but doubts that they could ever again be led into fanaticism.

"They've had wider experience and have made friends with non - Doukhobor Canadians," he said.

Sixty-six children from the camp outside the prison here are enrolled in elementary or high schools.

"They form about seven per cent of the school population and they are integrating with the rest of the population faster than any other religious minority group in Canada," Mr. Green said.

If the Freedomites resettle in their Krestova stronghold they will be land-owning, taxpaying citizens for the first time since their emigration from Russia six decades ago.

Many once held mortgages at Krestova and on thousands of acres elsewhere in the Kootenay but these were lost in default. Doukhobor leader Peter P. Verigin has been blamed by many students of the sect's history for misuse of Freedomite funds.

The government paid off the mortgage companies in 1940 and sales now are being made through a government-appointed land commissioner, Magistrate William Evans.

Magistrate Evans has been a key man in Doukhobor affairs since 1961 as a member of the bench trying arsonists and bombers, as "marrying magistrate" who retroactively married 1,200 Doukhobor couples, and as administrator of land sales.

The marriages he performed by special order were almost all among orthodox Doukhobors and legitimatized about 4,000 children. a few Freedomites submitted to the ceremony under protest.

Land in the Kootenay is being bought by former Freedomite leaders, by Freedomites living in the camp near Mountain Prison, and by prisoners themselves.

Chrysler Corp. Will Double In Size by 1970 Says Pres.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Chrysler Corp., including Chrysler Canada Ltd. has more than doubled its size since 1962 and expects to double in size again by 1970, Lynn A. Townsend, president of the company, said in Windsor Tuesday night.

At a long - service awards banquet for Chrysler Canada Ltd. employees, Mr. Townsend said Chrysler expects to surpass Socony-Mobil Corp. this year to become the fifth largest industry in the U.S.

"That's just behind General Electric, and just two places behind the third largest company, Ford," Mr. Townsend said.

"It's just a matter of time," he predicted. The position of Ford "occupies a great deal of my interest."

"We are proud to say that Chrysler worldwide has more than doubled in size in the past three years and that our Canadian operations have not only kept pace but stayed ahead of the U.S. by a considerable (percentage) margin," he said.

Mr. Townsend said Chrysler Canada Ltd. reported retail sales of 122,000 cars in 1965, representing an 18 per cent increase over the previous year. Truck sales of 15,000 were up 25 per cent.

"Chrysler's share of the Canadian automobile market rose from 17.4 per cent in 1964, a record year in its own right, to 19.8 per cent in 1965 . . . a very commendable performance. When Chrysler began operations in Canada in 1925, the entire Canadian car market was about 100,000 cars annually, or considerably less than Chrysler builds in Windsor every year."

He said that more than 13,500 persons work for Chrysler Canada Ltd. and built more than 153,000 cars and trucks in 1965. Sales of Chrysler products in Canada were 138,000 last year.

Chrysler around the world, he said, is experiencing a four-year expansion program which will involve more than $1,700,000,000 in worldwide expansion and Canada "will have its share. About 25 per cent of this figure is being spent outside the U.S."

He said that a "considerable portion of the overseas total" was being spent in Canada.

"Our international operations of which Chrysler Canada is a part, brought us profits in 1964 of more than $50,000,000," he said.

Barriers France Erected To Keep Britain Out of Common Market Still Up

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The French decision to resume cautious cooperation with Common Market partners removes an obstacle to progress in the Kennedy round of world tariff bargaining. But it does not remove the barriers France erected to keep Britain out of the six-country community.

The language of the Luxembourg agreement is ambiguous enough to make it easy for both sides to claim victory. The five other members, led by West Germany, can say France agreed to end its obstruction and to abide by majority rule in the Common Market—up to a certain point. France can say it yielded no sovereignty to the Common Market executive. It reserved the right to block majority rule on "very important" proposals.

What are these very important proposals? Undoubtedly the market's executive commission at Brussels would like to have the power it originally thought it would get, to build up and administer a large treasury. France fears this would undermine its national sovereignty.

DISCUSSION COULD GO ON

And undoubtedly some member countries would like to see the bar against Britain reviewed, with the possibility that Britain eventually would be invited to join—despite French opposition. But there is nothing in the Luxembourg compromise which would allow this to happen. Discussion and negotiations on a majority rule would simply be allowed to go on, and on, without a deadline.

It is evident from this indecisive arrangement that Common Market progress can be made only to the extent that France is willing to co-operate, on issues which would not impinge on her own sovereignty and her ascendency in European affairs.

The Kennedy Round of world tariff bargaining, with its aim of reducing tariffs and other trade barriers sharply and thereby stimulating world trade and economic activity, has been suffocated by the lack of Common Market co-operation. The European Bloc could not move ahead with its own offering of concessions because of French refusal to participate in Common Market meetings. The Paris chair was empty.

Now that chair will be filled once more. There will be a French representative at Brussels where the Common Market tariff package may finally be completed and shipped to Geneva where Kennedy negotiators have been waiting with a mixture of hope and exasperation.

MAY FIND REASON

There is no assurance France will not find some last-minute reason for throwing another monkey-wrench into the Brussels machinery, even on non-vital issues. Agreement still is to be reached on a joint agricultural policy which could affect the Common Market position on international agricultural tariffs.

But the world is aware that time is running out on President Johnson's tariff - making power. Legislation to extend the old Kennedy proposals might encounter new difficulties in congress. The pressure will be on France to co-operate and in the light of the Luxembourg spirit, France may be less inclined to revert to obstruction, unless it can be seen that the issue involved is vital to her self interests.

Financial Aid Voted for Milk Producers

TORONTO (CP)—A depression resembling the 1930s has settled in over lower Ottawa Valley farmlands, milk producers heard Tuesday before voting financial help for some 250 producers who suffered heavy losses in that area last year.

Financial collapse of milk processing plants and crop failures the last two years combined to put valley farmers on the edge of disaster. The annual meeting of the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers Association and Marketing Board was told by Osie Villeneuve.

Mr. Villeneuve, Conservative member of the legislature for Glengarry, said farmers in Stormont, Dundas and Prescott Counties lost some $130,000 when cheques from three milk plants in Ontario and one in Quebec were returned marked "not sufficient funds."

The 200 delegates, representing some 16,000 producers across Ontario, voted to reimburse Ottawa Valley farmers for a percentage of cheques returned during October. This would amount to some $22,000. Some 20 voted against the resolution.

The meeting is the last before the association is absorbed by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

George McLaughlin, chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, told the meeting the board is prepared to set up a program of security for producers, initially to offer partial protection against loss through the bankruptcy of processors.

Kierans Says U.S. Interferes With Our Business Operations

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Eric Kierans of Quebec accused the United States Tuesday night of directly interfering in the operations of Canadian business and of controlling the activities of Canadian citizens through its recently-announced guidelines for its own economy.

The former revenue minister of Quebec and one-time president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges said the U.S. guidelines will have a "disastrous impact" on the structure and organization of the Canadian economy and suggested if Ottawa won't do anything about it, the provinces should.

Mr. Kierans told the Toronto Society of Financial Analysts that Canada already has a tremendous deficit on current account with the U.S. and the major effects of the U.S. guidelines will make it worse.

Putting the deficit a t$1,656,000,000 in 1964 and a probable $1,800,000,000 last year, he estimated the new U.S. rules will increase the debit this year by more than $300,000,000—"probably between 400 and 500 million dollars."

He noted wryly a storm of criticism directed at him a month ago after he wrote a letter to John Conner, U.S. secretary of commerce, in which he said the U.S. guidelines as applied to Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms would seriously affect the Quebec economy.

Now that the protocol fight over whether he had any authority as a provincial official to write to the U.S. government is subsiding, he said, it is time to get down to an examination of the problem of what the guidelines mean for Canada.

Mr. Kierans said the guidelines—announced Dec. 6 as part of U.S. efforts to overcome its balance of payment deficit—have four major decrees that would cause Canada's current accounts position with the U.S. to deteriorate:

—Imports by the U.S. parent from the Canadian subsidiary had to be reduced;

—New direct investment from the U.S. would have to be moderated;

—Exports of raw materials and component parts from the U.S. parent to the subsidiary had to be accelerated;

—Dividends and idle balances in Canada had to be repatriated to the U.S.

Mr. Kierans emphasized in his speech and in a brief question period later that he wasn't criticizing the U.S. for taking what it considers appropriate steps to help its balance of payments situation.

"But when the U.S. dictates the investment policy, dividend policy and purchasing policy of the greater part of the Canadian manufacturing, mining and petroleum industries in Canada, it is directly interfering in the operations of Canadian business and controlling the activities of Canadian citizens subject to our laws and our economic objectives."

The guidelines, he said, represent "a tightening of the American grip on our economy that threatens the attainment of our own economic objectives and are an infringement of our political sovereignty.

While attacking the potential effects of the guidelines, Mr. Kierans also criticized what he called the long-standing lack of a definite Canadian economic policy.

Examining Canada's economic growth during the 1950s, he said this was a period of "appalling over-investment in manufacturing."

Subsidiary plants were established to make money, not necessarily for themselves, but for the parent.

"Thus, a subsidiary could lose money and still make a net contribution to the parent company's income by the profit on purchases of raw materials and component parts from the parent, by payment of royalties and fees for management, advertising and research services."

In fact, he said, this is the primary aim of investment in foreign markets.

To support his argument, he quoted from a 1961 U.S. government committee hearing in which 21 representative U.S. corporations trading overseas, with a foreign equity investment of only $10,500,000 produced $258,000,000 in export sales, $18,700,000 in royalties and fees, but only $279,000 in dividend returns.

Mr. Kierans said it is obvious Canada could affect considerable savings if it could find out what subsidiaries of U.S. firms are importing and how much they are paying for them.

"We are a major industrial nation and there is no reason why we cannot produce economically thousands of items imported automatically — without any regard to price—from parent companies."

As an example of what a study of a subsidiary's imports from the U.S. can do, Mr. Kierans said the Northern Electric Co. succeeded in transferring to Canada the manufacture of nearly 12,000 parts and components previously made chiefly in the U.S. after it started a "made-in-Canada" program.

This one company saved $12,000,000 in foreign exchange annually, and more importantly, the shift provided jobs and income for more than 1,700 Canadians.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Jack Carson, one of this city's better gifts to Ontario baseball will exchange a president's gavel for a secretary's pen.

He may have both hands filled with the weapons of sports administration soon, but that, he tells me, is extremely doubtful.

He already has the less-turbulent ball-point of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's secretariat firmly grasped, but the gavel of the presidency of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association is in the slipping stages.

Since its inception two years ago, the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association has been firmly governed by a sturdy ship of executive state with Jack at the presidential helm

Jack says he will tender his resignation as president at the annual EOBA meeting scheduled for the Legion Hall at Port Hope next Saturday.

"I'm not quitting altogether," he says, "but after two years as president and with the league running smoothly, its time some of the younger executive blood stepped up to the key positions."

"In the position of immediate past-president, I will be available at all times to lend a helping hand, if necessary. We had a few problems last year but these were ironed out successfully. I don't anticipate the new president will have too much trouble."

"We had a good year in 1965," he said, with a touch of justifiable pride in his voice. "We corrected a few items that turned up in the first year of operation and the executive as a whole was well pleased with the seasonal operations."

A look at the 1965 book of operation and records will substantiate Carson's statement of having a "good year".

The Association increased its overall entries by 26 clubs over those of the inaugural year. Both minor and major classifications were well represented.

"Out of 36 all-Ontario championships," Jack pointed out, "the EOBA won four and sent seven clubs to the runners-up spots. Brockville went to the senior finals as did Centerville and Ajax in their respective classifications."

"The league reached out and took in Renfrew which went to the finals, also Johnny Mowatt's Perth midgets and bantams."

Prospects for a good year in 1966 look exceptionally bright, Jack said, "with expansion a definite thing. We hope to take in Stouffville and Lindsay this year, and expect applications from other non-member clubs."

Applications for entry have been coming in to league secretary Spero Annis of Peterborough all winter. "We received some as far back as December," said the president, "and if that doesn't signify interest, well . . ."

Saturday's annual meeting gets under way sharp at one o'clock with several important items on the agenda.

From the floor the league will elect its executive, a president, three vice-presidents and a secretary-treasurer. Delegates of the league's three zones will elect their own representatives to the directorate. A dinner will be held at 6 p.m.

Harold Griffin, the major-domo of the Cannifton Baseball Club tells me his team won't be entered in EOBA action this year.

"We had some trouble last year," he said, "and we don't want a repetition. Besides we do not believe we can afford to play in two leagues, so we are going to stick to the old faithful South Hastings Baseball League."

Incidentally Mr. Griffin reminds everybody, especially South Hastings players, fans and friends, that the Cannifton-Latta baseball clubs are hosting a dance at the Club Cedars this Friday (February 4). Everybody welcome and baseball bats must be parked at the poor.

Rangers Will Ride Herd On Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Not too many teams have been able to win hockey games against Chicago Black Hawks at Chicago Stadium this year.

In fact, only Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers have won games there this season.

Montreal has won three games and tied one in four visits to the Windy City while Toronto has won only one, lost two and tied one in four trips to Chicago.

The Rangers, second to last in the National Hockey League standings and practically out of playoff contention, have also had considerable success in Chicago this season, winning twice and tying once in four games.

The Rangers get a chance to continue their winning ways in Chicago tonight where they meet the Black Hawks in the only scheduled NHL game.

BIG RINK HELPS

"There's something about that big rink that makes our club go good," Emile Francis, coach and general manager of the Rangers, said Tuesday.

"We've always played well in Chicago, and we're hoping to keep up the good work tonight."

Earlier this week, New York sent two players to their Baltimore affiliate of the American League and promoted a third player for an NHL trial.

Simmons, 34, had served as New York's back-up goalie, allowing 37 goals in 8 1-3 games this season. Cullen, brought up from Baltimore two weeks ago, had one goal and three assists in seven games in New York.

HULL AFTER MARK

With 42 goals in 40 games this season, he is making a strong bid to become the first player in NHL history to score more than 50 goals in a single season. He has 26 games left in which to reach the mark.

The last time Chicago and New York met, Hull scored four goals but it wasn't enough because the Rangers skated off the ice with a 6-5 victory.

A win for the Black Hawks tonight would move them into sole possession of first place in the standings, two points ahead of Detroit Red Wings who meet Boston Bruins in Boston Thursday night.

The Canadiens play host to Toronto in the other Thursday night game.

Young Suspended, Fined $200

SEATTLE (AP) — Howie Young of Los Angeles Blades was suspended Tuesday by Al Leader, Western Hockey League president, and fined $200 for an attack on Vancouver player Bob McCusker Saturday in Los Angeles.

Athletes Had Problems

This 'Cross-Country' Off Record

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto and Hamilton athletes began struggling home Tuesday two and three days behind schedule because of severe snowstorms that lashed the Eastern United States, but many of them will head back to U.S. points for indoor track meets this coming weekend.

A contingent from the East York Track Club of Toronto, headed by Bill Crothers, got home Tuesday afte. competing in a meet in Boston Saturday. But they had to borrow $100 from Punch Imlach, manager-coach of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, to make t.

After the Boston meet the five-man contingent caught a train for New York City and watched the Leafs lose 8-4 Sunday night to New York Rangers.

They couldn't make airline connections to Toronto, couldn't cash a personal cheque and borrowed the $100 from Imlach.

That bought them a 21-hour train ride to Buffalo, N.Y., where they rented a car and drove the remaining 90 miles to Toronto.

Bill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Crothers of Toronto, began driving home from Boston Sunday but were marooned near Utica, N.Y., Tuesday and weren't expected until today. With them were East York coach Fred Foot, Hamilton Olympic Club coach Pat Cole and half-miler Cecelia Carter, a resident of Oakville who runs for Hamilton. The five slept in a restaurant Sunday night and in a motel Monday night.

Crothers, George Shepherd, Al Brereton, Mike Nash and Dave Bailey, all of East York Track Club, will head back to New York City for Friday night's Knights of Columbus meet.

College Hockey Scoring

TORONTO (CP) — Henry Monteith jumped from 11th place into the scoring lead in just two games in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association hockey schedule last weekend.

Monteith, a forward with University of Toronto Blues, scored six goals and added four assists in games last Friday and Saturday and now has 25 points on 15 goals and 10 assists. His 15 markers are tops in the league.

Lancers Bury Guelph 118-43

GUELPH (CP) — University of Windsor Lancers scored more than 100 points for the sixth time in seven Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association basketball games when they swamped University of Guelph Redmen 118-43 Tuesday night.

It was the second win of the season over Guelph for the Lancers, who ran their unbeaten string to seven. The victory moved them six points ahead of second-place University of Toronto Blues in the Western Division.

Angelo Mazzuchin paced Windsor with 23 points.

Ty Burch and Jim Shaw were the top shooters for the losers with 14 and 11 points respectively.

The Quinte Marksmen defeated the Trenton Handgun Club by 20 points in a National Course competition between the two clubs last night.

Quinte scored a total of 1,246 to Trenton's 1,226. The club's will hold another shoot, in Trenton, next Wednesday night.

Reg Sprackett had top mark for the Marksmen with 273. Other scores were: Bert Waters 249, Frank Allin 245, Don Parks 239 and Louis Kulcsar 240.

Bank Trail Pack Led By Palmer

Palmer's $3,037 for his third-place tie at San Francisco gave him a total of $23,787 for the first month this year. That includes $9,750 in winnings outside the PGA tour.

Ken Venturi's $8,500 in the Lucky vaulted him into third place with a total of $9,478.

Others in the top 10 with official and total winnings: Miller Barber, $7,458 and $7,683; Frank Beard, $7,062 and $7,765; Tom Weiskopf, $6,137 and $6,137; Paul Harney, $5,250 and $5,596; Dave Ragan, $4,833 and $5,670; Don January, $4,700 and $4,840, and Charles Sifford $4,195 and $4,528.

Marlies Win Brawl Game

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Toronto Marlboros defeated London Nationals 8-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Tuesday night.

The victory lifted the Marlboros to within one point of fourth place Montreal Junior Canadiens. The Nationals' loss kept them in a last-place tie with Kitchener Rangers, but dropped them five games behind the Kitchener team in the games played column.

Gerry Meehan scored two goals and added two assists for Toronto in the penalty-riddled contest. Wayne Carleton scored twice and Jim McKenney, Cam Crosby, Brent Imlach and Tom Martin once.

For London, Walt McKechnie scored twice and assisted on the other scored by John Mercer.

Referee Jerry Denomme of Kitchener assessed 22 penalties, including two fighting majors, a misconduct and a match penalty to Marlies' Jim Cassidy for shoving linesman Roger Freeborn in the third period. Cassidy was automatically suspended until the OHA considers the referee's game report.

He drew the penalty after fighting with London's Darryl Edestrand midway through the period. Barry Watson drew a misconduct for arguing the match assessed by Denomme.

The Nationals lost the services of winger John Mercer late in the second when he was checked into the boards. Officials said it appeared he pinched a back nerve.

WILL RETIRE TOGETHER

LYNEMOUTH, England (CP) — Coal-miner Jim Graham, due to retire in March after a life in the coalfields of Northumberland, will keep something to remind him—his pit-pony. Sandy was due to be put out to pasture so the mine authorities decided to give him to Graham, his master for 12 years, so they can enjoy retirement together.

'Rocket Over Jet', Adams' Selection

All-Time All-Stars

By HAL BOCK

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Adams, the jovial hockey executive who built a dynasty at Detroit, picks three Red Wing greats on his all-time National

JACK ADAMS

Hockey League All-Star team.

Adams, 70, is in New York to accept the Lester Patrick Memorial Trophy for long and meritorious service to the game en the United States. He cheated a little on his all-time team but isn't likely to get many arguments.

"I'd pick Gordie Howe at right wing and use Maurice Richard at left wing. I know Richard played the right side but he was a left-handed shot, so he can be my left wing.

"At centre, I'd use Milt Schmidt who was a great puck handler. On defence it would be Jack Stewart and Eddie Shore. My goalie would have to be Terry Sawchuk."

Adams, now president of the Central Professional Hockey League coached the Red Wings for 19 seasons and was the club's general manager for 35 years until he resigned in 1962. Detroit won 12 NHL championships and seven Stanley Cups under his leadership.

Asked to compare Bobby Hull, the Chicago star who is apparently headed for a one-season goal-scoring record, with Howe, Adams didn't hesitate for a moment.

"Hull's a great hockey player, but I'll stick with Howe as the finest all-round player in the game. He's a better team man. His assists prove that."

Clippers Win

Aces Trump Rochester

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Aces demonstrated their superiority over Rochester Americans before 11,103 fans in Quebec City and Terry Reardon demonstrated his coaching ability with Baltimore Clippers in American Hockey League play Tuesday night.

The Aces, 4-3 winners over Rochester in a meeting of the division leaders Sunday, won 4-2 Tuesday night.

Reardon, Baltimore general manager who took over as coach for the rest of the season after John Crawford was fired last week, won his second game as the Clippers downed Springfield Indians 3-2 in Baltimore.

The results left the Aces 17 points ahead of second-place Hershey Bears in the Eastern Division and pushed Baltimore within seven points of the third-place Indians. Rochester retained its 10-point lead in the Western section over the idle Pittsburgh Hornets.

Gordon Labossiere scored twice for the Aces while Wayne Hicks and Don Blackburn added a goal each. Bronco Horvath and Gerry Ehman were the Rochester marksmen.

Reardon, a former National League player with Boston Bruins, saw Jean Cossette break a 2-2 tie at 9:17 of the third period. Other Baltimore marksmen were Ken Schinkel and John Brenneman. Gerry Foley and Randy Miller scored for Springfield.

Blades End Vancouver Mastery

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks' season-long mastery over Los Angeles Blades was decisively ended Tuesday night when the Western Hockey League's last-place Blades outscored Canucks 8-4 at Vancouver.

It was the California club's first victory in nine games this season against third-place Vancouver.

Meanwhile, at Seattle the hometown Totems clipped San Francisco Seals 3-1 to pull to within five points of the Canucks.

Bowie Track Reels From Third Blow

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Bowie race course, trying to dig out of a paralysing snowstorm and a fire that levelled five barns and killed at least 43 thoroughbreds early Monday, reeled under still a third blow Tuesday as another snowstorm slammed into Maryland.

As the track reluctantly cancelled another day's card for today, arson investigators sifted the ashes of the barns located in the area known as Blueberry Hills in an effort to determine the cause of the blaze, which did an estimated $520,000 damage.

Even as grooms and trainers scoured the area for six horses, still missing since they were cut loose along with some 145 others to save them from the fiery inferno Monday, snow began falling once again.

Trenton RCAF Rink Wins District Title

KINGSTON (CP) — Mel Sjostrom of Trenton RCAF Curling Club won the district championship in Ontario Curling Association provincial playoffs Tuesday.

Sjostrom registered two successive wins over Bill Laskaris of Carleton Place, 7-4 and 12-6, in the best-of-three playoff.

Gary Player's Donation

Junior Golf Foundation

NEW YORK (CP) — The United States Golf Association has established a junior golf foundation with a gift from South African golfer Gary Player.

After winning the United Sates Open last June, the 30-year-old Johannesburg professional donated $5,000 of the purse to the American Cancer Society and returned the remaining $20,000 to the USGA, with the stipulation that it be used to promote junior golf.

The association has decided to use the money for two world amateur team tournaments. Boys under 18 will compete in one, girls under 18 in the other. The USGA said it will ask the World Golf Council to sponsor the event after the first year.

Proposed site of the junior tournaments is Taconic Golf Club, Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 24-26. The 48 countries that make up the World Amateur Golf Council will be asked to send teams of three boys and three girls.

The foundation would pay the amateurs' expenses.

OWENS FINED

Seaboards, Napanee Tie 8-8

Four third-period goals paced Napanee to an 8-8 Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League tie with the loop-leading Picton Seaboards, in Picton, last night.

Willie Menard, ex-Belleville McFarland Senior "A" player, sparked the visitors with a four-goal performance, three of them coming in the final twenty minutes. His last tied the game with just over one minute left to play.

Picton led 5-3 after one heat, 6-4 after two and 8-5 by the 8:13 mark of the third. Then Napanee ripped back with three straight to grab the split in points.

Quebec Bonspiel

Eight Rinks Unbeaten

QUEBEC (CP)—Twenty-four rinks — 10 each from Ontario and Quebec, three from the Maritimes and one from the U.S. – start play today for the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy, the top prize in the 53rd annual Quebec International Bonspiel

The week-long event got under way Monday morning with a total of 128 rinks competing for 14 awards.

The Ontario complement is made up of two Cornwall rinks, skipped by Ublad Rouleau and Carl Hussey, two from Toronto —Nels Speicher's Royal Canadian Club and R. Wright's Toronto Co-Op — Ulfe Blok-Andersen's Mississaugua entry, Oshawa's Bert White, E. Dennison of Burlington, James Fraser of St. Catharines, Harold Frye of St. Thomas and Hamilton Thistles' Dr. W. Hambley.

In the A section three Quebec rinks and one Ontario foursome were undefeated, while in the B contest, Ontario had two perfect records and the Maritimes the other pair.

Outremont's Carl Ott downed Sept-Iles' Bob Morris 9-5, J. J. Marchand skipped his Beauharnois rink to a 9-6 win over Bob Monast from the Quebec Winter Club and Dr. John Dodds of Montreal West upset Cornwall's Ubald Rouleau, 14-5.

In the B section, Oshawa's Bert White downed Carl Hussey of Cornwall 11-5, Neil Speicher beat fellow - Torontonian R. Wright 10-7, Dartmouth's Creighton beat MacIntosh 8-7 and Middleton beat Dr. Campbell of Trois-Rivieres 7-6.

Belleville, Kingston In Playdowns

Belleville and Kingston will once again meet in the opening round of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association playdowns.

The two centres will meet in three divisions, peewee, bantam and midget. Belleville did not enter a team in the juvenile playdowns this year.

Kingston bantams meet the Belleville Kinsmen here on Monday, February 14, at 8:00 p.m., with Kingston midgets playing Belleville Western Tire here at 9:30 the same night.

Kingston peewees will visit Belleville Rollins Construction on Wednesday, February 16, at 7:30 p.m.

All series are two-of-three affairs with the second matches in all three divisions slated for Kingston on Saturday, February 19.

The peewee game on Saturday is slated for 12:30 with the bantam tilt at 2:00 and the midget at 3:30 p.m.

Locations for third games, if necessary, will be decided by the flip of a coin prior to commencing the first game in each series.

Riteways Shaded By Wellington

Wellington shaded Belleville Riteways 5-4 in an exhibition novice hockey game played at Wellington last night.

Mike Lavender paced Wellington with a pair of goals. Singletons were scored by Stephen Doxtator, H. MacDonald and Don Wight. B. Insley, L. McQuaid and K. Homes got assists.

For the Riteways, it was Grant Goegan and Wayne Dainard, each with two goals. Goegan also had two assists, B. Sutherland and T. Whelan one apiece.

The winners held a 4-2 margin in the final period to snatch the decision after Belleville led 2-0 in the first and it was 2-1 after two.

ARGOS SIGN LINEMEN

Defeat Brighton H.S.

Moira Girls Win Pair

By JACKIE THOMPSON

Led by the 20 points scoring of Lynne Neill, the Moira senior girls' basketball team defeated Brighton 49-22 in the Brighton gym last night. By a combined effort the junior team also took the victory, scoring 38 points to Brighton's 16.

In the senior game, the teams appeared equal until the end of the second quarter when Moira began to outscore their opponents. At half-time the score was Moira 20 Brighton 18. Moira went on to widen the margin in the second half scoring 29 points to Brighton's 9.

The Moira guards again played excellent basketball and kept Brighton's score at a minimum.

Other top scorers for Moira were Jackie Thompson with 12 and Joan McConnell with 11. Helen Bonisteel and Judy Campbell were best for Brighton scoring 7 apiece.

In the junior game, Moira held a 17-6 lead at half time and went on to outscore Brighton 24-10 in the second half.

It was a very slow game with numerous violations and jump-balls. In a fine team effort, every Moira forward contributed to the score. Debby Platt led the victors with 13 points.

Gilbert Undergoes Surgery

The team physician said the operation was successful. The operation took 2¾ hours and was performed by Dr. Kazuo Yanagisawa, who said:

"Gilbert certainly will be able to play at the start of training camp next September."

This is the second such operation for Gilbert, a Montreal native. The same operation was performed at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., in the spring of 1961.

Gilbert originally injured his back in the spring of 1960 while playing Junior A hockey for Guelph in the Ontario Hockey Association. He reinjured the back last summer pulling a boat out of a lake, and then suffered muscle spasms at the base of his spine in October at training camp.

Regals Nip Senior All-Stars

GUELPH (CP)—Guelph Regals outscored the Ontario Hockey Association Senior All-Stars 3-2 in the final period Tuesday night for a 6-5 victory in a game played in aid of the league's injured-player fund.

The line of Walt Bradley, Butch Martin and Jim Robertson sparked the Regals' offensive, getting four goals.

Kingston Aces' Pete Weston added the other two.

Boat Hurley blocked 32 of 37 shots in a brilliant goaltending performance for Guelph.

Al Bennett of Oakville and Wilf Keating of Woodstock shared the all-stars' netminding with Keating giving up five of the six goals.

Generals Defeat Dunlops

OSHAWA (CP) — Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series defeated Whitby Dunlops, winners of the 1958 world amateur hockey championship, 10-5 Tuesday night in a benefit exhibition game.

A crowd of 3,359 turned out.

Many members of the Whitby club were reunited. The majority of players hadn't played in five years.

Bill White scored four goals for Oshawa, Bobby Orr added a pair and Chris Hayes, Gerry Dionne, Brian Morenz and Peter Nevin picked up one each. Bobby Attersley, Bob Hassard, Gord Miles, Sandy Air and Ted O'Connor scored for Whitby.

Minor Hockey

A couple of close midget games featured B.M.H.A. play at Memorial Arena last night. The novice and juvenile divisions also saw action.

MIDGET

Wings shaded the Bruins 3-2 with T. Waite's second-half goal snapping a 2-2 tie. R. Rosatte and B. Morrison scored the other Wing goals. M. Acquafreddo drew two assists and G. Parker one. R. Hunter and D. Eves potted the Bruin goals. Hunter and D. Blaind collected assists. Bruins took all four of the game's penalties.

Leafs clipped the Rangers 3-1, sparked by Bill Royea's two goals. G. White scored the other goal and had one assist. B. Gibbons helped on two, A. Thompson and B. Janitsch on one each. D. Lambert scored for Rangers, aided by K. Allan. There were three penalties per team.

JUVENILE

Jets tamed the Tigers 5-1 in the lone juvenile game.

B. Moon spearheaded the winners' attack with three goals. R. Rosebush had a goal and assist, D. Akey a goal and J. Shakell two helpers. J. Smith scored for the Tigers, assisted by B. Parks.

Four penalties were evenly divided.

NOVICE

In novice, Bruins defeated the Rangers 5-2, Generals and Barons tied 2-2 and Wings topped the Canadiens 5-1.

R. Kirk scored three and S. Cowan a pair for the Bruins. T. Manley, R. Phillips and H. Gibbon got single assists. L. Stordy and M. Rollins were Ranger marksmen and T. Bateman had an assist.

S. James and J. Muldoon scored unassisted goals for the Barons. T. Scanlon and J. Ashley were the Generals' scorers. D. Liscum and Scanlon had assists.

D. Bronson sparked the Wings with three goals. B. Clairmont and S. Gray scored the others. J. Aitken had two assists and B. McDonald one. K. McCallum was the Canadiens' scorer, assisted by S. Wilkins.

The Trots

Lord Dean, a 12-year-old bay gelding, edged Van Song R. and returned $43.60, $17.10 and $7.90.

Sledders Team To Beat!

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP) — Canada's defending world champion four-man bob sled team today looked more than ever the top squad to keep Italy from a clean sweep of the 1966 competitions.

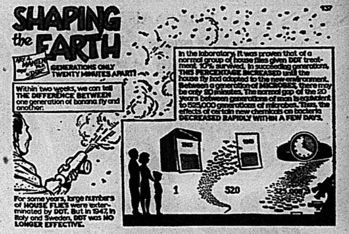
The Canadian No. 1 bob, driven by Victor Emery of Montreal, flashed down the 1,860-yard Ronco chute in a neat 1:18.18 in Tuesday night's first practice descent.

One run was not enough to tell the final story. But the Canadian foursome — Emery and Douglas Anakin of Montreal, Michael Young of Port Credit, Ont., and Peter Kirby of Montreal—was almost three seconds faster than Italy's swift squad.

Sleds from the 10 participating countries are expected to pick up speed in tonight's practice descents if Cortina d'Ampezzo stays as cold as it should be.

An unusual warm spell the last two days forced cancellation of Monday night's practice. The ice walls of the chute were still a bit mushy Tuesday night.

The four-man championship will be decided Saturday night and Sunday night.



SHAPING the EARTH
GENERATIONS ONLY TWENTY MINUTES APART!
Within two weeks, we can tell THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN one generation of banana fly and another.
For some years, large numbers of HOUSE FLIES were exterminated by DDT. But in 1947, in Italy and Sweden, DDT was NO LONGER EFFECTIVE.
In the laboratory, it was proven that of a normal group of house flies given DDT treatment, 10% survived. In succeeding generations, THIS PERCENTAGE INCREASED until the house fly had adapted to the new environment. Between a generation of MICROBES, there may be only 20 minutes. The normal gap of the 20 years between generations of man is equivalent to 525,000 generations of microbes. Thus, the effects of certain new chemicals on bacteria DECREASED RAPIDLY WITHIN A FEW DAYS.

Stanley Mann Charter Member Of Our Expatriate TV Artists

By DAVE PIKE

NEW YORK (CP) — Stanley Mann is a charter member of that select band of brethren—expatriate Canadian television artists.

They leave Canada for the United States and Britain because the opportunity to work in television drama as producers, directors, writers and actors becomes smaller with each passing season, and because they can make more money than at home.

Mann was a member of that original group of writers whose scripts helped launch and sustain CBC-TV drama in the early days of Canadian television.

About 11 years ago, he left his native Toronto on a holiday trip to Britain. He already had sold some half-hour scripts to BBC-TV, and he took some more with him. He sold them and stayed on in London to become one of British television's busiest writers.

He recently finished the first draft of The Naked Runner, a film set in Europe which depicts the exploitation of people under the guise of patriotism in the cold war. It will star Frank Sinatra.

Naked Runner will be directed by Sidney J. Furie of Toronto, another expatriate operating out of London, who directed the Ipcress file and The Feather Boys, a Rita Tushingham film.

Now Mann is trying his luck again in theatre. Two one-act plays—Better Luck Next Time and A Walk in Dark Places, collectively titled Rooms — have just opened off-Broadway.

Mann wrote his first play—a three-acter—at age 19 while majoring in English at McGill University in Montreal, but he wasn't produced professionally until about 10 years ago when Gift of the Serpent, a lugubrious verse play, was staged at the Crest Theatre in toronto. he also had another play produced in London, "but it was a disaster and I don't talk about it."

Better Luck is a comedy, following the search for freedom of expression, the escape from conditioned reflexes through the Buddhist sense of oneness.

Dark places is a dramatic study of behavior patterns being repeated, of how we manufacture disguises for ourselves and act out our lives behind them.

Better Luck was telecast in Britain under the direction of Silvio Narizzano, a Montrealer who left Canada for the usual reasons and has since collected a room-full of directing awards from around the world.

Mann became a film writer by sheer accident when he was called in to rewrite a Lana Turner film, Another Place, Another Time, on location for 15 weeks.

The producer who later made the Beatles' Help! then saw some of his TV work and put him to work co - writing the highly successful The Mouse That Roared, which starred Peter Sellers The Mark, based on the book by Charles Israel of Toronto, and other films followed.

One of the most difficult film scripts Mann has ever written is The Collector, adapted from the book by John Fowles, whose The Magus was published recently.

Briefly, The Collector involves a young man with a passion for lepidoptery and a young woman whom, after he has won a fortune on the football pool and bought a secluded house in the country, he kidnaps and confines in his cellar in the hope she will come to love and marry him. But eventually she dies of pneumonia, and he drives off to kidnap another woman to love him.

"The main problem with the picture," says Mann, "was trying to sustain a film which really had only three people, and one of them never appeared on the screen."

The third person, the young woman's boyfriend, played by Kenneth More, was to have appeared in a Flashback sequence, but it was left on the cutting-room floor because "although I worked months on it, it really never worked out with anyone."

Despite Mann's disappointment with the final version, the film—as much for the writing as for the directing job by William Wyler—was one of the xletter movies of 1965 and made the "top 10" lists of a few film critics.

Mann, who considers the Japanese director Akira Kurosawa the greatest director in the world (as master of technique and story-telling), was asked to name the best English-language film of 1965.

"I'm not sure the The Hill wasn't the best," was his reply. An interesting choice, because it starred Sean (James Bond) Connery.

Mann, in Britain, did the first TV adaptations of Arthur Miller's plays, and Connery played the lead in the crucible. As well, Connery played in Woman of Straw, a film Mann wrote.

Mann now plans to do more writing for the theatre.

"It's the organic growth of theatre that's stimulating. The script is reformed in rehearsals there, whereas in films, it's all done in the cutting room."

He is firmly ensconced in Britain now, with his English wife, residing comfortably and creatively in the Putney area, 25 minutes from the centre of London.

He doesn't give the impression that he is missing much in Canada. But, as is the case with many of his gifted fellow expatriates, Canada is definitely missing him.

Will Sponsor Course on Safe Boating

MARMORA — At a meeting of the directors of Marmora district Chamber of Commerce on Friday, it was decided that one of the projects for the coming year would be the promotion of safe boating practices. In this regard, the Chamber hopes to sponsor a course on better boating with lectures given by Gordon Bennett.

An adult skating party will be held on Sunday, Feb. 20th, at the arena and committee in charge will be Vaughn Glover, Ron Stephens and Mrs. Glen Wentworth.

Granville Meiklejohn and Irwin McCoy were appointed as the Chamber's representatives on the committee for the proposed development road north.

The following officers were elected for 1966: president, Ron Stephens; 1st vice-president, Gordon Bennett; 2nd vice-president, Cecil Neal; treasurer, Glen Wentworth; secretary, Mrs. Glen Wentworth.

Committee chairmen named were: membership and finance, Cecil Neal; planning and regional development, Irwin McCoy and Granville Meiklejohn; civic welfare, Leith Stetson; retail merchants, Bob Maynes; program, C. A. Lorenson and Gordon Bennett; publicity, Jack Golden.

MAY USE SCORES

TORONTO (CP) — The University of Toronto may use scores made in a recently tested college board examination to help students with low Grade 13 averages gain first - year university entrance. Robin Ross, university registrar, said in an interview results of the examination, held for the first time this year, might be used to aid Grade 13 students who fall slightly short of the required 60 per cent average.

"Sammy and His Friends" Fine Special in Every Way

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Until Batman came along a few weeks ago, there was a widely held belief that nobody ever made a bad show on purpose. That basic premise still holds where a television special is concerned.

There is some question, however, about what a "special" is. Strictly speaking it's any program that takes the place of a regularly scheduled show. But the word itself promises of a treat for the audience.

Sammy and His Friends, on ABC Tuesday night, filled both definitions. This was the hour-long program, taped last fall before Davis was tapped for a weekly variety show, that has kept the performers off his NBC networks show for the last two weeks. But although Sammy's assorted talents are often on television display, the presence of Frank Sinatra gave the show a special quality. In fact, a more apt title for it might have been "waiting for Frankie."

All through the preliminaries —40 minutes of them, Davis promised us Sinatra. Edie Adams sang too briefly, Joey Heatherton danced and Count Basie's orchestra played.

SPOT TOO SHORT

When Sinatra finally appeared he sang two songs—neither his best. Then came a short medley with Davis which was the most fun of the show.

Davis sang and danced and was just fine. But his exaggerated attitude toward Sinatra—sort of kidding awe—gets to be a big bore.

Speaking of specials, CBS has lined up a fine one for next season—John Gielgud's adaptation of Chekhov's Ivanov, a hit of the current London season which will have a limited Broadway run this spring. Sir John will play the title role and Claire Bloom will be his leading lady in the 90-minute TV adaptation.

CBS also has announced the forthcoming presentation of Death of a Salesman as a television drama.

ABC announced a series of programs on the urbanization of modern man, the shows will be produced by John Secondari who did the Saga of Western Man series. The first program will probably be aired this season and the rest of next season. Cosmopolis, The World City is the over-all title for the series.

Urge Many Reforms To Aid Aged

Minister Answers Critics

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp said Wednesday that Canada will take countermeasures if the guidelines laid down by Washington to curb the growth of American investment abroad have any adverse effects on the Canadian economy.

Answering critics in the Commons, Mr. Sharp said there is no evidence yet that the U.S. guidelines have had an adverse effect on Canada.

If they do, he said, Canada is "quite prepared to issue its own guidelines" in response.

Some time ago, Governor Louis Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada had advised the chartered banks that the U.S. guidelines might result in some Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms "operating in Canada to the detriment of other Canadian customers."

If necessary, Canada will take steps just as strong as those of the U.S. to protect Canadian citizens, the finance minister said.

Mr. Sharp said there are some aspects of the U.S. guide lines that "might be in accordance with our own policy."

WON'T STAND BY

However, if the U.S. investment curbs had any adverse effect "we are not going to stand idly by."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and NDP Leader Douglas brought the issue to the floor. Mr. Diefenbaker asked Mr. Sharp whether a Toronto speech by Health Minister Eric Kierans of Quebec attacking the U.S. guidelines was well founded.

He said Mr. Kierans had charged that the U.S. guidelines are tightening the American grip on the Canadian economy and threaten the attainment of Canadian economic objectives.

Mr. Sharp said he agreed with some of the things the former president of the Montreal Stock Exchange said, but disagreed with others.

Replying to George Hees (PC — Northumberland), who asked if it was not time to make a serious protest to the U.S., Mr. Sharp said Canada has made such protests, has not accepted the guidelines and is free to take any action it sees fit.

"We do not think they should be applied to Canada and hope the United States will come to

"Shadow" Regime Waiting

By JAMES BROWN

SALISBURY (Reuters) — An all-white rhodesian "shadow" government is waiting in the wings here ready to seize power if the breakaway Ian Smith regime shows signs of collapsing.

It sees itself as the foundation of a long-term liberal caretaker government, ready to restore this British colony, which seized independence Nov. 11, to economic prosperity while the question of Negro political advancement is solved.

Still embryonic, the group's members are known to political observers here as influential Rhodesians, including businessmen and leading bankers.

It also embraces former high-ranking officials of the defunct Central African federal government of Sir Roy Welensky.

Desmond Lardner-Burke, minisier of justice and law and order, warned Wednesday about these people in the first ac-

Teamsters Plan Picketing All 55 Idle Trucking Firms

TORONTO (CP)—The International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) today will picket all 55 trucking companies involved in Ontario's trucking industry shutdown, Ray Taggart, chairman of the union's bargaining committee, said Wednesday night.

Mr. Taggart said in an interview the picketing will follow a directive decided on by the committee at a meeting Tuesday in London, Ont.

He said there is a possibility the union will meet later this week with the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the companies, but it was "too early to say definitely."

The union membership voted in favor of a strike when it rejected a conciliation board recommendation for a new contract.

The union had intended striking Jan. 20 only against Consolidated Truck Lines Ltd. but Teamsters walked out at several other Toronto terminals Jan. 13 and 14.

The companies immediately retaliated by closing ranks and shutting down all members of the bureau in Ontario, saying that a strike against one was a strike against all.

The union's plan had been to keep the majority of its 8,500 men on the job. They would have contributed $5 a week to a strike fund to supplement strike pay and give men on picket duty $85 a week at Consolidated.

The union pays $15 a week for four weeks after the first week of a strike and then $25 a week.

Mr. Taggart said Wednesday the strategy to go on strike at only one company "hadn't worked out."

The president of the 4,000-man Hamilton Local 879 of the Teamsters said that failure of the plan to go on strike only at Consolidated had caused financial hardship among members.

Earlier in the day, Toronto's board of control decided to give emergency food and fuel to the families of truckers out of work in the dispute.

The union is demanding a reduction of the work week to 40 hours from 48 with no reduction in pay, restrictions on the use of non - union drivers or "brokers" and other benefits. Before the strike, city drivers received $2 an hour while highway drivers were paid on a mileage basis

Ontario, Quebec Ministers Deny Works Aid Abused

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The municipal affairs ministers of both Ontario and Quebec commented in their respective legislatures Wednesday on the administration of the federal winter works incentive program.

Maxwell Henderson, Canada's auditor-general, said in his annual report tabled Tuesday in the House of Commons that fraudulent and irregular practices had been evident in the program.

Provincial municipal affairs departments administer the program for the federal government.

Wilfrid Spooner, the Ontario minister, said in reply to a question that no irregularities other than minor ones have ever been found in the province's administration of the program.

In Quebec, Municipal Affairs Minister Pierre Laporte termed "ridiculous" a statement he said had been made by Creditiste Leader Real Caouette to the effect that Quebec had used for purposes other than those intended $23,500,000 granted by the government for winter works.

Mr. Spooner said agents of the auditor-general visited Ontario municipalities "and I am informed they were completely satisfied with our administrative methods and techniques."

Mr. Laporte confirmed a statement made Tuesday by Citizenship Minister Jean Marchand that there had been a delay in sending winter - works cheques to municipalities in the province as a result of the moving of offices in Quebec City.

PM Urges Less "Sounding Off" On Federal-Provincial Matters

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday night the federal government intends to be more careful about spending on federal-provincial programs in which all the provinces do not join.

He also told a Liberal rally that there should be less "sounding off" between the central and provincial governments in the interest of mutual understanding.

Mr. Pearson spoke to about 1,500 persons at the annual prime minister's dinner of the Toronto and District Liberal Association. Text of his speech was issued to the press but Mr. Pearson skipped delivering parts of it as he cut the address short to catch a waiting train for Ottawa. Press Secretary Richard O'Hagan said later the whole speech stands.

In it, the prime minister said each level of government must stay within its own field of jurisdiction. Where there was overlapping, conflict should be avoided by co - operative arrangements which would erode neither federal nor provincial authority.

To make this co - operative federalism work, there "must be greater mutual understanding and less "sounding off" that causes misunderstanding and controversy . . ."

The federal government was doing its best to discharge obligations in such fields as welfare, social security and education, but the fields were primarily provincial and federal policies and programs could not be imposed on provinces in these matters.

"And," Mr. Pearson added, "we will have to be increasingly careful in participating in joint federal - provincial programs in which all the provinces do not participate."

He did not elaborate on this but added that, on the other hand, the Liberal government will not forgo its right to make grants to provinces to help them in programs such as medicare that are to be provincially administered.

It also would retain the right to tie such grants to the acceptance of principles laid down by the federal government. It would be then for the provinces to decide whether they wished to co-operate on this basis.

Dealing with another economic point, Mr. Pearson said 1966 is expected to be another year of high employment, production and income but the country's expansion is not likely to be as great in the previous two years.

This was because Canada was now closer to the physical limits of its capacity and to full employment. A major problem would be to maintain expansion but at the same time control inflationary pressures. Prices and costs would have to be kept from getting out of hand.

Mr. Pearson made no direct reference to the current sidetracking of the Fulton-Favreau formula for repatriation of the constitution, but he advised against impatience in getting a new one.

Evidently referring to the Progressive Conservatives' call for a constitutional conference, he said:

"Ther are impatient souls who would scrap the whole business; call a conference and celebrate our centennial with a brand-new, glossy constitution, 1967 model.

"In this approach, we tend to lose sight of the fact that our constitution has really worked very well . . .

"In these matters of constitutional change, we should recognize that, while 1867 is 100 years ago in time and 1,000 years ago in change, we must make progress steadily and carefully."

Report Suggests Certain Minimum Income At 65

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Massive reforms in attitudes and assistance involving Canada's senior citizens are recommended by the Senate committee on the aging.

Sweeping recommendations, affecting all levels of government, employers and individuals, include a suggestion that all Canadians at 65 receive a guaranteed minimum income "as a matter of right."

There should also be a "dynamic partnership" among governments to give the senior citizen an opportunity to maintain himself as a productive member of society, said the committee headed by Liberal Senator David Croll of Toronto.

The job is a big one "but the committee's outlook is not pessimistic," the committee said. It added:

> "We believe that without sacrificing economic growth or specialized efficiency, we can create in Canada a society where youth and age alike will find satisfaction and fulfilment."

The 65,000-word report, tabled Wednesday in the Senate, says that among other things there should be:

—A national council on social research to gather all the necessary information.

—More effort to find employment for older workers, including a campaign by the National Employment Service.

—Changes in federal-provincial training programs to the benefit of older workers.

—Greater financial assistance for older home-owners.

—Wider coverage for the over-65s in any medical care insurance program.

—Improved institutional care, including the licensing and supervision of all nursing homes.

GUARANTEE URGED

But the most far-reaching recommendation is the one calling for a guaranteed annual income at age 65. The committee suggests establishment of a "technically competent body" to study income needs and develop a socially-acceptable minimum.

In the meantime, it recommends that single persons get a minimum income of $1,260 and married couples $2,220. The federal government would fill the gap between existing incomes and the proposed minimums.

The committee does not estimate the cost of such a program in detail. But it says that if a minimum income of $1,500 a year were established for all persons over 65, about 40 per cent of them—or 560,000—would need average supplements of

Minimum Income Is Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—A blue-ribbon commission recommended to President Johnson and Congress today that every family in the United States be guaranteed a minimum annual income.

The annual cost of such a plan was said to range from $2,000,000,000 to $20,000,000,000, depending on its scope. As many as 35,000,000 Americans could be affected if a minimum income level was fixed at $3,000 a year.

This was but one of dozens of ambitious recommendations that grew out of a year-long study by a 14-member national commission of technology, automation and economic progress. The group was created by Congress and appointed by Johnson to study "technological unemployment and related problems."

The guaranteed income idea was labelled worthy of further study in Johnson's economic report to Congress last month. Under the plan, the federal government would make up the difference between a family's actual income and a fixed minimum standard.

Almost every recommendation drew unanimous support from the panel, which included such prominent citizens of diverse viewpoints as board chairman Thomas J. Watson Jr. of International Business Machines Corp., and president Walter P. Reuther of the United Auto Workers Union.

AGREE UNANIMOUSLY

Among the unanimous recommendations in the report were:

—The federal government should become "employer of last resort" for the hard-core

Medicare Debate To Open

He said the medical care insurance debate which tied up the house for two weeks last year would continue today and that the 1966 budget would likely be presented next Wednesday.

The new medicare bill has been called a fraud, and an expected increase in the provincial sales tax in the budget is expected to cause controversy.

In other legislature business Tuesday:

—A bill to repeal a section of the Highway Traffic Act to permit auto passengers injured in accidents to seek compensation from the car driver was proposed by Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury).

—Kelso Roberts, minister of lands and forests, said his department is starting a program of rehabilitating 7,800,000 acres of private forest in southern Ontario.

—Edward Dunlop (PC—Forest Hill) called for independent provincial action to revamp "archaic" divorce laws.

—Albert Walker (PC — Oshawa), a member of the legislature's select committee on aging, suggested Ontario could save money by boosting old-age pensions rather than provide subsidized housing for the aged.

WANTS APPROVAL

The premier told the house he would call second reading of the government's medical care insurance bill during cur-

U.S. Gets Viet Nam War Before Security Council

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The united states mustered enough support Wednesday to place the Vietnamese war before the United Nations Security Council but all signs point to a difficult road to peace.

Jordan backed the U.S. proposal to have the 15-nation council take up the Vietnamese issue with the deciding vote after the council resumed its meeting, called Monday at the request of U.S. ambassador Arthur Goldberg.

Other countries to back the U.S. move to get Viet Nam on the council agenda were Britain, New Zealand, The Netherlands, Argentina, Uruguay, Nationalist China and Japan.

The Soviet Union led the assault to knock the Vietnamese item from the agenda and was joined by Bulgaria in casting negative votes. France, which spoke strongly against the proposal, abstained, along with Nigeria, Mali and Uganda.

Discussion of the agenda, a procedural question, was free from the big-power veto but it is almost certain that the Soviet union will exercise this right during the forthcoming full-scale debate.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko stated his country's opposition by calling for any Vietnamese peace talks to be carried out in the framework of the Geneva accords of 1954 and 1962, and not in the Security Council.

French Ambassador Roger Seydoux pointed out that peace talks in the Security Council would be fruitless because North Viet Nam and South Viet Nam, as well as Communist China, are not members of the world organization.

Goldberg suggested to the council that the representatives of the governments of both South and North Viet Nam be invited to the council discussions, but Hanoi replied that North Viet Nam would regard as invalid any resolutions on Viet Nam approved by the council.

The council adjourned for informal consultations immediately after approval of the agenda to see if member nations could work out a program on how best to proceed with the question.

Purcell Investigates Use Of Thermite to Melt Ice

City Engineer W. C. Purcell said yesterday afternoon that his department is investigating the possibilities of relieving the Moira River ice jam by the use of thermite.

"No plans for immediate use have been made," he said, "but we are seeing what advances have been made since 1927." Mr. Purcell was making reference to the alleged averting of a flood in Belleville by the late Professor H. T. Barnes in 1927, an incident related in a book by the former McGill scholar entitled "Ice Engineering."

In March of that year, Professor Barnes was summoned to Belleville by the city and engineers of the C.N.R. and C.P.R. to prevent what appeared was going to be a major flood. In a report to the city council, reprinted in Prof. Barnes' book, the city engineer of that time, C. D. Campbell, described the undertaking and the results.

Professor Barnes discharged about a ton of thermite into the river channel and placed five tons of calcium chloride and cinders up-river to weaken and break up the surface ice. Within a week after the project was begun, the river level subsided by 16 inches, and, according to Mr. Campbell's report, the whole river, from a point 200 feet north of the foot-bridge, had emptied itself of surface ice.

Thermite, a magnesium composition, is described by Professor Barnes as a substance which attains a very intense heat of upwards of 2500 degrees Centigrade. A "slow explosion" apparently results from its contact with ice, due to the release of gases, and Professor Barnes claimed that the practice proved highly effective in loosening and cracking ice masses. He also felt certain that the explosion, because it was "slow," would do no damage to bridges or similar structures, and stated that no harm could come to fish in waters where thermite had been used.

The book "Ice Engineering" was made available to Mr. Purcell by Mr. Bill Tatham of Tatham Ltd., who used it as a text while studying at McGill. City Engineer Purcell said that although the 1927 experiment was a "crude one," it merits looking into."

Older Boys Work Board Seeks Funds

The Ontario Older Boys' Work Board is seeking to raise $9,500 to help defray the cost of their work in the province in 1966.

Sponsored by the Ontario Council of Christian Education, the Boys' Work Board organizes such projects as the Older Boys' Parliament, where 125 Ontario boys meet to deliberate on vital issues, and Christian Young Councillors' Conventions, weekend gatherings of interdenominational "church-related fellows 15 to 20 years of age" held annually in each of eight Ontario districts. The aims of these Conventions are to provide the boys with a forum of discussion for some of the "pressing problems of their lives," and to promote Christian fellowship.

B.C.I. student Dave Clarke, of 314 McDonald Ave., the president of the Mid-Eastern Zone of the C.Y.C.C., is asking any local church groups, businesses, or interested individuals to support this work and purchase "a share in the youth of today."

The proceeds from these "shares," sold for any amount desired by the purchaser, help defray the expenses of accommodation and transportation involved in the conventions, which each year register more than 500 delegates.

JOSEPH PRITCHARD

In failing health for some time, Joseph Pritchard of 29 St. Paul Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday. He was born in England, 85 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pritchard and has been a resident of this city for the past 70 years, where he was well known and highly respected.

He was a member of Bridge Street United Church and is survived by a sister, Mrs. L. Morris of England and several nieces and nephews.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, the funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon with interment in Belleville cemetery, Rev. H. M. Davis officiating.

JAMES CATHCART

Ill for the past six weeks, Mr. James Cathcart, 29 Bay Drive, died Wednesday evening in Belleville General Hospital.

Born in Paisley, Scotland 72 years ago, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Cathcart and had lived in Belleville for the past 40 years. He had worked as a toolmaker at the International Hardware for 36 years and had last worked in 1964.

He was a member of St. Columba Presbyterian Church and was a life member of Craigends Lodge, A.F. and A.M. of Scotland.

Predeceased by his wife, the former Agnes Drummond, he is survived by one son James of Belleville and two daughters, Mrs. Frank (Janet) "Jenny" Ross of Calgary and Mrs. Grant (Margaret) "Marnie" Devolin of Belleville.

There are three brothers, Robert, of Bloomfield, N.J., Hugh of Renfrew, Scotland, and Thomas of Belleville, and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas (Nancy) McIlroy of Paisley, Scotland, and Mrs. Ina Robinson of Belleville. Three sisters pre-deceased him. There are six grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

MICHAEL JAMES GRAHAM

The funeral of Michael James Graham was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home to St. Michael's Church for service on Wednesday morning. Requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. P. Kelly, who also said the graveside prayers at St. James' Cemetery.

The bearers were Russell Babcock, Hunter Service, James Hilton, Frank Murray, Earl Cousins and Mel Allison.

MRS. GERTRUDE MABEL COLDING

The funeral for Mrs. Gertrude Mabel Colding was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home to St. Thomas' Church on Wednesday afternoon. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell conducted the service and also the committal rites at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were John W. Lawrence, N. D. McNish, William Bly, W. G. Rowland, Harold Sheldon and Harry McCreary.

JACK T. CLARK

The funeral of Jack T. Clark was held Wednesday afternoon from the Grant Funeral Home to St. Thomas' Anglican Church where a service was conducted by Archdeacon A. S. McConnell. The committal service at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by Rev. M. P. Walsh.

The bearers were William and John Morris, Don and Ted Clarke, Bob Miles and Leonard Sweet.

TIMOTHY DRUMMEY
(Shannonville)

The funeral of Timothy Drummey of R.R. 2, Shannonville, was held yesterday morning from the White and Morris Funeral Home, Deseronto to Holy Name of Mary Church in Marysville, where the Rev. J. J. O'Neill celebrated Requiem Mass. Entombment was in Holy Name of Mary Cemetery. The bearers were Jack, Terry, and Mike Whalen, John Roach, Jack Kelly and Tom Currie.

After a lengthy illness, Mr. Drummey died on Sunday in St. Mary's of the Lake Hospital in Kingston. He was in his 82nd year.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Drummey, he was a lifelong resident of the Marysville area. A member of Holy Name of Mary Church, Mr. Drummey was also a member of the Holy Name Society, which recited the rosary at the funeral home on Tuesday evening. Formerly a farmer, he received his education in Marysville and Deseronto.

Mr. Drummey was the last surviving member of his family.

Robt. J. Kelso Named Head Of Producers

Mr. Robert J. Kelso of Spencerville, Ont., was named president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Co-operative Ltd. at their annual meeting held in Belleville on Wednesday.

Vice-president of the Co-operative for 1965 is Nelson J. Cowan of Atwood, Ont.

Two new directors were elected to the Co-operative. They are George Wood, Ivanhoe, Ont. and John Keyes, Wolfe Island. These men replace H. C. Arnold and A. E. Hicks.

One of the first actions of the new directors of Ontario Cheese Producers' Co-operative Limited, in co-operation with the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, was to increase the price on the Belleville Cheese Exchange, February 2nd, 1966, by one-half cent per pound to 42 cents per pound. Directors hoped this increase will improve the economic situation of cheese producers and cheese factories.

With the announcement by The Ontario Marketing Board of an expected increase in the price for manufactured milk, later this month, it was decided by the directors some definite action should be taken immediately to increase the price of cheese to help those shipping to cheese factories.

Cafe Operator At Tweed Found Guilty

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today convicted a Tweed Chinese restaurant operator of having liquor illegally on his premises when the OPP walked in on a New Year's party.

However, he fined Raymond Kwan the minimum — $10 and $5 costs.

The case caused a furor in Tweed and local feelings have run high against the provincial police.

The magistrate's decision ruled against the plea of Kwan's lawyer, Robert Temple, who claimed his client actually was entertaining in his own home. The Kwan family lives over the restaurant and eats on the premises.

In a written judgment, Magistrate Wills said he could not accept the argument.

About 70 people were in the restaurant when the OPP liquor squad from Toronto staged the raid.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

JOINT AUXILIARY MEETING

A joint meeting was held in Education Hall, Bridge Street United Church when the Ladies Auxiliary of 11th Belleville and of 3rd Belleville, (St. Michael's) met to discuss better ways to develop scouting.

The 3rd Belleville president, Mrs. Doug Jones, opened the meeting and introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Gerard O'Connor, who is the new chairman of the Group Committee for 3rd Belleville.

Mr. O'Connor outlined the duties of the Group Committee and Ladies Auxiliaries, and the benefits of close co-operation between the two. He urged all parents interested in Scouting to support activities throughout the year.

Mr. O'Connor was thanked by Mrs. Jones, who handed the meeting over to the president of 11th Belleville, Mrs. Harry Thompson, who is also president of District Council. Mrs. Thompson urged her auxiliary to work for a greater year.

Two past president pins were presented to the 11th Belleville retiring president, Mrs. John Randle, and to 3rd Belleville's president, Mrs. Joe Farrell.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by 11th Belleville auxiliary members.

CANNIFTON - CORBYVILLE MOTHERS' AUXILIARY

The January meeting of the 1st Cannifton-Corbyville Cub Mothers' Auxiliary was held in the Cannifton United Church Sunday School Room with seven members present.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. K. Putman and a thank you card was read from Mrs. R. Chisholm and the family of the late Mrs. P. C. Gelsthorpe.

Each member was asked to send a double batch of homemade candy to the February 10th meeting, to be held at the home of Mrs. R. Putman. This will be packed during this meeting in readiness for the Cubs to sell on Saturday, of February 12.

The father and son banquet will be held in the Cannifton United Church Sunday School room on February 26th.

Expect Jobs To Pick Up Early in Year

By Jan. 31, 1965, there were 537 unplaced males and 358 unplaced females. On the overall picture, there were 256 more unemployed persons at the end of January this year than at the end of December, 1965.

J. K. White, the manager at the Trenton office said yesterday the "peak" in unemployment had been reached and employment opportunities should pick up with the opening up of road work and in construction as spring approaches.

Meanwhile, the members of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club are this week conducting a Telephone Blitz among the town's householders and businessmen, designed to stimulate interest in greeting small jobs "out of the way," while workers are available, instead of "waiting for spring."

Welfare Administrator A. Gordon Davis said today the number of welfare recipients this year was "on a par" with last year. (Figures were not released.) Mr. Davis said welfare numbers took a ten per cent "jump" last summer and the same situation prevails at this time.

Nostrand Sprague Given Post

TRENTON — Nostrand Sprague, the secretary - manager of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, has been appointed by the Department of National Health and Welfare to look after problems of those senior citizens who wish to obtain their Old Age pensions, but who have no official record of their birth dates.

The appointment was announced this week by W. F. Hendershot, regional director of Old Age Security.

WOMAN HEADS BOARD

The Trenton and Suburban Planing Board is to be headed up this year by Mrs. Harriett Simmons, a board member for a number of years. Vice chairman is Daniel Senik.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the board, three new members, Dr. Robert Patrick, John Downs and William Norman were received.

R. H. Smithrim Again Heading Member Drive

TRENTON — R. H. Smithrim was named last night to head up the Trenton Community Concert Association membership campaign in March. Mr. Smithrim has acted as membership chairman for the past two years. Paid up membership last year was 716

Donald Sinclair will succeed Harold Keefer as president of the association; first vice president is Peter Howe and second vice president, Dr. W. A. L. McDonald. R. P. Hotson is to act as treasurer.

Miss Edna Finkle will continue as secretary; Mrs. Vera Treloar is social convener and Mrs. T. W. Spear will act as secretary for the membership campaign.

At the annual meeting of the association in King Street United Church parlors last night, it was decided to start the membership campaign on March 14. A pre-campaign drive, which will start March 7, is designed to give the first 50 new members a "bonus". Their 1966 membership tickets will enable them to attend the March 10 concert when the Canadian Opera Company will present "Carmen" in English.

rent sessions. The 1965 legislation was approved, but the government has completely rewritten it this year.

The new bill accedes to several opposition demands, particularly a proposal that the government and not private insurance companies sell insurance to anyone wanting it.

Under the 1965 legislation, private insurance carriers would have been able to charge high risks— the elderly and the sick — more for medical insurance. Premiums now will be the same for everyone.

The private carriers will be restricted to the sale of group insurance. No groups will be allowed to purchase insurance from the government unless the members sign up individually.

Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, has termed the new bill a fraud. It has taken away the high risks from private carriers, he said, but left them with the lucrative group insurance market.

Both Mr. MacDonald and Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson demand a government - run scheme to cover all Ontario residents, not simply the needy or those who do not fit into group plans.

Called Neither Strike Nor Lockout, Idling of Trucks Affects Local Firms

A local union official today claimed Belleville truckers are not on strike and there is no lock out in effect here.

G. A. Miles, secretary of Local 91 of the Teamsters, said, "As far as our men are concerned, we are not on strike and never have been. Nor do we have any intentions of going on strike.

"We have been laid off.

"The companies are trying to say it is a strike, but it isn't. They're getting by now with leased trucks and rail service.

"If we were out on strike we'd be picketing. If it was a lock out we'd all be sent home at once, the gate would be locked and that would be it. This is definitely not what happened.

"Some of our men were laid off Thursday, some Friday and some Saturday, as the work available deteriorated. This is not a lock out.

"We have applied for unemployment insurance and the hearing is set for February 14."

(Strikers are not entitled to unemployment insurance, but men who are laid off are eligible.).

Cecil Huiser, manager, National Employment Service, Belleville, said, "I don't feel I should comment on it right now.

"The truckers made their claim and it is out of my hands now. The decision on this will come from our ajudicator in Toronto.

"I think the answer should come within the next week or two."

Nevertheless, Belleville's trucks are idle and many industries are beginning to feel the pinch.

Northern Electric officials said their deliveries have been slowed down by the trouble. "We have to depend upon rail express and our own trucks now," he said.

"It's making unhappy customers for us, but they have to realize the problems just as we do. We have to go to them and explain the reasons for the delay in delivery of their orders.

"It could be serious for us in the future if it develops into a major strike. In a plant this size, we stockpile raw materials for use, and once that stockpile starts to be depleted, then we could be in serious trouble."

G. A. Freeman, manager of Stephens-Adamson, said, "We don't like it of course. It's an inconvenience.

"We leased a large truck a few weeks ago to be ready for any problems, and we're getting by.

"The difficulty is that you can only go for a certain distance with your own trucks before making connecting links elsewhere. Between here and Toronto it's fine, but if you try to go further it's a problem.

"I don't say it's lost us any business yet, but it's just one of those things that happen that make it more difficult to operate."

IMPACT NOT SEVERE

A Mead-Johnson official said, "Our goods are running reasonably well. It certainly is inconveniencing us, but customer service hasn't been effected to any great degree.

"The impact hasn't been too severe yet.

"We've switched to rail in some cases to keep our service up."

Howard Hanton, vice-president, manufacturing, of International Hardware, Corbin Lock Division, said, "We aren't being effected seriously.

"It's not just as convenient now as it is when all the trucks are moving, but we're shipping railroad and our goods are moving."

S. D. Hagerman, General Manager of Stewart-Warner Corporation said, "The shutdown is definitely giving us trouble, though up till now we've been able to get around it by using independents, railway express and our own trucks.

"A thing like this effects us all the way around of course, but we have managed to solve most of the problems. We still have some problems though, especially getting merchandise in from the states."

Court Clerk Released on Reduced Bail

Marjorie Lahey, Madoc magistrate's court clerk charged with theft of court funds, has been released on reduced bail.

Miss Lahey had been in custody since December 19 when she was charged by provincial police with stealing official money while court clerk and reporter on the north Hastings County circuit of Magistrate R. C. Jackson.

Her first appearance was before Justice of the Peace J. Clair Hayes who set initial bail at $10,000 cash. The bail was unchanged until Tuesday when Magistrate T. Y. Wils reduced it to $5,000 cash or $10,000 property.

that view," he said.

The government had made "vigorous representations" to the U.S. objecting to the guidelines," as vigorous as Mr. Kierans made."

ARE VERBAL

The presentations were verbal

The presentations were verbal, not written, the minister added.

As for Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms, "I would hope and expect there will be no abnormal recourse to the Canadian capital market, and if there were, the government would have to decide what action to take."

Mr. Hees asked if the U.S. took Canada's balance-of-payments deficiency with the U.S. into consideration when it imposed the guidelines.

Mr. Sharp said Canada had convinced the U.S. this country was not contributing to the U.S. payments problem and Canada thus had been granted continued free access to the U.S. loan market.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that whatever decision the U.S. government makes, detrimental to Canada or not, the Canadian government adopts the diplomatic approach and merely says it is unfair and hopes the U.S. will change its mind.

The discussion on guidelines came during the two-day supply debate which ended Wednesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker also delivered a sharp attack on what he termed the "wasteful laxity and wild expenditures" of the minority Liberal government.

Quoting from the report by Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson, Mr. Diefenbaker said the 1967 world's fair administration in Montreal is playing fast and loose with the taxpayers' money.

Salaries of top officials were "fabulous." Moreover, Expo 67 rented automobiles for them and paid for their insurance.

CBC payments totalling $450,000 for work not performed was evidence the government "goes beyond bumbling and fumbling."

Mr. Diefenbaker termed the auditor-general's annual report a dictionary of the Liberal government's "wasteful laxty and wild expenditures."

Waren Weese Still in Coma

OTTAWA (CP) — Warren Weese, an 18-year-old army private from Camp Petawawa and Frankford, Ont., entered his 106th day of unconsciousness Wednesday as a victim of sleeping sickness.

Weese was flown to the National Defence Medical Centre here from the camp north of Ottawa Oct. 15 when the disease, encephalitis, was suspected.

Laser Light Subject of Talk To Veterans

Laser light — a light beam that can transmit voice, business data and television programs — promises to surpass the make-believe accomplishments of today's science fiction.

Mr. P. H. Lavallee, of Montreal, Bell Telephone lecturer, speaking at the regular monthly dinner meeting of the Belleville branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, told members that since the idea of Laser light was described about five years ago, the discovery had influenced every major area of science.

He said the telephone industry was interested in Laser because of its communications possibilities. Scientists are looking for ways to use light waves instead of radio waves.

Youth Guilty Of Car Theft, Not Driving

A 19-year-old youth today was convicted of car theft — after being stopped by police in a car he wasn't driving.

Grant C. Lawrence, R.R. 5 Belleville, said the car actually was taken by a friend as the pair walked from a restaurant.

"I'm not guilty of this crime," he told Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Lawrence, now on two years probation and Dall Mills, 19, of Victoria Avenue, were pursued by police after a cruiser crew became suspicious of the car.

Police constable George Cole said he and constable John McLinton chased the car Saturday night at speeds up to 90 miles an hour from East Moira Street to Highway 37, about a mile outside Belleville.

The officer said the car was being driven by Mills and Lawrence was a passenger when the cruiser cut off the speeding automobile.

He said he warned Mills: "You're stealing that car you goof — and I kept walking up the street. I'd only walked 10 or 15 feet from the car, when he pulled up beside me."

"If you knew the car was stolen why did you get in it?" asked Crown Attorney John Pringle.

"I don't know — I just got in it, that's all," said Lawrence.

He was remanded until Tuesday for sentence — the same day a preliminary hearing is scheduled for Mills.

H.S. Students Get Holiday On Friday

Students in the public secondary schools of the Bay of Quinte district will enjoy a holiday on Friday (tomorrow) while their teachers attend a conference to discuss teaching techniques and curriculum improvement.

District 23 of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, Quinte District, will hold its annual Professional Development Day program at Moira Secondary School on Friday. The speaker will be Miss Angela M. Armitt, B. A., Director Summer School and Extension Department, University of Western Ontario. With all teachers attending this conference there will be no classes at Belleville Collegiate, Moira Secondary School, and Quinte Secondary School on that date.

Both High and Dropping Water Levels Being Felt

Although little change from yesterday is reported in the level of the lower Moira, the effects of both high and dropping water levels are being felt in the city today.

Merchant's along the west side of Front Street are still pumping thousands of gallons of water from their basements, while at the Belleville Marine Yards Ltd., on Water Street, anxiety is being felt about dropping water levels — leaving tons of ice adhering to the foundations of structures housing costly cabin cruisers.

Mr. Morch said the structures were not designed to carry the heavy ice load and the tons of ice clinging to the foundations could conceivably tear them down.

The water level at the marine yards has dropped at least two feet since the high point reached over the weekend.

LENGTHEN CHANNEL

In the meantime city public works employees are still hard at work lengthening a channel in the river mouth immediately south of the CPR bridge and west of Victoria Park.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said there appeared to be very little change in the river level since yesterday.

Yesterday a crane operating heavy steel ball was put into operation smashing a channel in the river ice in an attempt to get rid of some of the slush and frazil ice which is blocking the current and causing water to back up in the river.

The engineer felt that today would tell the tale as the river channel was extended south from the Railway bridge.

Water Rates In Brighton Are Increased

BRIGHTON (Special) — A general increase in Brighton water rates was announced today by the Brighton Public Utilities Commission. The increase, effective January 1, affects four newly-established categories of users: domestic, industrial and large and small commercial.

The increase amounts to 50 per cent ($1.00 per month), except in the small commercial category, which may amount to slightly less. The PUC said the increase would allow the replacement of the 53-year-old water mains on Young and Prince Edward streets (which had an estimated life of 35 years when installed), and to bring rates, established in the horse-and-buggy era into what is considered to be a more equal adjustment based on volume and use.

Speaking for the PUC chairman, Commissioner Douglas Haig said "the increase in rates is necessary in order to finance extensive replacement of water mains this year". The PUC plans to replace mains on Young and Prince Edward streets. Engineering work has already been completed by the municipality in readiness for the reconstruction of these streets to bring them up to Department of Highways standards, concurrent with installation of the second stage of Brighton's sewage project. The PUC said it is economically advisable to replace those mains while the two streets are carried out this year. The municipality will benefit from the provincial and county road subsidies. Deterioration of the present mains has caused increased losses of water in the system in recent years, the PUC announcement states.

Driver Failed To Insure Car

A Belleville man recently bought a car then sold it within a few short days.

Between times however, John Odene was stopped by provincial police — and charged for having no insurance.

This morning, it cost him $50. fine before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

He was given three weeks to pay after telling the magistrate he was unemployed.

"I only had the car a few days", he added.

"That was bad luck, wasn't it," commented the magistrate.

Behind the "Glass"

Playing for the Gould Jeweller's trophy at the RCAF Station on Wednesday, a rink from the women's section of the Quinte Curling Club skipped by Mrs. Helen McCorquodale with Mrs. Kay Pope, Mrs. Hettie Dyble, and Mrs. Jessie Baber brought home the trophy and accompanying prizes. In second place was another Quinte rink of Mrs. Betty Walmsley, Mrs. Hazel Blair, Mrs. Betty Weymark and Mrs. Ena Corke as skip.

The competition was quite stiff and the sixteen rinks that played included clubs from Kingston, Dixie, Toronto, Picton, Colborne, Trenton and RCAF Station.

The curlers reported the ice in excellent condition and lightning fast and the hospitality beyond compare.

Sixteen rinks will compete in a mixed bonspiel at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday. Goldie Livingston is in charge of the spiel and today announced that in the nine o'clock draw rinks skipped Harold Wilkinson and Dan Cowley will tee off, also J. Turnbull of Toronto against T. Banyard of RCAF, Bill Spinelli against Dr. Jim Nelles of Quinte and Ernie Wilkinson against Charles Lovett all of Quinte.

Trade Minister,s Warning

Echoes of former Bank of Canada governor James Coyne's classic summation of this country's free-spending ways were heard in the Commons the other day.

Mr. Coyne, in the days of the last Conservative government, said Canadians were "living grandly beyond their means." In this he included the government of the country. The bank governor's views clashed with the administration's and particularly with those of Finance Minister Donald Fleming, and ultimately Mr. Coyne resigned.

Today we hear a similar warning, this time from Trade Minister Winters. While the country's economy is booming and spending and borrowing continue apace, Mr. Winters speaks of a "danger point."

He was referring to foreign borrowing and urged Canadians to keep imports within "reasonable limits." He also urged concentration on economic development at home.

Mr. Winters told the Commons it would take a long time to develop a trade surplus that would bring Canada's overall current account into balance. Running at about $1 million in 1965 ,he said it would likely show an increase this year. This, he added, raised the question of how long a country ,or a company could continue borrowing large amounts.

It was at this point that Mr. Winters alluded to the "danger point" in borrowing which both the country and individual companies would do well to avoid.

The minister reiterated the counsel of every administration in recent times. He urged "individuals, companies and governments" to bend every effort to improve exports, while keeping imports within reasonable limits "and financing in Canada as much of our development as possible."

Responsibility for Vandalism

Vandals destroy hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of public property in Canada every year, particularly in schools, park property and recreation areas.

Yet for the most part they get away with it. Even when they are caught, the damage they have caused is largely irretrievable, or at any rate must be met by the owners.

A Conservative backbencher in the Ontario House hopes to change all this. George Peck, Conservative member for Scarborough Centre has introduced a bill in the legislature to make parents pay damages of up to $100 for acts of vandalism committed by their children.

Vandalism is almost always perpetrated by young people. Often the damage is far in excess of $100, but such a measure would at least bring home to parents their responsibility when their children engage in wanton acts of this nature.

No private member's bill has been passed through the Ontario House for ten years, so Mr. Peck may have an uphill battle. However, his idea is a good one, and the House would do well to consider it carefully. Vandalism may have its roots in psychological disturbances among the young, but that is no reason why it should be countenanced or that property owners should have to foot the bill caused by others.

Guides and Centenial

Their main project is a National Heritage Camp in which some 2,000 guides from across Canada, plus representatives from other countries which have contributed to Canada's history, will take part. The guides will camp for ten days on Nairn and Morrison Islands in the St. Lawrence near Morrisburg.

As part of the overall Guides program, Guide patrols are currently being asked to write a letter to their counterparts in another province, telling about themselves. Next month visits to historical sites are scheduled. The Guides will find out all they can about the sites and submit their findings.

Brownies are being challenged to hold a pow wow to discuss traditions of a member country of the Guiding association.

Another interesting aspect of the Guides centennial program is the production of a book on the history of Guiding in Ontario by Mrs. Frank Panabaker of Ancaster. It is expected to be ready for publication in October this year.

Snow Belt,s Ordeal

If Belleville has had its share of snow in the past couple of weeks it was nothing compared with the fall in Northern New York.

The snow belt region east of Lake Ontario traditionally absorbs a heavy load of the white stuff, but this year is one of the worst in its history.

Oswego, always in the thick of winter's grip, declared a state of emergency, with all 87 miles of its streets blocked solid, some by 20 ft. drifts. The city's newspaper was unable to publish for the first time in 120 years.

Track star Bill Crothers and other Canadians returning from an indoor meet at Boston had a tough time getting home. A number of the athletes were among a group stranded for at least 24 hours in a small restaurant near Utica.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 3rd, 1946

Byron Lott, 91-year-old director of the Ontario Honey Co-operative Assoc. has retired from that position after 18 consecutive years of service on the executive. Immediately upon the announcement of his retirement he was made a member of the Dominion Beekeepers' Association.

Officials and members of the Belleville and District Branch of Hotel Assoc. and war amputations of the city expressed their appreciation of the generosity of the residents of the city and district in response to their Saturday tag day.

30 YEARS AGO

February 3rd, 1936

The temperature was 13 below zero yesterday morning, according to the registration at the city pump house.

The Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Provincial Minister of Health, was home to spend the weekend.

Mr. Robert C. Andrews retired Feb. 1st after serving as a letter carrier at the local post office. He has been a member of the staff since the mail delivery service was introduced in the city in 1913.

40 YEARS AGO

February 3rd, 1926

At the inaugural meeting of the Board of Education, John Elliott was re-elected chairman and the following chairmen of committees were appointed: finance, Arthur Jones; school management, Harry W. Ackerman; sites, buildings and repairs, Arthur McGie; printing and supplies, J. W. Cook; high school, G. B. Smith; Queen Victoria School, Col. Ed. D. O'Flynn; Queen Alexandra School, A. F. Stillman; King George School, George Sprackett; Queen Mary School, Allan Schryver; nursing committee, Mrs. Florence Boyes.

50 YEARS AGO

February 3rd, 1916

Two rinks of the Belleville Curling Club defeated two rinks from the Kingston Club in a game here and thereby won the district cup. The following composed the Belleville rinks: H. B. Stock, Morley Day, Morley P. Duff, J. W. Davison, Alfred R. Symons, A. H. Kerr, W. A. Dolan, Charles J. Symons.

The following were present at the inaugural meeting of the Board of Education: J. F. Wills, F. E. O'Flynn, Arthur McGie, L. C. Pascoe, Fred S. Deacon, T. Ed. Ketcheson, S. C. Moore, F. C. Sharpe, B. Mallory, H. Sneyd, John Elliott, A. E. Bailey, Geo. T. Woodley and W. R. McRae. B. Mallory was unanimously elected chairman for this year.

Today in History

Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, the senior Catholic bishop of Hungary, went on trial 17 years ago today—in 1949—for opposing the Communist state and taking part in a monarchist conspiracy. Before his arrest, the cardinal had warned that any "confession," which might be published would have been exacted by torture. When released from life imprisonment by the Hungarian Revolution in 1956 he described being tortured for a month before his trial took place. Since the suppression of the revolt, Cardinal Mindszenty has lived in asylum in the American Embassy in Budapest.

To Your Good Health

Are Overdoing Fear Of Serious Diseases

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

An editorial in the weekly paper of the medical society in Detroit raises a question worthy of some thought. Dr. L. E. Heideman remarks that adolescents are subject to uncertainty and anxiety about themselves but:

"It is disconcerting to see several young persons each day concerned lest they have cancer because of the presence of a mole, a sebaceous cyst, or an acne pimple which has not healed in 48 hours. This is compounded by the mother who is convinced that her child has leukemia because of the usual bumps and bruises. These are good, stable, normal people. They have been conditioned to excessive anxiety about a number of diseases . . ."

The doctor thinks that various health societies devoted to one disease or another have brought this about. These groups he agrees, are doing excellent work in helping or educating people. But are they scaring folks too much?

He adds: "As one looks at some of the literature, and particularly that associated with fund raising, it would appear that each of us should encounter at least two of the more devastating diseases in our immediate families each year."

Can't this material be scrutinized more carefully, he wonders, to avoid excessive alarm? Or as he puts it, "Let us educate for health rather than to promote hypochondriasis."

This won't be easy to do, I'm sure. For that matter, it's not always easy for a doctor to know when managing just one patient, whether to bend every effort to calming his fears, or do the opposite, in the interests of convincing him that vigorous or surgical action mustn't be postponed.

How much harder it is when the information is aimed, not at just one person, but at thousands or millions!

Perhaps the more farfetched "scare" techniques can be toned down, and produce fewer hypochondriacs. But perhaps also, the public will make some greater effort to maintain "health perspective." Don't ignore the danger signs of serious diseases, but don't jump to the conclusions that you have one without more evidence than a minor blemish.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have just been married. Can I at 41 give normal birth to a baby? Would the child be retarded because of my age? I have been told that childbirth at my age is dangerous to both mother and child. — Mrs. T. C.

Childbirth at your age is likly to be somewhat more difficult: there is some difference, percentagewise, in the number of defective children. The ideal age is in the 20's.

But it is going much too far to say that childbirth is dangerous. A great many normal, healthy youngsters are born to women in the 40's.

Being young doesn't guarantee an easy birth and a perfect baby. Being older than 40 does not guarantee the opposite. It's a matter of slight difference in percentages and that's all.

Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor said I have cysts on one ovary but doesn't think they will cause trouble. I have had pains in my back the last two months and would like to know if I should have the cysts removed. — Mrs. D. H.

Contrary to public belief, pelvic disorders such as cysts and fibroids rarely cause backache. The majority of back pains are from muscle strain, faulty posture, bone ailments or the order of arthritis or osteoporosis, or spinal disc disorders.

Leave it to your doctor to decide when, if ever, the cysts need removal —if they become enlarged or cause bleeding.

Canada Shuns Flight Films

Ottawa Journal

"Hooray for Canadian air lines" is not a phrase that rushes naturally to our lips, we having come adrift frequently enough from our baggage or been stood up one way or another by the ground ararngements that seem so inferior to the lines' conduct in the air.

But hooray for Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines for refusing to get into that nonsence of showing motion pictures in flight.

The great thing about an aircraft is that once you get on it there is nothing to do except avoid sitting beside some fool who wants to talk. A man can thump into his seat with the pleasant feeling of exhaustion that comes from knowing that anything he has forgotten can't now be remedied. He can think of the bedlam he has just left and the bedlam he is going into, but neither is here and now.

Swiss View of Quebec Awakening

Neue Zuercher Zeiting Switzerland

For one and a half centuries France and Quebec have been strangers to each other. This is no longer so.

France has rediscovered the territory it had lost in the 18th century. It intends to create a new bridgehead in Quebec for the "presence francaise" in North America.

Ottawa is obviously interested in ensuring that the new mutual rediscovery will not become a weapon in the hands of the French-speaking separatists. Therefore it is in the process of adapting its foreign policy, hitherto predominantly aligned with London and Washington, to the bilingual character of the country.

A decade ago there were no such problems.

France and Quebec at best showed indifference for each other. French-Canadians often maintained that Quebec had most of the French virtues, but none of the French faults. They considered Quebec to be the "true France", that of the 18th century.

French newcomers often were called maudits Francais. They were more readily accepted by the Anglo Canadians than by those who spoke their own language.

At that time Quebec's nationalists said the main difference between themselves and the Anglo Canadian was the latter's loyalty was split between England and Canada, while the French Canadians had broken the bonds with their mother country.

This conception had its roots in history.

From the second half of the 18th century, approximately at the time when Quebec came under British rule, to the Second World War, Britain was a world power. The Crown was the symbol of predominance over other people.

It is understandable that the Anglo Canadians saw themselves mainly as citizens of the Empire where the sun never set.

They did not consider the French Canadians to be equals. The Catholic and conservative French Canadian did not find the same support from France, which was exhausted by many lost wars and secularized by the revolution.

He found a certain compensation in his role as defender of Catholicism in a predominantly Protestant world. There fore it was in Rome that he found his mentors and not in Paris.

When English Canada remembered English war victories or the birthdays of English kings, French Canada, led by papal legates and its own bishops, commemorated the anniversaries of saints and other religious festivities as holidays.

This was changed after the last war.

The new generation of English Canadians no longer looks toward London, but rather toward Washington ,or it gets its strength, based on a rising national conscience, from Ottawa. French Canada is going through a process of secularization of daily life.

The intellectual leaders no longer get their education exclusively in Quebec's monastery schools. More and more they get it in France.

The television stations exchange programs with France. Politicians who have not been on a pilgrimage to Paris are considered to be insignificant and provincial.

Since France has rediscovered her grown-up daughter, it participates to a large extent in her development. Therefore it bears much responsibility in finding a reasonable way for all to live together in harmony.

Lone Traveller

Beverly Gray in The Globe and Mail

Many single women never dream of taking a holiday trip alone. If they can't find a friend to go along, they just don't go.

There are others who always go alone, such as the Englishwoman, aged at least 70, having tea in a New Delhi hotel; her cane was propped beside her. "How on earth do you manage?" I asked, visions of luggage, tickets, airports at 4 a.m. buzzing through my brain. She looked at me as though I was a bit simple.

"But my dear," she said, "after all, one always does manage."

Ottawa Offbeat

As Minister of State Judy Will Still Enjoy Limelight

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "Poor Judy," they've been sighing in sympathy, "the mean old Prime Minister's given her the business."

And so, for a fact, he has.

But not the kind of "business" most people mistakenly seem to think.

For when Miss Judy LaMarsh got caught up in the Liberal Cabinet reorganization and was shuffled from National Health and Welfare to become Secretary of State, it was scarcely the demotion that so many "MP-Watchers" — some people watch birds, others peer at politicians — appeared to regard it.

La Judy in her nearly three years as Minister of National Health and Welfare ran her Department amid always considerable and sometimes uproarious controversy.

And so she made perhaps more than her fair share of detractors.

"Ah ha," they chortled when the Prime Minister switched her to the Secretary of State Department, "she's getting her lumps at last, being shunted to the sidelines."

Well, lumps she may indeed be going to get — but shifted to the shelf?

Some shelf!

As Health and Welfare Minister, La Judy could be counted on to stir up a storm with dependable regularity.

DIEF TAMER

She did it by speaking her mind.

And to heck with the diplomatic pleasantries.

She was the only Liberal in the Commons who was more than a match for John Diefenbaker, and likely still is, even with all those brave new recruits.

He didn't scare her as he did so many others on the Government side of the House.

Maybe for no other reason than that she is a woman and treated him something like a tart-tongued mother lecturing a mischievous small boy.

She even scolded him.

He couldn't with chivalry tongue-lash her back, for she was a woman — although "no lady," he grumbled on one distracted occasion — so there was really nothing he could do but sit there and fume in frustration.

Then she got into a slanging match with Ontario Premier John Robarts, and only the other premiers know what kind of strips she tore off them behind the closed and guarded doors of Federal-Provincial Conferences.

While having someone who could scratch like Judy was just dandy for the Prime Minister in one way, in another it did cause complications, so he switched her to a department where perhaps her claws could do the most good.

Anybody — lady or not — who can make Dief stand around, must be pretty formidable.

And the PM had just the spot for that very special sort of talent.

IN FOR A SHOCK

It was the Secretary of State Department which must cope—or at least try to, not always successfully — with those highly-strung, creative, imaginative and sensitive types who run the routinely controversial Federal "Cultural" agencies.

They're the Brass (high in style) Hats of the CBC, the Film Board, the Broadcast Governors' Centennial Commission, Canada Council, National Performing Arts Centre, Museum, National Gallery and other such agencies of cultural aspiration which seem to so resent what they customarily appear to regard as the crass interference of those disgustingly unenlightened types, the politicians in Parliament who usually want only to know how these hundreds of millions they provide, courtesy of the taxpayers, are being spent.

No other Cabinet Minister — in any administration, Pearson's, Dief's, St. Laurent's or even King's — has ever managed to ride herd on these, what, in any other place than the National Capital, likely would be known as administrative prima donnas.

'For isn't CBC always in an uproar? The National Gallery creating problems? The Centennial Commission in a snit? The Canada Council in a spat?

Well, maybe things are going to be different with Judy running the store. Perhaps she can make them jump through Parliament's hoops. But it is not going to be easy. And even for Judy it will be no rest cure.

LaMarsh demoted? Shunted to the sidelines? Stuck on the shelf?

She's just beginning to scratch.

Foreign Doctors

Peterborough Examiner

It is extremely doubtful that either the Canadian or the Ontario Medical Association practises racial discrimination against doctors educated at foreign medical schools. But their refusal to allow such doctors even to write examinations which could qualify them for general practitioner's licences, is hard to justify.

Strictly Personal

Children Abhor Deceit

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Are those who have lived before us 'older" than we or "younger" than we? They are "older" in that they lived and died before us, but they are "younger" in that they came before us and did not know all that we know — including our knowledge of them.

A mania for collecting objects such as shells or stamps is a harmless sort of greed, and keeps many a man from more mischievous enterprises, such as collecting scalps or hearts.

One reason we Americans speak and write our own language so poorly is that we are not acquainted with any other language; as Goethe observed, "Wer fremde Sprachen nicht kennt, weis nichts von seiner eigenen." ("He who knows no foreign tongue knows nothing of his own.")

When a child sees his father engage in a deceit that is successful, this experience makes a deeper and more lasting impression on the child than all the Sunday School sermons he hears in a year, for all children tend much more to believe what they see than what they hear.

Europeans who charge us with being "materialistic" don't even understand the meaning of the word, they are far more materialistic than Americans, for we have a greater faith in abstractions than any other people.

A second-rate writer plagiarizes from others; a first-rate writer eventually begins to plagiarize from himself, merely changing the forms of his original thoughts — and, if he is not careful ending as a pretentious parody of himself.

"War," said Winston Churchill, "is little more than a catalogue of mistakes and misfortunes" — yet each time a country begins a fresh war, it envelops itself in the delusion that this one will be unlike all the others.

People who stare at other parties in restaurants or at the occupants of passing cars are not being merely rude — they suspect that others are enjoying themselves more and are searching for the secret, either wistfully or enviously.

The most essential trait for survival and equanimity in the modern world is the ability to tolerate ambiguity, to live comfortably with the tension generated by opposite ideas that cannot be resolved or suppressed. (A condition which all extremists, by their very nature, are unable to accept.)

People used to believe that insanity was a form of evil; now we believe that evil is a form of insanity: the excess of moralism has been overcompensated by an excess of psychologism.

Belleville Livestock

Trade was active and prices stronger on all classes of livestock on offer for sale Tuesday. Sale of fat steers and heifers were stronger. Good cows were stronger, common and medium cows were strong. Choice veal calves were stronger, common and medium calves were actively steady. Weaned pigs were stronger and shoats were steady. There was a strong demand for good springers with common and medium heifers selling active.

Following are quotations:

MAY RETARD ECONOMY

VANCOUVER (CP) —Shortages of skilled labor may result in retarding the expansion of the Canadian economy unless measures are taken, the chairman of the Economic Council of Canada said Wednesday. Dr. J. J. Deutsch of Ottawa told the annual meeting of the Canadian Construction Association the council expects demands will exceed the supply of management, professional and more technically skilled labor during the next five years.

Issue Warrant for Psychology Teacher On Charge of Uttering Forged Papers

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — No one is certain who or where the psychology teacher is, but a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

The warrant was issued Wednesday for the arrest of Ronald David MacDonald, charging him with uttering forged documents.

Police said the man sought also is known as David George Macdonald, who was suspended Monday as a psychology teacher at the Lakehead University while pending a check of his professional credentials.

At the same time, reports came from Antigonish, N. S., that Macdonald might be the same man who posed as a psychologist there three years ago under the name William Clifford Anderson.

Suppositions that Macdonald might be Ferdinand Waldo Demara, the great imposter, were termed impossible by Demara's biographer, Robert Crichton.

AREN'T CONNECTED

Crichton, who wrote The Great Imposter, a chronicle of Demara's adventures as an impersonator, said in an interview in New York there "is no association between them at all."

"I have been in touch with Fred Demara constantly during the last three years and he has reformed, to the best of my knowledge. He is now a minister. I think he is with the Church of Christ in Rosemead in the Los Angeles area of California."

However, the Toronto Globe and Mail says a check with Rev. Robert Hanson, pastor of the church at Rosemead, brought a denial that Demara had ever been there.

"I've been here six years and I've never heard of this man Demara," Mr. Hanson was quoted as saying in a telephone interview.

The man who called himself David George Macdonald came to Lakehead University in 1963. In addition to teaching psychology, he became president of the Thunder Bay Retarded Children's Association, worked with the Lakehead Alcohol Addiction Clinic at St. Joseph's Hospital rehabilitation centre and was a member of the Port Arthur board of education.

SUSPENDED PENDING INVESTIGATION — David MacDonald, an assistant professor of psychology at Lakehead University, has been suspended from the faculty pending an investigation of his credentials. MacDonald joined the Fort William, Ont., university in 1963. The Toronto Globe and Mail, in a copywright story, says MacDonald is a fake who obtained copies of degrees belonging to David George McDonald, a psychology professor at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo. (CP Photo)

FOLLOWS CHECKS

He was suspended by University President W. G. Tamblyn following two days of telephone checks with various colleges and universities in the United States.

Mr. Tamblyn said the university received a letter Jan. 21 from David George McDonald, a psychology professor at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo., from which Macdonald claimed to have graduated. The letter asked Lakehead University to investigate a possible fraud.

Mr. McDonald said Wednesday in an interview in Columbia that a Dr. Tuck, secretary of the Ontario Psychological Association, advised him last December there was a possibility someone might be impersonating him.

The executive secretary of the Ontario Psychological Association is Dr. James Tuck of Toronto.

Mr. Tamblyn said the university began an investigation and the results, indicating certain irregularities may have occurred in Macdonald's application, were sent to the Crown atorney Jan. 25.

IS ASSOCIATE

Macdonald held the position of associate professor of psychology at an annual salary of $9,500. he had assumed full-time teaching duties in 1964, although university officials said he was never a member of the permanent staff.

Mr. Tamblyn said examinations marked this year by Macdonald were checked by university officials and found to be correctly marked.

"Students need not worry about their credits under this man," he said.

In Toronto, J. R. McCarthy, deputy minister of university affairs, said no provincial investigation will be held. Universities run their own affairs, he said.

The report that Macdonald may have worked in Antigonish as a psychology professor early in 1963 came from a spokesman for St. Francis Xavier university, which dismissed a man early that year.

HAS GOOD FILE

A husky personable man, Dr. Anderson had an impressive file of credentials and taught freshmen psychology at St. Francis Xavier for about 2½ months. He also worked as a psychologist at a mental clinic in Antigonish from which he was dismissed at the same time.

Dr. Anderson aroused suspicion even among students because he often skipped difficult passages in psychology texts, the Antigonish spokesman said.

Wayne Gartley, a former psychology student at St. Francis Xavier and now a research psychologist for the RCAF in Toronto, said he believes Anderson and Macdonald are the same man. He arrived at the conclusion after seeing photographs in newspapers.

Report Suggests

$400. The report says that with the money saved by other assistance programs, the net cost of this would be about $100,000,000 a year.

The conditions for eligibility apart from age, would be 10 years' residence in Canada and that net cash income from all sources be below the suggested minimums. Applicants would merely fill out a "simplified tax return" and there would be "sample checks" from time to time to curb abuses.

There would be no means test. Of this, the committee said:

"It avoids the indignity of the needs test to which we should not like to see several hundred thousand retired people subjected, and further it provides the most effective means we have discovered of correcting the present inequity in our treatment of the already-retired and the about-to-be retired. . . ."

The report noted that those already retired do not benefit from the Canada Pension Plan and those now 70 do not benefit from the lower qualifying age for old-age security payments.

The report adds: "Any suggestion that these older people, when the $75 pension is not sufficient, should be expected to depend for supplementation on public assistance after a needs test is utterly unacceptable."

MUST BE USEFUL

Throughout the report, the committee makes repeated reference to its objective of helping older people maintain themselves productively within the framework of an over-all community.

"While health and welfare measures are important, there must be the positive aim of creating greater opportunity for older people to lead satisfying lives and to continue as useful members of society."

Improving the economic position of the aged presented "a serious challenge."

The committee found that 38.5 per cent of Canadian males between 65 and 69 had incomes below $1,500 a year. For females the percentage was 85. At age 70, the percentage of males with incomes below that level rose to 60.6, while the female percentage was 84.7.

The report said these figures include married women supported by husbands and it added:

> "The real problem . . . seems to be the widowed and divorced women of which, in 1961, there were 287,000 over 65."

A study of job vacancies showed that almost 100 per cent of them were closed to workers aged 65 and over, 97.6 per cent were closed to those over 55 and 88.4 per cent were closed to workers over 45.

In the light of this, the committee suggested that the National Employment Service lead a drive to educate employers on the value of so-called older workers.

The report said the NES "is convinced that much of (the reluctance to hire older workers) is due to the general tendency in our society . . . to underestimate the capabilities of people beyond middle life."

In 1950, the report says, 40.4 per cent of men over 65 were in the labor force, while in 1963 the percentage dropped to 26.3. The committee said this decline is due partly to "a reduction in their need to work." And another reason could be "a persistent and discouraging lack of employment."

PROGRAM FAILED

More emphasis should be placed on the training of older workers, the report says. The federal - provincial manpower technical and vocational training program had not been a great success.

"Not only has enrolment been low, but drop-outs have equalled completions. It is apparent that retraining of the unemployed has made very little progress.

"A more realistic approach should be taken toward education itself. Training should be based not only on the skills required but on the characteristics of the trainees themselves."

The committee recommended establishment of a national council on social research because it was "disturbed by the lack in Canada of any careful evaluation studies of programs for the financial support and care of older people in which large commitments of public funds are involved."

It found that in areas of housing, income and health care decisions are made without complete information.

Speaker Stresses Importance Of Research at Annual Cancer Society Meeting

By RETA LAWRENCE

"This is a wonderful time to be living – so many things are happening in the field of communications, space travel and medical research."

These were the opening remarks of Mr. Maurice J. Grimes, executive director Ontario Division of the Canadian Cancer Society. Mr. Grimes was guest speaker at the third annual dinner meeting of the Society held in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte on Wednesday evening. After a social hour approximately 70 guests sat down to dinner.

Mr. E. E. Follwell, Q. C., president of the Belleville Unit, presided. Following grace by Mr. Les Lennox, Mr. Follwell introduced the head table guests Mrs. Shirley Woodcox, treasurer; Mr. A. M. Jones, Marmora; Mrs. G. R. Lunman, Gananoque, Director of Women's Services; Group Captain W. Schroeder, Ottawa, campaign manager for eastern Ontario; Mr. E. E. Follwell; Mr. Maurice Grimes, Toronto; Mayor and Mrs. J. Ellis; Mr. Max Lush, Deseronto; Mrs. G. Fraser, Tweed; Mr. Len Babcock, Brockville, district president of publicity and education.

Mayor Ellis brought greetings from the City of Belleville. He has acted as industrial chairman during the appeal of 1965. Mrs. Lunman also spoke briefly welcoming all those present.

PAYS TRIBUTE

Tribute was paid by the president to The Intelligencer and station C.J.B.Q. for their help and co-operation; to Mrs. Shirley Woodcox and Mrs. Ruth Follwell for organizing this dinner meeting; to Mr. James Corradi for his delightful piano stylings during the evening, and to the members of the executive of the Belleville Unit as well as all those dedicated people who have worked so hard to make the Belleville Unit such a great success. "Without your continued help,' he said, "we cannot render assistance to every cancer patient in this area. We hope that in our 1966 appeal we will have the same general response from the willing volunteers and all citizens who, in the past, have contributed their time, talents and money. One of our problems is that we do not reach enough people because we are not cognizant of all those who need our services."

CITATION OF MERIT

On behalf of the Canadian Cancer Society Mr. Follwell presented a Citation of Merit to radio station C.J.B.Q. in recognition of the services rendered by the station in the interests of the Society's appeals for funds and the education of people in cancer control. Mr. Frank Murray, manager, accepted the honor.

INTRODUCES SPEAKER

Group Captain W. Schroeder introduced the guest speaker. Mr. Grimes is well known throughout Canada and internationally for his work in the field of cancer.

"The work that is being done by the C.C.S.," Mr. Grimes said "is, I firmly believe, the bulwark and cornerstone of democracy. Man's humanity to man will always make the difference between democracy and totalitarianism.

"We must continue research to find the cause of and the cure for cancer. A new research centre will be a reality at Queen's University soon, and this year the Society expects to build a lodge near Kingston General Hospital where ambulatory patients can live while undergoing treatment."

FEAR DISEASE

"The responsibility of the public and the Canadian Cancer Society is to help deflate cancer-phobia. Because people fear this disease they are reticent to see their doctors before it is too late. Many types of cancer can be prevented and many can be halted by timely diagnosis. Many of the greatest human beings have had cancer. Perhaps many are great because of the one moment when they looked their Creator in the eye and said "This is it."

"No disease in the history of mankind has been subjected to more research than this disease. I am proud to be working with such a group as the Cancer Society. Anyone who helps another man to live his life more abundantly is doing the work of God. None is too rich to receive and none too poor to give. You make a living by what you get but you make a life by what you give."

Mrs. Shirley Woodcox thanked the speaker and presented him with a gift in appreciation.

The meeting was opened for a discussion period during which Mr. Grimes described in detail the functions of Princess Margaret Hospital, and Lodge.

Canadian Club Enjoys Travelogue of Far North

An Arctic expert and noted author told a Canadian Club audience last night that "We Canadians are not really prepared yet to have the north belong to us".

"We prefer to have the far north remain a romantic land of mystery, but we must make it our own. We have to take an interest in the Arctic and develop its resources before someone else does," Douglas Wilkinson warned listeners at Sir Winston Churchill School. His topic was "A future for the Canadian Arctic — fact versus fantasy."

A self-confessed victim of "Arctic fever," Mr. Wilkinson divides his time between his homes in Ottawa and in Yellowknife, N.W.T. When not making films of primitive Eskimo life for an American educational foundation, he writes and lectures on his Arctic adventures in an effort to acquaint southern Canadians with their unknown northland. In his book, "Land of the Long Day," Mr. Wilkinson recounted his experiences in 1953, the year he lived as the adopted son of an Eskimo hunter on North Baffin Island.

PATTERN OF CHANGE

"Today the pattern of change is sweeping the Arctic," the speaker said. "New school and nursing stations are being built in the far north and the settlements are growing in size. Since 1953 my Eskimo 'father' has become an instructor at an RCAF survival school at Resolute Bay. One of his daughters now lives in Quebec City where she teaches Eskimo to teachers preparing to go to the Arctic. A son has become the first Eskimo constable in the RCMP. In one generation the Eskimo is doing what it took Europeans centuries to accomplish. He has jumped from a stone age culture to modern civilization."

"Most Eskimos are living in a period of transition. At one time they lived in constant fear of starvation and their highest aim in life was to have full stomachs. Now, it is impossible for an Eskimo to starve to death. Within the next ten or 15 years we will see the disappearance of the old Eskimo hunter and the emergence of a new Arctic Canadian. He will have Eskimo blood in his veins, but he will want to live as we do and will be dependant on a

"As a romantic, I deplore the passing of this old way of life. But we have changed the Eskimo's culture and now there is no turning back. The Eskimo loves his treeless tundra and wants to stay in his homeland. Within five or ten years the Arctic's biggest export will be people, unless we develop basic industries in the north which will employ native labor."

Mr. Wilkinson said research and exploration has proved that vast natural resources of gold, nickel, copper, oil and iron ore lie buried under the perma-frost. They are hard to get at, costly to get out, and not yet needed on world markets. The speaker doubted if in all of Canada there were sufficient funds to develop enough northern basic industries to employ all Eskimo youths.

"The easy way out is to send all the children to the south, and abandon the north for others to move into," Mr. Wilkinson said, "On the other hand, if our government provides incentives and assistance to private industrial developers we will gain in the long run."

URGES DEVELOPMENT

"Soon everyone in southern Canada will have to think about our north country in a different way. I propose that we look upon the Arctic Ocean as a northern Mediterranean Sea, and develop our Arctic region as an international project in co-operation with Russia, Japan, Norway, Denmark and other countries bordering this ocean. If we look to the United States alone for assistance we will find ourselves a junior partner without much say in the matter."

"We must have a national northern development policy to provide a vital economy for the whole Arctic area," Mr. Wilkinson emphasized. Only then can we say for certain, as the map shows us now, that Canada is as tall a country as it is broad."

To illustrate his lecture, Mr. Wilkinson showed slides of a recent expedition to Pelly Bay. There he recorded the story of an Eskimo family's summer trek to an inland river to catch and store Arctic char as insurance against starvation during the winter.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. J. G. Demeza and thanked by Mr. Enos David. Pianist for the evening was

Examiner Addresses Music Teachers

The government registered music teachers of the Belleville area recently had a splendid session with Mr. Court Stone of the Royal Conservatory as guest speaker.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. T.F. Townsend at 8.15 p.m. the president, Miss Marjorie Woodard welcomed the teachers. After conducting a brief business period, the president called on Mr. Gregory Butler to introduce Mr. Court Stone, who was conducting piano examinations in the city.

Mr. Stone, a widely recognized pianist, theorist, writer, conductor and examiner for the Royal Conservatory, gave the branch members many highlights on examination procedure. He also introduced several new numbers of his own compositions which will be included in the new syllabus for various grades.

Mr. Stone was thanked by Mrs. T. F. Townsend, and Mrs. K. Rennie spoke for all present in thanking the hostess.

Chefs Design Fine Exhibits For Salon

MONTREAL (CP) — One of the most unusual and elaborate exhibits at the grand culinary salon at Montreal's show mart shows the volution of cooking in Quebec during the last 400 years.

Designed and made by chefs working in hotels owned by the Quebec government, the five separate displays were surrounded by dishes made from recipes gathered from old cook books or culled from historical archives.

The first display was an old fort, about two feet in diameter, a copy of one from Samuel de Champlain's era. Arranged around its base were dishes of the period, including a pumpkin pie and trout wrapped in bacon.

The 18th century display was dominated by a settler's log cabin. Its dishes included a large, golden puff of homemade bread made with potato water.

A copy of a Canadian farmhouse marked the 19th century, and another of a suburban home represented the end of a space-age city.

All exhibits at the annual event are edible as well as being works of art. They have been created by chefs from leading hotels and restaurants in the province, who have gone all out in competing for the silver and bronze medals bestowed on the best entries.

BATHROOM COUNTS

MONTREAL (CP) — People are coming to realize the importance of the bathroom as part of a home's decor, says designer Patricia Firlott. One of her recent assignments was to plan seven bathrooms in a single home and "in most of today's new homes there are at least one and a half bathrooms."

St. Julien Chapter Will Present Concert Orchestra

This coming Monday, the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra will be heard at BCI auditorium under the auspices of the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. Guest artists will be Robert and Hazelanne Reid.

Members of the orchestra come from Batawa, Belleville, Brighton, Campbellford, Colborne, Foxboro, Frankford, Havelock, Stirling and Trenton. The orchestra, formed in December 1960, is conducted by Stephen Choma, aided by Marion Stratton, lead violinist.

Stephen Choma, conductor of the orchestra, was born in Montreal of Czechoslovak parents. He attended Tillsonburg High School at which he formed a school orchestra at the age of 19. Later he joined the London Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Choma received six years of training at the Royal Conservatory of music in Toronto under Professor Defeff. The violin he plays was smuggled out of Czechoslovakia after the war and was made in Italy in 1780 by Giovanni Fiorilal Farrara.

Guest artists Robert and Hazelanne Reid are residents of Belleville. Mr. Reid is director of Bridge Street United Church choir where Mrs. Reid is soprano soloist. Both studied at the Royal Conservatory of Music and performed with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and Toronto Mendelssohn Choir.

This evening of fine music will offer much listening pleasure to those who appreciate a good performance.

Dinner Menus by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

SUNDAY

OLD-FASHIONED SPLIT PEA SOUP) (at least 12 servings)

1 pound dry green or yellow split peas,
10 to 12 cups water,
¼ cup chopped onion (or 2 tablespoons bottled instant chopped onion),
½ cup chopped celery and tops,
¼ to ½ lb. fat salt pork chopped,
1½ to 2 teaspoons salt,
¼ teaspoon pepper,
1 bay leaf crumbled.

Pick over and soak the split peas in 4 cups of the cold water overnight. Cut off and discard the rind from the salt pork and chop pork small and add it and 6 cups cold water and all remaining ingredients to soaked peas and cook covered 3 hours stirring occasionally. Taste. If its thick texture pleases you serve it as is. If not you may add 2 cups water and a chicken bouillon cube to thin it down and to extend it, bringing it to boiling again. These amounts will serve at least 12 people. Store leftovers in covered jars in refrigerator.

Pea soup makes a very economical meal. For lunches or suppers serve it with buttered toast and a plateful of cubes of Cheddar cheese. It could be cooking while you are out if you have it on "simmer". Furthermore, if you made up my recipe for Muffin Mix given here on Monday you could mix up and bake a batch of muffins and serve them with this soup for a very quick supper.

Doctors Face Dilemma When Teeners Seek Pill

TORONTO (CP)—Doctors are faced with a dilemma when it comes to giving oral contraceptives to teen-agers, a psychiatrist and a general practitioner said during a panel discussion Wednesday night.

Dr. Stanley Freeman of Toronto told a meeting of the Doctors Hospital women's auxiliary that when a 16-year-old asks for the pill she is probably promiscuous and she is probably doing this without her parents' permission.

"It seems a doctor is condoning her action if he fills the request.

"If you don't give her the pill, she will become an unwed mother and society is not yet ready to cope with this problem. It is a real dilemma."

Dr. Sidney Wax, a Toronto general practitioner, said a doctor must accept the responsibility of studying and evaluating the effect on society of the sexual freedom that has come with birth control.

He said pre-marital sex among teen-agers, according to a study in England, is more common than had been believed.

"Our culture may not survive if each person—physician, politician and scientist—fails to recognize the need to see this new freedom in its full ethical and moral sense," he said.

QUEEN VICTORIA SCHOOL

Tape recordings of children's voices illustrated the talk given by Miss Phyllis May, supervisor of music for Belleville Public schools, at Queen Victoria Home and School Association meeting on Tuesday.

By the grade 2 level, Miss May explained training was aimed at developing each child's musical voice awareness. Simple sight-reading, she said is started in grade 3.

Enthusiasm amongst the children is keen in the later stages of development. It is in grades 6 - 8 that the ground work for harmony and voice blending is laid.

Mr. W. Coveney, president, was chairman of the meeting.

Conflicting Views on Discount Air Travel

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am shocked at your heartless attitude toward our servicemen. I refer to the sailor's aunt who wrote that her nephew had to wait at the airport several hours before boarding a plane and was then bumped by a first class passenger.

I could hardly believe my eyes when I read your answer: "The airlines and the armed services have worked out the best possible plan to transport the most people at the lowest rates." As if that weren't bad enough, you went on to say that the only way a serviceman can be sure of hanging on to his seat is to forego the military discount and pay the full commercial fare.

It's too bad that you are so far removed from the problems of little people that you are unable to sympathize with them. I'll bet every mother who has a boy in the service would like to snatch you bald for your snobbish reply. — PROUD PEASANT.

DEAR PROUD: You can be sure I received a bale of mail on the letter from "Auntie," but a surprising number of readers thought the woman was out of line and said so. Here is a letter which expresses what I believe is a valid point of view.

DEAR ANN: I, too, have a nephew in the service. I feel the airlines are performing a real service by offering men and women in uniform a generous travel bargain.

"Bitter Aunt" said that service people are privileged characters and should be accorded special treatment instead of getting "kicked around." She is right. They are privileged characters and they are treated as such. No other group gets to travel for half fare any place in the U. S. and Canada 365 days out of the year.

My nephew is a Marine in Viet Nam. I can assure you he'd be delighted to have the chance to come home, even if it meant sitting around for several hours in several airports before he could get a homebound plane. — ANOTHER AUNT.

DEAR AUNT: I hope you enjoy this next letter from a lieutenant Colonel. I did.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm an officer who travels on the military discount and appreciates the privilege. Something happened to me recently which I think shows the lighter side as well as the democratic side of the airline's treatment of service people.

As you know, servicemen travel at half fare, on a stand-by basis — first come, first served. This means that the unsold seat goes to the first service man on the spot.

Several weeks ago I arrived at the Los Angeles airport bright and early bound for Dallas. I got a tourist seat in the last row. An enlisted man (and a friend of mine) arrived minutes before the take-off. By that time the tourist section was all filled up so he was given a seat in the luxury section.

Pete said he cried all the way to Dallas thinking of me back in the tourist section while he drank his two scotches and ate his lobster cocktail and filet mignon — with champagne yet. And he didn't pay one penny more than I did. — S.A.G. LT.-COL. U.S.A.

ST. THOMAS W. A.

St. Thomas evening branch of the Woman's Auxiliary held its annual meeting in the Parish House, when annual reports were presented.

A bale was sent to Unity, Saskatchewan and another was sent to Moosonee, Saskatchewan. A donation was made to have a child sent to Camp Hyanto during the summer. Social Service secretary, Mrs. W. Stone reported making visits to the hospital and cards and a rose bowl were sent out to the sick and shut-in members.

The following officers were installed for the year 1966: president, Mrs. L. Tapp; vice-president, Mrs. A. Athey; secretary, Mrs. H. Hurst; treasurer, Mrs. L. Donly; Dorcas secretary, Mrs H Smith; social service secretary, Mrs. W. Stone; extra cent a day treasurer, Mrs M. Smith.

OTTAWA (CP) — There is a need for much greater education and availability of literature on sex, two psychologists said Wednesday night. Dr. F. R. Amazingly enough, Mattie, there is a 69 cent spray bomb on the market that my hardware man says is made especially for covering such items as plastic radios. I've sent you the trade name in the mail. So if it's grey you really pine for, then it's goodbye beige! — SUSANNA

TRICK WITH TAPE

Dear Susanna: Many of us have aluminum edging around the counter tops in the kitchen which leaves a black streak across the front of every apron.

Enough was enough. I bought an adhesive tape from a large hardware outlet that comes in an assortment of kitchen colors. It is slightly narrower than the edging, but the idea is to place it carefully along the top of the aluminum — one doesn't lean against the lower part.

It is not noticeable and lasts for ages and ages and now I have no more streaked aprons. — D. E. G.

Most Roads In District Now Open

NAPANEE — Life is gradually getting back to normal in the Napanee - Deseronto district, but it will be a long time before people can travel as easily as they could the first part of last month, lauded as "the warmest January in history".

Schools on the Reserve opened Wednesday for the first since the storm and some are still closed in Camden Township. The snowplows themselves were snowed in there, and so they are a day behind in getting the roads opened up. Some schools that are open have only a small attendance, as some side roads and laneways are still impassable.

Roads are a lot harder to clear after this last storm than they were the week before. At first it was a matter of shoving off soft snow. This time the snow is packed solid, the work is much slower, and plows are not able to take the punishment. Breakdowns are being reported every day.

February 2 offered one consolation. The ground hog could not possibly see his shadow because he couldn't get out from under all that snow. So that means the district is not threatened with six weeks more winter.

Or does it?

Storm Cancels Plans for Teachers' Visit

NAPANEE — Friday is Professional Development Day for the teachers of the Napanee District Secondary School, with teachers visiting other schools to observe the methods of teaching their own particular subjects.

Teachers of French and Latin in this school had planned to visit the schools in Syracuse. Wednesday, however, they were forced to make a change of plan. They received word from Syracuse that their schools would not yet be opened Friday because of the storm over last weekend. Many roads are still blocked.

No alternative plan has yet been made.

Will Promote County Library

NAPANEE — Meeting Tuesday evening, members of the County Library Board discussed the procedure to follow in trying to promote a true county library. So far only feeble steps have been taken, and the members are not certain what the next step should be. Everything must be carefully done.

They are hoping to see the day when all libraries of the county will unite, with one central library serving as a distributing point for all the others. Provincial grants to small libraries are being reduced, and possibly will cease entirely. It is in anticipation of that day that the Board is now making plans.

Circulation is down, the librarian reported. This is due to the blocked roads, she believed, as 46 members are outside the town limits. The reduction was most noticeable on the last two Mondays.

Volunteers Run School For Retarded

NAPANEE — The Lennox and Addington Association for Mentally Retarded meeting in the Memorial Building Tuesday evening, saw a lengthy film which dwelt on the fact that mental retardation is sometimes the result of the inability of the child to digest certain properties in milk. When the diet is corrected, the child will develop into a normal adult.

As the film took most of the evening, there is little else to report. Plans for the forthcoming financial campaign to raise funds to build a school were touched on, and a bake sale will be held, with the date not yet decided.

Representatives of the Association are to meet the Town Council Monday evening with respect to the proposed school for the retarded which they hope to open September in the old Slash Road School. They hope to lease the school from the Richmond school area.

Meanwhile, the nursery school continues to operate each Tuesday and Thursday from 9 to 10 a.m., in the basement of Trinity United Church. It is a godsend to mothers who are tied down all the rest of the week, in addition to giving the little ones a chance to play with others, and to learn a little each day. For example, the teachers considered it a notable victory, when at the end of a week, one child had learned that his coat belonged on a certain hook.

THREE NURSES ON STAFF

The five teachers are all volunteers, and three are trained nurses. They are Mrs. Bernice Pringle, Mrs. James Miller and Mrs. Phyllis Dawson. Mrs. Dorothy Dawson is a teacher and Mrs. Gerald Benn is an interested housewife. All are not there each day.

The program is the same each day, but the content of the periods vary. There is first a free play time, and then a rest period. Each child brings his own blanket and is served cookies and fruit juice. Next comes a games period, usually with records, when the little ones learn to co-operate and to coordinate. Toilet training follows, with each child being taught how to wash himself. Then the morning is over.

The Association was formed only in April, but has already accomplished much. Many of the members have only normal children, but are public spirited enough to realize that the problem of educating these children should not be left just to their parents. It is everybody's business, they believe.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

BROWNIE DESSERT PARTY

NAPANEE — Members of the local association of Guides were hostesses Monday evening to the three Brownie packs and their mothers for a dessert party in Trinity United Church.

Mrs. G. Murray Dean president of the association welcomed the guests and each pack in turn provided entertainment for the adults.

Pack No. 3, with Miss Lily Jean Rombough as Brown Owl, Miss Margaret Pugh as Tawny Owl and Packie Mary Alice Paul, performed a spirited square dance.

Pack No 2, led by Brown Owl Mrs. El Cockburn, and Packies Judy Cockburn, Helen Belaire and Nancy Owen, sang a song and performed a folk dance.

Pack No. 1, with Brown Owl Mrs. Werk Poole, Tawny Owl Mrs. Ed Hooper and Packies Cathy Alkenbrack, Nancy Poole and Heather Dean as leaders, announced that their number was 'for the birds". They sang a bird song, and then, donning fearsome bird beaks, performed a dance.

Led by Miss Rombough, all the Brownies united in singing some of their songs, and the Brownie grace.

TOADSTOOL THEME FOR DECORATIONS

The desert was served buffet style, with chocolate milk for the girls, and coffee for their mothers, who sat around small tables. All the decorations were in Brownie colors, brown and orange, and used Brownie symbols. The coffee table was centred by a toadstool made by one of the Brown Owls too modest to allow her name to be used. Around it were four arrangements similar to those which centred each small table. Small brownies were grouped about a miniature toadstool, all set among tiny cattails and flowers, with here and there a brown owl.

Refreshments enjoyed, awards were presented by Mrs. James Belaire, district commissioner. To three girls went the coveted golden hands award, the top achievement in the Brownie program. Winning this award were Elizabeth Bateman, Donna McDonald, and Debbie Hart. To Joan Barrett went an award for swimming.

Social conveners for the event were Mrs. Frank Hamilton and Mrs. James Maloney. Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Pat Calnan poured coffee.

Mrs. Dean warmly thanked all who had helped in making the evening such an enjoyable one, and the Brownies joined in the grand howl and the singing of Taps, bringing their year's most important social event to a close.

jobless, paying them to work in local hospitals, schools, police departments and other "useful community enterprises." It urged that 500,000 jobs be provided initially at a first-year cost of about $2,000,000,000 with the program expanding steadily during a five-year period.

—Every young American should be offered free education for two years after graduation from high school. Students would move on to community colleges or vocational schools.

—Blue collar workers who now are paid hourly when they work should be paid regular salaries, like white collar employees, so they would have greater stability of income and additional fringe benefits.

Defy Law

Pickets Snowball Sheriff Reading Court Injunction

OSHAWA (CP)—A crowd of 1,000 union pickets threw snowballs, jeered and tore up a court injunction limiting picketing at the strikebound Oshawa Times after it was read by an Ontario county sheriff Wednesday night.

No charges were laid, but Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said later in Toronto the incidents were in open defiance of the law and the province would stand behind local authorities in steps to combat such action.

"The sheriff should take steps to find the person responsible and see that he is dealt with," Mr. Wishart said. "We don't condone that type of action for a moment. The dignity and force of the law is entitled to be respected."

The picket line circled The Times building as Sheriff Morton Bain arrived to read the injunction. Earlier, a mass meeting attended by David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor (CLC), had endorsed a decision to defy the injunction, issued Monday in Toronto.

The injunction limited the number of pickets to 10—four at the front door and three at each of two other entrances to The Times building.

A picket line has prevented publication of the newspaper, the city's only daily, since last Thursday, when the 36-member Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild (CLC) went on strike at The Times, owned by the Thomson Newspaper Ltd. group. Printers and pressmen have not crossed the picket lines.

PELTED WITH SNOWBALLS

Protected by police, Mr. Bain was pelted with snowballs while reading the court order and some pickets jeered. As he reached the end of the order, it was snatched from his hands and ripped.

Mr. Archer, who was on the picket line, had pledged the support of the 500,000-member Ontario Labor Federation at the earlier meeting.

During the meeting, Clifford Pilkey, president of the Oshawa and District Labor Council, read a reply to a telegram received earlier in the day from Elmer Brown, president of the International Typographical Union (CLC), instructing printers at The Times to cross the picket lines and report for work.

The ITU has deserted the rest of the labor movement, providing comfort and support for the company, Mr. Pilkey said.

The striking guild unit, representing editorial, circulation, business office, advertising and maintenance employees, is seeking its second contract with the newspaper. It has asked for a $20 salary increase in most classifications and job security provisions in the event of technological change.

The Times has offered a 2½-year contract retroactive to last July 1 and including a $10 weekly salary increase in three stages.

Starting reporters now get $50 a week and can reach a $100 maximum.

"Shadow"

He said that if they continued their activity, the authorities would have no hesitation in dealing with them just as they had dealt with others who tried to cause bloodshed in Rhodesia.

But contrary to the minister's allegation, sources close to the group made it clear they do not intend an immediate confrontation as long as the present government functions as it now is doing.

There is no intention to overthrow the Smith regime while it continues to command the overwhelming support of the country's 224,000 whites, the sources said.

But signs of collapse and an exodus of whites from the country would put a different complexion on the matter.

The fact that the minister has chosen to reveal the group's existence was seen as a sign of the government's growing anxiety.

The opposition group, though small, was reported to be steadily gaining support from top business and financial circles and some disillusioned Smith supporters.

Last week's "scorched earth" policy speech by the Rhodesian deputy minister of information, Pieter Van Der Byl, provoked strong criticism even among firm white Rhodesian supporters of Ian Smith.

They considered the mention of such an idea in public was tantamount to revealing the possibility of failure for Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence.

Senators Feel U.S. Drifting Into Big, Dangerous Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the spreading Senate debate over U.S. war policy in Viet Nam, the "hawks" and the "doves" agree on one issue:

They feel the United States is drifting into a bigger and much more dangerous conflict and they want to know what President Johnson plans to do about it.

The two-front attack on his policy—from those who want it softer and those who would get tougher — threatens a severe challenge to Johnson's war leadership in the weeks ahead.

But it is also a challenge to the meaning of 10 years of violent history. For U.S. intervention in Viet Nam has built from the start a record of disappointed hopes, rising costs and drift into a war both dangerous and undeclared.

Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), chairman of the foreign relations committee and a critic of Johnson's policies, told State Secretary Dean Rusk a few days ago that he doubted the existence of an adequate legal basis for what the United States is doing in Viet Nam, going back to the start of the policy 10 years ago.

Yet Fulbright said the raising of questions does not necessarily mean opposition to policy but primarily a desire for clarifications.

Behind some of the senatorial attacks on Johnson's policy lies concern over the fact that the shooting conflict has never been declared by Congress as a war, is not being fought under United Nations sponsorship as was the war in Korea, and involves an open-ended commitment which could mean war with China some day, perhaps even nuclear war with Russia.

Johnson has every confidence that he has all the authority he needs to conduct military operations and commit more and more forces as he judges necessary. He also recognizes that Congress has the power to deny its approval of what he does and to withhold money.

Argument over the president's powers is simple in essence.

Johnson takes the position he has ample constitutional power as commander-in-chief to order military action in Viet Nam. Congressional critics argue that the constitution vested in Congress the power to declare war.

Johnson relies much more on a resolution which Congress adopted in August, 1964, shortly after the Gulf of Tonkin incidents. The United States said Communist gunboats had attacked U.S. naval vessels off North Viet Nam and the U.S. retaliated by bombing costal positions in North Viet Nam.

The resolution stated that Congress "approves and supports" the determination of the president "as commander - in-chief" to take all necessary measures to repel attacks against U.S. forces "and to prevent further aggression."

The administration argues that the congressional support provided a basis for all the president has done since.

Pension Plan Ads Cost $1,964,596

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government [illegible] $1,964,596 for its advertising campaign to promote the Canada Pension Plan, Health Minister MacEachen said Wednesday in a written Commons reply to David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North).

The cost, to be paid out of the pension fund, included a $151,510 fee to MacLaren Advertising Ltd

Advertising in newspaper and other publications cost $951,713, the printing and mailing of 4,000,000 folders $125,950 and of 4,000,000 booklets $671,905.

Miscellaneous costs — art work, application forms, pension plan symbol and social insurance number cards — were $60,327.

The advertising costs for the Canada Labor Code were $185,329. Bryce Mackasey, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister Nicholson, said in another written reply to Mr. Orlikow.

Sale of Color Television Sets Will Grow at Alarming Rate

TORONTO (CP) — Here's a tip for anyone thinking of buying a color television set in the near future—from the advertisers' view point — you're a "dream target."

That's the advice given Wednesday to a group of big-name advertisers as one agency, J. Walter Thompson Co. Ltd., presented its outline of what the advent of color TV in Canada next fall will mean to the viewer, the industry and the people who will be paying for it all—the advertiser.

The consensus was that the [illegible]ew medium is going to grow [illegible] Canada at a wild rate, presenting opportunities for advertisers that are "terrific," "tremendous" or even better.

Corporate advertising executives attending the seminar were told the buyer of color TV has the following advantages:

—He's a bigger spender than his black-and-white cousin, up to 21 per cent more on household products than all other homemakers.

—He's a heavier user of convenience products, like frozen foods, prepared cocktail mixes, paper products.

—He's more venturesome in trying modern products like aerosol spray cans, electric toothbrushes,

—He's a status-symbol buyer, with a high degree of interest in wall - to - wall carpeting, scotch whisky instead of rye and high-priced cars.

—He smokes more, especially cigars (his wife smokes more than average too).

—He (or she) is more appearance conscious, well - above average in using clothing, cosmetics, toiletries and diet foods.

—He can't resist buying the set and will rationalize the purchase over other more important household needs.

The agency said surveys in the United States, where color TV is well established, show people are willing to watch a program, just because it is in color and switching a program to color from black and white will add 750,000 viewers.

The agency offered a few warning words, however. It said switching to color will not be itself make a good commercial out of a bad one and color advertisements will cost more and take longer to produce.

A 20-second spot add in color will cost about $3,700 to make compared with $2,500 for the same message in black and white and will require six to eight weeks to produce compared with three to four weeks.

The chief reason, the agency said, is the lack of color laboratories in Canada, but it expressed optimism they will come.

The seminar noted most Canadians now are in range of U.S. color TV broadcasting, so they are getting used to the medium. Last year there were only 20,000 color TV sets in Canada, but by 1970 the number is expected to rise to 1,100,000.

Color telecasting is to start in Canada Oct. 1, with test transmissions after normal viewing hours to start July 1. Canada's two networks are planning to start broadcasting with 26 to 30 hours of color weekly, the agency said.

One of the clips showed a sequence from Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color. After it was over, account supervisor Bob Marvin told the audience:

"Watching this makes a man feel downright penny-pinching for not letting his children watch Disney in color."

Negro Handyman, Chauffeur Will Be Chief State Witness

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The state calls the first of its key witnesses today in the murder trial of blonde Candace Mossler and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers.

He is Roscoe Brown, a Negro handyman and chauffeur in the Mossler household.

"I would call him a key witness," State Attorney Richard Gerstein told reporters. The tall, dark-haired prosecutor is pressing a circumstantial murder case. As far as is known, he has no eye witnesses to the 1964 slaying of Mrs. Mossler's multimillionaire husband, Jacques.

The state says that on the [illegible]ternoon of June 29, 1964, [illegible]own washed the drainboard and top of the dishwasher in Mossler's apartment.

The 69-year-old Mossler was bludgeoned and knifed to death in the apartment at 1:45 a.m.

"Upon dusting for prints on the kitchen counter and the dishwasher top, no prints were found except a palm print of Melvin Lane Powers," the state said in its opening statement to an all-male jury.

Thus the state hopes through Brown to place Powers on the murder scene somewhere around the time Mossler died screaming with 39 knife wounds in his body.

Mrs. Mossler, a tiny blonde grandmother, who gives her age as 39, and her 220 - pound nephew, Powers, are charged with plotting Mossler's death at the culmination of a "sordid, illicit love affair."

The maximum penalty for first-degree murder in Florida is death in the electric chair. The jury, however, can decree a life sentence.

The trial began Jan. 18 and Wednesday's second day of testimony featured an effort by the defence through cross-examination to show there was cash on the line to buy Candace's conviction. She would inherit the bulk of her husband's $33,000,000 estate, unless convicted.

A sheriff's investigator, Lieut. Jerry Evans, denied he had been promised a reward if he pinned Mossler's murder on Candace.

The defence contends many persons in and out of Mossler's banking empire stood to benefit from his estate, once the widow was out of the picture.

Another witness was a radio station general manager, Marvin Tavel. He said he saw a man resembling Powers leaving Mossler's apartment building the night of the slaying.

Looking at picture of Powers, Tavel testified there was "a similarity" to the man he saw leaving the building.

Mrs. Robert Arone testified for the state that, as she was preparing for bed in the same building that night, she heard a dog bark frantically in the Mossler apartment. An attractive former model, Mrs. Arone said she heard a cry, "don't do that to me," followed by sounds of a scuffle, a thud and retreating footfalls.

HEY'RE BRIGHTER

OTTAWA (CP)—A Montreal psychologist added this to the bilingualism debate Wednesday: Other factors being equal, bilingual people are brighter than others and it's best to start children learning a second language early. Professor W. E. Lambert of McGill University's psychology department was speaking at the opening session of the annual meeting of the Ontario Psychological Association.

The Commons wound up a two-day supply debate and set the stage for a study of departmental spending estimates which opens today.

Finance Minister Sharp said Canada will retaliate if U.S. guidelines curbing American investment abroad harm Canada's economy.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and NDP Leader Douglas pressed for strong Canadian oppostion to the U.S. guideline policy.

Mr. Diefenbaker launched an attack on government spending, singling out Expo 67 as a prime example of waste.

Forestry Minister Sauve denied an opposition MP's claim that an ARDA project last fall was used as a Liberal campaign gimmick.

Limit Picketing Criciiized by Oshawa MPP

TORONTO (CP)—Courts which automatically grant injunctions against mass picketing in labor disputes were criticized in the legislature Wednesday by Albert Walker (PC—Oshawa) whose hometown newspaper, the Oshawa Times, has not published since last Thursday because of a strike.

Mr. Walker said The Times, an evening daily, received a court injunction Tuesday to limit picketing to three strikers at each of the newspaper building's three entrances. He called this a "meagre token picket."

Injunctions against mass picketing "are making a mockery out of our courts among large numbers of law-abiding citizens," the Oshawa Conservative told the legislature during the throne speech debate.

He said a labor leader in Oshawa—whom Mr. Walker did not name—had predicted beforehand exactly what the decision of the court would be in the newspaper's injunction application.

WHY BOTHER?

"If these rulings are automatic why bother holding a court hearing?" he asked.

There was no question of disorder among the strikers, he said. "I questioned the Oshawa police chief and there is not one incident of violence on the police blotter."

The Oshawa local of the Toronto newspaper Guild, representing 36 editorial, advertising and clerical workers at the Times, went on strike last Thursday.

Mr. Walker said picketing is an important part of any strike and the law should not be used in such a way as to disallow it. He said a spokesman for the department of labor had told him the courts were putting the wrong interpretation on the law in limiting picketing.

QSS Gets Ready For The Big Show

THE SOUNDS OF MUSIC, dance and humor are echoing around Quinte Secondary School corridors this week. Cause of the organized hullaballoo is the school's annual variety show, created, directed and staged by school personnel. Once again the show's musical director is Doug Asselstine, (above, directing orchestra) and the program ranges through a variety of talent from groups like the the glee club (above) and to the individual, like Diane Mucklestone, here opening the show with a Mexican hat dance.

Formula for U.S. Foreign Aid Drastically Altered

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson has made known his formula for drastically altering the shape of the huge United States foreign aid program. Now it is up to Congress.

The president's message to Congress Tuesday started bluntly by offering aid to "those nations that are determined to help themselves." The tone is tough, stipulating U.S. readiness to help push an international war on poverty without playing Santa Claus, and the theme recurs in the lengthy list of proposals.

These constitute plans for spending at least another $2,469,000,000 on economic aid in the fiscal year beginning July 1, plus $917,000,000 on military aid excluding the Vietnamese war.

The president has spent a year reviewing the foreign aid program, which has cost some $50,000,000,000 in guns, food and financing since the Second World War.

Economic aid totalled more than $25,000,000,000—India drawing a fifth, South Korea nearly $4,000,000,000, Pakistan about $3,750,000,000 and Brazil more than $2,000,000,000.

VIET NAM INVOLVED

Economic aid for South Viet Nam now is the fastest-rising item.

"We must concentrate on countries not hostile to us that give solid evidence that they are determined to help themselves," said the president—a warning to nations such as Egypt or Ghana whose conduct has not always pleased the U.S.

Just how effective foreign aid can be in forcing friendship or cooling down hot-tempered nations is a moot point, U.S. officials suggest privately.

Johnson said:

"Those who do not fulfil their commitment to help themselves cannot expect help from us."

What has happened too frequently in the past, the president implied, is that foreign aid from whatever source has gone toward grandiose status projects such as steel plants or hydro dams without makng any progress in meeting crucial food production.

"While our wealth is great, our wealth is not unlimited," the president said. ". . . We are not going to allow American aid to become an international dole."

FARM AID STRESSED

So, in proposing that aid for agriculture be raised a third to nearly $500,000,000, the president proposed that a hefty chunk go for U.S. fertilizers. That's an example of the self-help he has in mind as contrasted to the vast surplus food shipments of the past, now no longer possible from dwindling American stockpiles of grain.

There is also emphasis laid on better roads, irrigation, American farm knowledge, modern machinery, research, education and pesticides.

248 Teachers Settle Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — The 29-day-old strike of 248 teachers in the Le Gardeur region just east of here was settled early today when negotiators representing the school board and the teachers signed a 12-point agreement.

Although full details of the agreement were not made available, a spokesman said it included a $616 increase for the first year and more in the second year for a total increase in salary costs to the school board of $13,000.

Another point in the agreement is that the teachers will not receive pay for the time they were on strike and that they will work overtime without pay for the first 10 days of their return to re-establish the school routine. They will be paid overtime after 10 days.

The settlement will result in the return to classrooms of 8,000 students in 18 schools in six individual communities affected by the strike.

Aside to those Trenton RCAF lads;- Arthur Howie Ross, former manager-coach of the Boston Bruins presented the Art Ross Trophy to the NHL back in 1947 for the player who leads the league in scoring points at the end of the regular season.

The rule governing the trophy says, "If two players finish the schedule with the same number of points, the trophy is awarded in the following manner: (1) Player with most goals, (2) Player with fewer games played. (3) Player scoring the first goal of the season.

Regarding the Stanley Cup, Lord Stanley the Earl of Derby, then the governor general of Canada, was an avid hockey fan. He bought a piece of silverware for ten pounds then worth $48.67 in 1893 never dreaming it would, one day, be symbolic of the world's professional hockey championship.

But some of the rip-roaring hockey hellions of the early days cared little about the piece of noble pewterware. Win was the word and t'hell with the gimmicks.

The Stanley mug has been kicked around; lost and found, found and lost, forgotten and remembered, thrown away and recovered more times than a houri in Ghenghis Khan's harem.

A history of the Cup reveals that it was once tossed into an Ottawa graveyard and later booted into the Rideau Canal by a winning-team celebrant. Luckily the canal was frozen over and the cup was recovered dented but sound.

Somehow it rolled out of a car in Montreal on a dark night and was found the next morning. In 1907 a Kenora Thistle team executive roared out of a meeting with the Cup and threatened to throw it into the Lake of Woods. He was restrained.

When the Montreal Wanderers clipped the three-year cup-winning streak of Ottawa's famed Silver Seven, they didn't see the Cup for two days. After the deciding game, the "Seven" switched the mug and "cup-napped" it to Hull for a rollicking all-night binge.

Time marching inexorably onwards has wrought many changes in hockey since the days when players toiled sixty minutes, disdained padding and played hockey for the games sake with their financial reward not even approaching "peanuts" compared with today's pay cheques.

Those hell-for-leather buckaroos, if they wanted a night off would call for warm weather. There were no artificial ice arenas, in fact the game was played on poorly-lighted curling rinks.

They bought their own sticks and skates but were supplied with sweaters and stockings which had to be returned at the end of the season. Some had two sweaters which were exchanged when the first became to soggy with sweat.

Unlike a rural hockey team I knew which used nearly-filled gallon cider jugs for goalposts (they were filled only to aid stability) the teams of those days had poles placed on movable bases for their goal "nets".

At half-time when they would change ends, the goalies with a streak of hellery would slyly kick a post along the ice to make the goal-mouth eight feet instead of six.

There were no boards. Spectators stood on a platform and often booted bodychecked players back on the ice. The "sinners" stood at rinkside and listened to a limb of the law who lecteured them on the errors of their plays.

Irate spectators thought nothing of brawling with officials and tossing bottles, boards and even chairs at opposing players.

Goal judges stood behind the "poles" with no net protection and wore no skates or padding. The teams were seven-man affairs and defencemen stood tandem style and cleared the puck by hoisting it to the other end of the rink.

"Them were the days that was", gentlemen. A vast difference from the well-paid stars and the plush million-dollar air-conditioned arenas of today that house from 15,000 to 16,000 fans at every outing.

Mahovlich Tops Leafs

FRANK MAHOVLICH

TORONTO (CP) — When Frank Mahovlich scored in the second period of a National Hockey League game against Boston Bruins here Saturday night, he was not aware he had become Toronto Maple Leafs' all - time highest scorer.

The goal was the left-winger's 242nd and surpassed Harvey (Busher) Jackson's career total of 241.

Mahovlich, who went on to score three more during the weekend, took the news rather stoically when told of his achievement.

"Who did I beat out?" he asked.

Andv Bathgate (302) and Dickie Moore (256), both former Leafs, and current player Red Kelly (264) have scored more goals but they have spent most of their hockey careers with other teams. Bathgate played with New York Rangers, Moore with Montreal Canadiens and Kelly with Detroit Red Wings.

Jackson, also a left-winger, played 15 years for Leafs, three for Boston and two for old New York Americans.

Hull Raises Deuce As Hawks Win 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull and Chicago Black Hawks both are moving in for top National Hockey League honors.

Hull continued his record-break scoring pace by netting two goals Wednesday night to lead the Black Hawks to a 4-3 victory over New York Rangers in the only scheduled NHL game.

His 43rd and 44th markers of the season leave him just seven goals short of breaking the record of 50 goals in a season.

The brilliant left winger, who has played in 41 of Chicago's 45 games, has 25 games remaining this season to break the record he shares with retired Montreal Canadiens stars Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

Stan Mikita with his 22nd of the season and Doug Mohns with his 14th scored the other Chicago goals as the Black Hawks moved into sole possession of first place in the NHL standings, two points ahead of Detroit Red Wings.

BOBBY HULL

Vic Hadfield, Bill Hicke and Doug Robinson tallied for New York.

Rookie Dave Dryden was in the Chicago nets for the second game in a row. Veteran netminder Glenn Hall was not even dressed for the game.

Hawks' coach Billy Reay said Hall, 35, is being given a week's rest in which he won't even be required to practice. Dennis Dejordy was called up from St. Louis of the Central League as Chicago's No. 2 goalie.

Mohns gave the Hawks an early lead but Hadfield evened the score after six minutes of play in the opening period.

Hicke made it 2 - 1 for New York at 4:47 of the second period and Robinson boosted the lead to 3-1 at 8:44.

Hull pulled the Hawks back into contention at 17:51 of the second frame while New York's Garry Peters was serving a penalty to goalie Ed Giacomin for throwing the puck out of the rink.

Mikita evened the score at 2:19 of the final period and Hull scored the winner 3 minutes later.

Bob Baun, Toronto Maple Leafs' hard-hitting defenceman, will return to the Leafs' lineup tonight when they meet the Canadiens in Montreal in one of two scheduled NHL games. The Red Wings play the Bruins in Boston in the other encounter.

DOUG ROBINSON

Baun, sidelined nine weeks with torn knee ligaments, said he is worried the layoff will throw his timing off.

LEAFS LACK TWO

Toronto will be without netminder Johnny Bower and defenceman Marcel Pronovost.

Bower pulled groin muscles in the pre-game warmup last Saturday in Toronto and is expected to be sidelined for at least a week.

The Leafs brought up goalie Gary Smith from Rochester Americans of the American League Wednesday to serve as a backup for Terry Sawchuk in tonight's game.

Only change in the Montreal lineup will be the return of right winger Yvan Cournoyer, sidelined for two games with a bruised hip.

Toronto has won four games, lost two and tied one in seven meetings with the Canadiens this year. The Leafs whipped the Canadiens 6-0 in their last game at Montreal.

The Red Wings will be without defenceman Doug Barkley when they take on the Bruins tonight.

Barkley was struck in the right eye by a stick during last Sunday's game against the Black Hawks and is recovering from surgery. He will be out of action a minimum of two weeks.

Quebec Bonspiel

Unbeaten Rinks Reduced To Five

QUEBEC (CP) — The 53rd annual Quebec International Bonspiel passed the halfway mark Wednesday, and today's games feature second - round play in the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy race and the semi-final rounds in the A, B and C sections.

Wednesday night the 128 participating rinks took a breather from their heavy schedule to attend the Grand Curlers' Banquet, which has become a regular part of the annual week-long program.

Singled out for recognition by the PQCA were Bill Broidy of Pictou, N.S., and two Ontario men—Nels Findlay of Preston and Fred Murgatroyd of Burlington.

After three days of play only five rinks boast perfect 5-0 records.

Dr. W. Hambley of the Hamilton Thistles Curling Club is the lone Ontario entrant who has yet to be beaten.

ONTARIO RINKS LOSE

In Wednesday's Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy play, Ontario rinks were the big losers. Five of the 10 entered in the first round dropped decisions. The trophy is the top prize in the 14 awards awaiting the week's winners.

Eight of the 24 rinks scheduled to play for the trophy drew a bye into today's second round.

In first-round play, Dr. Hambley's foursome doubled the score on Neil Speicher's Toronto Royal Canadians for a 10-5 victory.

Outremont's Carl Ott continued his strong showing with a 9-4 win over Carl Hussey of Cornwall, while a second rink from that city, under the direction of Ubald Rouleau, was beaten 11-7 by Dr. Maurice Campbell of Trois-Rivieres.

In a surprise victory, Bob Morris of Sept - Iles, Que., guided his rink to an 11-9 win over heavily - favored Bert White of Oshawa.

NHL Stars

Bobby Hull, who scored two goals, including the winner, as Chicago Black Hawks edged New York Rangers 4-3 Wednesday night.

Purse Battle Enters Second Round

Horsemen, Jockey Club

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association has squared off against the Jockey Club in the second round of its battle to gain bigger purses for trotting and pacing owners in the province.

The horsemen, fresh from negotiating an agreement with officials at Windsor Raceway, now want a better purse distribution at the three Jockey Club tracks —Toronto Greenwood, Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines and Mohawk Raceway near Campbellville, Ont.

Negotiations between the Jockey Club and the OHHA have broken down, but both sides are willing to continue talks.

Les Ehrlick of Toronto, president of the horsemen, said Wednesday night that at no time has his negotiating committee considered the possibility of a strike.

The OHHA originally demanded 50 per cent of the tracks' share of the mutuel handle and the Jockey Club is offering a guaranteed minimum of $9,350 a night with provisions for increases if business warrants them.

REJECT PROPOSALS

"Our last meeting was yesterday and the horsemen rejected our proposals, said John J. Mooney of Toronto, executive vice - president of the Jockey Club.

The purse schedule has been under discussion at three meetings in 10 days between Ehrlick and Mooney.

Mooney said he is still willing to talk to the horsemen, but the next move is up to them. He said the Jockey Club is going ahead with plans to open the harness racing season Feb. 26 at Greenwood regardless of the outcome of the talks.

"The horsemen want a guaranteed increase, period," Mooney said. "They appear reluctant to share any of the risks."

In addition to the $9,350 minimum purse guarantee each night, the Jockey Club is offering to negotiate an increase if betting is up 10 per cent over 1965 after the first two meetings this year — at Greenwood and Mohawk.

"If business is not up 10 per cent by then, but is up 10 per cent by the halfway point in the Greenwood summer meeting, we'll sit down with their committee and discuss the amount of increase," Mooney said.

THEY'RE FINAL

"As far as I'm concerned our proposals represented our final offer. There is no way we can increase our guaranteed minimum of $9,350 a night.

"The Jockey Club has spent more than $600,000 on a new strip and glass-enclosed clubhouse at Greenwood and I'd say that weather now is not a factor" as far as patronage and wagering is concerned.

"I'd say that the horsemen should be patient and see if we can get more wagering at our spring meeting."

Mooney said wagering at spring meetings last year at Greenwood was about $270,000 and at Mohawk about $200,000. The horsemen last year got 45.7 per cent of the track's share of the mutuel handle and the horsemen as a result picked up $2,085,100 n 233 nights of racing. Mooney said the guarantees offered this year would give the horsemen $2,253,353.

Ehrlick said in a statement Wednesday that the $9,350 figure was the same as was offered last year. He added that the Jockey Club predicts an eight per cent increase in wagering this year over 1965.

Ehrlick said the horsemen feel they should get an increase in purses and their committee will "continue to negotiate with the Jockey Club along these lines as long as necessary.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Centre Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks scored one goal and assisted on two others against New York Rangers Wednesday night to move into second place in the National Hockey League individual scoring race.

However, teammate Bobby Hull scored two goals, giving him 44 for the season and a total of 70 points, for a 16-point lead over Mikita, who leads in assists with 32.

Hull, who has played in 41 of Chicago's 45 games, has 25 games remaining to score seven goals to break the record of 50 goals in a season. He shares the record with Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, two former Montreal Canadiens players.

Mikita's jump into second place moved Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings into third spot with 52 points, followed by teammate Gordie Howe with 48 points.

Alex Delvecchio of Detroit and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal are tied for fifth with 46, followed by Henri Richard of Montreal with 43.

Trials Cut Down

Sunshine Stymies Sleds

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Bobsledders today faced the weekend's world four-man championship with fewer than half their training descents completed due to a warm sun trying to make mincemeat of the track.

Canada is the defending champion.

By now the bobsledders should have finished six of eight practice descents under the floodlights of the 1,860-yard Ronco chute. But rising daytime temperatures have softened the ice. That forced cancellation of Monday night's runs, cut Tuesday night's two runs to one and caused a halt midway through Wednesday night's first descents when part of the track's side wall crumbled away.

Only 1½ series of practic descents have been run. Eve with two full runs tonight an again Friday night, each sle will have hurtled down th chute only six times.

The fastest time in Wedne day night's runs was turned i by the British No. 1 sled drive by Tony Nash. The sled wa clocked at one minute, 17.1 seconds.

The Canadian No. 1 team driven by Victor Emery o Montreal, was fourth in 1:17.7 The Canadian sled posted th fastest trial time Tuesda night.

Junior All-Stars Whip Flyers

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A All-Stars had too much early power for the Memorial Cup champion Niagara Falls Flyers Wednesday night as they scored an 8-4 victory.

Net proceeds of the exhibition game went to the OHA emergency fund for injured players.

A crowd of 2,800 had little to cheer about in the first two periods as the All-Stars romped to a 4-0 lead. But the final period produced all-out hockey with eight goals being scored, four by each side.

The All-Stars were paced by Peterborough's high - scoring line of Dan Grant, Mickey Redmond and Andre Lacroix which accounted for half the team's goals. Grant and Redmond each fired two goals while Lacroix had two assists.

Rookie Tom Webster scored two goals for the Flyers with Dave Woodley and Jean Pronovost scoring the others.

PLAYERS FIGHT

After a listless first period, in which the stars took a 3-0 lead, the game livened up and produced two spirited fights although referee Bob Nadin handed out minor penalties on each occasion. Derek Sanderson of the Flyers and Carl Vadnais of Montreal battled near the boards in the second period while McKenny and Bud Debrody of the Flyers traded punches in the final period.

Prior to the game, an all-star dinner was held honoring the players of both teams. More than 140 assembled at the dinner with Carl Brewer, former Toronto Maple Leaf, among the guest speakers.

Brewer said he had no thought of returning to the National Hockey League as an active player.

DDT THINS BIRDS

North America's peregrines, bald eagles and ospreys are diminishing because DDT causes infertility in hawks.

The major periods are shown in boldface type These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The minor periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration

Letter To The Sports Editor

WHY?

Time: Approximately 3.30 p.m. 2 Feb. '66.

Scene: A Dept. Public Works Crew, engaged in ice-clearing operations, at the mouth of the Moira River, immediately south of the C.P.R. Bridge — and attended by a number of interested onlookers.

Event: A crew-member spies a lone, defenceless Muskrat, crossing the snow-covered ice, in a general west-east direction, some 50-75 yards distant.

The crew-member quickly locates a slab of wood — runs after the "great, vicious" animal — and proceeds to bludgeon it. Oh! No! not kill it — just injure it! !

The crew-member then proceeds to poke and jab the threshing wounded creature — for a little while — "toying with it"! ! Following this he summons up enough courage to bring his hand near enough to, apparently, be "nipped". (I sincerely hope so!).

This "candidate for the George Medal" finally despatches the poor animal, and carries it back for a close-up by his fellows — big joke! !

The carcass is left lying where it is dropped.

Why?

Comment: It is apparent, to me, that this type of crew-member not only doesn't deserves a job, but that there apparently, wasn't enough work to warrant his employment.

Oh! Yes! Where was the Crew-Boss?

A Taxpayer.

CITES SMALL CARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — National Safety Council officials gave statistics Wednesday showing that crash fatalities in small cars are "up to five times more frequent" than in the bigger, standard models. They told a Senate hearing that the fatality rate could be reduced sharply by the installation of better door locks and good seat belts.

THURSDAY

- Winner of five "Emmy" Awards in 1965, "The Magnificent Yankee" will again be telecast this Thursday at 8:30 on channels 3 and 8. Starring the renowned husband and wife acting team, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, the play covers the Washington years of perhaps the greatest American jurist, Oliver Wendell Holmes Jr., and his wife Fanny.
- Telescope focuses on "The Night People," those that are often going to work when we are going to bed. The disc jockeys, policemen, truckers, astronomers, nurses and all the others who put in "a hard day's night" are caught by the Telescope cameras at 9:30 on the CBC.
- Comedian Bob Hope, actress-dancer Juliet Prowse, and popular jazz clarinetist Pete Fountain are among those slated to appear on this week's Dean Martin Show, seen at 10 p.m., on channels 3, 8 and 9.

URGES RESTRAINT

KINGSTON (CP) — Revenue Minster Benson has urged restraint in price and wage increases in 1966 and warned that one of the major problems of the year will be to keep a tight rein on the expanding economy. Speaking to a dinner attended by about 50 members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association Wednesday, he said: "Too rapid an expansion in expenditures, private and public, would contribute to inflationary conditions and lead in due course to a frustrating recession."

Keaton Was Last of Comedy Stars of the Silent Screen

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The list grows thin. The death this week of Buster Keaton removed one of the last of the comedy stars of the silent screen.

Only Charlie Chaplin and Harold Lloyd remain of the great pantomime artists of comedy's golden age. Both are millionaires, and it doesn't appear likely that either will perform before the camera again.

Keaton was active to the end, partly out of financial necessity. He had trouble holding on to a buck. When he was married to Natalie Talmadge, herself a star of silent films, Buster owned one of the showplaces of Beverly Hills. It went to her in the divorce.

One of Buster's toys was a land yacht, a bus which he converted into a virtual home—with all the luxuries. It cost him about $100,000 and he later sold it at virtually a complete loss.

Money meant little to him. His abiding purpose was to make people laugh; ironically, he could do so while maintaining a perpetually dour expression.

His style was aptly described by the late critic, James Agee: "Keaton worked strictly for laughs, but his work came from so far inside a curious and original spirit that he achieved a great deal besides, especially in his feature-length comedies. He was the only major comedian who kept sentiment almost entirely out of his work, and he brought physical comedy to its greatest heights.

"Beneath his lack of emotion he was also uninsistently sardonic; deep below that, giving a disturbing tension and grandeur to the foolishness, for those who sensed it, there was in his comedy a freezing whisper not of pathos but of melancholia."

WAS NO ANALYST

Keaton himself had little patience for analysing his style. One he remarked simply:

"What you have to do is create a character. Then the character just does his best and there's no comedy. no begging."

Nearly all of Keaton's great work was done in the brief span of the 1920s. He attempted some talkies at MGM, co-starring with Jimmy Durante in Speak Easily, among others, but dialogue was an intrusion on the eloquence of his pantomime, and Keaton faded from prominence.

He refused to live in the past. Even though his services were no longer in demand as a performer, he continued to function as a gag man for Red Skelton and other newcomers. And he waited until the public would once again be receptive to the troubled little man who never smiled.

In his final decade, the homage finally came his way. He not only won his rightful respect at film festivals and with movie historians, he functioned as a comic.

He summed up his life in his autobiography, My Wonderful World of Slapstick:

"I think I have the happiest and luckiest of lives. Maybe this is because I never expected as much as I got. What I expected was hard knocks. I always expected to have to work hard."

Unknown Leads Tourney

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) There was a room at the top for a familiar face today in the $100,000 Bob Hope desert golf classic.

As the second round of the 90-hole, five-round event began, this was the picture:

A man named Jack McGowan was in the lead with a six-under-par 66. His last tournament victory was in the Mountain View Open at Corona, Calif., in 1964.

Joe Taylor, another virtual unknown, was tied with Al Besselink for second with a 67.

Bill Casper Jr., the 1965 winner in the Hope, was three strokes back at 69. And tied with him were George Knudson of Toronto and five other professionals.

European Cup Soccer

CARDIFF, Wales (AP)—West Ham United, European Soccer Cup winners, defeated Cardiff City 5-1 Wednesday night and moved into the English cup finals.

West Ham had won the first leg 5-2 and thus completed a 10-3 victory on aggregate goals.

MANCHESTER (AP)—Manchester United, English League soccer champions, defeated Benfica of Lisbon, Portugal, 3-2 Wednesday night in the first leg of a European Cup of champions quarter-final.

Benfica scored first, but Manchester roared into a 2-1 lead at half-time, cheered on by a sell-out crowd of 63,000 at Old Trafford Stadium.

The second leg is scheduled for March 9 in Lisbon.

Silver Stick Tourney

PORT HURON, Mich. (CP) Ontaro teams continued their domination over Michigan squads on the second day of the fourth annual Silver Stick hockey championships Wednesday.

Leamington defeated Port Huron 7-1 in a Pee-Wee AA game and Watford edged Wayne, Mich., 4-3 in Bantam A play.

In Pee-Wee A play, West Detroit Warriors downed Dearborn, Mich., 9-0 and in an all-Sarnia Bantam AA contest the Black Hawks won 5-3 over the Slects.

Leamington takes on Sarnia Black Hawks, Watford goes against Dearborn and West Detroit meets Forest, Ont., in Pee-Wee games today.

Sarnia Black Hawks Bantams play St. Catharines Friday.

The 53-team tournament ends Sunday.

The Trots

A crowd of 3,033 turned up despite a 1.3-inch snowfall.

D. L. Direct paced the mile in 2:07 4-5 and returned $3.70, $3.00 and $2.70.

Prima Byrd won the first race and Dear One the second for a $52.30 and daily double.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor Raceway Wednesday reported net profits of $54,816 for 51 nights of harness racing at its first meeting last Oct. 21 to Dec. 18.

The $6,000,000 plant was completed last year.

The track, not on the Jockey Club circuit which includes Toronto Greenwood Raceway, Mohawk Raceway near Campbellville, Ont., and Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines, took in nearly $1,500,000 during the fall meeting.

The track restaurant, bar, parking and program sales brought in $269,655. Commissions on pari-mutuel wagering amounted to $1,002,232 and admissions came to $197,376.

Bears Lose 6 In Row

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) —Barclay Plager scored twice Wednesday nght to pace Springfield Indians to a 3-1 American Hockey League victory over Hershey Bears, vaulting Springfield into second place in the Eastern Division.

The setback was Hershey's sixth straight, its longest losing streak of the season.

The Indians fell behind 1-0 after 48 seconds of play, when Bruce Cline sank a 15-footer with the first shot of the game.

However, the Indians, who turned in fine defensive work, evened the score at 8:30 of the first period with Plager sinking a 10-footer. Early in the second period, with a Hershey man in the penalty box, the Indians went ahead 2-1, as Howie Menard connected on a low 15-footer that bounced off the leg pad of goalie Claude Dufour.

MARLENE HITS 71

LOST TREE VILLAGE, Fla. (AP) — Barbara McIntire and Truman Connell took a one-stroke lead Monday in the first round of the U.S. national mixed foursomes golf championship. They shot 36 and 34 for a 70 over the 6,482-yard Lost Tree Club course. Tied with 71s were Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto and Hobart Manley who had a 34-37 and Mr. and Mrs. Don Carner who shot a 36-35.

Comic Godfrey Gambridge Makes Fine Zulu Villain

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A funny standup comedian named Godfrey Cambridge came on strong Wednesday night as one of the most despicable villains in a season full of them.

Cambridge, who as an American showed an unusually reasonable facsimile of a British accent, played the nutty last sultan of the Zulus in NBC's I Spy.

The show's two secret agent heroes—Robert Culp and another standup comedian, Bill Cosby—had to find out who was stealing industrial diamonds and radioactive cobalt.

Turned out that the evil sultan, for reasons not terribly clear, was hiding his diamonds and cobalt inside fake oyster shells under the sea near a picturesque Japanese village.

The plots may be pretty preposterous but it is still one of the season's superior new series, mostly because of the jaunt performance of the two stars. Culp, incidentally, wrote, directed, and pushed the sultan to his just desserts.

Recommended tonight:

The Magnificent Yankee, NBC, 8:30-10 EST, with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in a repeat performance of the drama about Oliver Wendell Holmes and his wife.

Lancers Dump Marauders

HAMILTON (CP) — University of Windsor Lancers downed McMaster University Marauders 86-57 Wednesday night for their eighth win in a row in Ontario - Quebec Intercollegiate basketball action.

Windsor was led by the 24-point total of Marty Kwiatkowski.

The win keeps the Lancers in first spot with 16 points, followed by Toronto with eight and McMaster and Waterloo in third, each with six. Bringing up the rear is fifth-place Western with four points, and Guelph, with no wins in seven games.

Argos Rebuilding

Shaw Continues Face-Lift

TORONTO (CP) — The most disillusioned supporter of Toronto Argonauts can't deny that they've a changed ball club since coach Bob Shaw took over a year ago.

Shaw has yet to elevate the Argos from the Eastern Football Conference cellar. But when he sent defensive halfback John Wydareny and linebacker Ron Brewer to Edmonton Eskimos Wednesday for linebacker Al Ecuyer and offensive end Barry Mitchelson, it was his third trade in a week and left only 10 men on the roster who greeted him in training camp last year.

In his two earlier deals, Shaw received flanker Bob Taylor and offensive end - defensive halfback Pete Manning from Calgary Stampeders for qcarterback Pete Liske and flanker Pete Warren and swapped guard Bill Crawford to British Columbia Lions for fullback Bob Swift.

Brewer, an EFC all-star last season, and Wydareny, a promising young back who missed the last five games of the schedule with a broken collar bone, were with the Argos when Shaw came east from Saskatchewan Roughriders to take charge.

ARE CANADIANS

The four players involved in the latest deal are all Canadians, Ecuyer achieving that status under the residence rule during seven seasons with the Eskimos.

Wydareny, 24, and Mitchelson, 23, were drafted in successive seasons from the University of Western Ontario, Wydareny being Toronto's top college draft choice in 1963 and Mitchelson rating as the Eskimos' No. 1 pick the following year.

Wydareny, a native of Hearst, Ont., has intercepted eight passes in his three years with the Argos. Mitchelson, an off - season basketball player with University of Alberta Golden Bears, gained 344 yards on 30 receptions in two seasons at Edmonton.

Brewer, 27, is leaving the Argonauts for the second time. He went to Montreal Alouettes five years ago in a four-man deal that brought Shipp to Toronto and returned to the Argos two years later in a trade for linebacker Jim Andreotti.

WITHDRAWS TEAM

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN (AP) — West Germany withdrew from the world biathlon championships Wednesday as an East-West political dispute rocked the competition scheduled next weekend. The withdrawal came after police told the East Germans they would not be allowed to practise unless they removed their national emblem from their ski suits.

Golf Chide

Too Many Clubs, Too Slow

NEW YORK (AP) — One of U.S. golf's all-time personalities chided modern players Wednesday for carrying too much equipment and playing too slowly.

"The standard number of clubs now is 14 and some of the pros insist they need 16," said Francis Ouimet.

"That is ridiculous. Twelve should be an absolute maximum and most players will find they can get along very well with seven or eight."

Ouimet, 72, was winner of the U.S. Open as a 20-year-old caddie in 1913 at the Country Club in Brookline, Mass.

"The modern players are wonderful athletes and rare precisionists," Ouimet said at his home in Wellesley, Mass.

"They make it an exciting sport but if I was asked to pick the main flaws my answer would be: Too many clubs and dreary, slow play."

Windsor Raceway Had Profit

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor Raceway Wednesday reported net profits of $54,816 for 51 nights of harness racing at its first meeting last Oct. 21 to Dec. 18.

The $6,000,000 plant was completed last year.

The track, not on the Jockey Club circuit which includes Toronto Greenwood Raceway, Mohawk Raceway near Campbellville, Ont., and Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines, took in nearly $1,500,000 during the fall meeting.

The track restaurant, bar, parking and program sales brought in $269,655. Commissions on pari-mutuel wagering amounted to $1,002,232 and admissions came to $197,376.

Average attendance at the meeting was 3,593 a night and average mutuel handle was $199,759.

HUNTERS MUST LEARN

Since 1960, it has been compulsory for all "first - time" hunters in Ontario to take government-sponsored safety training.

Baseball Battle Continues

NEW YORK (AP)—The cat-and-mouse game between National League baseball men and Wisconsin lawyers continues in a downtown law office today with baseball giving no hope for immediate expansion.

Donald Grant, chairman of the board of New York Mets, an expansion team that never has been able to get out of 10th place, closes out the New York phase of the pre-trial depositions.

The scene will shift to Chicago Friday for Roy Hofheinz, president of Houston Astros, Horace Stoneham, owner of San Francisco Giants and Joe Brown, general manager of Pittsburgh Pirates, will give their testimony Tuesday in Chicago.

Walter O'Malley, president of Los Angeles Dodgers, said Wednesday he would go along on expansion if a substantial majority of his colleagues favored it but he did not know of any such sentiment.

Depositions are being taken at the offices of National League lawyers as a prelude to Wisconsin's antitrust action against the Braves and the National League. Wisconsin seeks to make the Braves play in Milwaukee in 1966 instead of moving to Atlanta unless another franchise is given to Milwaukee.

Mustangs Corral McMaster

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

University of Western Ontario Mustangs increased their lead to four points in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association hockey standings Wednesday night, but Waterloo University Warriors have a chance to narrow the margin tonight.

The Mustangs dumped McMaster University Marlins of Hamilton 7-1 and now have 21 points on 10 wins, a loss and a tie. Waterloo, second with 17 points, is at home to the third-place University of Toronto Blues tonight and must win or tie to remain in second place. The Blues trail the Warriors by a single point.

In the only other game Wednesday night, Laval University Rouge et Or downed University of Montreal Carabins 5-3.

Badminton Club Hosts Tournament

Top doubles teams of the district will highlight the Central Ontario Badminton Association's "B" tournament scheduled for the armouries here Saturday.

Noted for its hospitality and tournament arrangements, the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club is hosting some 180 entries from several clubs.

Included are 80 entries from Garrison and others from Peterborough, Whitby, Napanee, Picton and Trenton Badminton Clubs.

"This is a record as far as the Garrison Club is concerned" a spokesman said today.

Men's, women's and mixed doubles are on the competition agenda with the men's and women's events starting at 10 a.m. instead of 9 a.m. as formerly announced, and the mixed doubles getting under way at 1.30 p.m.

The finals in all classes will start at 8 p.m.

Ted Smith is the chairman of the event with Ron Walmsley the co-ordinator. Merv Potts heads the draw and play committee.

The general public is invited.

Memphis Bows To Blazers 4-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oklahoma City Blazers took over first place in the Central Hockey League Wednesday night by defeating Memphis Wings 4-1.

In the only other league game, Minnesota Rangers scored three times in the first period and went on to a 5-4 victory over Houston Apollos.

The Wings, who led the league during the first part of the season, now are in fourth place and haven't won a game since Jan. 19 when they beat the Blazers 3-1.

The Blazers are two points ahead of idle St. Louis Braves.

Ron Buchanan, Glen Sather, Brian Bradley and Ted Irvine scored for Oklahoma City. Butch Paul scored Memphis' only goal.

Scoring for the Rangers were Paul Andrea, with two goals, Trevor Fahey, Terry Ball and Bob Sabourin, Bill Inglis, Andre Boudrias, Bill McCreary and Norm Dennis scored for the Apollos.

After The Brawl Was Over

Leeds U. Ties Valencia

LEEDS (AP)—Leeds United of England and Valencia of Spain tied 1-1 Wednesday night in an Inter-Cities Fairs Cup soccer game in which three players were sent off and police intervened in fights on the field.

Valencia led 1-0 at half-time in the third - round, first - leg match on a goal by left-winger Munoz in the 17th minute.

Inside - right Lorimer equalized for Leeds in the 63rd minute — and after that the game exploded. Both teams got involved in a fracas and Dutch referee Leo Horne led all the players off the field to cool down.

The trouble started when Jackie Charlton, Leeds centre-half, clashed with Valencia goalkeeper Nito.

Players from both teams joined in the struggle and police rushed on to the field to pull them apart.

Mountain View Ski Club Offers Much

Acquired from private owners during the past summer, the Mountain View Ski Club is operating with full facilities under the guidance of the Y's Men's Club of Belleville this winter.

The club is owned by the Belleville YMCA.

Located a few miles south of Belleville, on the Demorestville Road, a quarter mile off Highway 14, the club offers five different ski trails, plus other fine facilities.

The ski trails include two for beginners, one for intermediates and two for experienced skiers. The trails vary from 500 to 1,000 feet in length and are of varied grade and speed.

Two ski tows are available, leading to the top of the hills where an electrically heated Chalet overlooks the ski runs. Hot drinks and snacks are available there.

The operation is a family affair and a separate, protected hill area is reserved for the use of small children with toboggans.

Skiing instructions are available and a ski patrol is maintained for safety purposes.

Several of the ski trails can be floodlit for night skiing, when the demand wararnts.

Regular bus service between Belleville and Picton makes the club easily accessible for those without cars.

Membership and tow fees are available by the season or by the day.

Buckaroos Smother LA Blades

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most of the excitement was crammed into the final minute of play Wednesday night as league-leading Victoria Maple Leafs dropped a 4-2 Western Hockey League decision to fifth-place San Francisco Seals at Victoria.

At Portland, meanwhile, the hometown Buckaroos smothered last - place Los Angeles Blades 10-4 to pull to within one game of Victoria.

At Victoria, San Francisco was leading 2-1 and playing one man short when the Leafs pulled goaltender Al Millar in the final minute of play in a bid to gain at least a tie.

But the move backfired when Ron Schock fired a long shot into the open net to make it 3-1.

Lou Jankowski brought the Leafs back within reach at 3-2 14 seconds later and Millar again was taken out of the net. Nine seconds later, Gerry Brisson took a pass from Jean Marc Picard to score on the open net and wrap it up for San Francisco.

SOLVE OLD PROBLEM

A Swedish engineer's solution to the old problem of friction on pendulum bearings is to hang the pendulum by magnetic force.

Minor Hockey

Rangers whipped Canadiens 8-3, Bruins nudged the Leafs 3-1 and Hawks whitewashed the Wings 3-0 in B.M.H.A. tyke play last night.

In the lone shutout, Roger Chapman triggered all three Hawk goals. Name of the goalie registering the shutout was omitted.

Gord Male sparked the Ranger attack with a three - goal effort while Eric Powell banged home a pair. Bruce McIntyre, Robert Blatchford and Michael Crawford scored the other goals. Crawford also got two assists and Paul Hayman one. Rick Mofina, Allan Stordy and Gilbert Grant netted the Canadiens' goals.

Bruins received a pair of goals from Trent Hutchinson and one from Michael Meeker. Stephen Soucy fired the lone Leaf counter.

SUPPORTS GROUP

VANCOUVER (CP)—Pacific National Exhibition directors supported the Cyrus McLean group Wednesday in its bid to obtain a National Hockey League franchise for Vancouver. The directors approved a resolution informing the NHL that the McLean group—to be known as Burrard Hockey Ltd. —would have the use of the proposed new exhibition sports building to be built on the exhibition grounds.

Successful Living

Involvement Breeds Interest, Success

DEAR DORIS: The class representatives on Student Council are silent and offer few suggestions. How could I, the president, make our meetings livelier and the representatives more talkative and suggestive?

Our school spirit has declined and leaves something to be desired. Students openly criticize other students and even teachers; they laugh at the school itself and at times damage the building. What can be done to improve school spirit? — PREXY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR PREXY: One man with a mission can get a hundred going. The thing is to hand out jobs and get people involved.

Here are ideas proved successful at other schools:

(1) A candid camera day; prize to be awarded for the best picture, which will be included in the Year Book. Prize is a copy of the Year Book.

(2) A talent night. Class reps give the event its build-up and find the talent for skits and solos. Rehearsals are as much fun as the finished product.

(3) A bulletin board. Tacked up in a prominent spot, this keeps everybody in the know about what goes on. Invite amateur reporters from each class to contribute.

(4) Student participation in parents' night. One person in each class is the greeter; another introduces Pop and Mom to the teacher.

Don't expect miracles overnight. Nor try to do things yourself. You are an organizer; a catalyzer. Your next meeting could be in the nature of a council of war: there's a campaign to wage, and all present must have a hand in the Fight for School Spirit.

P.S.: The School is the Students. If they criticize, they are belittling themselves.

DEAR DORIS: My girl friend and I have been trying for the last year to get rid of two boys who happen to be good friends.

We have tried everything but they just won't give up. — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE: Can you help it if you have such fatal charm?

You are going to have to be better dodgers than this to grow up unscathed. A girl learns early how to say "No" in no uncertain terms — or suffers dire consequences!

Most boys are not too dense to catch on. Try being cool, calm and persistent.

Confidential to WIFE WHO TRIED TOO HARD: Instead of being the competent and independent helpmate, try a little of the clinging vine approach. Your man needs dependence and spoken admiration from you, rather than so much virtuous long-suffering. Send me your address on a stamped envelope and I will forward my list of recommended books on sex in marriage.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My baby daughter is going to be christened.

(1) Can you tell me if the first layer of my wedding cake should be cut for this special occasion?

(2) We are of the Anglican faith. Some people have told me that chirstening and baptizing are different. Could you tell me about this? — MOTHER OF FIRSTBORN.

DEAR MOTHER:

(1) By all means.

(2) The word "christen" comes from the Old English word "Cristnian" — "to make a person a Christian by baptism." Today we consider that christening is the ceremony of baptism especially accompanied by the giving of a name. A person who is baptized in later life is not christened, but baptized.

* * *

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

William Tatham New Chairman Of Authority

PICTON (Staff) — William Tatham, a contractor, was named by acclamation as charter chairman of the newly-formed Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority. Mr. Tatham was the appointed representative from Ameliasburgh township. Reeve of Bloomfield, Henry Leavens, was also appointed by acclamation to act as vice chairman. Other members are Keith Perry, Athol Township; Fred Stafford, Hallowell Township; Ralph Margetson, Hillier Township; William Smith, North Marysburgh Township; Reeve Donald Bond of South Marysburgh Township; Mrs. Bessie Ward, Town of Picton, Roy Brooks, Sophiasburgh Township; and Robert Quick, Village of Wellington. Keith Perry and Fred Stafford were also, along with the chairman and vice chairman, elected to the executive committee.

In the early part of the meeting and prior to the election of Mr. Tatham, the director of the conservation authorities branch of the Ontario Department of Energy and Resources, Mr. A. S. Barnes acted as chairman.

Mr. Barnes described the system in Ontario as being unique in the world. He said, "the initiative must come from the people, an authority is not established unless requested from the people of the area involved."

One of the first things usually done is a survey, which is supplied by the department. Such a survey normally includes water, forest, land use, wild life and sometimes recreation. The survey is published as a report which includes many specific and general recommendations. He said that most of the reports are used by the authorities as a blueprint.

The member municipalities supply 50 percent of the authorities finances the Ontario Government supplies the other 50 percent.

William Smith of North Marysburgh was named as chairman of a special advisory board on finances.

Donald Clark, Ottawa, New County Engineer

PICTON (Staff) — Former county engineer, Ron Thomson, who resigned from his office at the end of December is being replaced in this position by Donald F. Clark, 42 of Ottawa. Mr. Clark was hired at a special session of county council where they passed the by-law. Mr. Clark will take over on April 16 upon retirement from the RCAF. He is presently a Squadron Leader in charge of construction engineering at RCAF Station Uplands. Being a professional engineer county council can qualify for a department of highways subsidy on his salary. Mr. Thomson left his position in Picton to work with a private construction firm in Ottawa.

TO RESUME TALKS

MONTREAL (CP) — Representatives of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC) and the Lake Carriers' Association are scheduled to resume negotiations Monday in an attempt to resolve a nine-month-old contract dispute. Negotiations between the association and union, representing some 500 deck officers on 160 of the association members' ships, have been deadlocked since last month on methods of procedure.

Ferry Service Is Resumed

PICTON — Following the heavy snowstorm last weekend the department of highways ferry operating between Adolphustown and Glenora on highway 33, has been out of operation. Capt. J. A. Haylock has stated that the heavy snowfall plus the great amount of ice in the channel caused the ferry to discontinue service. Crews worked until 8 p.m. Wednesday night to free the ice from the slips on the Adulphstown side. Regular ferry service was resumed at 7 a.m. today (Thursday).

No Plans For Retirement Says Pearson

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson denied Wednesday night that he has any plans for retirement.

Speaking at a Liberal rally, he said he had recently read a magazine article that said he was "preparing for an exit" and meanwhile intended to operate a "caretaker government."

"If that means a government going through the motions and waiting for someone to take over, nothing could be further from the truth," the 68-year-old prime minister said.

5,330 Retired Getting Less Than $50

OTTAWA (CP) — There are 5,330 retired civil servants receiving pensions of under $50 a month, the Commons was told Wednesday. Another 6,775 widows of civil servants are getting pensions in the same category.

A list of the pension brackets for 29,331 retired civil servants and 14,287 widows was tabled at the request of Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre).

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For February 4

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Control emotions. Unless you do there are apt to be mistakes. Don't wear heart on sleeve. Utilize logic. Member of opposite sex could pose cryptic question. Think before speaking.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): There is room at the top. Know this—act like you know it. Show special consideration for one in authority. Purchase of gift could spell difference between progress and failure.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Not wise to travel now unless necessary. What you seek is close at hand. Dig into files. Valuable clues available. Satisfy curiosity by getting advice of research expert.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Money-making ideas available. Push projects through to conclusion. Be aware of possessions. Check details. One you respect could offer valid suggestion. Follow it!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Be alive, aware and vital. Display talents, utilize inate sense of showmanship. Cycle high. Public reaction to your efforts is enthusiastic. Dress up. Stress beauty, finesse.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Cement ties of affection. Don't take loved one for granted. Make effort to patch up recent differences . . . shake off tendency toward gloom. Be positive — appreciate benefits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You may be called upon to perform extra duty. Maintain sense of humor. Avoid 'persecution complex." Realize higher-ups actually are paying you a compliment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Study Libra message. Don't put off basic tasks. Enhance career opportunities. Conditions at home improve . . . feeling of accomplishment results. Express gratitude to family member.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21). Gift from in-law should be received in spirit in which it is presented. Be gracious, charming. Visits or journeys now bear fruit. Be a self-starter. Get going!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Financial pressure due to lift. You experience greater freedom of choice. Excellent for purchase of luxury item. Beautify surroundings. Strive for self improvement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Follow through on hunch. Heed inner voice . . . build on solid foundation. Family member has your best interest at heart. Avoid extremes. Obtain sufficient rest tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Relatives of friends come into focus. Be diplomatic. You may be irritated by unusual request. But if you honor it . . . you have feeling of fulfillment. Stand tall.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are a square-shooter, loyal to friends and family . . . but you may require greater self-confidence. Once this is obtained . . . you can rise to the top.

• • •

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Leo, Virgo. Special word to Aquarius: Steer clear of dispute with legal implications.

Income Tax Tips

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

DEPENDANT DECEASED IN TAX YEAR

When a dependant has become deceased in the taxation year, many taxpayers are at a loss as to what exemption claim applies. If the deceased person has been supported by the taxpayer up until the time of death, then he is allowed to claim full exemption for the year.

In the case of a child under 16 years of age the claim is for $550, regardless of the fact family allowance was received up until the time of the child's death. This is a common error made by a parent. They will either claim $300 or nothing at all. Some will just claim a pro-rata portion of the $300. Please remember the claim is always $550 for a deceased child regardless of age. The taxpayer should show the child's name on the return followed by the word "Deceased 1965."

There never is any claim for stillborn children. The child must have breathed. Where a child has died immediately after birth and was less than one day old, the taxpayer may claim the full $550 exemption but he should attach a note or certificate from the attending physician stating the child was alive at birth.

This brings up another question on which letters are received each year. It is "Are funeral expenses deductible?" The answer is a definite "No." There is no provision in the Income Tax Act or Regulations which permits this type of deduction. Remember you are allowed full exemption for the dependant in the year of death, and this still applies if the dependant died on January 1st of the taxation year.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: We had a stillborn child this year. Is there any claim allowable on my tax return?

Answer: No. The child must have breathed.

Question 2: My mother whom I have always supported and claimed for $1000 died on January 2, 1965. Do I have any claim this year?

Answer: Yes. You may claim her as usual in the year of death.

BELLEVILLE HELPS OSWEGO

Blower, Loaders Loaned

Oswego Mayor Ralph Shapiro had high praise today for the efficiency of Belleville snow removal equipment, several units of which were sent to the New York State centre last night to help dig out from a 102 inch snowfall.

"They are a wonderful crew and the equipment is working very effectively," stated the Oswego mayor. "We really appreciate the gesture."

The Belleville snow removal equipment was sent to Oswego after Mayor Jack R. Ellis and city council agreed that this city should help out its neighbor across Lake Ontario.

Two front-end loaders, a snow blower and dump truck and their operators were sent to the snowbound New York State city last night and for the next two days will assist in clearing more than eight feet of snow.

"They are in real trouble over there and the least we can do is help them out a bit," stated Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis last evening.

He said the weather forecast didn't predict any snow for the Belleville area for the next three or four days so it was decided that this city could lend a hand in getting Oswego streets plowed out.

133 Die In Tokyo Bay, Record One-Plane Toll

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese airliner with 133 persons crashed into Tokyo Bay tonight in what could be the world's worst aviation disaster involving a single plane.

An airline spokesman reported the recovery of three bodies and said there was no sign of survivors.

All-Nippon Airways, operator of the plane, announced two rescue boats picked up the bodies and established that the plane had crashed into the bay.

Until then there had been hope the plane might have escaped disaster. It had been listed as missing for more than five hours.

All aboard the plane were Japanese.

Five hours after the Boeing 727 vanished, a Japanese lighthouse ship reported spotting an airplane seat, a body and a book of life-saving instructions. A Japanese defence forces patrol boat sent word it had recovered part of a jet airliner wing.

The debris was reported six to eight miles from Tokyo Airport, which is on the edge of the bay just south of the main part of Tokyo.

Villagers on the shore and a pilot of another plane reported seeing "a pillar of fire" rising from the bay at about 7 p.m. (5 a.m. EST)—just when Tokyo International Airport lost contact with the incoming plane. An oil refinery employee told police he heard an explosion about that time.

A Japanese defence forces helicopter sighted an oil slick about two miles from the airport. Another helicopter sent a vague report of sighting debris in the same area.

The plane was on a 600-mile flight from Chitose in northern Japan to Tokyo. Almost all the 126 passengers had been on a holiday in the snow - covered city to attend its annual snow festival, a winter carnival featuring giant snow statues. Seven

Drought So Bad Vultures Cannot Do Their Jobs

GABERONES, Bechuanaland (AP) — "The drought," said a government official, "has killed so many animals the vultures can't cope."

Drought has gripped Bechuanaland for five years and in some areas for six years. The countryside is a vast dustbowl.

"Even if we get good rains now, there would be only a partial recovery," said the government director of veterinary services, Jack Falconer. "There is severe, widespread erosion and much of the grass roots and seeds have disappeared, so there is nothing for the rain to bring up."

Medicare Program Attacked

TORONTO (CP) — The Liberal Opposition Leader in the Ontario legislature suggested Thursday the government had only the best interests of the medical profession and the insurance companies in mind when they prepared the medical-care insurance legislation.

Andrew Thompson, leading off the debate on the bill proposed by Premier Robarts' Conservative government, said all the bad health risks will desert the insurance companies.

He said insurance companies will be able to raise their health qualifications for enrolment when the legislation becomes effective July 1. "In effect they'll be left with all the 5-B-X graduates and the government will be burdened with the costly bad health risks."

In other legislature business Thursday:

Place TV Camera Safe On Surface By Soft Landing

From AP-Reuters

MOSCOW (CP)—Luna IX, the Soviet mechanical moon pioneer, has transmitted to earth pictures of the lunar landscape, Tass reported today.

An announcement distributed by the official Soviet news agency gave no indication when the pictures would be made public. It would be the first ever transmitted directly from the moon's surface to earth, after earlier Soviet and American pictures sent from spacecraft above the moon.

Luna IX "has begun scanning the lunar landscape and transmitting it to the earth's surface," the announcement said.

The space vehicle landed Thursday in an area of the moon that will be in direct sunlight for almost two weeks. This would permit a number of pictures to be sent, if Luna IX continues working properly and sunlight can power its batteries.

The announcement, made 20 hours after Luna IX's landing, said four radio communications

JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — The radiotelescopic observatory here announced today it is receiving sensational pictures of the moon from the Soviet Luna IX satellite. They show individual rocks on the moon's surface, a spokesman said.

Russians Have Proven Man Can Land on Moon

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) With the successful soft landing of Luna IX, the Russians apparently have proved that man can safely explore the moon. They also put added pressure on the troubled United States Surveyor program, which hopes to make a similar landing in May.

Until Luna IX settled gently onto the dry, relatively flat Ocean of Storms Thursday, scientists were divided on whether the moon's surface could support a landing.

Some felt the surface might be a thick layer of dust or a fragile honeycomb structure that would swallow a heavy spacecraft.

But Luna IX touched down and established firm radio contact with Russian ground stations, demonstrating that — no matter what the surface is made of—the Russians have designed a spaceship capable of surviving.

Any photographs and information which the spacecraft sends back will help in development of a manned lunar landing vehicle.

Space officials at Cape Kennedy praised the Russian success and conceded it gave them a lead in this phase of the man-to-the-moon race.

But they said it did not necessarily mean the Russians had gained the over-all lead in the lunar sweepstakes. They noted the United States leads in many areas in its drive to land astronauts on the moon by 1970. In-

Rhodesia Issue Pops Up

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—A new issue popped up in the Commons Thursday: Are Canada's economic sanctions against Rhodesia illegal?

Wallace Nesbitt, Conservative party spokesman on external affairs, charged that many of the sanctions imposed by the cabinet in November and December required parliamentary approval to be legal.

Later, Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) went further and asked whether it was "a kind Christian act" for Canada to help cast the people of Rhodesia, black and white, into economic distress.

It was the first time the Opposition has challenged the trade embargoes against Rhodesia and External Affairs Minister Martin said he was surprised. Lawyers in the justice department had assured him the sanctions are legal.

The Conservatives were expected to press their attack today as the Commons continues its study of external affairs spending estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31. The trade and transport departments are next in line for debate.

IS SUGAR STRATEGIC?

Mr. Nesbitt, a lawyer and MP for Oxford, said some of the cabinet orders cutting off trade with Rhodesia were based on a statute controlling trade in strategic goods. But what did Rhodesian tobacco and sugar have to do with Canada's security?

He said the government should introduce legislation to cover the sanctions. Parliament should have been called into

Identity of Lakehead Imposter May Be Shown by Fingerprints

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Fingerprints taken from the apartment of a missing Lakehead University teacher may answer once and for all the three-day-old question:

Who is David George Macdonald?

Fingerprints taken during a search Thursday of Macdonald's apartment have been sent to the provincial police records branch at Toronto for checking.

Thursday, Bruce MacDonald, a Hamilton, Ont., elevator company worker, said the man who posed as a psychology professor at the university since 1963 is his brother, Ronald Ivan MacDonald and that he might be driving his own car to California.

Police, meanwhile, have issued a warrant for the arrest of a Ronald David MacDonald, charging him with impersonating a Missouri psychology professor, David George McDonald, by forging documents.

The university revealed Tuesday that the man calling himself David George Macdonald had been suspended from the teaching staff pending a check of his credentials.

At St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, N.S., officials said a man resembling Macdonald posed as a psychologist there three years ago under the name, Dr. Clifford William Anderson.

The man called Anderson had credentials to show he was a graduate of McGill University in Montreal, but was fired two months after joining the staff at Antigonish.

In Montreal, it was reported Thursday that Macdonald worked with the Mental Hygiene Institute from July 1960 to July 1962, posing as Everitt Marshall, a graduate in psychology.

Dr. Baruch Silverman, director of the institute, said he recognized Macdonald from newspaper and television pictures as the man who posed as Marshall.

Dr. Silverman said he became suspicious of the man who claimed to be Marshall and had started investigations when the man disappeared.

A McGill University spokesman said Marshall never was on the staff of McGill, but that when the man posing as Marshall left the Mental Hygiene Institute he assumed the identity of William Clifford Anderson, a McGill graduate with a MSc and a PhD who was teaching at McGill while Marshall was at the institute. The real Anderson now is teaching at Waterloo Lutheran University.

HERBERT CHARLES CATTERMOLE

NAPANEE — A man who was known to many in Napanee because of his experience in gardening, Herbert Charles Cattermole died Sunday, January 30, 1966, in the Kingston General Hospital. He would have been 80 had he lived until Wednesday.

He was born in England, and gardening was his profession. he served his apprenticeship and there was little he did not know about plants and their care.

He came to Canada as a young man, and his service in the First World War left him with a heart condition, but was still well enough to carry on his chosen work. For 30 years he was one of the gardeners at the Royal Military College, at Queen's University and for the military commandant coming to Napanee approximately ten years ago, where he purchased a few acres of land in Clarkville.

He was a valued member of the Kingston Horticultural Society and a consistent prize winner at flower shows. Coming to Napanee, he transferred his activities to the local Horticultural Society, and was called on for assistance with their gardening by members of the society and others. He was a familiar figure going from place to place on his bicycle, transporting his spade or other equipment. Of late years he had been less active.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Annie Taylor; by his daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Huntley (Esther) of Gananoque; his sons, Herbert and Reginald (Bob) of Kingston and Cyril (Tim) of Mount Chesley; several grandchildren and great-grandchildren; and his sister and brother, Mrs. Edith Patten and Ernest Cattermole in England.

He was a member of Branch 137 of the Royal Canadian Legion.

The funeral service was held in the James Reid Funeral Home in Kingston, Wednesday, February 2, at 10.30 a.m. Interment was at Cataraqui Cemetery.

MRS. COLIN BRUCE BURNHAM

Mrs. Aimee Spray Burnham, 292 Cannifton Road, died today in the Belleville General Hospital following a lengthy illness. She was in her 74th year.

Born in Deseronto, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dennis H. Boyce, she lived all her life in the Belleville area.

Mrs. Burnham was a member of the United Church. She was predeceased by her husband, Colin Bruce Burnham.

She is survived by a son, Colin Bruce Burnham, Fall River, Massachusetts, a daughter, Mrs. Thomas (Margaret) Orr, Belleville, and a sister Mrs. John (Hazel) Horie, Sudbury. There are four grandchildren.

Mrs. Burnham will be resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home from Saturday noon for service in the chapel Monday at 1 p.m. Rev. Morgan G. McFarlane will officiate.

MRS. MARGARET JEWEL BLACK

In failing health for some time, Mrs. Margaret Jewel Black, 15 Alexander Street, and lifelong resident of this community, died at her home early this Friday morning. Mrs. Black was born in this city, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzpatrick and literally grew up with the city. It was always a pleasure to talk with her on the early life of the city.

Mrs. Black was a devout and faithful member of St. Michael's Church and when health permitted was active in many phases of the Parish work.

She enjoyed recreation and for many years was an enthusiastic member of the Lawn Bowling Club. She was an ardent and proficient bowler and played in many tournaments throughout the district. She also enjoyed a game of bridge and was most proficient in this game.

Mrs. Black is survived by two daughters, Sister Mary Imelda of Montreal, Mrs. Hubert (Bernie) Bedore of Kingston and four sons, Alphonsus, Twomey James and Joseph Black all of this city. One son, Murray Black, predeceased. Her husband B. J. Black, died some years ago. She was the last of her family.

Mrs. Black is resting at the O'Brien - Rutledge Funeral Residence for Requiem Mass at St. Michael's Church on Monday morning.

DR. ROBERT HALL
(Saskatoon — Belleville)

One - time United Church minister in Belleville and pastor of the John Street Church when it burned in 1906, Dr. Robert Hall of Saskatoon has died suddenly in that city.

Dr. Hall was pastor at the John Street church for about ten years and after the church burned went to Niagara Falls.

In recent years he had been associated with Home Missions in the Canadian west.

Although leaving Belleville about 30 years ago, Dr. Hall still had many friends in the city and was an occasional visitor here. He last visited Belleville in the spring of 1965.

Word of Dr. Hall's death was received through the United Church presbytery at Kingston.

HERBERT EDWARD DOLDER

The funeral for Herbert Edward Dolder was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Thursday afternoon. Canon R. B. D. Wright conducted the service in the Chapel and the graveside prayers at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were William and Bruce Edwards, John Andrews Jr., Herbert Seams, Jr., Douglas Hedger and Ernest Pearce.

THEODORE JOHN ROBLIN

The funeral of Theodore John Roblin was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Thursday afternoon. Rev. C. L. Broadhurst conducted the service in the chapel and the committal rites at entombment at Belleville Mausoleum.

The bearers were Sherman Babbitt, Bon Gerow, Clifford Hillman, Curtis Brazel, Joseph Keuning and Sidney Mabyasik.

Anniversary For Baptists At Parkdale

Parkdale Baptist Church will observe its fifth anniversary on Sunday, Feb. 6. A week of special meetings has been planned which will extend from Feb. 6 through Feb. 13. Rev. John T. McHardy of Toronto will be the speaker at the services on both of the Sundays and meetings each evening at 8 p.m.. (Saturday excepted). The public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. McHardy came to Canada from Northern Ireland. He forsook the career of a professional footballer to enter the ministry in 1944. He is a graduate of London, England Bible College. As an evangelist Mr. McHardy has preached in Europe and throughout the British Isles as well as Canada, the U.S. and South America. He is a gifted tenor soloist and will be singing as well as preaching while at Parkdale. Others will assist with special music throughout the campaign.

Tri Quinte Spiel Will Be Biggest Ever

At a meeting of the Quinte bonspiel committee held at the Trenton Curling Club last night under the direction of Charles Cox, chairman, it was apparent that the spiel this year will be the best ever. At the present time there have been 34 entries made for the eigth trophies, that will be competed for and at the rate they are coming in some rinks are going to be disappointed. The deadline will be 72 rinks and already the spiel is taking on an international flavor as rinks from the United States have been entered.

The trophies to be competed for are the British American Oil, The Belle Cleaners, Corby's Elliott Motors, North American Van Lines, O'Keefe's, Pepsi-Cola and Quinte Transport. The finals on Saturday night, March 5th for the Elliott Motors and Corby's will be played for at the Quinte Curling Club, the host club for the spiel this year. At the Trenton Curling Club the finals for the O'Keefe's will be played at the RCAF, the North American Van Lines and on Sunday night at the RCAF Station rink the finals for the Belle Cleaners, Pepsi - Cola, Quinte Transport and the B.A. Shield will be played.

The trophies to be played for at the several rinks along with the prizes will be exhibited at the rinks instead of a large collection in one place. There will also be signs prepared so that the gallery watching the games will know what event the rinks are competing for at the time of play. New pins have been secured and as this is the fifth spiel held jointly by the clubs, recognition of this fact will be made on the pins. Booklets with the draws attached will also be given out and inside these envelopes it is the intention to insert brochures from the three clubs outlining the advantages to be found in the Quinte district.

The official opening of the spiel will be held at the Quinte Curling Club at the start of the second draw on Wednesday night, March 2nd and at this time the C.O. of RCAF and the mayors of the two municipalities along with the presidents of the respective clubs will be present. A piper will head the curlers as they line the ice when the first rock is delivered. Get your entry in and avoid disappointment.

PUBLISH LABOR BILL

LONDON (AP) — A bill to force disclosure of company managers' salaries, corporate profits and political contributions was published Thursday by the government. It embodies some of Labor's campaign pledges and will have government backing for passage through this session of the Commons.

H. G. Kimber, Newspaperman, Dies in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Harry G. Kimber, former president and publisher of The Globe and Mail and active in the Canadian newspaper industry for more than 40 years, died today after a long illness. He was 73.

He was appointed president and publisher of The Globe and Mail in 1952 and retired from the post five years later.

A native of Toronto, Mr. Kimber started his newspaper career with the old Toronto Globe in 1912 as a junior in the business department. He stayed there three years, then joined the national council of the YMCA for several of the First World War years.

He returned to The Globe in 1919 and three years later became circulation manager.

He moved to London, Ont., in 1930 as general manager of The London Advertiser. In 1936, he returned to The Globe as general manager, remaining in that position when the paper was merged the same year with The Mail and Empire.

In 1951, Mr. Kimber was appointed assistant publisher of The Globe and Mail, Toronto's only morning paper. He became president and publisher the following year after the death of publisher George McCullagh.

HELD TWO POSTS

Mr. McCullagh was also publisher of The Evening Telegram and Mr. Kimber took over that post also. He held the job five months, when The Telegram was sold.

When Mr. Kimber stepped down as president and publisher of The Globe and Mail he was appointed assistant chairman of the board of directors, retiring in February, 1958.

He served as president of The Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association in 1947 and was vice-chairman of the Audit Bureau of Circulations in 1956-57.

His business interests included directorships in Mining Corp. and Quemont Mining Co. He was appointed to the Toronto Harbor Commission in 1959 by the federal government.

Baseball, yachting and fishing were among his recreational pursuits. He was a former president of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League.

Mr. Kimber is survived by his wife, the former Frances Joan FitzGerald, and a son, Harry, a Toronto lawyer.

Woman's Body Found Frozen In Ice in Home

BUFFALO (AP) — Firemen were called to chop free the body of a woman found frozen in nearly four inches of ice on her kitchen floor Thursday.

Police said Mrs. Adella Harmon, about 80, died several days ago apparently as she turned on the water tap at the kitchen sink.

Her body was pinned to the floor when the water overflowed and froze in the unheated apartment.

A coroner ruled that she died of malnutrition.

At Caledonia, highway department crews uncovered an automobile in a 25-foot snow drift Thursday and found in it the body of a 21-year-old man.

Police said Donald L. Frazer of Rochester, whose body was found stretched across the front seat of the car, apparently died after being trapped in the blizzard last Sunday night.

Hedy Lamarr Fired From Starring Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I was so tired from sleeping only one hour in four days. I just sort of collapsed for a day. That's human, isn't it?"

Thus actress Hedy Lamarr, exotic star of the 1930s and 1940s, explained her absence from work, which resulted in her firing Thursday from her first starring role in 15 years.

It was not, said producer Bert I. Gordon, because of her arrest last week on suspicion of shoplifting $86 in goods from a department store.

Miss Lamarr was replaced in Picture Mommy Dead by Zsa Zsa Gabor, Gordon said.

Inflation Hurts The United Church

TRENTON — Donald Williams, convener of the Missionary and Maintenance Committee with the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada told a presbytery meeting in Trenton Wednesday night that Canadian church members were failing to appreciate and support the work of the church according to present day monetary needs of the church.

Mr. Williams said there was no lack of money in Canada, as the record car sales for 1965 proved, but he said that people failed to recognize that "inflation" had affected the church as much as it had other organizations.

MORE GIVING

However, Mr. Williams reported that giving in the presbytery, which covers an area between Trenton, Picton, Napanee and Madoc, was increased in 1965 from what it had been done in 1964 and 1963.

Owing to a change in meeting date from Monday to Wednesday, only around 40 of the 60 ministers in the presbytery attended the quarterly meeting in Grace United Church. The members first sat down to a supper prepared and served by Unit 3 of the UCW group at Grace United Church. The devotional period was conducted by the minister, Rev. James Payton.

The business period was convened by the presbytery chairman, Rev. V. E. Zuflet of Picton and he was assisted by the secretary, Rev. Roy Vessey.

Mr. Vessey announced that the general secretary of the United Church of Canada had invited the presbytery to submit suggestions for the replacement of Rev. Stewart Crysdale, assistant secretary of Evangelism and Social Service. Mr. Crysdale has entered another field of service with the church. Suggestions must be in by June.

LEAVES AREA

The call of Rev. M. C. MacFarlane of Tabernacle United Church in Belleville to Bell Street United Church in Ottawa, was noted and approved with regret that Mr. MacFarlane would be leaving this area.

Mr. MacFarlane, chairman of the Evangelism and Social Services committee, reported there would be a Faith-at-Work conference conducted in United Churches in Belleville from March 24 to March 27. Church leaders will be coming in from many parts of Canada and the United States to give direction to this modern and effective form of evangelism. The meeting will be open to the public.

In other business, the presbytery heard a missions' report, read by Rev Wendell Sedgewick in the absence of the chairman, Rev. Howard Kennedy and approved Home Mission grants to the Bayside, Flinton-Cloyne, Ivanhoe and Tamworth charges.

Rev. Vessey announced that Rev. Zufelt would conduct the induction of Rev. Wm. McDowell at King Street United Church, tonight, at 8 p.m. Rev. Bruce Small of Stirling will be guest speaker at the service.

Dedicate Memorial Window In St. Andrews' Church

TRENTON — A new medallion stained-glass window, depicting Christ as the Sower, is to be presented and dedicated in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at the service of worship on Sunday morning. This window is to be presented by Mr. and Mrs. Murray Dixon, and unveiled by their daughter, Mrs. Ruth Shackelton, in loving memory of their only son and brother, Sgt. Pilot Murray Allan Dixon, who lost his life in an air accident while serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force out of Milfield, England, during the Second World War.

This beautiful stained glass window, installed this week, has the figure of Christ the Sower upon it, with the inscription, "Behold A Sower went forth to sow" and "The seed is the word". At the morning service of worship, the minister, Douglas A. Wilson, will speak on the text spoken by Christ, using the subject "Sowing and Reaping".

Murray Allan Dixon was born in Schreiber, Ontario, where his father worked on the Canadian Pacific Railway. For the past 35 years Mr. and Mrs. Dixon have been respected citizens of Trenton. Murray Jr. graduated from Trenton High School in 1941, and was registered at Queen's University where he wanted to study education.

He, and his good friend E. F. "Bob" Jackson both joined the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and then enlisted together in the Royal Canadian Air Force. Murray Dixon trained at Arnprior, Belleville, Oshawa, and finally Moncton where he graduated and received his wings as a pilot on October 9, 1942. Proceeding overseas, he was stationed at Bournemouth, Walton and finally at Milfield where he was killed while flying a Hurricane fighter plane. He is buried in the parish churchyard at Kirknewton, near Wooler, Northumberland, England. On a journey overseas a few years ago his parents were able to visit the site of his burial.

Murray Dixon, like his parents, was deeply interested in the church, and it is fitting that this window should be dedicated to his memory in St. Andrew's, which he joined as a young man. Expected to attend this service as guests will be Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Shackelton and family of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Ormond Dixon, Mrs. John R[illegible]tree, and Mrs. John Butt all of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huke of Scarborough; Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Butt of Peterborough; and Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Dales and son Murray of Belleville.

His Feathered Friends Flock To Feeding!

TRENTON — A. G. (Jack) Austin of Wooler has been asked to speak before the camera club of Richmond, Virginia on April 13. Mr. Austin will also be showing his colored nature slides to the American audience.

A photographer with a five-star rating with the Photographers' Society of America, Mr. Austin has collected numerous prizes and honorable mentions at showings in the U.S.A. and Canadian shows. Most of his photographs are taken right around home as the backyard of the Austin residence is a haven for birds winter and summer. For studies of deer and smaller woodland animals, Mr. Austin takes his camera further north to parksites.

MIXED MENUS

The Austin feeding station this year is being patronized by Blue Jays, grosbeaks, woodpeckers, chicadees, tree and English sparrows and Juncos. The menu includes sunflower seeds, mixed wild bird seed, suet, peanut butter, nut meats and budgie seed.

Two cardinals who decided to take up residence for the winter came to grief when the neighbor's cat entered the picture.

One red-winged blackbird, who also had thoughts about spending the winter as the Austin's guest, changed his mind after last weekend's snowstorm.

MOVED IN

Two Baltimore Orioles have the best idea of all . . they have moved inside with the Austins and the male sits on Mr. Austin's pen while he writes or on the telephone when it is in use, entering into the conversation with the reporter who phoned to enquire about the need for wild-bird feeding this season.

Mr. Austin says area residents should double up their efforts to feed the wild birds now that hard snow covers the dried weed seeds in the fields.

PROTEST U.S. BOMBING

Man Arrested After Assault In Deseronto

DESERONTO — Police here are holding a man on a charge of assault with intent to rob, after a service station attendant was assaulted last night.

Police Chief Len Thomlison was reluctant to identify the accused man since there are other charges probably pending. However, he said the man was of no fixed address.

He was arrested in a downtown parking lot about 20 minutes after a man had entered Burley's service station, chatted with attendant Larry Herman, then suddenly slugged him.

Police were uncertain whether the assault was committed with a bottle or a hammer. Herman was treated by Dr. D. C. McVicker for scalp cuts.

IN MEMORIAM

SWEET — In loving memory of my dear husband, Erastus Sweet, who passed away Feb. 4, 1963.

My heart still aches with sadness,
And secret tears still flow,
What it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
When I am sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong,
I seem to hear you whisper,
"Cheer up and carry on."
Each time I see your photo,
You seem to smile and say,
Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,
We'll meet again some day."
—Never forgotten by his loving wife Ina Sweet.

REID — In loving memory of a dear son, John Wallace Wesley, who passed away February 4th, 1962.

Sweet memories will linger ever,
Time cannot change them it's true,
Tears that may come cannot sever,
My loving remembrance of you.
—Lovingly remembered, Dad.

BARNHARDT, Mary Lewis — A dear mother who passed away Feb. 4, 1963.

Dear mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.
—Lovingly remembered by son Howard and family.

BARNHARDT — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mary Margaret (Lewis) Barnhardt, who passed away three years ago today, Feb. 4, 1963.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And secret tears still flow,
What it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
When we are sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong,
We seem to hear you whisper,
Cheer up and carry on,
Each time we see your picture,
You seem to smile and say,
Don't cry I'm only sleeping,
We will meet again some day.
—Sadly missed by daughter, Mrs. Ernest Barberstock (Keitha) and family.

Denies Slain Man Seemed Effeminate

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The state lost no time in coming to grips with the defence contention that Jacques Mossler's murder may have been the result of weird sexual habits.

State Attorney Richard Gerstein Thursday asked one of his own witnesses at the first-degree murder trial of Mossler's widow Candace, and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers:

"Did it ever occur to you that Jacques was a little bit effeminate?

"Never," replied the witness, Howard B. Walker, for 21 years an executive in Mossler's $33,000,000 banking and loan empire.

"Was Mr. Mossler a homosexual?" Gerstein asked point blank in a crowded Dade County circuit court room.

"To my knowledge, no," said Walker, who is manager of the Miami branch of the Allen-Parker Co., a Mossler - owned auto finance firm.

Only a half - day court session was planned today before an all-male jury. The state planned to call laboratory experts who examined the murdered man's apartment after the 69-year-old Mossler was bludgeoned and knifed to death June 30, 1964.

Candy Mossler, a small, shapely blonde who gives her age as 39, and Powers 29, are on trial for their lives. The state claims they plotted Mossler's murder for his money and to further "a sordid, illicit love affair."

In his opening statement, Powers' chief counsel, Percy Foreman, told the jury that "there was not a conceivable sexual deviation in all psychiatry that Mossler did not have."

The import of the accusation, Forman explained, was that Mossler could have been the victim of a homosexual companion on the night he met violent death in his apartment.

Walker testified on cross-examination that Mossler for a year previously had shared a one - bedroom apartment with Vincent T. Caltagirone, described by the witness as a "handsome young man."

Fighter Needs Long Runway To Take Off

OTTAWA (CP)—The authoritative U.S. trade magazine Aviation Week says the Northrop F-5 Freedom Fighter had to be refuelled 16 times in the air and make two ground stops during its 10,500-mile trip from Arizona to Saigon last October

It says the F-5 combat trials in Viet Nam have pinpointed both advantages and limitations, one of the latter being that the plane needs 6,400 feet of runway to take off with a "moderate" bomb load. This is more runway than required by an Air Canada DC-8 passenger jet.

The Canadian defence department has ordered 125 F-5s at a cost of $215,000,000. Officials here say changes will be incorporated in the Canadian version to remove the difficulties encountered by the U.S. Air Force in Viet Nam.

F-5 advantages listed by Aviation Week in its Jan. 17 issue after its on-the-spot survey in Viet Nam:

—Ease of maintenance.

—Apparent less vulnerability to ground fire than bigger fighter-bombers.

—Excellent acceleration and climb — after bombs have been jettisoned.

The magazine lists these limitations:

—"Excessive" jamming of the guns and difficulties with the bomb release mechanism.

—Damage to jet engines caused by their sucking in foreign objects, including steel particles from jammed ammunition.

—Limited range, even with moderate bomb load.

Guest speaker of the evening was Mr. J. A. Edwards, acting director of Tourist and Industry Development Branch, Department of Tourism and Information.

GENERAL PROGRAM

Mr. Edwards said the general program of the Branch is to make available to potential tourists such information and accommodation as will encourage tourists to come, stay and return. In order to carry out this program information and statistics must be compiled. Accordingly the department has built up files of research data, in 1965 tourists it is estimated spent one and one half billion dollars in the province.

There are 14 development offices and 17 tourist reception centres of the department to assist tourist establishments with publicity programs, accounting procedures, plans for renovation or expansion.

Training seminars are conducted to give tourist operators and staff the benefit of the experience gained by the department.

There is also a general advisory body in the department giving advice concerning capital expenditure in any special area and also legal advice if necessary.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Bruce Sharp who also presented him with a gift.

FAIR ASSOCIATION DIRECTORS — Mrs. Jack VanKoughnett, Napanee; Mrs. Clayton Thompson, Campbellford; Mrs. H. Scrutton, Kingston; J. K. Patterson, Kingston, and Carl Heath, Hastings, check fair dates at Central Fairs' Association meeting in Belleville.

Emphasis on Marketing Farm Products Urged on Fair Boards at Annual Meet

Ontario agricultural societies should attempt to bring prize lists more in line with the times, with greater emphasis on marketing and consumption of farm products, delegates to the Central Fairs Association were told yesterday.

Phil Dodds of Picton, vice president of class A and B Fairs in Ontario, told the approximately 100 delegates attending the annual gathering that it was "time for an overhaul" for fairs in Ontario.

He said that there should be more emphasis on promoting the consumption of farm products instead of merely showing the same class of exhibits year after year.

In urging fairs to try to be a little different, Mr. Dodds suggested a tree-planting program as centennial projects for agriculture societies. Most of the fair grounds would be greatly improved by the planting of a few trees, he said.

LARGE DISTRICT

The Central Fairs Association (District 3) Convention is when representatives of fair boards from Kingston to Norwood get together to discuss problems and to set fair dates for the coming season.

Both men and women have their own organizations and meet separately to discuss aspects of fair programs from the male and female standpoint, and elect officers for another year.

Then in the afternoon the groups combine for a joint meeting when general fair topics are discussed and special speakers heard.

Special speaker for yesterday's meeting at the Club Canara was Ronald Bagg, from the Agricultural Societies Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Bragg outlined the various grants available to agriculture societies, both from the Ontario and Federal governments with particular emphasis on the fair improvement grants offered.

Mr. Bagg also showed colored slides of events and especially attractive exhibits at several of last year's fairs.

NAME OFFICERS

Carl Heath of Hastings was re-elected for a second term as district fairs director with Associate director, being Mr. J. K. Patterson of Kingston. Secretary-treasurer is Gordon McCubbin of Campbellford.

Mrs. Hilda Scrutton of Kingston is the new president for the Central Fairs Women's organization, succeeding Mrs. F. Bailey of Cooper. Vice-presidents are Mrs. Clayton Thompson of Campbellford and Mrs. J. VanKoughnett of Napanee, with Mrs. W. A. Hume of Campbellford as secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Ronald Hamilton, R.R. 5 Trenton as junior convener.

At their morning session the women heard reports and were given a demonstration of floral arrangements by Mrs. M. Johnston.

During the afternoon they heard a talk on "Our Prize Lists Up To Date" and saw a demonstration on "Liquid Embroidery"

REVIEWS YEAR

Mr. Heath reviewed the year's district fair activities for the men and said that in spite of instances of inclement weather an over - all success was enjoyed.

Durng his official visits to the various district fairs, Mr. Heath said he had noted improvements in exhibits.

"Successful fairs are the result of co - operation on the part of many people," Mr. Heath said, emphasizing the value of the part which exhibitors play.

Mr. Bagg told the meeting that district conventions provided an opportunity for fair delegates to discuss their own fair and their own fair policies as well as to learn from others through discussion groups and speakers.

"Make full use of all the talent which you have," he urged delgates.

Russians Have

cluded are most manned space flight time, longest flights, medical data, space rendezvous and manoeuvrable spacecraft. Russia holds a slight edge in rocket power and the two nations are even in manned space walks.

Other goals must be achieved before men venture to the moon. A key one is the joining of two vehicles in space, which the U.S. hopes to do with the Gemini 8 flight in March.

Because of the great secrecy surrounding Russian efforts, it is difficult to assess who is ahead. It's been nearly a year since the last Russian cosmonaut went aloft. In that period, 10 American astronauts have rocketed into space.

But, as one rocket expert noted, "they could have a 20-man spacecraft on the pad right now and we wouldn't know about it until after it was launched."

U.S. officials hope the Russians remove the secrecy veil from what Luna IX reveals. If they do it would help American planning for the Apollo man-to-the-moon ship and also take some of the heat off the Surveyor program.

But even if the Russians released all the data that Luna IX records, the United States probably would proceed with the Surveyor launchings, seven of which are planned in an 18-month period.

Black Diamond Signs Contact With Union

Mr. Donald Joss, president of Black Diamond Cheese, Limited, and Mr. Robert Poste, president of Local 688, United Packinghouse, Food and Allied Workers, AFL-CIO-CLC, have announced the signing of a new collective agreement for the years 1966 and 1967 covering the employees of Black Diamond Cheese, Limited.

The total package wage increase will amount to 34 cents per hour spread over two for male employees will be years. The minimum wage rate $1.84 an hour in 1966, and $2.00 an hour in 1967, and female employees will receive $1.69 an hour in 1967. Salaried $1.53 an hour in 1966, and employees will go to $103.00 per week by 1967.

Paid public holidays will total nine per year and also an improved medical and vacation plan were negotiated.

crew members also were aboard the plane.

ATTEMPT LANDING

Weather was good when the plane disappeared. An airline official said the pilot had reported a malfunction in his instruments and that he would make a visual landing. He was given clearance. Seconds later contact was broken with ground control.

There was an unconfirmed report that Japanese helicopters had seen a boat picking up survivors but authorities later said this was erroneous.

The worst previous crash involving a single plane brought death to 130 persons aboard an Air France jetliner near Paris June 3, 1962. In the second worst, 129 U.S. servicemen died in June, 1963, in another crash near Tokyo.

While Japanese ships and fishermen searched the darkened bay, the government appointed a special commission to investigate the accident.

At Tokyo Airport, more than 200 relatives awaited news of plane. They jammed a small waiting room. A mother and daughter sat on a chair sobbinb.

Teamsters Picketing Most Trucking Firms

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A three-week strike b ythe independent Teamsters Union against 55 Ontario trucking firms continued today as both union and companies juggled for position and bargaining points.

The union reiterated its standfast policy as pickets went up at most member firms of the southeastern Ontario section of the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau. The trucking companies have closed their yards.

In an interview, John Nickell, public relations officer for the bureau said: "We're hopeful for some sort of a settlement at a meeting today in Windsor."

The strike began after the union, representing more than 10,000 truckers and mechanics, rejected a new contract recommended by a conciliation board.

SUGGESTED 46 HOURS

The board had suggested a 3½ year contract with pay increases up to 56 cents an hour for a 46-hour work week. During the length of the contract, the work week would gradually reduce to 43 hours.

In rejecting the offer, the union demanded a further reduction of the work week to 40 hours with no reduction in $2-an-hour pay and a tighter restriction on the use of non-union drivers.

After nearly three weeks of verbal cross-fire, the union set up pickets Thursday at most company sites. There was trouble the first day only at Motorways (Ontario) Ltd. in Sault Ste. Marie, where the manager said he had to call police when three Teamsters blocked his path while he was driving a truck out of the yard.

But in Kingston, R. B. Carron, president of Local 91, said no pickets would be set up at the closed yards in his areas.

Minister Displeased At Remarks

TORONTO (CP) — Economics Minister Stanley Randall said Thursday that if Quebec's Eric Kierans wants to take pot shots at the United States, he should do so in his own back yard.

Speaking in the legislature, Mr. Randall expressed his displeasure at remarks made in Toronto Tuesday by Mr. Kierans, Quebec health minister, criticizing U.S. government guidelines for American companies operating abroad.

"I'd like him to know that if he makes any more statements of this kind, he wil sake them in his own jurisdiction," said Mr. Randall. "If he wants to commit economic suicide, he can do it there."

He feared newspaper reports of Mr. Kierans' speech under a Toronto dateline may make it appear in the United States as if the views of the Quebec cabinet minister had the sanction and support of Ontario.

The United States is trying to solve its balance-of-payments problems, Mr. Randall said, and it is not in Canada's interests to take pot shots at this country's best customer and supplier.

Outside the house Mr. Randall was asked whether he was a little blunt in his reaction to Mr. Kierans.

"I don't think Mr. Kierans pulls his punches," he replied. "My responsibility is to the province of Ontario. If I was to go down to Quebec and make statements which in his view were detrimental to foreign investment going into Quebec, perhaps he might be concerned about it too."

In his speech to the Toronto Society of Financial Analysts, Mr. Kierans accused the U.S. of directly interfering in the operations of Canadian business and of controlling the activities of Canadian citizens through its recently-announced guidelines.

Mr. Randall said he has confidence in the federal government to undertake negotiations with the United States. International monetary policies are the responsibility of Ottawa, and Ontario will make known its wishes to those at the federal level who can best deal with them.

New Quebec Party Planned

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—La Tribune says a new provincial political party whose members would include some malcontents of established parties is in the process of being formed.

The newspaper says it learned from a well informed source that Emilien Lafrance, minister without portfolio in the Quebec Liberal government, is among those working towards formation of the party.

Teeners May Form Assoc. To Run Their Own Activities

A meeting of close to 200 teenagers was held last evening at the Recreation Centre. The purpose of the meeting was to determine what steps could be taken in order that these people may conduct wholesome activities of their own.

Enthusiasm among the group was great, to say the least, and if this is any criterion, their activities could prove to be the answer to the problems of most teenagers in this city.

The group was offered the use of the Memorial Arena as soon as the ice comes out and for the ensuing months, which will enable them to conduct social activities on weekends. They were also offered a separate room in the same building that will be renovated to their own specification that will be used at a teen drop in centre after school and weekends.

A provisional executive comprising of ten people was formed to explore the situation and report back to the main body with firm proposals as to membership, program, facilities and other things relevant to the situation.

The executive members elected were: Janice Ronsky, Patricia Bridge, Trudy Hibbard, Steve LaMorre, Eric Mastin, Barry Campbell, Grant Freestone, Denny Jenkinson, and Jack Archer.

Others present offered their full support to this venture, they include, Constable Barry Titterson on behalf of the City Police Department, Norm Carter on behalf of the Recreation Committee, Dave Charles, Radio Station CJBQ, Mr. Collins of the Belleville Theatre Guild, Mr. Mowers of Hastings Pleasure Gardens.

By virtue of the response at last night's meeting it seems that things are at least beginning to roll for the teens of the city.

Varsity Hoax

The extraordinary case of the psychologist who is not a psychologist — not a qualified one, at least — at Lakehead University is leaving a trail of red faces from Nova Scotia to Missouri and California.

Lakehead University's calendar, listing the names and qualifications of members of its faculty, led to the undoing of the man calling himself Dr. David George Macdonald. David McDonald, a different spelling of the last name, of the University of Missouri, saw a copy of the calendar and there was his name and his degrees.

This led to the exposure the other day of the Lakehead Macdonald, now being sought by police. It has also been revealed that a man answering the description of the wanted man taught psychology for nearly three months at St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, in 1962-63.

Investigation is also being made in California into the whereabouts of Ferdinand Waldo Demara, the celebrated Canadian imposter. It was thought at first the man might be Demara.

All this inevitably raises the question of how much scrutiny is given the qualifications of people seeking university posts. Lakehead president W. G. Tamblyn has been quoted as saying they are examined more strictly than was the case in the early days of the university when it opened as a college of arts and staff were urgently needed. How then did this man slip through?

No doubt the affair of the psychology professor is an isolated one, and in the words of Ontario Education Minister William Davis it should not be allowed to detract from a system of selection which has worked "remarkably well". He said the universities alone make the decisions on faculty selection.

Fight Heart Disease

This is Canadian "Heart Month" when emphasis is placed on the Canadian Heart Fund's annual campaign for funds.

Heart disease is Canada's number one health enemy. It is responsible for more than 50 per cent of all deaths in this country.

Canada has made great progress in the treatment of heart disease and research continues unabated. Yet much remains to be done and more funds are needed.

The national objective this year is $1,615,000, of which Ontario's share is $640,000.

Some idea of what remains to be accomplished by research into heart disease may be gauged from the fact that the disease causes an annual production loss in Canada of more than 30 million man-hours, at an estimated cost of $200 million.

Many victims are at the peak of their skills — between the ages of 45 and 60 — and often hold key positions in industry or in civic capacities after years of expensive training.

In plain statistics ,diseases of the heart and circulation, which the Heart Fund dollars help to fight, are responsible for more than 72,000 deaths in Canada each year.

Fund raising continues officially until February 28, and February 20 has been designated "Heart Sunday" across Canada.

International School

The proposal to establish an Anglo-American public school in England should appeal to the increasing number of Americans and Canadians who are trying to get their sons into English public schools.

British and U.S. intellectuals are backing plans for the school. They are currently looking for premises, possibly in the shape of a stately home of historic interest. It is hoped to accommodate up to 400 students.

The history and literature of both countries will form a basic part of the curriculum and sports will include those played on both sides of the Atlantic, including cricket and baseball.

Rev. Peter Gamble, who will be headmaster of the as yet unnamed school, has been quoted as saying the idea is to take boys from 12 to 18 and mold an "Anglo-American generation." Eventually, as associated school will be established in the United States, and students will be exchanged between the two.

This dual-nationality educational plan sounds like an excellent idea. One of the disadvantages for Americans or Canadians sending their sons to British schools at present is that the youngsters feel like aliens when they return to their homeland. It is the same for British youths who go to school on this continent for any length of time.

Where sport is concerned the new school should ensure that the conversation does not revolve eternally round cricket and/or baseball. We are reminded of the Viet Nam cartoon in which an American out on patrol with Australians says: "Cricket . .cricket. . .don't you guys talk about anything else!"

The school will inevitably develop a cult of exclusiveness, simply by reason of the expense involved. Public schools in Britain are fee-paying establishments, and the charges at the new school will run at $1,960 a year. This is higher than most public schools in Britain.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Feb. 4, 1966 . . .

Delegates of six of the seceding states of the United States met 105 years ago today—in 1861 — at Montgomery, Ala., to form a provisional government. The name Confederate States of America was chosen for South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida, and Jefferson Davis was elected president. Texas, Virginia, Tennessee, Arkansas and North Carolina later joined the confederacy. It lasted less than five years, until the surrender in 1865, but has been a controlling influence in U.S. history ever since.

1783—50,000 people died in an earthquake in Calabria, Italy.

1938—Hitler assumed personal command of the German army.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—the British Mesopotamian relief force was held up on its way to besieged Kut-el-Amara; French artillery shelled German troops and convoys at Roye.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—Lord Wavell's army occupied Cyrene, 60 miles west of Derna, Libya; it was announced 158 people had been killed in air raids on Malta since Italy entered the war; London and other English towns were bombed.

To Your Good Health

Blood Pressure Often Fluctuates Widely

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is 50 and has been turned down several times for insurance because of his blood pressure. The doctor says everyone's goes up and down, but according to the insurance company, this was abnormal. Can you explain?—Mrs. R. J.

• • •

It's true that blood pressure fluctuates, and some perfectly healthy people develop rather high pressures when under emotional strain, including the nervousness of going to the doctor, or having an insurance examination.

Insurance companies are aware of this, but they still have to establish certain general criteria for evaluating risks. Most of them do not have a hard and fast figure for blood pressure.

Rather, the decision is made on a combination of considerations: Age, weight, past history, pulse rate, build and even heredity.

This is something to be kept in mind, not just for insurance examinations, but whenever your doctor begins to be concerned about your blood pressure. Don't expect him to give you a pill that will make everything all right. It isn't that simple. (He may of course, prescribe medication to help the situation.)

But do pay attention when he urges you to lose some weight, get a little more exercise, stop letting your work or other responsibilities drive you too incessantly, take a vacation, get more sleep, stop drinking so much, or otherwise tackle some of the conditions which are making you a "poor risk."

Some people pay too much attention to the figures denoting blood pressure, and not enough to other indications of their degree of health.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do you have a booklet on bed-wetting? I have a grandson, 3 years old. His daddy scolds, shames and punishes him for wetting the bed, but at the same time allows him to have several glasses of juice after 6 p.m. Can a 3-year-old be expected to keep a dry bed? What should they do? — H. R.

Yes, I have such a booklet, "Enuresis — Ten ways to Stop Bed-Wetting." You may have a copy by sending 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. From what readers tell me, this booklet gives them a realistic idea of the various whys and wherefores of bed-wetting, and an outline of the proper way to correct it.

Scolding, shaming and punishment are not effective cures. And certainly a child with this trouble should not have too much fluid in the last few hours before he goes to bed. It makes his problem more difficult.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 68 and for several months have had the problem of infected hair in the nose. My doctor does not seem greatly concerned except to caution me aganst pulling them out. — R. E. M.

The nose — and this is something everyone should remember — harbors many organisms not the least of which is the staphylococcus germ.

When a hair becomes infected this can spread readily and often tends to be rather persistent. Pulling such a hair increases the risk of spreading the infection.

A staph focus of infection in the nose can be the source of boils elsewhere. Sometimes treatment with one of the antibiotics will clear up the condition.

Note to Mrs. E. H.: Your past illnesses and medication in no way prevent you from having a flu shot. Rather, a flu shot will be excellent protection for you while you are recuperating.

Strictly Personal

Relaxation Can Kill Some

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

More than a half-century ago, when life was what we would now call "tranquil," one of America's best comic writers, George Ade, wrote a book called "Fables in Slang." One of the fables began this way:

"A Business Slave was pulling like a Turk so that his Wife could wear three Rings on every Finger. Also, he wanted to put something aside for a Rainy Day. He put it aside as if expecting another Deluge . . ."

And the fable ended, as they all did, with a Moral: "One Cannot Rest except after steady Practice." This is a lesson we seem to have forgotten. Our modern age has become increasingly concerned about the overworked and tension-torn businessman, and the soaring rate of heart attacks in middle age, which is creating new widows by the millions.

On all sides, we are advised to "take it easy," to "rest and relax," to "learn to enjoy life at a slower pace." But, as Ade put it, one cannot rest except after steady practice. Relaxing is as much of an art as working, or any other skill. A man who has run hard for 20 years can no more suddenly stop than a race horse can pull to a dead halt upon hitting the finish wire.

Men who suddenly retire from the arena of commercial combat often wake up to find themselves dead six months later. They cannot take the lack of pace. Resting has killed them — they are out of practice.

The art of relaxing must be cultivated at an early age, or it cannot be developed at all, in the majority of cases. It must become habitual, like playing the piano an hour or two a day, in order to become natural. Unnatural and enforced inactivity is death to the soul; and when the soul shrivels, the body has little reason for lingering on.

As a nation, we simply do not know how to relax. Our entertainments are hectic and stressful; our vacations are often a competition to see which families can cover the most miles on the smallest amount of gasoline; and our eating and drinking habits are strictly gulp-and-run.

After a lifetime of this absurdly frantic regimen, how can we expect the average American man to become a leisurely and contemplative person? The transition is too sharp, and the abrupt end of the race kills as many men as the race itself.

"One cannot rest except after steady practice," is a motto that might be hung on every office wall, right beneath the familiar "Think." It's one of the things worth thinking about before rest becomes all too permanent.

Cook Book Best Seller

Regina Leader - Post

At the turn of the century, quite unknowingly, a young American woman probably sparked the beginning of world-wide cook books. Mrs. Simon Kander was a Milwaukee housewife interested in helping immigrants integrate into their newly adopted country. She edited a little cook book expressly for the use of these immigrants and distributed it through the agencies of a Milwaukee settlement house. It was one of the very first cook books published on this continent to introduce foreign recipes. Included in the book were many old favorites and soon its fame became known in other parts of the U.S. and in Canada. Today the book has just reached its 32nd printing, indicating its appeal.

Although cook books of this type must be a boon to homesick people from other lands, they in turn have more than repaid the courtesy by passing along their own skills to their new friends and neighbors. The war brides brought back to Canada by our own men of the armed services are a case in point. Not the least of the many charms those women brought with them were prized family recipes which they in turn passed along to the feminine members of their husband's families. Now, two decades later, the same recipes have been assured a sort of mortality as the Canadian children of these wartime marriages practise the best culinary arts of the worlds of both parents.

Ocean Is Not a Junk-yard

Daniel Behrman In UNESCO Features

Man can no longer consider the sea as a highly convenient and apparently limitless combination of junk-yard and sewer.

This warning was underscored by the 54-nation Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission at its fourth session in Paris, when it urged its member countries to "intensify their investigations of marine pollution in all its aspects".

In a resolution, the Commission recognized "the great and growing concern about marine pollution and the urgency of better understanding processes governing marine pollution with view to facilitating their ultimate control".

The Unesco-sponsored Commission set up a working group that will report at its next session on ways of furthering "national and international studies of relevant oceanographic processes" affecting pollution. It will co-operate closely with other international bodies now concerned with the problem.

It has been suggested that the group draw up recommendations to establish a scientific framework for research in various aspects of marine pollution.

The group may also be asked to study the feasibility of international co-operative studies on such problems as the presence of insecticides in the open ocean, the pollution of coastal zones and the use of continental shelf areas for the offshore dumping of junk.

Chairman of the panel that had prepared the Commission's resolution was Dr. Peter Korringa, director of the Netherlands Institute for Fisheries Investigations at Ijmuiden.

He saw the resolution as a reflection of the growing awareness that man can pollute and destroy large areas of the sea just as he has polluted and destroyed land. "Not so very long ago, it was generally believed that the function of open water was to receive the wastes of humanity," he said in an interview.

Domestic sewage is no great problem as a rule because it is broken down so rapidly by micro-organisms in the sea, crude oil, radioactive wastes, Dr. Korringa explained. But heavy metals and the chlorinated hydrocarbons used as insecticides are not disposed of by biological processes. DDT has been found in tuna caught 400 miles offshore, and other pesticides in penguins in the Antarctic.

World Tour Dream Came True

Dennis J. Opatrny, United Press International

LINCOLN, Neb. — It was in 1964 that I embarked on a lifelong dream — to see the world. And hang the thought of what it would cost.

Now, after 16 months, 30,000 miles and an empty bank account, I'm left with a vault full of memories and a thousand daydreams.

But it was worth it.

My hitchhiking thumb took me to 35 countries of Western and Eastern Europe, the Middle East and North Africa. It carried me down the German Autobahn, Italian Autostrada and even the unpaved desert roads of Egypt.

I exchanged bacon and eggs, hamburgers and french fries for bread and cheese, sardines and goat's milk.

I gave up my comfortable stateside bed for a youth hostel bunk in a dormitory with 40 other travelers.

I suspended my daily shower for a bi-weekly public bath or dip in an icy stream.

And I noticed thousands of others were doing the same thing.

Extended travel of this nature is generally restricted to the young of heart and body. However, I did meet a 45-year-old American who had been thumbing on three continents for two years. He was last seen en route from India to Istanbul.

When I reached the Soviet Union, my entire plan of travel was changed. Only Russians are allowed to hitchhike.

Friends and I rented a car in France and camped our way through the Soviet country.

If you take a tour in Russia, it will cost from $16-$35 a day. Camping out costs $1.50 per day.

We took sleeping bags, tents and warm clothes (even in the summer months).

We learned it's a safe thing to do to stay on highways marked on your itinerary. Avoid any area that looks like it might be used for military purposes.

The camp sites in the Soviet Union are the best I've ever seen in my travels. There are clean grounds, hot showers, a kitchen for self - cooking, a food shop, a restaurant and an Intourist guide who speaks English.

A friend of mine spoke excellent Russian, and I managed to stammer along, so there was no communication problems. We spoke to anyone who would listen and were received with hospitality and friendliness.

I've returned to the States now, but the travelling urge hasn't left me.

When I save up a little money it may be too strong to pass by — and my thumb may be out again.

Township History Project

Stratford Beacon-Herald

The story about Lazy Willy Hoey is that he had a running feud with the local tavern-keeper. The man who ran the village tavern complained that Lazy Willy was feeding his steers by turning them loose to steal hay from wagons that stopped at the tavern. Lazy Willy on the other hand, insisted that the tavern-keeper was stealing fence rails from the Hooey fences and using them as firewood.

One day Lazy Willy bored holes in some of the rails in his front fence, and filled the holes with gunpowder. The next day the stove in the tavern exploded.

We don't tell the story with the intention of proving anything in particular. We repeat it only as a sample of the material gathered by a group of rural women in Cartwright Township, who undertook a group effort to produce a township history as a centennial project. Cartwright is a rural township in Durham County, in the area just south of Lake Scugog.

The farm women did not know whether they could produce a history book, but they knew they could try. By the time they had finished collecting material, they had to boil it down by editing to reduce it to 35,000 words which they reproduced by stencilling and mimeographing to make an 88-page township history. Mrs. Lorne Thompson of Burketon Station, who was the volunteer editor-in-chief, is reported as saying: "It's hard work but very satisfying and often good fun." They produced an edition of 460 copies and by selling at a dollar a copy, they seem likely to cover costs.

This is the kind of centennial project that seems to us to be really worth doing. If the people of Cartwright spent money to build something of brick and stone, it might not last as long, or mean as much, as a published history. The book preserves stories like the story of Lazy Willy and the pioneer tavern.

The people in Cartwright used school section boundaries as they existed up to Dec. 31, 1965, as the framework for their history project, and built up their local history section by section. It can be assumed that they made plentiful use of the Tweedsmuir Book collections which are maintained by Women's Institutes in almost every part of rural Ontario. We feel safe in predicting that when another 100 years have passed, those 88-page booklets will be highly-prized possessions of descendants who will by the year 2067 have scattered far and wide from the homesteads of Cartwright Township.

Most of the Women's Institutes in Perth County have done conscientious work over a period of years in keeping up their Tweedsmuir Book collections of neighborhood history material. Neighborhood history is kept up-to-date, by recording events of local interest as they happen. We have no doubt that if any township in Perth County, or in the neighboring counties, should undertake a local history project on the artwright model. that one or more Institutes in any township would be able to supply enough material to give the project a good start.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active on lower grades of steers and all grades of heifers at the Ontario Public Stockyards this week.

Top grades of steers were traded unevenly and under pressure. Cow, bull, hog, lamb and veal prices were higher.

Cattle receipts were some 500 head less than last week and about 700 head more than the same week in 1965. Receipts from Western Canada totalled about 444 head compared with 372 head last week. Sold off the market for slaughter in the United States were 51 cattle and 100 calves.

Slaughter cattle 9,500: Choice steers 28-29.50; high - yielding steers 29.50-31; good 26.50-28; medium 24-26; common 19-20; choice heifers 26-27.50; fancy 27.50-28; good 24-25.50; medium 21.50 - 23.50; common 18-21; choice - fed yearlings 27-30; good 25.50-27; good cows 19-20 with sales to 21; medium 17.50-18.50; canners and cutters 14-17; good heavy bologna bulls 20-21; common and medium light 17-19.50.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 26-27; good steer stock calves 28-29; common and medium 20-25.

Calves 1,700: Choice vealers 37-42 with odd sales to 45.30; good 32-36; medium 26-31; common 22-25; boners 17-21.

Hogs 7,200: Grade A at Toronto 43.25-45; heavy sows 38.50-40.40; stags 25.60-26.25; boars sold live weight at 20.50-21.

Sheep and lambs 1,050: Good lambs 31-32.50; sheep 4-11 with yearlings up to 14.

Ford of Canada Had Record Year in 1965

TORONTO (CP)—Ford Motor Co. of Canada had consolidated net earnings of $15,400,000 or $9.26 a share in 1965, compared with $7,400,000 or $4.43 in 1964.

Consolidated sales were $1,039,000,000, 13 per cent higher than the $918,000,000 in 1964.

The company said in a preliminary financial statement the improved earnings came partly from the record consolidated sales, but especially because of a better performance by overseas subsidiaries, particularly in Australia.

Despite higher sales in Canada, domestic earnings were sharply lower because of increased labor costs and the expenses of starting new manufacturing and assembly operations, the company said.

North American sales rose more than 20 per cent to $668,000,000 from $554,000,000 in 1964, but net income declined to $6,200,000 from $8,500,00.

Overseas sales were $371,000,000, about the same as in 1964. Subsidiary earnings were $9,200,000 compared with an operating loss of $1,100,000 in the previous year.

DETROIT (AP)—Ford Motor Co. Thursday reported its net income for 1965 was a record $703,000,000, equal to $6.33 a share.

Ford's previous highs were set in 1964 when net income was $505,600,000, equal to $4.58 a share.

Henry Ford II, board chairman, said the firm's consolidated sales, net income and vehicle sales set records in 1965 for the fourth consecutive year.

Consolidated sales totalled $11,500,000,000 compared with $9,670,000,000 in 1964.

Worldwide sales of Ford vehicles totalled 4,595,357 units, 16 per cent more than the 3,952,727 sold in 1964.

"Telemetric information was received during these radio links from the station," it added. "It confirmed the normal functioning of the flight system. Transmission of the lunar landscape was carried out on command from earth."

Before this announcement, the Russians had been characteristically silent about information received from the mechanical pioneer sitting on the plain named the Ocean of Storms, though the British radio observatory at Jodrell Bank said Luna IX had transmitted radio information and pictures.

The official Thursday announcement said the landing was in the area of the Ocean of Storms to the west of the craters Reiner and Maria and Yuri Pakovsky, a scientist, described the site for Tass.

EASILY SEEN

"This area is an easily observable plain," he said, "although in the zone of landing there are hills and craters. The large light spot of Reiner Gamma lies to the south. Scientists still do not know what it is."

Pakovsky said the landing site can be seen from earth with ordinary field glasses.

But triumphant space program chiefs cautiously held back detailed information until experts could make a thorough examination of pictures and technical data said to be streaming back to earth.

Informed sources said ground control planned several radio links a day with the Luna IX unmanned station which Thursday night gave the Soviet Union a dramatic space victory in landing — apparently undamaged—on the moon's dust-covered surface after a 3½-day flight from earth.

Russia's feat was likened to its success as the first nation to put a man into orbit and the first to send a human being to walk in outer space.

Experts believe the split-second timing achieved in landing Luna IX after a flight of more than 240,000 miles shows that Russia already has the technical capacity to land a human being.

Informed sources said instruments aboard the spacecraft were delving into the secrets of the lunar surface, the temperature and the pressures likely to be faced by a human.

The Pulkovo Observatory near Leningrad announced it had photographed the eastern edge of the moon's Ocean of Storms, west of the Reiner and Marius Craters, near where Luna IX landed.

The Russian press and radio was jubilant at the space triumph. The news was splashed on front pages under huge black headlines.

Although U.S. probes have sent back detailed pictures of the moon's surface just before crashing, the U.S. has not attempted a "soft" landing. Its first try is scheduled for May.

Cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev said in a Pravda article the landing "could be said to be already a step on the lunar surface . . . wait for us, moon."

He said Luna IX's radio signals showed it was not merely a "silent pennant but an intelligent apparatus which will give us a lot of information about our planet's natural satellite."

INFORMATION VITAL

Information about lunar conditions—softness or hardness of the surface, density and porosity—being radioed back is vital to plans to land men on the moon.

The success of Luna IX in touching down on the lunar surface gently—instead of crashing into it at thousands of miles an hour—came on the fifth Soviet attempt.

As well as signalling a successful start in efforts to get a close - up, cosmonaut's - eye - view of the moon's surface, the gentle landing was an unparalleled achievement in rocketry.

It took ultra-sophistication in technique to gauge the probe's position and to fire its braking retrorockets at precisely the right moment.

Scientists had to steady Luna IX down from a speed of about one mile a second to almost zero as it eased its way down.

Wiggles or Waddles

Isn't anything sacred?

There must be something we can do to take scientists in hand and stem the evil tide of warnings they have been issuing lately.

There is hardly anything left that won't harm us.

They say smoking will kill us. I don't smoke, so that doesn't bother me.

I suppose they have a point though. This lady that used to live down the street from me was killed by cigarette smoking. I only mention this as a warning to everyone. She smoked more than a pack a day and it finally caught up with her. She was only 94 when she died. Poor soul.

No telling how long she could have lived.

Last week, Dr. Brock Nugent, an internist, told the Brighton Lions Club that smoking was "definitely one of the contributing factors in the high incidence of heart disease."

People still smoke these days, but they feel guilty about it.

Science has told us that drinking is bad. It dulls our senses and hurts our inner workings. It probably is bad though.

Strange that all these bad things are always so much fun isn't it?

I suppose there isn't a man alive who ever walked into a bar and isn't a future candidate for Alcoholics Anonymous. Just a matter of time.

Hardly a day passes when we are not told that some other institution which we hold dear to our stomachs is bad for us.

However, that is the privilege of science I suppose.

Still, there are some things science should treat as sacred and keep their opinions to themselves.

One of these was exposed last week.

Dr. Louis H. Paradies, assistant professor of orthopedics at the University of Texas' southwestern medical school in Dallas said there is "no physiological reason for the undulating female gait."

Wait a minute!

What's he got against women wiggling?

He says the female wiggle can be learned without difficulty and easily becomes a habit. Some habit.

Dr. Paradies added that he and his colleagues "have been taking movies of people walking for several years."

I'm suspicious. I mean scientific ethics and all, it sounds like a sneaky plot. What an excuse for watching women wiggle. It's original anyway.

I can see it all now. Men crowded around every street corner, movie cameras poised, ready to follow the first followable subject down to the street.

Who can criticize a man for honest scientific research?

Dr. Paradies said that one of the questions they sought to answer in their research was: "Why do women wiggle when they walk?"

Amazing.

Here he is, a trained orthopedic specialist, a man of letters, asking a question like that.

Anybody who knows anything at all about the man-woman relationship will give you the answer to that question without researching it for years.

Seems a shame he spent all that time researching when all he had to do was ask.

Dr. Paradies said, "the movies indicate that women who show a marked hip movement take short steps and keep their knees stiff. Because of this, their hip bone is forced to oscillate."

The secret is out.

He said that hip wiggling is definitely learned.

In the true tradition of a crusading journalist I felt it my duty to research this question. I asked many of the women who work for The Intelligencer, "Why do you wiggle when you walk?"

"I try to think mine is from having a bad back," said one. "I know I wiggle. I do my best not to. I feel foolish about it.

"Why would anybody wiggle if they didn't have to?"

Said another, "I think that doctor needs something to do, working on stuff like that. He must me sadly lacking something." (Probably a wiggle.)

Another expert commented, "It's something that would have to be subconscious.

"I imagine it's acquired by these young swinger-ding-dingers, but once they get older, they forget all about those things.

Oh yeh?

Another commented, "I've got a sore foot right now. I couldn't wiggle if I wanted to."

"I think I've always wiggled," explained one.

"Men wiggle as much as women," another added. (Interesting thought. I never really noticed.)

Said one, "I don't think I do. I might waddle, but I don't wiggle."

Many just turned red and said nothing.

One said, "No comment."

An astute male member of this editorial department, long a recognized expert on such things, said, "A wiggle in itself isn't enough. You've got to have the equipment.

"I think it's purely physical. It's beautiful. We should have more of it."

Amen to that.

House Briefs

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer said Thursday the cabinet soon will consider whether to apply the Canada Pension Plan to members of the armed forces. He told the Commons in reply to Max Saltsman (NDP — Waterloo South), any changes to the Armed Forces Superannuation Act will not adversely affect servicemen but in most cases provide them with additional benefits.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons Thursday a cabinet committee has been established to co-ordinate activities involving control of water pollution. He was replying to Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka) who wanted to know what the government planned to do in the light of the recent report by the International Joint Commission.

OTTAWA (CP) —The 50th anniversary of the fire that destroyed Parliament Hill's Centre Block in 1916 was marked in the Commons Thursday. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux drew the attention of members to the anniversary date and gave a short description of the fire, which broke out while the House was in session.

special session shortly after the Nov. 8 election to debate the subject.

Canada had set a precedent in foreign policy by waging economic war on a de facto state because it didn't approve of the policies of Ian Smith's white-supremacy regime or of the way in which Smith had seized independence Nov. 11.

Mr. Nesbitt said Parliament cannot evaluate the merit of the sanctions because the government has withheld details about the constitutional dispute between Britain and the Rhodesian government.

Mr. Martin replied that the unity of the Commonwealth was threatened shortly after Smith illegally broke away from British rule. Canada had to act quickly to demonstrate its opposition to an unconstitutional government that practised racial discrimination.

ATTACKS SMITH REGIME

In one of his strongest attacks on the Smith regime, he accused it of defying the rule of law, denying the franchise and land ownership to the Negro majority, outlawing political parties, detaining opposition leaders without trial and isolating Rhodesians from world opinion through press and radio censorship.

The minister said the legal authority for Canada's trade sanctions are a resolution passed by the United Nations Security Council Nov. 20 and an agreement with Britain six days later to co-operate closely in imposing sanctions.

He tabled an exchange of letters between himself and the British high commission here confirming the agreement and said this constitutes an intergovernmental arrangement or commitment under terms of the Export and Import Permits Act.

In reply to Mr. Churchill, the minister said economic reprisals against a whole country are regrettable but in this case they are morally justifiable.

New Democratic MPs applauded Mr. Martin but did not take part in the exchange.

The minister said economic sanctions are a recent departure for Canada, but there were several precedents.

Canada had cut off exports of military equipment and vehicles to South Africa and Portugal since 1963 pursuant to a UN resolution and to protest the racial policies of those countries. It had long been government policy to ban the shipment of arms to troubled areas.

He said Mr. Nesbitt's position was inconsistent with the stand taken by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker against South Africa's apartheid policies when he was prime minister. Mr. Diefenbaker was absent from the House during the exchange.

Most other speakers Thursday discussed the war in Viet Nam. Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) challenged Mr. Martin to state publicly how Canada's Viet Nam policy differs from that of the United States. The minister said Tuesday there are "fundamental" policy differences between the two countries.

Mr. Brewin quoted a letter signed by Pierre Elliott Trudeau (L — Montreal Mount Royal) and other university professors in Montreal urging Canada to oppose flatly the U.S. bombing raids on North Viet Nam.

Creditiste Leader Caouette and A. B. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley) defended U.S. intervention in Viet Nam, saying it is intended only to halt the spread of communism.

Two Liberal MPs, Jean-Charles Cantin (Quebec South) and Warren Allman (Montreal Notre - Dame - de - Grace), said chances for peace would be increased if Communist China was admitted to the United Nations.

Cheese Exchange

The price of cheese went up half a cent to 42 cents on the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week.

Offered on the exchange were 9,157 specials, a total of 3,227 large regular cheese and 7,578 square cheese. The average price for white cheese was 42 cents and for colored 42.3 cents per pound.

Quinte Colts Win First Playoff Game

District playoffs in the Colts series were held at the Quinte Curling Club today with eight rinks competing. Bill Gault, OCA convener was in charge. The eight rinks competing were Quinte Curling Club, RCAF Station, Cornwall, Cataraqui of Kingston, Alcan of Kingston, Garrison of Kingston, Napanee and the Kingston Curling Club.

In the first draw Cornwall rink did not show up and Cataraqui Club got a bye. The Quinte Curling Club rink of Ken Monson, Wilfred Weymark, Reid Giffin with Neville Burroughs as skip won 10-8 over a RCAF Station rink in an extra end, while Kingston Curling Club defeated Napanee 9-6 and the Garrison Club of Kingston defeated the Alcan Club also of Kingston, 12-3.

In the afternoon draw Cataraqui Club will meet the Quinte Club while Garrison and Kingston curling clubs will meet in the other semi-final match. The winners of these games will meet in the final to be played this evening.

Little Rain In January Report Shows

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snow and freezing temperatures, combined with one of the worst storms in 21 years, highlighted the weather for most of Ontario during January.

The only bright spot in the weatherman's monthly post-mortem was a singular absence of rain.

Women's Christian Association Hears Report on Year's Activities

On Tuesday afternoon the 86th annual meeting of the Women's Christian Association was held at the home of Mrs. R. T. Morton, Hillcrest avenue, with all members present.

After formally opening the meeting, the president, Mrs. R. G. Walsh called for reports from the conveners of the various committees.

The conveners of the property and residence committees, Mrs. A. E. Purdy and Mrs. J. Marshall reported many improvements and renovations at the residence, 58 Highland avenue.

A new vestibule has been built which has proved a valuable addition. New carpeting has been laid, interior decorating done, and new pieces of furniture purchased, including a new television set.

Mrs. H. Thompson, welfare convener, reported on the disbursements of the Corby Order to the needy of Belleville and mentioned her appreciation of a donation that had been received from the St. Julien Chapter of the IODE.

Mrs. W. S. Wills, corresponding secretary, reported writing letters of condolence and congratulation as well as several business letters.

The treasurer, Mrs. E. Hickey, gave a detailed financial report showing sources of assets and disbursements for the past year and stated that her books had been audited by a chartered accountant.

During the year an interesting meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. Marshal. when the guest speaker was Mr. J. Legate, one of the representatives on the Belleville Hospital Board. He explained the work of the various committees on the board and outlined future developments and plans for co-operation.

During the past year, the board was fortunate in securing the services of Mrs. T. McConnell as administrator at the residence.

Mrs. R. Morton, convener of the nominating committee brought in the following slate of officers: past president, Mrs. R. G. Walsh; president, Mrs. R. Morton; 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. E. Purdy; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. N. Edwards; treasurer, Mrs. E. Hickey; recording secretary, Miss Grace Tucker; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. S. Wills; custodians, Mrs. E. Hickey and Mrs. A. E. Purdy; welfare, Mrs. H. Thompson and Mrs. T. Dolan; property, Mrs. A. E. Purdy; residence. Mrs. J. Marshall; representatives on hospital board, Mrs. J. E. Marsh and Mr. J. Legate; telephone committee, Mrs. T. Y. Wills.

Successful Living

Eating to Fill Lonely Hours Fruitless Pastime

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: Since my husband went to an army post abroad I have gained 15 pounds. This has got to stop!

Even right after a good meal, I find myself thinking up interesting snacks. Sometimes I actually get and eat them, like a growing boy — or Dagwood.

I've never had a weight problem before. Is there a product I can buy to reduce my appetite? — WEIGHTY MATTER.

DEAR WEIGHTY: Not that I'd recommend. But if you started absorbing something besides food, you'd be on the right track.

You see, you are trying to fill the aching gap left by your absent husband; a human, popular impulse. But this kind of solace is a snare and a delusion.

A better way is to tackle with gusto a new project or study course; something which promises a gain in mental stature. Set a goal for the date your husband returns and give those empty hours to self-impovement.

DEAR DORIS: I am a 17-year-old girl and am quite attractive. I am crazy about this one particular guy. He is 19 and handsome.

He continually makes eyes at me. I'd really love to go out with this guy but he doesn't know it. What can I do? — GUY CRAZY.

DEAR GUY CRAZY: Try something slightly more grown-up than eye-rolling. I have it on good authority that a nice gal doesn't have to bat her eyes or wiggle her hips to get attention.

How about a friendly smile and hello?

Confidential to OLD GREY MARE: Drop a word in your son's ear that you are not as young as you used to be. His harrassed wife may be so glad to bolt, and you may appear so agreeable, that she tells herself she does you a favor in leaving you to it with her boisterous brood.

I.O.D.E. Names New Officers

The St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. held a meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Reynolds recently, with the Regent, Mrs. R. Ellis presiding.

An invitation was extended from the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club to attend their International Night dinner on February 12th.

It was drawn to the attention of the new members that the Chaper has four life members, Mrs. H. Thompson, Mrs. W. Gilbert, Mrs. G. Watkin and Mrs. C. Bishop.

Mrs. Thompson announced the winners of the marathon bridge, first prize going to Mrs. Hitchon and Mrs. Hart and second prize to Mrs. Carscallen and Mrs. Bradford. Lucky prizes went to Mrs. Oliphant and Mrs. Row and to Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Timmerman. At the closing party first prize for the afternoon was won by Mrs. Fitzgibbon.

Final arrangements were made for the Eastern Ontario Concert featuring Robert and Hazelanne Reid to be held on Monday.

Annual reports were read by the officers and adopted. Mrs. Ellis congratulated the officers and members for their efforts in making the past year a most successful one.

The Provincial meeting to be held in Hamilton in April will be attended by Mrs. G. Hume and Mrs. W. Slade.

An early spring fund-raising project will be an auction sale at the home of Mrs. J. Reynolds, 1 Eastwood Park Drive, on Marcvh 23 and the public is invited to attend.

Mrs. Rutherford introduced the officers for the coming year as follows: honorary Regent — Mrs. R. Ellis; Regent — Mrs. Hume; 1st Vice-Regent — Mrs. K. Macdonald; 2nd Vice-Regent — Mrs. R. Taylor; secretary — Mrs. J. Reynolds; assistant secretary — Mrs. M. Kerr; treasurer — Mrs. W. Slade; educational secretary — Mrs. R. Ellis; Echoes secretary — Mrs. W. Moffatt; services at home and abroad secretary — Mrs. C. Whittemore; standard bearer — Mrs. W. Collis.

Various conveners are public relations — Mrs. R. Dickert; immigration and citizenship — Mrs. G. Deline; commonwealth relations — Mrs. M. Kerr; world affairs — Mrs. J. Parrott; films — Mrs. F. Carscallen; Victoria League — Mrs. K. Macdonald; membership — Mrs. R. Patterson. Councillors are Mrs. E. Doolittel, Mrs. J. Gajdicar, Mrs. W. Gilbert, Mrs. B. Safe, Mrs. F. Hrachovec, Mrs. C. Mott. Mrs. C. Mott was appointed social convener and Mrs. Gilbert convener for flowers and gifts.

Presentations weremade to Mrs. Ellis by the Chapter and by Mrs. Hume in recognition of her service as Regent for the past three years.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. McKay and Mrs. Rutherford.

WON'T SOLVE PROBLEMS

CALGARY (CP)—An Alberta Conservative member of Parliament said Wednesday a proposed Eastern Canada feed grain control board "won't solve any problems for the eastern farmer." Jack Horner, member for Acadia, said the Commons agriculture committee, of which he is a member, tried to find out why Ontario and Quebec farmers thought they were paying too much for western feed grain and didn't have much success.

S.O.S FROM MARY: A reader writes, "I have lost my recipe of Peking Roast. It was made by soaking, the roast in vinegar and coffee was used in the gravy. I would like to get it again" . . . .Mrs. C. H. B.

I do not have a recipe for Peking Roast calling for coffee in the gravy. Nor do I know what kind of meat Mrs. C.H.B. is referring to. Would readers who recognize it and have the recipe write it out carefully and in detail and mail it to me please in care of this newspaper?

FRIDAY Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

Broiled Fish Fillets; Egg Sauce; Scalloped Potatoes; Braised Celery; Tomato Aspic on Shredded Bibb Lettuce with Homemade Salad Dressing; Canned Pears; Molasses Cookies; Coffee.

QUESTION: Would you please send me your recipe for pork fried rice (Chinese style)? I got it from your column in the paper about two years ago but I have misplaced it . . . Mrs. R.M.

ANSWER:

CHINESE PORK FRIED RICE

½ cup butter or peanut oil, 3 eggs slightly beaten, 1½ cups chopped cooked pork, soy sauce, 3 cups cooked rice (1 cup raw rice cooked in 2 cups water), ½ cup onion sliced thin, 1½ teaspoons salt, shake of pepper, 1 can Chinese bean sprouts, drained, ⅓ cup fresh green onion tops (optional), 2 tablespoons pimiento, chopped (optional).

Melt butter in frying pan. Add slightly beaten eggs and fry for a few minutes but do not allow to become firm. Break up with a fork while cooking. Add the pork, rice, onion, salt and pepper, and last, the bean sprouts. Pour over a little soy sauce. Cook together only until hot, covering pan for a few minutes. Use 2 forks for mixing. The onion and pimiento squares may be added for color and flavor.

LETTER . . . In reading your column I noticed someone else likes Molasses Cookies . . . Wilda P.

MOLASSES COOKIES (courtesy Wild A. P. - slightly tampered with by Emem).

Three-quarters cup butter or margarine (could be increased to ⅞ cup for richer cookies), ½ cup granulated sugar, 2 large eggs, ½ cup molasses, 1 cup stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon baking soda, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 cup raisins, 2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats. Cream butter and sugar together until light. Beat in eggs and molasses. Sift together flour, salt, soda and spices .Stir in along with raisins and rolled oats. Drop by tablespoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets 1½" apart and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 8 to 10 minutes. Store lightly covered.

ANSWER: Thank you Wilda. They were good but I should warn bakers to watch carefully during last minute or two or they might get too brown.

Congregational Meetings

CHRIST ANGLICAN CHURCH

Despite the storm that brought large snow drifts to this area, Christ Anglican Church, Belleville held its annual meeting with a good attendance. A welcome was extended by the Rector, the Rev. Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright.

Greetings were received from the other two Anglican parishes in the city, St. Margaret's on-the-Hill and St. Thomas', and from Bridge Street United Church.

The Rector, in his report to the parish, spoke of the celebration of centennial year, 1965, and of the many past clergy of Christ Church, and some guests, W. L. Wright, Archbishop of Ontario and Bishop of Algoma, who came to preach during the year. The Rector thanked the church wardens, Mr. Beverley L. Carruthers for their fine work throughout the year. Mr. Thomas A. Carruthers has been appointed by the Rector to fill the office of Rector's Warden for 1966. The Rector thanked the choir and Mr. John Withers for their assistance; Mr. James Wright, chairman of sidesmen; Mr. Dirk Bylsma, caretaker; Mr. Clarence Fuzzen, church school superintendent for Christ Church, and his assistants, Mr. Fred Ethier and Mr. Orval Thornton; Mr. Stuart Bull, church school superintendent for St. George's Mission; Mrs. Fuzzen, secretary; lay delegates to Synod the Vestry Council members, the two Lay readers; Mr. Jack Fletcher and Mr. Herb Cavalier; and all the Church organizations.

DIFFICULT YEAR

The Rector mentioned that 1965 had been a difficult year because the parish had to function for a period with only one priest after the Rev. James Smith returned to his home in Tasmania, Australia, in April. The Rev. Allan W. Lauder arrived at Christ Church in May after being ordered Deacon by the Bishop on his graduation from Montreal Diocesan College, and McGill University.

There will be more opportunities given for attendance at the Sacrament of Holy Communion. A celebration of the Holy Communion will be instituted once a month on the fourth Sunday of the month in the evening at 7 p.m.

VARIOUS STATISTICS

Statistics of the parish were published as follows: marriages 24; baptisms 80; burials 52; confirmations 62; number of families in the parish 757. Average attendance has increased at some services.

At Christ Church there are now two complete Church School groups, one meeting at 9.30 and the other at 11.00 a.m. The church school staff had to be doubled this past year to provide enough teachers and working staff to look after both schools. There is an increase in the attendance at St. George's Mission Church School, and the service of Holy Communion on the last Sunday of the month still continues there.

The financial reports of the parish were presented by the church wardens. All outstanding current debts have been paid and the Parish Hall extension debt now stands at $20,300. A great deal of work on the restoration of the church buildings has been completed, and the Diocesan church extension obligation, which has been carried by the parish for some years, was paid in full this year. The buildings are now in reasonable condition. This parish pays an apportionment to the Synod of $10,440, and this was paid in full. There will be an increase in this apportionment in the next year. The parish budget for 1966 of $60,000 was approved.

FINANCIAL REPORTS

The financial reports of the organizations were presented and these represented much time and energy on the part of those involved. Many projects were undertaken and accomplished. This year a sign and lighting for the front of the church were installed and the cost was met by the Contact Club.

The memorial committee reported that during the year they had met and reviewed the regulations of the use of the Memorial Board and Fund, and have approved the inception of a Memorial Book and Memorial cards for those who wish to make contributions in memory of loved ones or friends.

PROPOSED PLANS

In the report of the stewardship committee, the chairman gave an outline of the proposed plans for the "Zone Plan," and asked for and received the approval of the Vestry. This plan will require 100 Zone Stewards to look after approximately 10 homes in their immediate area.

The extent of the stewardship that will be employed is under consideration, but it was pointed out that no one's privacy will in any way be invaded. The purpose of the plan is to become aware and acquainted with all parishioners, and to be able to keep better records of the many families and their needs. In the trial visits the reception of the stewards has been excellent, and the chairman reported success. At the moment he has about half of the stewards required, and now that he has the approval of the Vestry, knows that it will soon be completed.

The property committee report indicated that there would not be any major work done on the buildings in 1966 as it would appear at the moment that all the buildings are in fairly good state of repair, but maintenance and repairs would be done as required.

A committee was appointed during the past year to look into the duties of a deputy warden. After study, the committee recommended that a deputy warden be appointed, and also two alternate representatives to Synod.

PRESENTATION

A presentation of a desk set was made by Canon Wright to Mr. Beverley Quincey, retiring church warden. Canon Wright expressed on behalf of the congregation gratitude for Mr. Quincey's leadership. Mr. Quincey replied saying he would recommend any man who was given the opportunity to serve as a church warden should take it. It was a very rewarding experience.

Rev. Allan Lauder explained that the Parish Education Council which was set up recently will continue to function with the task of helping organizations to know what type of educational programs are available from time to time. The scope of educational needs will include youth and adult education, and general Christian education, with specific needs, such as marriage, parent and preparation for baptism.

During Lent last year, the parishioners contributed $1700 toward Anglican World Mission, and it was decided that this same program would be again adopted for Lent 1966.

NEW OFFICERS

The nominating committee presented the slate of officers for 1966, which was accepted by the Vestry as follows: people's warden — Cleo B. Colling; deputy warden — Bernard Wright; lay delegates to Synod — J. S. Fletcher, C. D. Fuzzen, L. G. Lennox, G. D. Livingston, T. A. Carruthers, D. S. McLean; alternates — B. L. Quincey, F. Ethier; Vestry Council members — F. Evans, G. Beeby, F. Ethier, E. Palmer, J. Wright, R. Godden, B. Lewis, B. Quincey; church auditors — John Lewars, A. Newman; property committee — H. Ford, E. Sherry, R. Owen, T. Purdey, G. Livingston, F. Fisher, T. Sherry; memorial committee — Mrs R. Roulet, F. Beeby, D. McLean, E. Lewis.

Historic Brantford House Will Be Reconstructed

BRANTFORD (CP) — An historic Brantford house that may have been 100 years' old at Confederation may be reconstructed in time for public display by 1967 when Canada celebrates the centennial.

All parts of the hand-hewn log d'Aubigny House, demolished more than a year ago, now have been transported to the Westfield Pioneer Village at Rockton off Highway 8, 20 miles northwest of Brantford.

Glenn Kilmer of Brantford, a director of the village, says in a letter to city council that reconstruction of the house is expected to begin this fall.

Last June, council gave the house to the village on the recommendation of council's special committee on historical objects and buildings.

D'Aubigny House stood for more than 200 years at the intersection of Highway 53 and Oakville Dr. in West Brantford near d'Aubigny Creek.

The house, believed to have been built before 1770, was a stage coach stop for many years.

Mother's Helper

FOR a sick-a-bed child, here's a coloring project anyone can do that is a great time-passer. Color a shirt cardboard with random, solid, bright areas of color, covering the entire surface. Then, with a black crayon, cover completely the colored layer. A design can then be etched into the black by scratching the surface to reveal the colors beneath. The effect is so sophisticated and striking, grownups love this technique, too! (Thanks to Mrs. Herbert Johnson, Charleston, West Virginia)

Royal Ontario Museum Announces Spring Event

The Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto has announced its program of special events for February.

On Sunday, February 6, the film "Dead Birds" will be shown in the Museum Theatre at 2 p.m.. Admission is free, but no children will be admitted to see this movie.

Beginning on February 7, examples of the black stamps of Austria will be shown in the stamp cases off the lower rotunda. The exhibit will continue throughout the month.

At 2.30 p.m. Sunday, February 13, Dr. Culyer Young will give a free, illustrated lecture on his discovery of a site in Iran which records man's early progress from 5500 B.C. to 1400 B.C. This is one of a series of popular Sunday afternoon lectures in which members of the museum staff discuss current interests.

At the Canadiana Building, 14 Queen's Park Crescent, military, naval, and political figures from Canada's early history are shown in a selection of prints from the Sigmund Samuel Collection. The display will continue until April 14.

SPRING LECTURE SERIES

Molly Harrison has built a mecca for youngsters in one of London's poorest districts. As curator of the small Geffrye Museum, Shorditch, she has introduced thousands of children from underprivileged homes to the grace and beauty of the past. Mrs. Harrison will describe her experiment in education in a free, illustrated public lecture at 8.30 p.m., on Thursday, February 17, in the Museum Theatre.

This is the first of three lectures in the spring series. On March 3, Isobel Wilson will speak about out-of-the-way corners of India, Iran and Turkey. On March 17, Dr. Helen Hogg, one of Canada's astronomers, will discuss the study of star clusters.

"Seven Samurai", a tale of 16th century Japan, a movie which has won wide critical acclaim will be shown in the Museum Theatre on Sunday, February 20, at 2.00 p.m. Admission is free.

The first museum exhibition of its kind, "In a Canadian Attic", is a general survey of the work of Canadian craftsmen in earlier centuries, and how it may be identified. It is at the Sigmund Canadiana Building throughout the winter.

Textbooks, Novels, Movies And TV All Libel Indians Claim of Toronto Author

TORONTO (CP)—White men's textbooks, novels, movies and television all libel Indians, says Norma Sluman, housewife and author.

"They contain inaccurate and derogatory references to Indians. It makes Indian children ashamed of their race and ancestry."

Mrs. Sluman's interest began when her husband, K. A. Sluman, signed a contract with Calgary Stampeders about 10 years ago, and they moved there from Toronto. She worked with Indians there and later at the Winnipeg Indian and Metis Friendship Centre. In 1959 her novel about Alberta Indians of 100 years ago, Blackfoot Crossing, was published.

Mrs. Sluman says Canadian textbooks too often distort history and picture Indians as fierce, predatory savages or innocent sub-humans.

"This misinformation creates an anti-Indian prejudice which youngsters carry with them for the rest of their lives."

She says too much current information about Indians deals with economic and social problems which presents them as unable to handle the demands of white society. She would like to see more publicity given to successful Indian teachers, engineers, doctors, lawyers.

Mrs. Sluman wants newspapers to stop reporting the race of lawbreakers.

CHARGES INACCURACIES

She says Indians are presented as inferior to white men in fiction and drama and that details of their manners and customs are usually inaccurate. Indian roles were played by actors who were unmistakably white men.

She says she is irritated at the continuing belief that an Indian will go berserk if he drinks.

"I have cultured, educated Indian friends who tell me that some whites hesitate to offer them a sociable cocktail for fear they'll run amuck."

Since she and her husband returned to Toronto this year, Mrs. Sluman has been working at the Canadian Indian Centre, and has started on a biography of Poundmaker, the Indian chief.

She has also examined Canadian history books and submitted a report to Manitoba education officials on references which degrade Indians.

She says textbooks have improved in recent years but there is room for more improvement.

PICTURE DISTORTED

"Too much of the present historical writing is the propaganda of the victors."

One example dealing with the arrival of Europeans in North America describes Indians as "infested with innumerable fleas . . . savages . . . thieves. . . Wandering in the wastes for several generations has deadened their minds, killed their imagination and initiative."

Mrs. Sluman comments: "Why must the fleas come into it? Were the ships of the European free of fleas and other types of vermin? The claim that Indian intelligence and imagination were deadened is questionable to anyone familiar with their legends, religions and political organization."

Discussing Jacques Cartier, some books say Cartier "took" Donnaconna and six other chiefs back to France, some ignore the incident.

Mrs. Sluman says: "It's a matter of historical record that the Indian chiefs were abducted and forced to undergo a long, confined sea voyage. They died and were never again to see their homeland or their families. Here we see a glaring example of unfair omission.

"Attention is drawn to the hostility of Indians towards newcomers thereafter, but many books give no reason for it."

Quintebelles Entertain Senior Citizens

The regular monthly meeting of the Senior Citizens Club was held in the Recreation Centre Sunday evening.

President Mrs. M. Clapp conducted the meeting and Mrs. H. Shirley played the piano.

Mrs. H. Vickers reported on the euchres held every Tuesday afternoon and Saturday evening at the Recreation Centre.

Auditors Mr. F. Bedell and Mrs. E. Murphy said the books had been audited.

The birthday song was sung for four members and one new member was welcomed to the club.

The Quintebelles entertained with the singing of popular songs. The girls were thanked by Mrs. Clapp and an invitation was extended to come back again.

The lucky draw was won by Mr. Shattraw.

Euchre was played with the prizes going to the winners: Mrs. J. Bone, Mr. F. Edgar, Mrs. M. Doyle, Mrs. L. Akey, Mrs. D. Trotter and Mrs. M. Milne.

Mrs. J. Bone and committee served refreshments.

Four Reasons Cited by Home Sister

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—The unwed mother is not always a promiscuous girl "from the wrong side of town," says Sister St. Francis Cabrini, director of social services for Misericordia Hospital, Edmonton.

Sister Cabrini, in charge of a home for unwed mothers, said such girls come mostly from good backgrounds.

But there is one common factor among them all — the presence of a "very deep emotional problem," she told the annual convention of the Alberta chapter of the College of General Practice of Canada.

She cited four reasons for premarital pregnancies:

—A protest against parents who have been too strict in every aspect of the girl's life;

—A symbol that the girl has been loved;

—An expression of approval for someone of the opposite sex, and —The result of a feeling by a girl "that she must go along with any suggestion or lose out."

Susanna's Family Fare

A LITTLE LIKE A HALTER

Dear Susanna: For ladies who cannot sleep with their hair in rollers, try a T.V. neck rest pillow.

Works great for me.

The one I have in mind is foam rubber covered with corduroy velvet and costs slightly less than $1.00. — Mrs. A. Myers

Worked great for me too — so relaxing. — SUSANNA

SMALL GREEN THUMB

Dear Susanna: You have helped me so much, Susanna, I hope my little trick will assist other mothers too.

My small daughter, being the only child, delights in "helping" me with the housework, especially watering and turning the plants towards the sun.

In order to make sure that she doesn't continue "attending" to the flowers and plants when I'm not there, I made her some greenery of her own to look after.

I did this by filling a couple of plastic egg cups with wet soil into which we put some leaves from the large plants. Keeping them in the refrigerator while she sleeps means that they stay fresh-looking that much longer.

Another tip. Dripping candle wax over most of the surface of the earth saves the loose dirt from spilling out when the little pots get accidentally tipped over.

One more item. I fill those plastic bleach bottles with hot water to use as hot water bottles as you suggested, but my special place for them is in the bottom of the baby's carriage or sleigh to keep her feet cozy on frosty days.

Just be sure the lid's on tight. — K. T.

STEAMING TRICK

Dear Susanna: When the ostrich feather on your hat looks as though it has flattened out limply to the point of no return, hold it over a merrily steaming tea kettle and watch it curl back into the swing of things again. — Maude.

San Francisco Has Highest Suicide Rate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The red telephone rings insistently in the cramped headquarters dedicated to erasing San Francisco's title as the suicide capital of the United States.

"Suicide prevention centre," a volunteer answers calmly. "May I help you?"

The woman's voice hesitates, then mumbles, "Sorry, wrong number." The phone clicks.

"I wonder if it was a wrong number; it didn't sound like one," said Bernard Mayes, 36-year-old founder of the centre and its director of volunteers.

With an annual suicide rate in San Francisco of 30 for every 100,000 residents, highest in the United States, every ring on the red telephone is considered an emergency.

Lines are open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Mayes, an Episcopalian (Anglican) priest, founded the centre in 1962. He calls himself a "worker priest" and does not use the title of reverend. He stresses that the centre is nonsectarian.

In its busiest quarter to date, last July through September, the centre answered calls from 155 women and 108 men who said they were considering suicide.

The "composite" suicide in San Francisco, the centre says, is white, married, with two children and middle class standing. He usually lives in a densely populated area.

No one knows, however, why San Francisco's rate is so high, exceeded in the Western world only by West Berlin. Theories range from the presence of the Golden Gate bridge to forthrightness by the coroner in calling a suicide a suicide. The U.S. national suicide average is 10.7 for each 100,000 inhabitants.

"Our callers are people with great mental health problems," Mayes said. "More than half have had professional help before, but they never had been able to talk with people."

Each of the centre's 56 volunteers—all over 30 years old—works a four-hour shift once a week.

Mother to Become Land Surveyor

SUDBURY (CP) — Lorraine Setterington, a 33 - year - old mother of three girls, is on her way to becoming a land surveyor.

She applied last year for a commission to the Association of Ontario Land Surveyors and was articled for the next four years to her husband William, a surveyor-engineer in their home town of Leamington, near Windsor.

Association president W. J. Gordon Wadsworth of Toronto says Mrs. Setterington is an example of modern change which sees women entering many fields previously restricted to men.

Here to attend the association's annual meeting this week, Mrs. Setterington said she began thinking seriously about the work two years ago.

The challenge she was looking for was there. She hadn't been to school since 1951 except for a time as a teacher. She had been a mother for seven years at the time. She needed Grade 13 trigonometry before she could apply for her articles.

Last June she wrote the trigonometry examination and passed with a first-class honors. It added to her eight firsts and a second received in Grade 13 in 1951.

While articling, she will be an apprentice to her husband. At the end of each year, he must make a written report of her work.

Spring Hats Will Have Wide Range

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Spring hats will range from the severely masculine to the frivolously feminine if Irene of Montreal's spring millinery collection is any indication.

But if shapes and fabrics at the press preview were varied, color is limited.

Black and white, either alone or in combination, were most frequent, and pink and yellow were the only vibrant tones to make more than an occasional appearance. There was only a smattering of orange, emerald green and navy.

OPENED SHOW

The show opened with a series of offwhite hats in light, pliable felt. One, a dashing version of the Sou'wester, could be worn with the brim turned down in front and up in back or vice versa.

Another in the group was a jockey-type hat with rectangular lines and a brindle-trimmed visor that started at the back of the head.

These models were followed by a fussier large down-brimmed hat with a petal effect and a back bow.

The last in the group had a plain brim with the same downward movement and circular cutouts. This silhouette was frequent.

Black and white combinations came in checks and plaids—elongated man hats with brims turned down over one eye and squared Breton shapes reminiscent of courreges' cowboy-like hat. These hats were in wool and laced straw.

USES DOWNWARD BRIM

Still using black and white, Urene used the downward brim for hats with contrasting facings.

Light and airy were lacy-looking black see-through hats that looked like paper cutouts. One was a Breton style, the other was turned back in front and had a back brm that touched the shoulders.

"Haircut hats," apparently designed for the banged Sassoon cut, consisted of high set-back boxes of shiny straw from which trailed a pony tail of bows and twisted chiffon.

The pony tail idea was extended for a blackstraw fantasy hat that looked like a square helmet with ear cutouts. Attached to this was a long cascade of black tulle and silk roses. Another hat along these lines was in brilliant orange.

Bands of organza and straw, or tulle and net, were teamed for every feminine garden party hats. Evening caps that seemed to be fashioned of feathers were really pieces of crinckled chiffon. One came in pieces of beige, brown and mint green.

Bridal headdresses opened and closed the showing. The first was a simple lily-of-the-valley cone worn back on the head with a triangular tulle veil. The second was made of chiffon petal strips that fell to the shoulders from the back of the head.

Girl Should Have Voiced Objections

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: Friday our 21-year-old daughter went to th hospital to have her first baby. She was not a charity patient. Th hospital is one of the most expensive in the city.

When our daughter was wheeled into the delivery room a nurse brought in five young student nurses. She said, "These girls are here to observe. I hope you don't mind. Our daughter did mind — a great deal — but she was afraid to say so.

The delivery was a very difficult one. Her husband feels it would have been much easier if she had not been forced to have an audience. My husband and I are furious.

We want to know if hospitals have the right to do this. Ca she sue for invasion of privacy? — ENRAGED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Student nurses must witness all typ of hospital procedures. They did not come into the deliver room to see sights. They came to learn.

If your daughter's doctor was in the delivery room whe she arrived she should have told him of her objections. he was not there she should have sent for him instead remaining silent.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our nine-year-old son Jerry is bright student and reads at the sixth grade level. He devours least four books a week, in addition to doing all his homewor and getting a straight A report card.

Few TV shows interest Jerry, but there are two education programs he likes very much. My husband goes for the trash. it's a crime story or a shoot-em-up it's right up his alley.

Last night Jerry was watching one of his favorite program father came in and without a word, he changed channels. Th boy said nothing but he was very put out. I hate to side with m son but when the lines are so clearly drawn and my husband in the worng, what can I do? — JANUS.

DEAR JANUS: You have two children, and the nin year-old is the more mature of the two.

Of course your husband is wrong but don't side wit your son against him. Tell Jerry that Dad gets first choi because he is the man of the house. (P.S.: Start now to sav for a portable TV for Jerry.)

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother is a wonderful woma but she has one fault that bothers me. I would not say she is liar — but she exaggerates so much that it could almost be calle lying.

I hear her talking on the phone a lot. If she had just ha five people to dinner she says there were ten. If she paid $4 for a set of dishes she says she paid $100. This morning she tol my aunt that she worked at the church rummage sale until afte 7:00 p.m. last night. She was home at 4:00 p.m. when I got ther

Why does she do it? Please print this letter and maybe sh will recognize herself. — DISAPPOINTED.

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Some people have the rabb habit — facts multiply in their mouths.

Exaggerators want to make a big impression and the don't trust the facts to do the job. So — they embellish an torture a story until nothing is left of the truth.

These people are to be pitied because after awhile no body believes a word they say.

Hundred Have Been Killed In Fight for Civil Rights

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Samuel Younge Jr., 21-year-old Negro civil rights worker, may have been the 100th fatality for the movement since it began in the United States in 1951.

No one knows precisely how many have been killed, although a New York newspaper listed Younge's gunshot slaying Jan. 4 at Tuskegee, Ala., as No. 100.

Neither is it clear that all such recorded slayings really can be attributed strictly to the civil rights issue, which is why the U.S. justice department keeps no list.

The U.S. commission on civil rights, a federal agency, also keeps no official list. Says information officer Clarence H. Hunter, a Negro and former Washington Evening Star reporter:

"Back on the newspaper, I kept my own list. So presumably do the various civil rights groups. But I know of no list that can claim to be wholly accurate."

He cited the search in Mississippi in 1964 for one Negro and two whites whose bodies eventually were located under a new dam. That search by U.S. military forces incidentally located two bound and badly - beaten bodies of Negroes who had never been reported missing.

However, any such list would contain the following cases in all probability:

1951

Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Moore, Negroes, Mims, Fla., bombing, no arrests.

1955

Rev. George W. Lee, Negro, Belzoni, Miss., no arrests.

Lamar Smith, Negro, Brookhaven, Miss., daylight shooting, no arrests.

Emmett Louis Till, 14, Negro, Money, Miss., beaten and shot in alleged "wolf-whistle" incident, two acquitted on murder charge.

Clinton Meldon, Negro, Glendora, Miss., daylight shooting, no conviction after claim of self-defence.

1956

1961

Herbert Lee, Negro, Liberty, Miss., shooting, no conviction.

1962

Leslie Lee Luttes, 16, white, Augusta, Ga., shot during disturbance, six Negro youths sentenced to terms up to life.

Cpl. Roman Duckworth, Negro, Taylorsville, Miss., shot by policeman for refusing to move to rear of bus, no conviction.

1963

Mrs. Johnnie Chappell, Negro, Jacksonville, Fla., shot in disturbance, white youth given 10 years for manslaughter.

Medgar Evers, Negro, Jackson, Miss., night shooting ambush, Byron De La Beckwith tried twice for murder with hung juries, free on bail.

Cynthia Wesley, Denise McNair, Carol Robertson, Addie Mae Collins, Negro children, Birmingham, Ala., Sunday school bombing, man charged with illegal possession of dynamite, later released.

Virgil Ware, 13, Negro, Birmingham, Ala., shooting, two boys convicted of second-degree murder, paroled.

Johnny Roberson, Negro, Birmingham, Ala., shooting, policeman exonerated.

1964

Louis Allen, Negro, Liberty, Miss., shooting, no conviction.

James E. Chaney, Negro, and Andrew Goodman and Michael Schwerner, white, Philadelphia, Miss., shooting, 21 arrested by FBI had indictments dismissed.

Lemuel A. Penn, Negro, Georgia, shot en route home to Washington, D.C., four Ku Klux Klansmen freed on charges of violating civil rights.

1965

Jimmy Lee Jackson, Negro, Marion, Ala., shot during voting rights demonstration, policeman cleared.

Rev. James Reeb, white, Selma., Ala., beating, three acquitted.

Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, white, near Selma, night time highway shooting following big voting rights march, three Klansmen sentenced to 10 years for violation of civil rights, appealing.

Sheriff O'Neil Moore, white, Bogalusa, La., shot by night riders, Negro freed on bail.

William Brewster, Negro, Anniston, Ala., shot by night riders, no arrests.

1966

Agricultural Society Lists New Officers

STIRLING — President Ivan Sarles presided at the annual meeting of Stirling Agricultural Society which was held on Saturday in the Board Room of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Ray Shortt acted as secretary and Maurice Clancy gave the financial report. The receipts were about $226 more than in 1964.

The dates chosen for the annual fair were Friday and Saturday, September 2 and 3.

A committee was appointed to compile a history of the society for Canada's centennial year.

Delegates were appointed to attend the annual meeting of the Ontario fair association to be held at Club Canara and the annual meeting at provincial level in Toronto.

A large steel building situated on the grounds will be available for rental.

Clarence Fitchett, past district director for No. 3 district, presided over the election of officers. They are: president, Ivan Sarles; 1st vice-president, George Sutherland; 2nd vice-president, Charles Fargey; secretary, Ray Shortt; treasurer, Maurice Clancy; directors, Clarence Fitchett, Ben Bleeker, Earl Wallace, Harold Baker, George Carlisle, Kenneth Mumby, Fred McDonald, Mac Sharp, Douglas Campbell, John Morgan, Maurice Clancy, Kenneth Weaver ,Percy Utman, Ivan Sarles, Robert H. MAKING AN IMPRESSION — Frank J. Burns (left), former editor of a Nova Scotia weekly newspaper and the provincial archivist Dr. Bruce Ferguson, admire a page printed on the hand-operated press used by Joseph Howe to oppose Confederation. Mr. Burns, who earned his apprenticeship on such a machine, restored the old machine to working order. It will be exhibited in 1967 on a coast-to-coast train displaying important features of Canadian history. (CP Photo)

Howe's Printing Press On Centennial Train

HALIFAX (CP)—The printing press on which Nova Scotia statesman Joseph Howe published his opposition to Confederation has been restored to help celebrate Canada's Centennial.

The old machine, a Washington hand press built in Hartford, Conn., some time in the 19th century, will be one of the relics on display in a 15-car railway train which is to travel across Canada in the Centennial year.

Howe would probably approve. He thundered his opposition to national union every day in his newspaper, The Morning Chronicle. However, when he realized that Confederation was inevitable, he followed the philosophy of "if you can't beat them, join them."

In 1967 the old press will be used to print replicas of the proclamation signed by Queen Victoria in 1867 confirming Confederation.

Frank J. Burns, former editor and manager of The Kentville Advertiser, a Nova Scotia weekly, earned his apprenticeship on such a press and brought Howe's machine, in the provincial archives here, back to working order.

"She works beautifully now," he said, after replacing leather belts and several metal parts.

Printing was and is a tedious procedure and a good printer is fortunate to get 150 copies an hour.

The type that makes the page lies on a flat metal platform, giving the press its name of a "flatbed." After inking the type, the page is placed on top and the bed rolled beneath a heavy iron plate that is lowered with pressure onto the paper and type.

This type of press was a popular model in the last century and another one had an important place in Canadian history. William Lyon Mackenzie, the rebel who was exiled to the United States after an abortive Toronto revolution, used such a press for his vitriolic attacks against the Family Compact.

Mackenzie was credited with speeding the arrival of responsible government to Upper Canada as Howe was credited with bringing it to Nova Scotia.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate "What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

As a community grows from the sparsely built-up stage to a fully urbanized status, taxes usually increase. This increase occurs in spite of the constant stream of new properties being added to the tax roles. Increasing taxes in the midst of growth is a paradox that is confusing and irritating to taxpayers.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have about had all the tax increases we can stand. A neighborhood association is being formed to give battle. Could you please tell me how our taxes compare to other communities?

On my house which has a value of about $26,000 I pay $625 a year in taxes. Each year the taxes go up. Ten years ago they were only $390. Our community has grown very rapidly in the past decade. What I don't understand is that the more properties we put on the books the greater the tax rate. It should be the other way around. — Irate Taxpayer.

ANSWER: Provided you are getting good schools and municipal services you have relatively little complaint. On the average, annual taxes in urban areas are 2½ percent to 3 percent of market value. Yours are only 2.4 percent.

For your guidance, the general rule is: the larger community, the higher the taxes. Lowest taxes prevail in sparsely built-up areas — the highest in large cities. The reason is that large communities require more municipal and social services.

For your further guidance, in general, as more houses are built in a community, taxes will tend to go up. The community has a net tax gain on high price homes and on industrial and commercial properties. For typical houses, however, it costs the community more than the property yields in taxes. Since the greatest growth is almost always n the average price category, taxes then must go up.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I had ugly radiators standing in each room. So I paid a carpenter $450 to build radiator enclosures. Now I have nice looking rooms but they are all cold. What happened? — Freezing

ANSWER: You have reduced the heating effectiveness of your radiators. An improperly designed enclosure can reduce radiator efficiency by as much as 50 percent. This is why your rooms are now cold.

The most common mistake in enclosures is to have the top too close to the top of the radiator. The air space at the top should be at least equal to the thickness of the radiator. The joint between the top and the back should not be at a right angle but curved so that the hot air will be blown into the room. The bottom opening (which draws in the cold air) should be at least 80 percent of the area of the top opening. The radiator enclosures should be completely lined with insulating material.

This type of enclosure will give you an increased flow and better distribution of warm air. Who should pay for these design corrections depends primarily on whether the enclosures were built according to your directions or whether the improper design was the carpenter's own creation.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

British auto sportsman R. R. C. Walker (above) has had a life-long devotion to fine machinery. Obviously he knows something about cars . . . but one thing he didn't know was how remarkably quiet the 1966 Ford is.

"1966 Ford quieter than my Jaguar? Not jolly likely!" said Rob Walker

... then he drove the Ford.

Ford's Quiet Man, who recently demonstrated the extraordinary quality of the 1966 Ford to owners of some of the world's most expensive luxury cars, here discusses the '66 Ford LTD with Rob Walker at his family's estate in Wiltshire, England.

Compare your car with the quiet of Ford's solidly built body. Take a "Quiet Test" today.

British sportsman Rob Walker was skeptical about comparing the quiet of the '66 Ford with his hand-finished Jaguar Mark 10.

But then he drove both cars, and said, "This really is astonishing . . . I believe this Ford of yours really is quieter. Astonishing!"

Compare your car with the '66 Ford and you'll understand his astonishment. Ford's quiet ride is a direct result of more built-in quality—a strong, solid body that gives you quietness that compares with the world's most expensive automobiles.

This quiet quality means more value for you because today's Fords are built for years of dependable operation, years of owner satisfaction.

And with it all, of course, come Ford's wonderful new ideas for your comfort and convenience. Stereo Tape players, Silent-Flo ventilation. A "Magic Doorgate" on wagons that swings out like a door, and down like a tailgate. And a host of other features offered first by Ford.

Visit your Ford Dealer for a quiet revelation of the solid quality you get in a Ford.

Four Persons Perish in Montreal Fire

MONTREAL (CP)—Four persons were killed and an estimated eight persons injured today in a three-alarm fire which struck a department store and second-floor apartments.

The injured were not believed to be in serious condition.

Patrolling policemen spotted the blaze at 7:30 a.m. on Ontario Street East. They heard the screams of trapped victims and called firemen and ambulances.

The building, which was up for sale, housed a small department store on the first floor. The victims were all believed to have been from the second-floor apartments.

Young Adult Fellowship Group Formed

DESERONTO — The young Adult Fellowship Club had its initial meeting in the United Church Wednesday evening bringing together a small but most enthusiastic group.

Judge G. F. Smith of Napanee gave the young people some valuable advice on drawing up a will. He warned them not to make the mistake of thinking to economize by drawing it up themselves, perhaps with the advice of some well - meaning friends. "With the best intentions in the world you may lead to a great deal of trouble by doing this", the judge said. "Things may have to be done which are just the opposite of what you intended", he continued. "No matter how bad a will is, it must be carried out. Seek legal advice, and then you can be sure that your wishes will be carried out."

He also advised his listeners to investigate thoroughly before buying real estate. "Be sure the deed is clear, he warned.

Judge Smith was introduced by Ward Dawson, and was thanked by the minister, the Rev. Russel Finley. The evening began with a smorgasbord, and a recreation period followed the address.

No attempt at organization was made, as this is just the planning stage. Mr. and Mrs. Ward Dawson were appointed temporary directors, and will welcome suggestions from any who are interested.

Dominion Wide Bowling Tourney Planned for Centennial

DESERONTO — The second step in an all-Indian centennial project was taken last Sat. urday, when bowling teams from the Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve journeyed to the Six Nations Reserve near Brantford, returning the visit paid by the Six Nations teams late last year. The plan is to have the winning teams play off, first on a provincial basis, and in the Centennial year, to have a Dominion wide tournament.

By the time the visitors had driven the 229 miles to Ohsweken, the village on the Six Nations Reserve, they were ready for the hot luncheon which awaited them. This included the traditional Indian corn soup. It was served in the hall of St. Peter's Anglican Church in the village.

The visitors were taken on a short tour of the Reserve, which is much too large to be travelled over in the short time available. One place they did visit was the lately remodelled Council House. For many, it was the first visit to this Reserve.

At the Star Bowling Lanes in Brantford the visitors succeeded in winning the mixed game. The players were: Sheridan Maracle, Donna Maracle, Bennett Brant and Mr. and Mrs. A. Maracle, Laverne Maracle. Bud Maracle was the winner of the high single and Bennett Brant of the high triple.

After the games, all returned to Ohsweken, where a hot meal was again served, and the prizes were given out. Some of the players started for home immediately, and they were the lucky ones. Those who waited until the next day or who spent the night with friends in Hamilton or Toronto were not so fortunate as the Reserve Roads were blocked until late Tuesday.

The plan is now to play return games with reserves near Peterborough and for the Six Nations to play with London and Sarnia. A firm which does national advertising has expressed interest in the tournament.

Eldorado

ELDORADO — Mr. Elwood Wasmud of Kitchener spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Lizzie Wasmud.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton McCann and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stevens of Peterborough were recent guests of Mrs. C. D. McCann.

Mr. and Mrs. Mert Pierce of Peterborough were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pigden.

A number from here attended the funeral of Mervin McCann of Niagara Falls on Thursday.

Mrs. Annie Evans is spending some time with friends at Oshawa.

Oshawa Mayor Takes Hand To Settle Newspaper Strike

OSHAWA (CP)—Lyman Gifford, mayor of this industrial city 30 miles east of Toronto, tried to act as a go-between Thursday between the Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild (CLC) and the Oshawa Times. The guild struck The Times Jan. 27.

Fred Jones, international representative of the American Newspaper Guild, of which the Toronto guild is a part, said Thursday night the mayor was attempting to act as a liaison between the guild and the newspaper, owned by Thomson Newspapers Ltd.

Mr. Jones spoke following an inter-union meeting with members of the United Auto Workers (CLC) Local 222 and the guild.

The Times, the city's only newspaper, has not published since the 36-member Oshawa unit of the guild went on strike.

TURNED BACK

Times printers, members of the International Typographical Union (CLC), who made their usual attempts to enter the plant, turned back at 11 p.m. Thursday, when 22 pickets, some of them members of the UAW, barred their entrance at the rear gate.

Mr. Jones said without amplification that the union had laid down "ground rules" which were being brought to the attention of R. V. Hicks of Toronto, management solicitor of The Times.

During the afternoon and evening the number of pickets varied, sometimes far above, sometimes approximating the numbers set by a court injunction issued in Toronto Monday, which limited the number of pickets to 10.

Wednesday, two mass membership meetings of the 23,000-member Oshawa and District Labor Council (CLC) pledged support of their leaders in a fight against the court injunction.

Representing editorial, circulation, business office, advertising and maintenance employees, the guild is seeking a $20-a-week salary increase and job security in the event of technological change.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — The main topic discussed around the community, just now, is snow. Along with other localities, several inches of snow fell and was blown and drifted into hard banks, blocking most of the roads. The snow plows tried to open the road for the high school us, but after bogging down and getting off the road, the bus had to turn back. The Ninth Line School was closed, although the Union School held classes after the plow opened the road. Some motorists came to grief in a snow bank on the county road and were given shelter for the night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer. Church services were held in the morning at Rylstone United Church and the Gospel Chapel, although evening service at the Chapel was withdrawn owing to weather conditions.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and Mrs. Clarence Thomson attended the annual U.C.W. Presbyterial meeting at Bridge Street United Church in Belleville on Wednesday as delegates from Rylstone U.C.W.

The Rawdon Fire Brigade answered a call to a chimney fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Heath one night last week. The fire was quickly put out and little damage was done.

Mrs. Alma Dunk of Campbellford was a weekend guest of her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Dunk and family.

Anne Reid of Kingston and Marilyn and Glen Stewart of Peterborough spent the weekend at their parents' homes here.

OLD TAPES TO GO

Businesses Relocate After Recent Fire

CAMPBELLFORD — Since the fire in Campbellford recently certain businesses have of necessity changed their locale.

Eaton's of Canada has established the order office in the building of Mr. Ron Hazell. Meanwhile the former place of business is being restored as a one-storey building.

Mr. Bruce Wallace, men's wear is establishing his place of business in the store formerly occupied by Barnes Department Store.

Other changes not due to the fire, Mr. H. MacMillan has sold the I.G.A. to Mr. Beecher Blake and son Mr. Gordon Blake. It is also rumored that another men's clothing store has changed ownership.

Mr. Dante Pace whose Health and Beauty Store was destroyed by fire has not yet returned from Florida, having been detained by car trouble.

The party was arranged by Marion Ackerman and Edith Arthur. Mrs. Dale thanked all for their kindness and asked them to visit her in her new home.

Sunday School Lesson

Life's Closest Companion

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Any way you look at it, water is a mystery. To begin with, two gasses form to make a liquid. Moreover, water exists in three forms — liquid, solid, and vapor. As liquid it quenches our thirst. As solid, it preserves our food. As vapor it warms our houses. But it is all water.

Anyway you think of Him, God is a mystery. As we think about Him, we think of His 'many-sidedness.' To the Christian, He exists in three ways. As the Father, He created us. Through Christ, the Son, He redeems us. And by His holy Spirit, He sustains us. But in every case He is God.

Dr. Henry P. VanDusen says it another way. He says in God the Father, we see manifested the ultimacy of God, in God the Son, we see manifested the character of God, and in God the Holy Spirit, we see manifested the intimacy of God.

It is comparatively easy these days to think of the ultimacy of God. Science flings our minds out into outer space, and we are forced to ask what brought it all into being. Beyond the farthest star, there must be the God who created it.

But it is not so easy for many people to believe in the intimacy of God — a God who is "closer than hands and feet", who cares about us as individual persons, who notices even a sparrow's fall.

And yet this is the promise Jesus gave His disciples. Soon He would no longer be with them in the flesh. But God's Spirit would be with them, helping them to know the mind of Christ in the situations in which they found themselves. He would guide them into greater truth because they tried to follow the Once they had known in Galilee. (John 16:13)

SENSING DIVINE PRESENCE

How can one become conscious of the presence of God's Spirit? There are many ways, but one of the best ways is to unite one's mind and heart with a sincere group in worship. At one point in the disciples' experience, John wrote, "As yet the Spirit had not been given." (John 7:39) At this point, the disciples were still quarreling, self-seeking individuals. (Matthew 20:20-24) It was not until Pentecost when, as the King James' Version translates it, "they were all with one accord in one place," that God's Spirit came to them in a rush. (Acts 2:1-2) It was not until they had prayed themselves empty of self and into a living fellowship that the power came. And many a person becomes most conscious of God's presence when he joins in worship with fellow seekers and believers.

GOD IN EXPERIENCE

Men do not prove the presence of God's Spirit in a test-tube, but in experience. In Romans 8:11, Paul says that the very Spirit of God who raised up Jesus from the dead will give life to our mortal bodies. Here Paul is talking about spiritual life. The King James' version of this verse says the Spirit of God shall "quicken" our mortal bodies.

God's Spirit can quicken our lives, but only if we give Him something to quicken. A speaker announced to a waiting congregation that he had no message for them because he always waited for the Holy Spirit to give him one and the Spirit had failed to do so. Who had failed, God's Spirit or the speaker?

God's Spirit can quicken our prayers, but only if we pray. He can quicken our understanding of the Bible, but only if we read the Bible. He can use our service to His glory, but only if we serve.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 6; "God is Living Spirit," John 16:115; Acts 2:1-4; Romans 8:9-27; I John 4:13-21.

The ultimate evidence that God's Spirit is present is that He helps men to grow in love. To know God, the New Testament insists, is to experience genuine love for mankind, for God is love. (I John 4:16) This kind of love can cast out fear. It can send missionaries out to serve in dangerous places. It can help people to lose their fear of loneliness.

Through His spirit, God is life's closest Companion. The word Jesus used for God's Spirit is translated Comforter (John 16:7, K.J.V.) or Counselor (John 16:7 RSV) The word literally means, "One who is called alongside." Because God is a living Spirit, one is never alone. In the New Testament, God's Spirit and the Spirit of Christ are the same. (Romans 8:9) God's purpose is to make Christ's Spirit known in the world that men may learn to live together in love.

Dave's Hideaway

By

Dave Charles

A successful meeting was held last night at the Belleville Recreation Centre. Your interest in social activities is to be commended. I hope these extra social outlets will appease your hunger for a good time.

Let's get something straight once and for all, Belleville and district Mod Music Makers. Now that the city Recreation Centre and myself have taken an interest in your social functions don't you think that you should support our efforts made on your behalf. We would like you to make your own decision on what you want. Therefore a committee from the high schools in the city would serve as the council for these activities. After all you should decide what is best for the Teen scene in the way of entertainment.

It would be a waste of time for me to try and please you simply by running hit and run dances throughout the area. Eventually you would stop coming and find something else. The "Crow's Nest" is a perfect example of what can happen.

If you want big dances every week in Belleville then get behind it and participate; speak up when there is something you don't like.

Wednesday, I had a meeting with one of the Belleville high school principals. We talked about the school board's decision to lower the prices of school dances to 50 cents and hire only local bands. Many students object strongly to the lowering in prices of admission to 50c and having local bands or record hops. I realize that you want to see Toronto bands rather than local bands. However, it was pointed out to me that the high school does not want to get involved in the big band business to the extent of hiring all big name groups for school dances. Many of these dances, with a Toronto band would draw fantastic crowds. If the admission were $1 the school would make a bundle. In the past, student councils have accomplished their various projects and managed to support them with sufficient funds raised at school dances featuring, (guess who), local bands. The Board of Education is not in favor of promoting such social extravaganzas for area high schools.

Dear Beverly and Bradley, I'm sure you will agree that such dances are classified as commercial ventures and not suitable for the level of school socializing and activities.

Many school groups have phoned me and asked me what to do. My answer to you is continue to use local bands and record hops as the school recommends, work on promotion of dances rather than depending upon the band's name to do it for you.

I would be most happy to announce your dance on the air and help you with promotion. Before you get mad and jump up and down, stop and think for a minute and after the smoke clears away read it again and maybe out of the sea of despair a blue sky will appear.

Remember the school's first interest is to educate and not to be a base for social activities. Socializing is part of your secondary education but not the most important part. School dances are not that frequent for you to concern yourself as much as you have been.

I'm sure that you would have a better time seeing a Toronto band in a place other than your school. After all, your mother or father wouldn't like staying at home all the time for socializing. Instead they head for night clubs designed especially for having a good time.

Grin and bear it . . . The world will come to an end.

ACT II

Hark . . . I bring good news.

Mod Music Maker: Gee Whizarooney . . . What could it be.

Charles: Teen Club 106 is in operation Saturday with the Spartons from Toronto.

Watch out there . . . February 12 the first in the series of Mod Concert Series will be held, more about it on my show and in the next Hideaway.

I have decided that winter is for the birds and snowplows. This bitter coldness and snow yet, caused this reporter to wipe out four times in one day in the snow drifts. I'm ready for the groove yards myself. As I write this, the white stuff continues to fall from the heavens above to the roads below. It is either snowing out now or the Jolly Green Giant has a bad, bad, case of dandruff.

I would like to congratulate those mod music makers who attended the "Shays" dance at St. Mike's Saturday. You were nothing but great. Not one bit of fuss or confusion. The Shays put on one fantastic show. They'll be back soon.

A new fun phone in "At The Top" this past week has been most amusing. Entitled "Good vs. Evil" like for instant Dave Charles vs. Cassius Clay, or Man Tan vs. Yellow Fellow, or how about Tijuana Taxi vs. Walk On By. Keep them coming in, they're too much.

I expect the Big Town Boys and Dee and the Yeomen new releases will be in before the end of the week. Both will be exclusive on CJBQ. The Beatles were previewed on CJBQ Radio all this week with the big, bright bold new sound of "Nowhere Man." It looks impossible for a Beatle song to Bomb. "Call Me" by Chris Montez is nothing less than great and the first hit for the Bobby Fuller Four, who have had many recording failures finally score with "'I Fought the Law."

The Cheater with Bob Kuban and his In-Men will climb to fame and fortune and finally Roy'Orbison is riding the hit trail with Breakin' Up Is Breakin' My Heart" . . . these and others are preview picks for the "008 Twin 20" file? . . .

I ask your support for making Belleville one of Canada's best places for Teenage activities. If you're concerned enough your comments and help would be appreciated. After all, it takes some work on your part to keep the social roads open for fun and good times for all.

Please care enough to do your very best . . . Shangri-La.

Teen Club Holding Dance At Y.M.C.A.

The YMCA Teen Club is holding a Teen Dance on Friday, February 4th. The dance will be held in the 'Y' auditorium from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. There will be a wide selection of the latest recordings available from the juke box. The admission charge will be inclusive and teens will be able to make their own record selection. Dress for the occasion will be casual sports wear. All teen-agers are welcome.

Questions Pranksters' Maturity

By B. DEVINE (MSS)

The display of inanity on Wednesday, January 26, has certainly been one of the big switches in Canadian university life The usual thing that one hears about Canadian students is that one has decided to end it all with a razor blade (how messy!) — no doubt some history professors would prefer him to fall on his sword; another has been taking "pep pills" or the morality squad has raided a college "mixer" and has taken away the pool table.

But apparently the students of the good old university in Montreal can't be satisfied with the usual antics: thy have to be original.

The loot gained from the student version of "The Great Train Robbery" ranged from two Go-Go girls (brother, it's cold outside) to the Detroit Red Wings' sweaters (cold, Gordie?) to a six-foot high portrait of the Queen, to Radio and Television personalities (Dave Charles would love that!) to a small bear (sans electric blanket) to a small pig which was forced to drink from a beer bottle (last reports had him a member of the local temperance union).

Although the events may seem amusing, one finds it difficult to refrain from telling these overworked scholars and intellects to grow up!

CARELESS YOUTH

By BONNIE CHRISTOPHER (MSS)

Warm tears gently mist her eyes,
Shadows slowly age her face,
She bends her head and softly
cries,
I feel so strangely out of place.

My heart sighs; I love her so!
Oh God, please let her know it.
After all Ive said and all I've done,
My pride won't let me show it.

I've hurt the one I love the most,
The one who loves me dearly.
My heart breaks as I watch her rise
And leave the room so wearily.

Tonight she'll cry on her pillow.
Tomorrow she'll forgive and forget.
But in her heart she'll remember,
Wondering why for many years
yet.

Youth is so careless and care-
free,
Thoughtful ones are rare.
They flit ruthlessly across your life
And know not the hurt left
there.

Tough These Days To Be a Failure

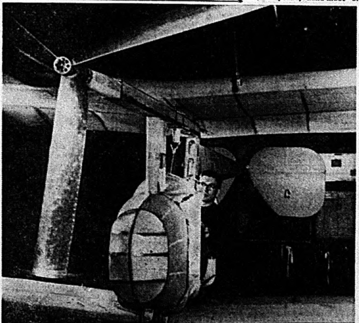
MARTHA MUSGROVE (BCI)

It's getting pretty hard to be a resounding failure these days. Do you remember the seedy-looking drunk who used to sit on a bench in the park and read the stock-market quotations? Well, he's gone. A fellow from Program Five swooped down on him the other day, frantically waving a copy of the Robarts' Plan and shouting threats of rehabilitation, and no one has seen the sodden gentleman since. One of the nicest features of a capitalistic society was that there was plenty of room at the bottom. The present trend toward socialism has made the out and out failure almost extinct.

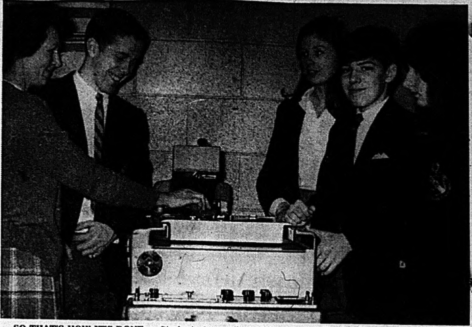
The most prominent promoters of success are the educational authorities. The very phrase "under-achiever" makes their upper lip tremble and, upon hearing the word "failure," they break right down and weep and weep. Their publicity campaign is admirable, if somewhat overwhelming. "Stay-in-school" slogans gaze relentlessly down upon the potential drop-out from every surface — bill-boards and the ladies' washroom of Woolworth's included. Semi-literate athletes give inspiring talks over the radio on the value of education, until you are positively reeling with enthusiasm to get back to the books and study.

Even if you are clever enough not to succumb to these temptations, failure is a hard status to maintain. No sooner have you settled back to watch the antics of the successful world, when you are besieged by a gang of guidance experts, patting you on the shoulder, clucking sympathetically, and sweetly assuring you that somewhere, you have your little niche, but not on a soapbox in Hyde Park.

Yes, the real impetus to be a failure has been destroyed. All the really great failures are no longer here to inspire and encourage us. They've been retaught, re-programmed and set up with a shiny new set of goals. They've turned in their comfortable, secure park bench for some non-descript desk-job in a life insurance company. Now there are fewer and fewer parks fewer and fewer pigeons to converse with, and I've even heard you have to have a license to beachcomb in Tahiti.



HE WANTS TO FLY LIKE A BIRD — Muscle power is the motive power in this 100-pound aircraft built by Brian Driscoll (at the controls) and three other students at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology in Calgary. Driscoll, an aeronautics student, hopes to be the first person to put a man-powered aircraft into flight. The pilot pumps bicycle pedals for power. The students hope to win a £5,000 prize offered by an English philanthropist in 1937 for a two-mile flight over a figure-eight course. (CP Photo)



SO THAT'S HOW IT'S DONE — Students from Albert College toured The Intelligencer last week as part of that school's Careers Week activities. Key Clubbers Entertained By Rough Rider Scout

By STEVE BISHOP (MSS)

Wednesday, January 26, members of the three Key Clubs from the city's high schools were entertained at their monthly dinner with a talk from Don Holtby, Canadian scout for the Ottawa Rough Riders, and Bob McCarthy, Rough Rider halfback.

Mr. Holtby, who scouts players in Canadian colleges and high schools with a potential future in professional football, showed a film of the highlights of the Rough Riders' 1965 season. (He is also an announcer for radio station CFRA in Ottawa.) Bob McCarthy is, at 19, the youngest player in the Canadian Football League and is considered an outstanding prospect although he didn't see too much action last season, due to the fact that he played behind two of the finest receivers in the game, Ted Watkins and Whit Tucker. Bob is still attending high school in Ottawa — grade 13 at Rideau High School.

Don Holtby explained the scouting method used by Ottawa, High school players or exceptional talent are invited to Ottawa's "rookie camp" for a try-out. From here they may be recommended for athletic scholarships at an American College. After four years south of the border, they may return and play for Ottawa. He cited an example in Ted Collins, a tackle who went from high school in Windsor to the University of Detroit, to Ottawa where he is now an established player in professional football. On the other hand, a boy may attend a Canadian university, in which case he is no longer the exclusive property of the Ottawa club and may be signed by any team.

The purpose of scouting college players is to discover outstanding talent to be picked in the annual draft of college football players. In addition, many players are picked from the junior football teams composed of boys who have graduated from high school but do not attend university. A Bob McCarthy who plays professional football while still in high school is a rarity.

After his talk, Mr. Holtby showed the film and commented on it, play by play. Then the two guests answered questions for half an hour before the meeting adjourned.

I would like to extend publicly the thanks of the Kiwanians and Key Clubbers to our two speakers for travelling all the way from Ottawa to provide us with an excellent commentary and an entertaining evening. The program was arranged by the Moira Key Club!

Four Daring Calgary Youths To Test Man-powered Plane

CALGARY (CP)—Four daring young Calgary students want to put their man-powered flying machine into the air, possibly win a $15,000 prize, and contribute their findings to science.

They are Doug Baxter, Brian Driscoll, Robb Bridgett and Harry Turnbull, aeronautics students at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology.

The four are working on a 20-foot, 100-pound, hand-made biplane powered by one man pumping bicycle pedals. The pedals have a direct gear drive to the main wheel of the plane and its propeller.

With this power, they hope to lift their flying machine off the ground and accomplish what man has been attempting to do for centuries—put a man-powered aircraft into successful flight.

A £5,000 ($15,000) prize offered by an English philanthropist in 1937 to the first person who achieves such flight still stands.

Several English groups and others in Toronto and Ottawa are understood to be working on the same type of project.

The Calgary students, who plan a test flight this spring, have been asked by the Canadian Aeronautical and Space Institute to supply their findings on the flight for research into man - powered flight.

In order to win the $15,000 prize, the students must be able to lift their aircraft to an altitude of about 50 feet and fly a two - mile - long figure-eight course.

The Calgary project was started in 1960 by two Tech students who were unable to finish their work on the plane because of lack of funds. The students graduated and their project was passed on to Baxter and his colleagues.

When they inherited the plane, it required about 20 hours of work to put it in shape. This was completed and thus far the project has cost about $3,000.

He says flying the aircraft will be "like riding a three-speed bicycle in high gear all the time."

"A professional bicycle rider can develop just about one horsepower when working at his best and can continue at a half-horsepower for a lengthy period of time."

Baxter feels one horsepower would be sufficient to lift the flying machine and maintain flight, and expects the plane to achieve speeds of about 15 miles an hour.

"A man - powered plane is designed to approach the point of least power and still maintain flight," he says.

Baxter is probably an ideal test pilot—he weighs only 120 pounds.

Provinces Show Little Eagerness To Take Offer

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven months after the federal government offered to pay half the shot for a national medical care program, most provinces are showing little eagerness to take up the offer quickly.

The result is that the federal cabinet is squeezed between its back-benchers pressing for federal legislative action and its desire not to seem to be forcing the provinces into something they aren't all ready to accept.

Prime Minister Pearson rereferred to the second part of the dilemma this week in Toronto when he said:

"We cannot impose policies and programs on provinces in respect of matters within their jurisdiction. And we will have to be increasingly careful in participating in joint federal-provincial programs in which the provinces do not participate.

"On the other hand, we will not forego our right to make grants to provinces to help them in programs such as medicare which are provincially-administered; and our right to relate such grants to the acceptance of certain principles which, in our view, justify the expenditure of federal funds for provincially-administered schemes.

"It is then for the provinces to decide whether they wish to co-operate on this basis."

PREDICT ACTION SOON

Medicare exponents here say these words are not a way of saying to the provinces that Ottawa will hold up legislative action on its offer until all provinces agree to the terms. They maintain there is a strong posibility the federal cabinet will agree to legislative action within the next few weeks.

Six provinces—Ontario, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia—would give no commitment to accept the federal offer at a federal - provincial conference of health ministers earlier this week. Only Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan accepted outright. Quebec has endorsed the conditions attached to the federal offer.

There were no refusals of the offer but, after seven months and discussion of the subject at three federal - provincial meetings, their action indicated doubts. It may jeopardize the July 1, 1967, target date suggested by Mr. Pearson for the federal government to begin making payments under a national program.

One province — Ontario— and probably a second—Alberta —want further discussion, possibly at a meeting among the premiers and Mr. Pearson in June.

TIME PRESSING

In view of the target date, time is important. It takes weeks for such complicated legislation to be drafted and approved by provincial legislatures. Further time is consumed in getting administrative machinery working.

The decision which faces federal Health Minister MacEachen is whether to recomment to the federal cabinet that Ottawa put its offer into legislative form without waiting for acceptances from all provinces.

He is said to be pressed to do so by Liberal back-benchers. His own views are that any steps taken by Ottawa must not be capable of being interpreted as pressure on the provinces.

He is said to be pressed to do so by Liberal back-benchers. His own views are that any steps taken by Ottawa must not be capable of being interpreted as pressure on the provinces.

After this week's meeting with health ministers, he said he was encouraged there were no outright refusals of the federal offer. He also said he thinks it would be premature to decide now whether agreement with all or only some of the provinces would be necessary for Ottawa to begin making payments.

His views aren't on record about legislation to authorize those payments.

The problem raised by going ahead now with federal legislation is that, almost automatically, pressure is put on non-participating provinces.

AFFECT RELATIONS

Residents of non-participating provinces see big chunks of federal money about to go elsewhere and ask why their provincial government isn't getting a share. Relations between the two levels of government suffer at a time when the minority federal government doesn't want to add to its political problems.

A further problem at the federal level is the attitude of the cabinet toward medical care insurance. Finance Minister Sharp was quoted some months ago as expressing doubts that the July 1, 1967, target date could be met.

But informants say he shows no sign of being reluctant to proceed. He is reported to believe the federal government can afford the outlays for both medical care and aid to education.

They also say medical care will mean a tax increase, possibly a special levy to finance the federal share estimated at between $350,000,000 and $360,000,000 a year.

Mr. Sharp is said to want to be certain before medical care legislation is introduced that there would not be a series of changes made later at provincial behest, as happened with the Canadian Pension Plan.

As an acknowledged aspirant to the Liberal leadership, as well as the man who has to raise the government's tax money, his views will carry considerable weight as the cabinet seeks a way out of the dilemma.

Over the past weekend 102 inches of snow fell in the New York state city, completely blocking roads, closing schools and demoralizing business.

Mayor Ellis was in telephone conservation yesterday with Oswego Mayor Ralph Shapiro, who gladly accepted the offer of assistance.

The snow removal equipment was loaded onto a Mel Barriage highway float and left for Oswego shortly after six o'clock last night. The four man snow removal crew will be under the direction of public works road foreman Garnet Maines.

The Belleville snow removal equipment arrived in Oswego just after midnight and despite having put in a full day here went right to work.

An Oswego policeman was quoted as saying the Belleville men were given the choice of going to bed or going to work.

"They went right out and went to work," the police officer said.

Belleville roads foreman Maines in telephone conversation with The Intelligencer this morning said his crew on arrival went to work unloading its equipment and actually got to work clearing snow about three o'clock this morning.

UNBELIEVABLE SNOWFALL

"It's really unbelievable," stated Mr. Maines, referring to the depth of snow on Oswego streets.

He said that most of Oswego's main streets were now driveable but only one-way traffic was possible.

Mayor Shapiro said he would have the Belleville men work until Saturday night and then let them go home.

Clearance for the men and equipment through immigration and customs at Ivy Lea Bridge had already been arranged, he said.

Criminal Code to outlaw racist hate literature.

—Reforms Minister Allan Grossman said young offenders in future may be jailed in institutions near their homes instead of being sent to the reformatory at Guelph

Mr. Thompson holds that the government should make its medical care plan compulsory covering everyone in Ontario. The debate continues today.

The resolution on hate literature asks the federal government to amend the Criminal Code to make it an indictable offence to spread "any matter intended or calculated to incite violence or provoke disorder against any class of persons, or against any persons as a member of a class. . . ."

It also calls for the death penalty for anyone found guilty of killing a member of a national, ethnic, racial or religious group with the intent to destroy the group itself or a part of it.

Reforms Minister Grossman said the change in jailing young offenders will be made possible by an increase in the size of the Ontario parole board, permitting its members to visit all institutions in the province.

Mr. Grossman introduced a bill in the legislature to raise the membership of the board to five full-time and two part-time members, instead of three full-time and two part-time members.

Tight Control on Barberry Instituted by Government

OTTAWA (CP) — The agriculture department announced Thursday it is tightening its controls on barberry in order to protect wheat, oats and other cereal crops from rust disease.

A department spokesman said the tightened controls may lead to orders to destroy barberry hedges and even single shrubs used in landscaping around city houses.

Common barberry already has been eradicated in Western Canada and is being destroyed in many parts of Eastern Canada. It has been virtually stamped out in eastern Ontario, with hundreds of acres laid bare by death-dealing sprays in the last two years.

It had been thought that only the common, green barberry which drops its leaves in winter was a hazard because it harbors a plant parasite.

But scientists of the plant protection division of the federal agriculture department now say even some decorative red barberry varieties can harbor the rust disease.

Commercial nurseries have been ordered to destroy their stocks of three varieties: Sheridan red, humber red, and cardinal. They are crosses between the common barberry and a Japanese variety.

Evergreen varieties of barberry are not suspect. They grow in only a few parts of Canada.

For many years there has been a ban on movement of barberry plants across the borders of Ontaro and Quebec. This now has been extended to all inter-provincial shipments.

Plant researchers say new types of rust are developing and they are unable to develop new strains of rust - resistant grain fast enough to keep ahead of the disease.

A department spokesman said some varieties of barberry used for home landscaping and hedges are not now being banned but they forsee the day when the ban will be made all-embracing.

Imports of all deciduous varieties are being cut off starting April 1.

Common barberry was found in 23 eastern Ontario municipalities last year and destroyed on 230 properties. Another 20 properties will be cleared this year.

Spraying was started last year in the Ontario counties of Grey, Bruce and Simcoe and will be carried on this year in Brant, Middlesex, Perth, Huron, Wellington and Wentworth. The Niagara district will be surveyed and sprayed if necessary.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — Wayne Wildman escaped serious injury one night recently when returning home from his job in Peterborough. He lost control of his car when a wheel left the pavement, causing the rear wheels to skid on the snowy pavement and finally hit a hydro pole. Wayne received a deep cut on his head which required several stitches to close and was kept in intensive care at a Peterborough hospital for a time. None of the passengers in the car were injured, though the young lady was detained in hospital over night, suffering from shock. Wayne returned to work on Monday, after convalescing at his home here.

Reed Morton, underwent a tonsilectomy in Campbellford Memorial Hospital on Friday.

Carol Heath and Lynn Mason were among the young people from Bethel Chapel in Belleville who were entertained at a skating party in Bancroft.

Anne Reid of Kingston spent the weekend here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reid and brother Ted.

Jimmie Gray Jr., of Hanover, was a weekend guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gray Sr., and family.

Between five and seven inches of snow fell on the district here on Sunday in an unheralded storm which swept the country. Snow plows had the most of the roads open before midnight Sunday.

Prices of Cigarettes Vary Largely in Relation to Taxes

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

From province to province, prices of Canadian cigarettes drift up and down with all the consistency of tobacco smoke. A hodge-podge of provincial taxes helps float them around.

They roam between a low of 38 cents for a package of 20 in Alberta, the only province without a tax, and 45-46 cents in Manitoba, where the eight-cent tax is the country's highest.

A Cross-Country Survey by The Canadian Press shows that prices in five provinces—Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Nova Scotia—have gone up since the start of 1966. All the increases were generated within the trade; there have been no recent tax hikes.

All amounted to one cent at retail for the 20-pack in the provinces affected. But there is no unanimity in what caused them. Retailers point to wholesalers, and wholesalers point to manufacturers.

MADE TAX THE GOAT

In Ontario, the trade at first tried to pin it on a change in the provincial tax, but it turned out the province was just using a simpler basis to get the same amount. In Quebec, jobbers blamed a change in manufacturers' invoicing methods. But a manufacturer said jobbers suggested the change, and it didn't represent a net price increase anyway.

A big Alberta retailer said: "Ask the wholesalers. They set the prices." A wholesaler said: "We only peddle the stuff. The manufacturers back east set the prices."

Alberta's price was raised by a cent in early January after wholesalers boosted their charge by three cents a carton. The old price had been in effect 1½ years. The standard carton price for 200 is $3.49 retail.

On the next rung up the ladder, Ontario's price is 38 or 39 cents, depending on the outlet. The big United Cigar chain at first went along with the one-cent boost from 38 cents but then retracted it in Ontario and Quebec. Cartons sell between $3.39 and $3.49 in Ontario. The tax in this province now is 1-20 cent per cigarette, a Jan. 1 change from three per cent on the retail price.

Nova Scotia went to the 40-cent level in late January with a one-cent boost. the carton price there varies between $3.79 and $3.89. It was the first price jump for Nova Scotia since 1958 when the provincial government introduced a tax of two cents a package to help pay for a hospital plan.

HAS SAME SPREAD

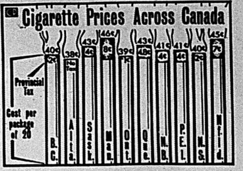
British Columbia has the same tax and the same price for 20s, though the carton price ranges between $3.15 and $3.60.

New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island smokers pay 41 cents, and in each province they pay a tax of 1-5 cent a cigarette. The island's prices have been stable since 1957, when the tax went into effect. New Brunswick's went up a cent in 1964, when Imperial Tobacco increased its prices. a carton costs $3.83-$4 in New Brunswick and $3.99 in P.E.I.

In Quebec and Saskatchewan, the 20-pack costs 43 cents. Quebec has a tax of 4.8 cents a package, which last went up by one cent in April, 1965. Saskatchewan's tax is 1-5 cent per cigarette, or two cents a pack. Cartons sell for about $3.99 in Saskatchewan and $3.84-$3.89 in Quebec.

Newfoundland has a double-barrelled tax, helping boost the standard price to 45 cents. There is a tax of five cents on a package of any size, five cents on a carton and a general sales tax of five per cent. The last increase was in 1964 when the five-cent tax was imposed. Cartons sell for between $4.04 and $4.20.

Manitoba's top price of 45-46 cents has been in effect since October, 1964, when prices were raised 1-8 cent per cigarette. Carton prices range between $4.19 and $4.29. The Manitoba government recently issued a statement putting down rumors of a further tax increase from the present eight cents on the 20s.



TAX BITE VARIES ON CIGARETTES—Cigarette prices vary across Canada from a low of 38 cents for a package of 20 in Alberta to 46 cents in Manitoba. Alberta has no provincial tax while Manitoba's is the highest at eight cents a package. There is, in addition, a variation of one to two cents a package charged by the retailer before he adds the tax. (CP Newsmap)

Is Chief of Surgery

His Uncle, the Witch Doctor, He Told Him What to Do

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. Charles Moyo's choice of medicine as a career was strongly influenced by his uncle, a witch doctor.

Dr. Moyo, 31, now is chief resident in surgery at Canada's third largest general hospital, the 1,088-bed Ottawa Civic.

He organizes the treatment of about 100 patients, directs a team of 20 assistants, and teaches as well.

He is about as skilful and orthodox a man as any medical association could wish for.

His uncle was another thing altogether.

The firm, mobile features of the dark-skinned surgeon flash with delight at memories of his boyhood on the plains of Rhodesia. Had it not been for his uncle, they could have been the plains of southern Saskatchewan.

"I never saw a lion until I went to New York City," Dr. Moyo said in an interview at the hospital.

His hometown was Gwele, where his father taught at a Roman Catholic mission he had helped establish.

THOUGHT WEST WAS BLACK

"I thought all North Americans were blacks," he laughed, when asked about his youthful impressions of the world beyond the grass plains and thick forests.

"I gradually realized through cowboy movies that this wasn't the case."

Cowboys were heroes in Rhodesia. They had no competition for loyalty from the Comanche or the Sioux. Movies about the great Indian wars of the American West were banned as a bad influence on the African population.

Dr. Moyo's uncle, the witch doctor, was considered a bad influence by the Christian family.

He had disgraced himself by tossing up his religion for seven wives and a practice as a medicine man.

"I used to see him doing his divine incantations," recalled Dr. Moyo, with the amused affection only a maverick uncle can inspire and hold.

"He was a wily creature. He'd squat before his patient, throwing bones and asking leading questions all the time."

USED FUNGUS CURE

Dr. Moyo knew a Zulu woman who dressed wounds with crushed peaches. The wounds healed because of the fungus that resulted

The fungus is known as penicillin in professional circles here.

The Rhodesian-born surgeon plans to return to his native country to teach and practise once he completes his fellowship examinations here.

He was taught by French-Canadian and American Marist Brothers at a school in Rhodesia, then went to Marian Hill high school near Durban in South Africa for his matriculation.

Rev. Roger Quirion, now dean of arts at the University of Ottawa, remembers him as a top student at the University of Basutoland. Charles had four scholarships waiting when he graduated in arts.

He wavered between the priesthood and medicine in his search for a vocation. The uncle won, in a left-handed way.

"As I grew older, I saw the importance of being a well-trained physician-surgeon.'

The American consulate and a shipping firm in Salisbury made it possible for him to go on to Marquette University in Wisconsin for pre-med studies.

TOOK OTTAWA DEGREE

He took his medical degree at Ottawa, went on to the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, and now is in his fourth year of post-graduate work in surgery.

Ambitious and forceful, he can leave a trail of bruised feelings if jobs aren't done to his satisfaction. Off the job, he is a pleasant, articulate man and a good mixer.

He talks about his Barotse ancestors with the appealing mixture of pride and amusement he has for his uncle.

Once rulers of Rhodesia from the Zambezi to the Transvaal, they were an aggressive tribe that tended towards epic projects.

"They tried to build a scaffold to the moon once," says Dr. Moyo, smiling.

They also tried to move a mountain for a powerful king. The result was a landslide in which xbones are still being found

BROTHER JAILED

Dr. Moyo's brother James, a teacher, is among the 18,000 black Rhodesians in detention camps under the white supremacy rule of Premier Ian Smith. An uncle, not the witch doctor, also has been interned for political reasons.

Being a surgeon, Dr. Moyo has few worries The South African government offered him a job a couple of years ago. When he visited Salisbury in 1962, he could have practised in a white hospital had he wished.

He'll only return with the highest qualifications he can get here, despite an obvious ache for a beautiful homeland. It appears whenever he talks about his maverick uncle, now dead

"I saw him the day before I left," he recalls fondly. "My brother and I spotted him hunting in a field.

"We walked down to him and when we got there, he turned around and said: 'I knew you were coming.' "

Then the bent old man, having protected his reputation for omniscience, resumed his hunting.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

BROTHERS AND SISTERS OVER 21

A taxpayer could always claim a brother or sister under 21 years of age provided they were wholly dependent on him. For the year 1964 and subsequent years the taxpayer may claim any brother or sister who is over 21 years, providing they are in full time attendance at a school or university and their income is not over $950. The school or university may be either in or outside of Canada.

Full time attendance means the dependant must have completed one or more terms of the academic year. The taxpayer should bear in mind, that if the dependant graduates in the taxation year, then takes employment for the balance of the year and during that time earns in excess of $950, he will have no claim at all, regardless of the fact he may have supported the dependant up to the time of graduaton.

The taxpayer should also bear in mind he is not allowed to deduct the tuition fees he may have paid for such a dependant. The tuition fees paid in the taxation year are deductible only by the student and after such a deduction, if the students income is reduced to an amount under $950, he or she may be claimed as a dependant by the brother or sister providing his support. The tuition fees deductible are those paid in the taxation year for a course and not claimed in any previous year.

This section of the tax act is new in 1964 and applies only to 1964 and subsequent years. No adjustment can be made to prior years where the above outlined situations existed.

For a personal reply, enclose a self addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I am paying my brother's way through University. He is now over 21 Can I claim him?

Answer: Yes. The Income Tax Act was amended in 1964 to allow such claims.

Question 2: I was disallowed a claim for my brother who is over 21, and I am paying his way through University. I now understand such claims are allowable. Can I have my 1963 return adjusted to allow the claim.

Answer: No. Such claims are only allowable in 1964 and subsequent years.

His face was as weatherbeaten as one of his native Irish tors, its gnarls and wrinkles hilling and delling a map of the Ould Sod itself.

His brogue was as thick as the cream on a goblet of Irish coffee and he appeared as agile as the famed Fin McCool before he made the leap off the Giant's Causeway.

His name was Geohagen, he said, and he came from the beauteous Killarney paradise "where me ould grandmother wuz wan of the angels that folded their wings and rested."

"Spoort," he said with a bituva lilt in his voice, "comes as natural to the Geohagens as the shamrock to anny peat-bogged omadhaun on the Sivinteenth of Oireland."

"The Geohagens have produced some ov the greatest hurlers the ould land iver bragged about. The legends have it that me ancient ancisters played the game with the mighty Munster prince Cuchallain who played on the plains of Tara long before the beloved St. Patrick forsook the Scottish Hielans and became Eire's chief snake exterminator."

"We micks and the negroes," he said, "have sint more champeens to the top of the spoort heap than anny other breed in the world. Sure and we both had those widda lot of brawn and that's all but they usually found thimsilves on the New York Police Department.

"And it might be yousiff that can tell me," he said, "about a broth of a bhoy named Tim Geohagen, a great-nevvy of mine, who was a top shillalagh in the ranks of the wrestlin' fraternity here a whoile back."

A broad smile illuminated his homely mug like the Irish dawning silvering the placidity of the Killarney lakes, when I told him that "wan handsome young Irish gossoon by that name rated high in my list of personal friends."

Die-hard addicts of wrestling from the haycyon days of Stan Stasiak and The Masked Marvel to the penny-poor bakers-dozen crowds of pre-demise days, will remember the popular Tim, the Atlas of wrestling, muscled like a gladiator, with a personality that would melt a sphynx.

Tim could bend a half-inch iron bar like a pretzel with a slow twist of a wrist, sliver a man's bones, or put him to temporary bye-bye with a gentle caress of the carotid artery.

Tim wasn't big as the usual pachyderms of the wrestling ring go. He was not the blood-curdling snarling type, a Killer Kowalski or a Dick Brower. He could have modelled those mag-ads for "Use My System — and Become a Man". His muscles rippled under a smooth velvety skin and he moved about the ring like a lioness stalking her prey.

He was soft-spoken with enough of the ould brogue to give his utterances a touch of music. Outside the ring Tim was immaculately dressed, every inch the gentleman with an almost perfect command of the Queen's English.

The other day I found out "how come". Wrestling has produced doctors, dentists, lawyers, architects, and one gal musclebender who had a master of arts degree.

But Tim Geohagen, to my knowledge, is the only wrestler in captivity with a Doctor of Philosophy degree. Tim got his parchment at the University of Dublin. But the big money in pro wrestling proved too powerful a lure.

Can you imagine "The Beast", "Gorgeous George", Man Mountain Dean, or Hank the Hillbilly explaining the situation this way:

"My thinking was academically sound — but financially weak. I still find Freud, Jung and Adler fine subjects for conversation. Provided, of course, I can find someone capable of discussing them with me."

"So," breathed his great-unk, "and that's what the spalpeen was doin' in Dublin learnin' all them high-dingled worruds. Well, I warn him there's no Frouds, Junks or Addlates Killarney-way — and he'll have to learn the Irish again if he wants a welcome back to the ould sod."

Illinois OK's Terrell

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois Athletic Commission Thursday renewed the boxing licence of Ernie Terrell, World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, clearing the way for a possible Chicago title match between Terrell and champion Cassius Clay.

Terrell, under oath, asserted he was serving as his own manager.

The New York State Athletic Commission last Friday denied Terrell a licence to box in New York, saying the denial was based on business connections tween Terrell and Bernie lickman, admittedly previously associated with underworld figures in boxing.

Although Glickman, a former fight manager, was in Terrell's corner in his Toronto victory over George Chuvalo last year, the 6-foot-6-inch Chicago boxer said Glickman had no strings on him as a fighter.

Talk of a possible March 29 Clay - Terrell bout in Chicago grew with indication that the Clay camp would be interested if the Illinois commission was satisfied Terrell had severed all ties with Glickman.

Alex Delvecchio scored his 300th National Hockey League goal Thursday night as Detroit Red Wings moved into a league-leading tie with a 4-2 victory over Boston Bruins.

He was assisted on the goal by Gordie Howe, who also scored his 20th goal of the season—chaperoned by a cordon of police officers following a threat on his life.

ALEX DELVECCHIO

In Montreal, Jean Beliveau scored a goal with less than six minutes to play to give Canadiens a 5-4 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs which left the Montreal squad with 53 points, just one behind Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit.

Howe, who received a threatening letter, has scored 20 goals or more for 17 consecutive seasons.

Detroit's win also means the team has beaten Boston 13 straight times, stretching back to last season, and has outscored Boston 44 to 16 in nine games.

Three Detroit goals in the first period—by Howe, Bruce MacGregor and Delvecchio — resulted from Boston's inability to get the puck out of its own territory.

In Montreal, Beliveau's pair of goals were his 16th and 17th of the season and the 374th and 375th of his NHL career, just four short of equalling the all-time mark of 379 set by Ted Lindsay of Detroit.

Other Montreal scorers were Bobby Rousseau with his 18th of the season, Claude Provost with his 11th and Henri Richard with his 17th.

Toronto marksmen were Eddie Shack with his 18th of the year, Frank Mahovlich with his 19th, Ron Ellis with his eighth and Dave Keon with his 15th.

Assisting on both of Beliveau's goals were Gilles Tremblay and defenceman Noel Price.

JEAN BELIVEAU

Price, called up by Montreal at 11 a.m. Thursday from Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League, was playing his first NHL game in four years.

"He was the best defenceman on the ice," said coach Toe Blake, who called on him to fill the vacancy created by Jean-Guy Talbot, out with a back injury.

Price played for Detroit in 1961-62. He spent three years at Baltimore of the AHL before coming to Quebec last year.

In NHL action Saturday, Detroit will be at Montreal, Chicago at Toronto and New York at Boston. Montreal will play at New York Sunday, Toronto Chicago and Boston at Detroit.

Howe Threatened

"If They Don't Get You...!"

BOSTON (AP)—The authorities seemed more disturbed than Gordie Howe Thursday night that the super-star of Detroit Red Wings had received a threatening letter.

Howe, given a police escort while he was in the city for Thursday night's game with Boston Bruins, didn't let it affect his play as he scored his 20th goal of the year and assisted linemate Alex Delvecchio on the Detroit captain's 300th National Hockey League goal.

Police ringed the stadium to be sure that nothing more than a few chiding remarks were thrown at Howe and that no unauthorized individual approached him.

Except for a brief display of temper which netted Howe a high - sticking penalty, there were no incidents.

Detroit won the game 4-2 and climbed into a tie with the idle Chicago Black Hawks for the National Hockey League lead.

Boston Police Capt. Peter J. Donovan headed the police detail keeping watch on the 37-year-old Howe. He said he was sent a copy of the anonymous letter Howe received at Detroit two or three weeks ago by the FBI.

MAILED FROM BROOKLYN

Donovan said the writer identified himself as a six-foot-four Negro weighing 240 pounds and that the letter was mailed from Brooklyn.

Howe was irritated at the publicity.

"Now my wife will be worried," he complained. "And once the story is out, then you get a lot of these things."

GORDIE HOWE

Donovan said the letter used obscene language.

A spokesman for the Red Wings said Howe turned the letter over to manager-coach Sid Abel, who forwarded it to league president Clarence Campbell. Campbell sent it to the FBI.

The writer threatened to throw paper clips on the ice, a move which causes skaters to stumble and has resulted in serious injury to many players in the past.

The letter also said:

"If the players don't get you, I will."

Howe also was watched by police when Detroit made a visit to New York's Madison Square Garden last week.

Blues Whip Waterloo

WATERLOO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues defeated University of Waterloo Warriors 8-4 Thursday night to take over second place in the Ontario - Quebec Athletic Association Hockey League.

The victory gave Toronto 18 points, one more than Waterloo and three behind league - leading University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Gord Cunningham sparked the Toronto attack with three goals. Paul Laurent added two goals for the Blues with Steve Monteith, Hank Monteith and Bob McClelland each scoring one.

Terry Cooke, Bob Murdoch, Don Mervyn and Stan Sharman scored for the Warriors.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings scored a goal and an assist against Boston Bruins Thursday night to tighten his grip on fourth place in the National Hockey League individual scoring race with 50 points.

Bobby Rousseau of Montreal Canadiens also scored a goal and an assist and moved up to 48 points, breaking his fifth-place tie with Detroit's Alex Delvecchio who dropped into sixth place with 47 points.

Chicago's Bobby Hull, idle Thursday night, retained first place with 70 points while his teammate Stan Mikita is second with 54. Detroit's Norm Ullman scored an assist Thursday to bring his total to 53 in third spot.

Montreal's Henri Richard and Jean Beliveau are tied for seventh with 45 apiece. Beliveau scored a pair of goals and an assist to catch up with Richard, who scored a goal and an assist.

The leaders:

Play Cobourg Tonight

Juniors To Be Honored

A couple of Belleville Rollins Construction players will receive recognition for past achievements at tonight's OHA Eastern Junior "B" tilt here against the Cobourg Cougars.

The presentations of the Bobby Hull Trophy and the Bill Cook Memorial Trophy, for the 1964-65 season, will be made between periods.

The Hull trophy, donated in memory of Bill Foster and Art Culloden, former junior players who were killed in a car accident a few years ago, goes to the Belleville junior player judged Most Valuable to the team.

The Cook Memorial Trophy in memory of the late Bill Cook, a long - time sponsor and suporter of junior hockey here, goes to the player on the club best combining sportsmanship and ability.

Names of the 1964-65 winners will be released at the time of presentation.

Meanwhile, the game itself is an important one for Rollins locked in a three - way fight with Peterborough and Trenton for the group's final two playoff positions.

Cobourg recently upset Peterborough 5-1 and with nothing to lose, will go all out to do the same to the locals tonight.

Belleville coach Gordie Bell hopes to have high - scoring forward Grant Hagerman back for either tonight's game or the game against Peterborough here Monday night. That one is scheduled for 8.15 and is a "must" game for both clubs.

Elsewhere tonight, Peterborough visits Trenton and Kingston goes to Oshawa. The Belleville and Trenton games start at 9.00 p.m.

Burka, Knight Feature Skate Card

Defend Titles

By JACK BRAUCKMANN

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) New events and old faces will feature the 1966 Canadian figure skating championships which open here Saturday.

Petra Burka, 19, of Toronto, last year's world champion women's skater, will defend the Canadian senior title she has held for two years and Donald Knight of Dundas, Ont., will try to retain the Canadian men's title.

PETRA BURKA

Four new events will be staged this year. The recently established novice category will have entrants in pair skating and ice dancing, women's and men's singles.

Senior events—pairs, dancing and singles—will be held Saturday and Sunday to enable the Canadian Figure Skating Association to meet a deadline for submitting this country's list of competitors in the world championships to be held later this month in Davos, Switzerland.

Novice and junior events will be held Feb. 10-12 after a three-day break in the championships schedule.

Miss Burka's main competition in this year's Canadian championship is expected to come from last year's second-place finisher, Valerie Jones, 17, of Toronto.

Canada is alloted three women competitors in this year's world title chase—Miss Burka and two others. Miss Burka automatically qualifies because of her world win last year.

Roberta Laurent of Toronto finished third in the 1965 Canadian championships. She could get stiff competition this year from Vancouver's Lindsay Cowan, who finished fifth in the Canadian event in 1965, her first year in senior ranks.

Also in the running are Shirley Robson of Edmonton, a former Canadian junior champion; Lise Gauthier of Verdun, Que., and Raymonde Corbo of Lachine, Que., all of whom trailed the leaders in last year's championships.

A dark horse is 13-year-old Karen Magnussen of Vancouver, Canadian junior champion last year.

Reigning men's champion, Donald Knight, will have to face another challenge from Dr. Charles Snelling of Toronto, who held the Canadian title five consecutive years before retiring in 1958. He laced on his skates again, after completing his medical degree, and regained the title in 1964 only to be edged by Knight last year.

Snelling, 29, was the centre of a controversy when the CFSA by-passed him and selected Jay Humphry of Vancouver, the third-place finisher, to represent Canada in the 1965 world championships. Humphry, 17, is given an outside chance to push by Snelling and Knight.

Also entered are Steve Hutchinson of Vancouver, the 1965 junior champion, and Toller Cranston of Lachine.

The pairs skating event is wide open despite the presence of the 1965 champions, Susan and Paul Huehnergard of Toronto. Strong opposition is expected from two other brother-sister teams—Alexis and Chris Shields of Toronto, second last year, and Betty and John McKilligan of Vancouver, 1963 junior champions.

The McKilligans are coached by Mrs. Barbara Grogan of Burlingame, Calif., who as Barbara Wagner teamed up with Robert Paul to win world and Olympic pairs titles for Canada.

In dancing, Carol Forrest and Kevin Lethbridge of Toronto are heavy favorites to retain the title they captured last year.

Second place—and a spot on Canada's world team—should be hotly contested by Wayne Palmer and Gail Snyder of Toronto, Joni Graham and Don Phillips of Vancouver and Judy Henderson and John Bailey of Toronto.

Given a slight chance at placing are Dale Newmarch and Bryce Swetnam of Vancouver.

So Let's Move To Europe!

CALGARY (CP) — Nancy Greene, top Canadian woman skier, says members of European national ski teams have "got it made."

Miss Greene of Rossland, B.C., in Calgary after competing with the Canadian ski team in European competition, said in an interview that if a skier is among the top 10 men or women on a European ski team, he or she can retire in comfort.

In Europe skiing is a full-time occupation for team members who are supported by governments, she said.

Also, skiing is more commercialized in Europe. European competitors sign up with ski equipment manufacturing companies and advertise their products.

They are paid salaries by these companies and supplied with equipment, she said.

She favored the Canadian system "because we can use the equipment of our choice and we are getting skiing experience and a university education simultaneously."

Olympics Controversy

They Could Raise Sea-Level

NEW YORK (AP)—The next Summer Olympic Games are still more than two years away, but already they are the focal point of a lively controversy.

At issue: Altitude.

Mexico City, 7,349 feet above sea level, will be the site of the 1968 Olympics. The apprehension is over the effect of that unusual height on athletes and performances.

Britain has fired the biggest salvo so far.

Its International Athletes Club condemned Mexico City as an Olympic site because of the altitude and demanded all track events longer than 800 metres be raced elsewhere.

The British Olympic Association toned down the controversy by saying it understood the international Olympic committee's position that there would be no change in location for any events in the 1968 games.

However, the British group urged the committee to "take steps limiting the time spent in training camps at high altitude, including Mexico City, to ensure that as far as possible, all countries shall compete on an equal basis."

The British recommended four weeks training for competitors in most endurance events, slightly longer for extended endurance events, and three weeks for events like the sprints.

Several studies have been made of Mexico City's 1½-mile altitude and its effects on athletes. Last October a little Olympics was staged to give non - Mexican competitors a chance to test the altitude. A total of 215 athletes from 16 nations and 200 from Mexico took part.

One result generally agreed upon is that Mexico City's thin air constitutes no danger to an athlete.

It also is evident that the decreased air resistance will help record-setting in shorter events, that the atmosphere isn't likely to affect athletes in a broad range of events, and that in events requiring endurance an athlete is going to be troubled by the lack of oxygen.

When it made its bid for the 1968 Olympics, Mexico City said the acclimitization period was 7? hours—and it sticks to that time.

Moira Grabs Two Wins

By JACKIE THOMPSON

Moira S. S. girls basketball teams won two games from P.E.H.S. in Picton last night, the seniors winning 45-12 and the juniors taking a close 25-21 victory.

In the junior game, Picton took an early lead but Moira rallied to tie the score at 14-14 by half time. In the second half Moira outscored Picton 11 to 7 and took the victory with the slim 4-point lead.

In general the game was a quick-paced affair especially in the fourth quarter when Moira had to fight hard to keep their lead

Top scorers for Moira were Debby Platt with 9 and Sue McColl with 8. Heather McNally led the losers with 10 points

The senior game was dominated by Moira throughout and at half time the score was Moira 26 Picton 11. In the final two quarters Moira went on to score 19 points to Picton's 1.

Both teams had difficulty in controlling the ball and the play was quite sloppy at times.

The top scorers for Moira Joan McConnell with 23 points and Jackie Thompson and Lynne Neill with 9 apiece. Mary Clarke led Picton with 6 points.

This was the last scheduled game for Moira and the seniors finished with only one loss to the Quinte team. The juniors won all but two of their regular games.

SENIOR GAME

Moira: J. McConnell 23, J. Thompson 9, L. Neill 9, W. Wood 4, L. Beals, L. Dohoo, K. Hatfield, T. Meades, J. Lovering, P. Thomson.

First Defeat

Moira Seniors Nip BCI

By DAVID TEMPLER

Moira Secondary visited BCI last night and stole a victory from the previously undefeated Collegian team in the senior COSSA basketball tilt. The score was 43-41. BCI took the junior and bantam matches 45-28 and 59-12 respectively.

Moira's Trojans outplayed the senior Collegians at both ends of the court. Bob Watson led his team offensively and defensively with an outstanding effort. The deft quickness of his checking completely disorganized the majority of BCI's offensive thrusts. His exceptional fakes and the accuracy of his shooting left the Collegian defence baffled.

The rebounding of Mark Sheridan and the playmaking of Dave McLean explained Moira's preminence in ball-control.

For BCI, Ron Walsh played well. The high scorers were: for Moira: Watson 18, Sheridan 11, McClean 5; for BCI: Walsh 18, Lornie and MacFarland 5.

In the Junior game, John Chalmers led the scoring with 23 points. Chalmers, together with Drumm, forcefully discouraged any competition for the rebounds of the few shots they allowed their opposition. Ray Thibeau and McCreary moved the ball very well. The Collegian high scorers were: Chalmers 23, Thibeau 7, and McCreary 6.

For Moira, Curzon got 8 and Hayman and Swan hooped 6 apiece.

David Cass, 17 points, Larmo Heyduck 12 points, and Jim Fell, 10 points, led BCI's bantams to their 59-12 victory.

Oilers Tie Memphis

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tulsa Oilers scored two goals for themselves and one for Memphis Wings Thursday night and then had to settle for a 2-2 tie in a Central Professional Hockey League game.

MOSS SIGNS

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) Perry Moss signed a contract Thursday to coach the Continental Football League's Charleston Rockets for another two years.

Hamilton Dumps Habs

Petes Nip Black Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Andre Lacroix, leading scorer in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, moved Peterborough Petes three points ahead of the rest of the pack while Hamilton Red Wings regained sole possession of fourth place in a pair of games Thursday night.

Lacroix scored with 56 seconds left to climax a three-goal third period that carried the Petes to a 4-3 win over St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Hamilton dumped Montreal Junior Canadiens into fifth spot by downing them 6-2.

Danny Grant, Paul Curtis and Mickey Redmond also scored for the Petes while St. Catharines goals went to Jean Paul Lablanc, Doug Shelton and Ken Laidlaw.

St. Catharines goalie Larry Holmes suffered a concussion mid-way through the second period when his head was sandwiched between Peterborough's Guy Dufour and Kerry Bond of St. Catharines. He was taken to hospital but was allowed to return home with his team.

The game was delayed 25 minutes and Peter McDuff finally filled in for the Hawks.

The Red Wings, who broke a fourth-place tie with the Habs, got goals from Nick Libbett, with a pair, Ed Hatoum, Fred Speck, Sandy Snow and Brian Gibbons. Jacques Lemaire and Bernard Gagnon scored for Montreal.

Quinte Hockey League Results

Grant's Realty whipped Stinson-Horlock Combines 7-1 while SACO and Ter-Haar Daubers tied 2-2 as the Quinte Hockey League completed its regular schedule last night.

Neither game had any bearing on the final standing. SACO finished in first place, Ter-Haar second, Grant's third with Stinson-Horlock fourth. Playoffs will commence next Thursday, likely with first vs. third and second vs. fourth, although this has yet to be confirmed by the league.

Grant's led 3-0 after one heat and 4-1 going into the third. Dennis Kerruish and Keith Osterhout scored two goals each with Bernie Boulter, Don Adams and Jack Boulter getting the others. Assists went to Bill Lattimer, Pete Delaney, Norm Boulter, Bob O'Hara, Adams and B. Boulter.

Don Bishop scored for the Combines, aided by Paul Stinson.

The winners took five of nine penalties while F. Polesky, of the losers, drew a misconduct and a game misconduct.

Ter-Haar fell behind to SACO 2-1 in the opening frame but scored a loner in the third to collect the split in points.

Jack Donovan scored the Daubers' equalizer. Ron Pointer notched the first with Hubert Pointer assisting.

For SACO, Don Forsythe and Gary Genereaux were the marksmen and each added an assist. Jack Gilby also had one helper.

Ter-Haar got three of four minor penalties and Frank Cris drew a misconduct.

Hope Desert Classic

Back-Fifty Pros Pace The Pack

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Led by Harold Kneece, the unheralded professionals of golf continued to dominate the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic as play resumed today.

But the 31-year-old Kneece and his friends in the front ranks still have 54 holes to play in this five-day, 90-hole tournament. And such fellows as Arnold Palmer, Bill Casper Jr. and Ken Venturi could make up a lot of ground in the three remaining rounds.

Kneece leads the field by four strokes with successive rounds of 68 for 136.

Tied at 140 as the third round began were Jack McGowan, R. H. Sikes and Jack Rule, 72-68. Palmer with 71-70, was tied at 141 with six other players.

Casper, the 1965 Hope winner, slipped to a 73 and was tied at 142, among others with Al Geiberger and Doug Sanders.

George Knudson of Toronto had a bad day, soaring to a 78 and a 36-hole total of 145. Jerry Magee of Toronto was a stroke behind, trailed by the two other Canadians in the field, Al Balding of Toronto at 151 and Stan Leonard of Vancouver, 158.

Department Issues Warning

By R. B. PAGE

TWEED — Each year following opening of the general hunting season, the Department of Lands and Forests receives numerous inquiries and requests to have birds mounted. Usually the person advises that he has found the bird already dead in a marsh, creek or along a roadside. The birds generally consist of ospreys, owls and many other birds native to Ontario at the time.

The department would like to emphasize for public interest that all birds in Ontario except crows, cowbirds, blackbirds, starlings and house-sparrows are protected under the combined laws of the Migratory Birds Convention Act and the Game and Fish Act. Therefore any person who takes protected birds by hunting them or has such birds in his possession without lawful excuse will be dealt with according to the provisions of the above mentioned laws.

It might be well to mention, too, that the above laws will apply to most wild animals of Ontario. It also applies to the keeping of wild game in captivity by anone, except where a licence has been issued to do so.

Game means all animals and birds protected in the Province of Ontario.

Quebec Bonspiel

Montreal Rink Brilliant

QUEBEC (CP)—If Carl Ott's Montreal Outremont rink keeps rolling along at its current pace, it might need a truck to transport the silverware home after the annual Quebec international bonspiel ends Saturday.

Moving into today's play, the skip from the Montreal suburb finds himself in a position to make a grand slam of the top three awards of this 14-storey trophy bonspiel.

In Thursday's action, Ott extended his record to an unmatched 7-0 figure, with a possible four games remaining, and is leading contender for the Grand Aggregate Award—presented annually to the rink emerging from the bonspiel with the best won - lost record.

Ott's foursome also advanced to the final round of the section A competition by knocking off his closest competitor—Dr. Bill Hambley of Hamilton Thistles — 16-8 in the semi-final round.

Earlier, the Outremont rink advanced in the Lieutenant Governor's Trophy play with a 12-8 win over Don Middleton's RCAF Chatham, N.B., quartet.

Burlington, Ont., which has five rinks entered, had one of its skips remain in contention when Ernie Dennison's rink moved ahead by virtue of his 7-6 squeaker over Ulfe Blok-Andersen's Toronto Mississauga Crew.

Dennison is a dark horse for top honors as he now sports a 6-1 record with a possible four games remaining to play.

In other second round action, Jim Fraser of St. Catharines beat Quebec Gambrai's Guy Germain in a close one, 7-6, while Joe Verbanek of Baie Comeau, Que., downed Harold Frye's St. Thomas rink 10-5.

In the section B semi-finals Neil Speicher's Royal Canadian rink beat Oshawa's Bert White 10-2 to advance to the final round against Middleton's rink.

February 19th-20th

Never before has any ski competition in this country brought together so many outstanding skiers. Never before have so many Canadian ski fans had the opportunity of seeing international stars—from Austria, France, Germany, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Poland, Switzerland, the United States and Canada—race for the coveted du MAURIER Cup and Medals.

The du MAURIER International consists of two-part slalom and giant slalom events for men and women at Mount Norquay, Banff and Mont Ste-Anne, Quebec. Combined points at both locations will determine the winners. Events have been organized by the Canadian Amateur Ski Association and the meet is sanctioned by the Fédération Internationale de Ski (FIS). The sponsors: the makers of du MAURIER cigarettes.

Canada's first big international ski meet opens February 12th at world-renowned Mount Norquay, Banff. The following week the competition shifts to Mont Ste-Anne, near Quebec City. Canada's newest ski centre, Mont Ste-Anne has the only gondola lift in Eastern Canada, boasts 14 runs and has already received international rating.

On February 12th, ski history will be made in Canada by the du MAURIER International.

Crothers Runs In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—The Columbian mile could be the sleeper tonight in the Knights of Columbus Indoor Games at Madison Square Garden.

True, there's no Jim Grelle or Jim Ryun or Kipchoge Keino entered and Tom O'Hara isn't running this season.

But in the barrel-chester Josef Odlozil of Czechoslovakia and New Zealand's durable John Davies the meet offers two of the world's best.

Those two head a field of 20 Olympians in the meet.

Canada's Bill Crothers is among the standouts. The Markham, Ont., pharmacist who ranks among the world's most successful indoor competitors, returns to his favorite distance, the half-mile.

TOP GROUP WONDERS ABOUT STAYING POWER — Teen-age dancers gyrate to the sound of the Staccatos at a club in Aylmer, Que., just across the river from Ottawa. The boys are the only Canadian group with a record in the top five and are crowded with engagements. But the fickle taste of the teenager makes the future uncertain so they're saving to buy their own club. (CP Photo)

Ottawa's Four Staccatos Swingers With Short Hair

By ANN RUEBOTTOM

OTTAWA (CP)—"Of all the rock 'n' roll groups, we've got the shortest hair."

That's the playful reply of Vern Craig when asked what makes the Staccatos distinctive.

Not only that. Their dark, custom-tailored suits are so tasteful that you could bring the four Ottawa boys home to meet your parents with no fear at all. That is, if they had time between engagements at nightclubs, recording studios, television shows and tours.

The Staccatos have just released their first album. Current popularity polls here show they are the only Canadians with an album among the top five pop artists.

They feel this is something of a record since, as Vern says, "you can only go so far in Canada because Canadians don't look up to you unless you've made it somewhere else—look at Paul Anka, or Rich Little, or Lorne Greene."

But it's a risky business. As lead guitarist Les Emmerson says:

"Kids are fickle. It's hard to follow the trend of what kids are buying. You can't tell what they want. And there are so many groups, you have to make one good record or you'll get lost in the shuffle. Every year there's a new breed of teenager. You'll never be up there long."

What are the ingredients of their success?

Les gauges it to be "a combination of how good you are, how hard you work, and a lot of good luck."

Since the group was formed 1½ years ago and recorded "It Isn't Easy," they haven't looked back.

Their beginnings were humble. All four can remember having to borrow instruments at the start.

Vern Craig was a government clerk working eight hours a day and then playing rhythm guitar for five hours a night. He and tenor guitarist Brian Rady, also a government clerk, gave up their jobs for music.

GAMBLE PAYS OFF

With drummer Rick Bell and later Les Emmerson, they took the plunge.

"It was a big gamble," says Vern, "but I'm certainly not sorry."

At 25, he's the oldest member of the group. The others are all 21.

Les and Vern write most of the songs for the group.

The group also record at its own expense, then sells the master tape to a recording company. This is an unusual practice among musicians but it gives them more freedom to work at their own pace.

Another feature of the Staccatos is that they get along well together. "In other groups, they're always at each other's throats," says Les. Rick says with a wry grin, "We're well twisted."

Their long-term dream is to buy a club. To this end, they are saving and investing all they can.

Their heroes? The Beatles, naturally.

Louella and Hedda Ruled Journalistic Roost 20 Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was an oddment of fate that the two reigning queens of Hollywood journalism should have been removed from the local scene just two months apart.

Dec 1, ailing Louella Parsons, after conducting her column for 40 years, was confined to a rest home and supplanted by her long - time associate Dorothy Manners.

Feb. 1 came the death of Hedda Hopper.

For 20-odd years they had ruled the film colony on separate thrones, each despotic yet curiously benevolent.

Mrs. Parsons (for that was the name of her first husband) imposed her will with a smiling face and iron hand, ever ready to punish those who did not deal her exclusive stories.

Mrs. Hopper (the name of her only husband) didn't smile when she lacerated her enemies. They were many, since she opposed those who indulged in liberal politics.

Both conducted fierce defences of Hollywood's reputation and were quick to chastise any who transgressed the moral code. Both were castigated for mother-hen provincialism and ridiculed for misuse of the language. Yet they added to the color of a glamorous age which is nearly at an end.

Who shall replace them?

Probably no one. Their successors are pretenders to thrones that no longer exist. Gone are the days when Hollywood was a tight little town that ruled the entertainment world, and hence could be ruled by lady columnists.

What Ever Happened To Old-fashioned Diary?

By JACK HUTTON

Say, whatever happened to the good, old-fashioned diary?

Before it's too late, someone should attempt a survey to learn whether television, increasing homework, more community activities and other pressures are killing this time-honored hobby.

Diaries — I'm talking about well-written, personal, chatty ones — only came into fashion with the beginning of the 17th Century. Just 350 years ago.

Possibly the finest and most touching diary of all time was written just 22 years ago by a 15-year-old Jewish grl, Anne Frank. Do you remember how she started it?

"Dear Kitty (the diary was 'Kitty,' an imaginary friend): There is a saying that 'paper is more patient than man' . . . I don't intend to show this cardboard - covered notebook, bearing the proud name of 'diary' to anyone . . ."

Does anyone feel that way anymore about a small book that contains one's most private impressions, the daily humor of the family, one's hopes and worries? Or does anyone have time?

There is probably no better way of developing habits of written expression. Psychologists say it's also a healthy way of releasing tensions that might blow up in a different way.

KIDS DIARY

Everyone kids their diary a little. No one expects you to be completely honest in a book that no one else is expected to ever see. It's entirely in the rules to brag a little. So go ahead.

If diaries are going out of fashion it's a crying shame. Maybe it would be useful to look back at their place in history — an extremely important place.

In early Roman days a slave was often attached to the emperor's court for the specific purpose of keeping his master's diary. It was a day book known as the "commentarii."

Admittedly, a lot of the entries were intended to glorify the master. But they still form the basis of histories written centuries later. And several prominent men — Caesar and Cicero are only two — who kept their own diaries.

We have to jump to the 17th Century, however, to stumble across the diaries that history calls its most famous (until Anne Frank, that is).

The English, for some reason, were the champion diary-writers of that age. One century later the French jumped in with their typical national flair, turning out diaries that exceeded their channel neighbors in wit and self-revealing confessions.

FAMOUS DIARIES

Someday you must read, perhaps not in entirety, two of England's most famous diaries: the diary which Samuel Pepys wrote between 1660 and 1669; and Journey to Stella, written by Jonathan Swift between 1710 and 1713.

But our diaries aren't going to be in that class. All we want is a document over which we can chuckle years from now, remembering old friendships, wondering why some problems loomed so large at the time?

There are rules of diary-writing that have remained sacred over the centuries. They're just as true today.

1. It doesn't matter what your diary looks like. It may be a lined scrapbook. It may be one of the expensive leather-covered jobs with a lock. It may be a pocket-size notebook. You're not out to impress anyone.

2. Once started, you must find a regular time slot for your diary. It may be only five minutes out of each evening, but keep it up. After one month you will find you can't break the habit.

3. It sounds obvious, but use a pen. Pencil seems fine at the time, but it is almost completely illegible at the time you most want to read it — years later.

4. Don't be too self-critical. Every diary-writer begins thinking he has nothing important to say, but that's nonsense. It's the small details you'll want to remember later.

5. Don't wait until you have something important to record. Start tonight.

Astrological Forecasts

For February 5

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Full Moon position stresses responsibility toward children. Creative efforts succeed if you fulfill commitments. Be analytical — and patient. Evening favors romance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Lunar position accents security, community relations. Check with authorities. Build on solid base. Key is being thorough, aware. Family member figures prominently.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Key is being versatile. Don't put all eggs in one basket. People make promises . . . few have authority to act. Know this — be "creatively sceptical."

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Money, income, possessions — all are spotlighted by Full Moon position. Before you advance. . . family agreement is necessary. Act on knowledge acquired in recent past.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Full Moon in your sign points up tensions, contradictions. Welcome challenges, opposing viewpoints. Avoid wishful thinking. Be realistic. Then you make progress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You are called upon to make certain concessions. Better to do so now while your position is strong. No need to be obstinate. Many admire you . . . also express their admiration.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Full Moon position spotlights wishes, long-range aspirations. Be willing to break link with past, if necessary. Look to future. You can make a new, valuable contact.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Take steps which promote self-confidence. Good time to display abilities. Be direct, even forceful. Talkative associate may repeat rumor. Base actions on facts, not emotional reaction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Communication could spark short journey. Day is active. Much fun indicated if you don't lose sense of humor. Romantic affairs create minor difficulties.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Dig deep for valid information. Check legal documents. Be sure you obtain what's coming to you . . . be practical. Do not fall for 'sob story." If firm, you succeed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Tear down outmoded methods. Build in streamlined fashion. Sum up goals . . . outline aspirations. Choose shortest course. Have confidence in personal ability.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Improve relations with co-workers. Fine for company get-together. Frank discussion clears air. Avoid unnecessary controversy. Adhere to principles of Golden Rule.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you possess magnetic personality, have insatiable curiosity — would make fine researcher, teacher or reporter.

• • •

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Full Moon position encourages news-making changes, wide speculation, exciting statements from world leaders.

VACATION LARK TURNS INTO JAIL SENTENCE — Monique Bisson, left, and her sister, Susane are shown in court in Miami where they were sentenced to 120 days in jail. They were arrested Tuesday after they danced on a rooftop, shot blank caps and threw cherry bombs into a crowd of gaping spectators. Their attorney filed for a new trial and the vacationing Canadians meet the judge again Monday. (AP Wirephoto)

Marmora

MARMORA — Colonel Angus Duffy co-ordinator of emergency Measures Organization for the Quinte area, addressed the ladies of the I.O.D.E. at their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Eugene Brady.

Introduced by Mr. Thomas Brady, Communication Officer for Marmora, Colonel Duffy said small wars in the world today could develop into a world nuclear war and for this reason the governments are taking steps to educate the people in emergency measures. He distributed booklets on 11 steps to survival prepared by the Federal Government, but there must be a system and people must be trained.

An emergency committee have to take a short course to learn the basic knowledge on what one would have to do.

He suggested that the I.O.D.E. could take on the job of registration enquiry.

Col. Duffy was thanked by Mrs. Charles Brady.

In the meeting which followed conducted by the Regent Mrs. J. G. Meiklejohn, Mrs. John Reynolds agreed to convene the March of Dimes, collection for crippled children on January 31st, Mrs. Alice Stark will be an assistant.

Mrs. Gordon Bennett was welcomed as a new member and membership now stands at 28. Members decided to purchase 50 I.O.D.E. Centennial Calendars for 1967.

Mrs. Mel Borland, convener of Service at Home and Abroad, gave a report on the work done in 1965 by the Chapter.

Nominating committee for the annual election of officers will be Mrs. John Reynolds, Mrs. Alice Stark and Miss Miriam Savage. An article from Echoes Magazine, "What Does This I.O.D.E. Do?", was read by Mrs. Eugene Brady.

Mrs. Bennett urged members to attend the series of educational lectures being given at Marmora High School and in view of the next lecture being on February 10th, date for the I.O.D.E. meeting was changed to February 15th.

Instructor And Examiner Plead Guilty

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial transport department driving examiner and a driving school instructor pleaded guilty Thursday to charges of accepting bribes and conspiracy in issuing driving permits.

The examiner, Raymond English, 36, of nearby Port Credit pleaded guilty to two charges of conspiracy to obtain licences for persons who had not taken a driving test and five charges of breach of trust in accepting bribes.

Joseph Neumann, 39, of Toronto, a licensed driving instructor, pleaded guilty to three charges of taking part in bribes and one charge of conspiracy.

Magistrate George Gardhouse remanded both to Feb. 10 for sentence. They were freed on personal bail.

Detective David Simser told the court Neumann had an arrangement with English to secure drivers' licences for immigrants unfamiliar with the English language without being required to take and pass the government driving test.

Wants Old County Jail Made Into a Museum

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Rotary Club this week heard J. A. C. Rogers speak on the historical preservation of Prince Edward County. Mr. Rogers, campaigning for a county museum restated that he believes the old county jail building in Picton could easily be made into a museum, when it is replaced by the new regional jail at Napanee. He told Rotarians, we need a museum. The old courthouse jail is a museum period, and would make a fine county museum. It could contain items of animal husbandry from pioneer days, tools and farm implements.

Grants would be available from the provincial government and would so free professional assistance from the Historical Branch of the Ontario Archives.

Mr. Rogers said that people who have collected things over the years have assured him that they would be willing to loan, donate and/or bequeath them to a museum for safekeeping. Mr. Rogers also stressed that Prince Edward County does not capitalize on the fact that it is "old U.E.L. country". This is a saleable commodity, he said. "But the preservation of history serves two purposes: it satisfies the professional historian and it educates the children; it allows them to relate the life of their own community to the larger life of their province or country".

He said, the province should be urged to erect five or six more plaques at historical sites in the county and perhaps the county could erect some of its own. The provincial plaques are named in Ontario road maps and other publications and help to attract tourists to the county. Mr. Rogers cited Napanee's one room museum as a credit to any municipality.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — A few from here attended the Stirling Agricultural Society's annual meeting held in the board room of the Ontario Agriculture Office in Stirling last Saturday afternoon.

Messrs. Forde Stapley and Clarence Fitchett attended the annual official board meeting for the Thomasburg charge held at Moira United Church on Monday night.

Mr. Ivan Reid who is attending a special dairy course at Kemptville Agricultural College, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reid.

Mrs. Warren Harlow, president of Eggleton United Church Women and Mrs. Maurice Clancy, literature secretary of the U.C.W. Belleville Presbyterial were among those who attended the annual meeting held at Bridge Street United Church in Belleville on Tuesday night and Wednesday.

Mr. Maurice Clancy was a guest at Belleville Lodge A.F. and A.M. No. 123 on secretarial night on Thursday night.

Everybody But Russians Sees Moon Pictures

British Receive Signals

From AP-Reuters

MOSCOW (CP) — Luna IX will complete its program of research on the surface of the moon with the transmission of material late today, Tass news agency announced.

In Manchester, England, Sir Bernard Lovell, head of the giant Jodrell Bank radio telescope station, said the early completion of the program might indicate something went wrong with the moon shot.

"One assumption could be that the solar cells were damaged on landing," he said.

The Russian public, meanwhile, still waited to see the spectacular television pictures of the moonscape taken by the probe's cameras—unaware that pictures had already been printed in newspapers in other parts of the world.

For the first time Tass revealed the point where the probe made history by settling gently on the lunar surface in the moon's desolate Ocean of Storms on Thursday night. It is about 58 miles east of the big crater Cavalerious.

Tass said the next "radio session" of transmission from Luna IX will be at 11 a.m. EST today.

"This session will complete the fulfilment of the set program for lunar research by the automatic station Luna IX the announcement said.

Tass said luna IX transmitted pictures for 85 minutes Friday.

"The quality of the pictures received on earth is good," the announcement added.

RUSSIANS WAIT

Copies of some of the pictures have come into the Soviet Union from The Associated Press, which obtained them from the British radio observatory at Jodrell Bank. But only a handful of Russians have seen them so far.

Soviet space chiefs were expected to release some of the pictures today.

The Soviet military newspaper Krasnayazvezda (Red Star) disclosed that the spacecraft had landed slightly off target after its 3½-day flight but gave no further details.

Luna IX's radio began transmitting photographs of the rockstrewn landscape after the unmanned spacecraft made history's first soft landing on he moon Thursday night.

Britain's Jodrell Bank radio-astronomy observatory intercepted the signals, fed them through a newspaper's wirephoto equipment and converted the dots of light and shade into

NDP Leader Sceptical

Doctors' Pay Would Rise by $12,000 If Medicare Cost Estimate Correct

TORONTO (CP)—The net income of Ontario doctors would increase overnight by $12,000 a year if the provincial government's estimate of the per-capita cost of state-sponsored medical care is correct, the legislature was told Friday.

Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, said that if the government's $40 per-capita estimated cost is correct then $260,000,000 would be required to insure Ontario's 6,500,000 people in a year.

The NDP leader said that since there are 5,500 doctors in the province this would work out to a net income of $31,500 for each doctor. Latest income tax statistics indicate that average net income for Ontario doctors is $19,000, he said.

Mr. MacDonald, speaking during the debate on proposed amendments to the Medical Care Insurance Act approved by the legislature last spring, spelled out a series of calculations and argued that, were Ontario to participate in a federal proposal for universal medical care coverage, premiums could be set at $20 for a single person, $40 for a couple and $50 per family.

The government proposes premiums of $150 for families, $120 for couples and $60 for individuals.

"By going into the federal (medical care insurance) plan the province of Ontario could provide coverage, financed wholly on premiums, for everybody in the province at less than they propose to charge the subsidized groups," Mr. MacDonald said.

Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson called for the resignation of Health Minister Matthew Dymond and the scrapping of the Conservative government's new medical care legislation.

Mr. Thompson said the health minister should quit because he has not been able to tell the legislature just what Ontario's views are on the federal government's proposed nation - wide universal medical care plan.

Mr. Thompson also demanded that Premier Robarts table in the legislature what he said was the report of a secret study carried out by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission dealing with combining hospital insurance with medical insurance. OHSC advised the government it would be feasible to do so, he said.

Healing Of Split Is Urged

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Friday if the Rhodesian rebellion is settled by economic sanctions alone, a division will occur that will take years to heal.

He suggested in the Commons that Canada send a representative to Rhodesia to heal the split between the African country and the United Kingdom.

Mr. Diefenbaker said this should be done before the trade embargo on Rhodesia begins to take its toll, possibly in July.

"Why wait until then?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked. "Why should not Canada send a representative to Rhodesia to do its part to heal the wounds?"

The question came during the debate on external affairs estimates, expected to be completed Monday.

The debate began Thursday and has featured a broad range of viewpoints on Rhodesia and Viet Nam.

Conservative speakers have suggested Canada's economic sanctions against Rhodesia are illegal.

Scatter Mums Over Sea

TOKYO (CP)—Grieving relatives scattered chrysanthemum blossoms today on Tokyo Bay where a Japanese airlines Boeing 727 jet crashed Friday with 133 persons aboard, three minutes away from a safe landing.

The flowers — chrysanthemums are traditionally used by the Japanese in times of mourning—were dropped by relatives who were taken in a small coastal freighter to the site of what appears to be the worst single plane disaster in history.

The All-Nippon Airways Boeing 727, with 126 passengers and seven crew members aboard, slammed into the choppy Tokyo Harbor as it banked toward its final approach.

The plane was crowded with Japanese returning from the annual snow festival on Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island. Most were carrying gaily wrapped souvenirs from family and friends.

Some 18 hours after the crash, nearly 100 bodies were still missing. Although it appeared almost certain no survivors would be found, airline officials declined to say all were dead.

Trucks May Soon Be Back on Roads As Negotiations Ready to Be Resumed

WINDSOI Ont. (CP)—Southern Ontario trucking industry may be bac on the road in a few days if e optimism felt by some ne iators is justified.

As the parti prepared to return to the gaining table here today in e ts to end the two-week old s e by the independent Team rs Union against 55 truckin rms, a senior Teamster ne iator said the strike may be r by Sunday.

Wilfred J. Sefton, sident of Teamsters Local 88 re, said at the break-up of th st day's meetings Friday that "there is an air of imism that hasn't been app t before and, with luck, we may have it all settled by Sunday."

Friday's day - long meetings between the union and the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau—representing the 55 firms—were the first bargaining meetings since the strike began Jan. 20.

At that time, one company was struck and the bureau shut down the other companies, involving trucking concerns here, in London, Hamilton, Toronto and Kingston.

Mr. Sefton said the only blocks to settlement now likely would be pay scales and hours of work. Everything else was "falling into place."

"The only reason we have so many points to discuss is that we haven't met head-on like this before." Mr. Sefton earlier had said that there were up to 40 points to be considered in the discussions.

Thursday night, the union representatives met with International Teamsters President James Hoffa in Detroit. They reported afterwards they had "100 per cent backing by Mr. Hoffa and the international union."

The dispute began when the union, representing more than 10,000 truck drivers, warehouse workers and mechanics in the province, rejected a contract suggested by a conciliation board. It offered a 3½-year contract with pay increases up to 56 cents an hour for a 48 hour week. The work week would be reduced over the life of the contract to 43 hours, but the union has demanded an eventual 40 hour week.

Among its other demands are tighter restrictions on non-union drivers and that the bureau drop law suits totalling $2,000,000 against the union as a result of a series of wildcat walkouts last fall.

While negotiations took place here Friday, picket lines were set up at all company plants in southeastern Ontario, except in Kingston and Peterborough.

In Sault Ste. Marie, Merv Matheson, owner of Motorways (Ontario) Ltd., said Friday he had dismissed 10 employees from his trucking firm because they picket his plant and refused to work.

The union members there claimed they were attached to the southern conference of Teamsters at present involved in the dispute, not the northern group as Mr. Matheson had understood.

Johnson To Meet Viet Nam Leaders In Honolulu

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson will fly to Honolulu today for a complete review of the Viet Nam conflict by top United States and South Vietnamese military and political leaders.

The conference, scheduled to last three days, will cover military and non-military aspects of the war with special emphasis on economic and social programs for the civilian population.

The president announced his travel plans Friday at a press conference hastily called after the Senate foreign relations committee began debate on Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

Many committee members have criticized the president's policies, particularly his decision to resume bombing of North Viet Nam.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, who is going to Honolulu, refused Thursday to testify in a public hearing before the Senate committee. The hearings are being televised.

Another scheduled witness, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, now a special adviser to the president, also will be in Honolulu.

MEET VIET NAM CHIEFS

Attending the Honolulu conference wll be South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky; Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam; Gen. William Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet Nam, and Admiral Ulysses Sharpe, U.S. commander in the Pacific.

With Johnson will be State Secretary Dean Rusk, McNamara, Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, John Gardner, secretary of health, education and welfare, McGeorge Bundy, Johnson's special adviser on security problems, and Taylor, former U.S. ambassador in Saigon.

After the talks Freeman and Bundy will fly to South Viet Nam to assist in rural reconstruction programs.

In announcing the conference, Johnson spoke only in general terms but indicated he would lay heavy stress on the U.S. determination to continue to help South Viet Nam economically and socially once hostilities cease.

Ever since Johnson began his latest Viet Nam peace offensive shortly after Christmas, South Viet Nam has been wary of "unconditional discussions" because the Viet Cong guerrillas control large areas and have a strong military position.

Johnson said he did not expect any policy changes as a result of the meetings.

U.S. Will Send Wheat To India

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson has announced that the United States will send 3,000,000 tons of wheat and maize within the next three months as emergency help to India, where famine has led to growing food riots.

This action was announced at a press conference Friday after the president received a report that India's port facilities could handle up to 1,000,000 tons of grain a month.

The report was made by Clarence Eskildsen, an agriculture department official who surveyed India's food situation for Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman.

Another top - level mission to investigate India's long-range agricultural needs was to leave today, headed by Walter Farr Jr., south Asia and the Middle East administrator for the Agency for International Development.

President Johnson said he expects to meet soon with India's new prime minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, who is expected to come to the United States in March after a budget session of the Indian Parliament. No official date has been set.

Johnson said that this meeting would be aimed at "a further course of action and additional measures we can take to be helpful" to the people of India.

PLANS REGULAR AID

Officials said later the president was referring to the resumption of regular economic aid to India. This aid has been suspended since the Indian war last September with Pakistan over Kashmir.

The U.S. emergency shipments to India will consist of 2,000,000 tons of wheat that will cost about $160,000,000 and 1,000,000 tons of maize, worth between $5,000,000 and $50,000,000.

The president also announced that he intends to ask Congress to authorize him to make "a rather substantial increase" in food allotments to India in addition to the emergency supplies allotted Friday.

Although the president declined to say what measures he proposes to take to help India in the future, he said "you can be assured that America will do her part."

G. B. Hyde Said Slated For City Job

The appointment of ex-Mayor Gerald B. Hyde as city personnel officer and purchasing agent to fill the position left vacant by the resignation of A. L. Jobey, is expected to be made at the next meeting of city council.

Confirmation of the appointment was not available from city officials today but Mr. Hyde told The Intelligencer he had been advised his application for the position had been accepted.

Mr. Hyde said he would be resigning his present position as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission.

Before assuming his new position early next month Mr. Hyde said he would close out the Front Street plumbing business which the family has operated for the past 48 years. Mr. Hyde has been in the business for 21 years.

U.S. Guidelines Are Opposed By George Hees

OTTAWA (CP) — George Hees (PC — Northumberland) said in the Commons Friday the government should deal with U.S. economic guidelines policy "like men and not minions with hat in hands and knees shaking."

Mr. Hees, trade minister in the former Conservative government and former president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, said he was sure the United States would recognize Canada's position if it were clearly put before U.S. leaders.

The restriction on U.S. subsidiaries purchasing abroad and encouragement for them to buy American goods is bound to cut buying in Canada and affect jobs for Canadians, Mr. Hees said as the Commons studied external - affairs spending estimates.

He said it would be too late to retaliate with Canadian guidelines once the American plans have done their damage.

White Cane Week

Incidence of Blindness Is Up Amongst Canadians

"We live in the age of vision" said Mrs J. T. Patterson, president of the Canadian Council of the Blind. "Today, more than at any time in history, working conditions demand good sight. We depend on our eyes for driving, for watching television and for reading, which libraries report increases each year."

Mrs Patterson was speaking in connection with the observance of White Cane Week, Feb. 6 to Feb. 12.

Because good sight is so essential to modern living, the CCB and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, who sponsor White Cane Week, are dedicating this year's program to sight preservation and prevention of blindness. There is good reason for their choice. In this day where vision is so necessary, blindness is on the increase. According to a three-year study recently released by CNIB, the ratio is 132 blind persons to 100,000 population as compared with 105 blind persons per 100,00 in 1946.

COULD BE PREVENTED

Doctors state that half the blindness in Canada could be prevented if people would seek eye care at the first sign of trouble. In addition, thousands suffer eye accidents needlessly each year. The Workmen's Compensation Boards of Canada report on-the-job injuries totalling between 300,00 and 400,00 every year. This record does not include farm, household or recreation accidents.

"Needless blindness and unnecessary eye injuries indicate that seeing Canadians should be more alert to the importance of their own sight," Mrs. Patterson, who is blind herself, emphasized. She declared that people give more thought to the care of their cars than to the care of their eyes. She gave a few suggestions for protecting your vision. See your eye doctor at the first sign of trouble. If he prescribes glasses, wear them. When watching television, keep the room lighted to avoid sharp contrast — it may cause strain. If you work in industry, protect your eyes by wearing safety glasses.

"These simple precautions are effective in sight protection," Mrs. Patterson pointed out. "Remember, they are your eyes — one pair for a lifetime."

Thurlow Phone Users Can Call Belleville Free

Belleville and Thurlow telephone customers will share free interchange calling starting Feb. 6.

Bell Canada local manager C. H. Buckley said the new calling arrangement will go into effect at the same time as Thurlow and Belleville subscribers begin using their new service codes for long distance, information and repair.

With the free calling arrangement between Belleville and Thurlow, all calls between the two communities will be treated as local calls and will be dialed in the same way as a call to a number in the same exchange.

"The addition of Belleville telephones to Thurlow's local calling area brings the number of telephones that can be reached free of long distance charges above the maximum allowed for in Thurlow's present rate group. This will necessitate a slight increase in the monthly rates for service in the Thurlow exchange", Mr. Buckley said.

For the more than 200 subscribers on the Thurlow exchange, the changeover will mean the end of the manually operated switchboard at Plainfield.

Over the past several months Bell has been replacing the old type "crank" telephone with new dial sets. The changeover to dial calling will be at midnight tonight.

The Thurlow "central" is one of the last manually operated switchboards in the Belleville area.

Bell has one other manual board at Bancroft, while just outside of the Belleville area there are several independent manual systems remaining.

Obituaries

ARTHUR F. MCKNIGHT
(Selby)

NAPANEE — Selby lost one of it's most highly respected citizens Thursday night, February 3, 1966 when Arthur F. McKnight died at his home after a short illness. He had been in failing health lately, but was active until a few hours before his death, when he had a stroke. He was in his 88th year.

Mr. McKnight was born in Forest Mils, the son of Hugh McKnight and the former Martha Barrager. He farmed with his father there until that farm was sold and one was purchased on Selby Street about 1905, and that has been his home ever since. Three years ago he retired from active farming, when his son George purchased the farm and since worked it.

He has been an active worker in everything connected with the community, and especially with the United Church there. He was an elder at the time of his death. At least 40 years ago he was one of the ones responsible for organizing the 3 C's Bible class, a class which still exists under that name.

He was a member of Union Lodge No. 9, A.F. & A.M..; of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, No. 86; of the Orange Order in Selby, 2281, and of the Black Preceptory in Forest Mills.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Sybil Trull; by his children, Miss Edra, at home; Mrs. Harry Amey (Elma) of Newburgh; George, of Selby; Mrs. Charles Gray (Muriel) of R. R. 1, Napanee; Mrs. Reginald Dawson (Vera) of Napanee; Mrs. Earl French (Inos) of R. R. 1 Napanee; Wallace, of R. R. 1 Bowmanville; Mrs. David Stevens (Jean) of Kingston; and Almon, of Selby; and by 20 grandchildren, and 12 great - grandchildren. He was the last surviving member of a family of six.

He is resting at the Wartman Funeral Home, Napanee, until Monady, when the funeral service will be held in the United Church in Selby, the Rev. Robert Willson officiating. A Masonic service will be held this Saturday, in the funeral home.

CHARLES FRANK O'NEAL

The funeral for Charles Frank O'Neal was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Friday afternoon. Rev. Paul Packman conducted the service in the chapel and the committal rites at Belleville Mausoleum where entombment was made.

The bearers were George and Jack Thomas, Allan Soble, Morley and Burt Bleekman and Myles Parrington.

ALBERT SHOENER
Detroit — Belleville

One-time resident of this city, but living in Detroit since 1923, Mr. Albert Shoener has died in that city.

Born in Belleville 67 years ago, Mr. Shoener was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Albert Shoener. From the time he went to Detroit until his retirement he had worked for the Ford Motor Company.

He is survived by one son, Albert of Detroit, several grandchildren and a brother Frank Shoener of Belleville.

Johnson

Johnson's course in Asia, commented that "it would be better if he went to the United Nations—that is the only place left for the settlement of this war."

Senator J William Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, declined comment, saying he had not enough information on what the conference was expected to do.

McNamara, explaining his refusal to testify before the committee, said:

"I do not believe I can discuss military objectives in open session."

Fulbright, a leader of congressional criticism of the administration's Viet Nam course, said he expects the committee to "work out something civilized—there's no war going on with the White House."

But Morse demanded: "Let's have it out with the secretary of defence." He indicated he would boycott any closed sessions and said "the people of the Pentagon and the state department have already led the people down the road toward government by secrecy."

Belleville Equipment 'Big Help' Says Mayor Shapiro of Oswego

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP)—Snowplows and men from Belleville joined with Oswego snow-fighting equipment and personnel Friday to battle mountainous snow drifts that have paralysed this Lake Ontario community.

"We put them to work when they got here," said Mayor Ralph Shapiro.

He said the Canadians, who arrived about midnight, worked steadily for six hours, rested for a few hours, and then resumed work.

"Most of the main streets are open and we're working on side-streets," said the mayor. "Our main problem is snow removal."

He said he hoped to lift during the weekend the state of emergency which has been in effect since the storm began nine days ago.

"We got a little scare Friday," he said. "Two inches of snow fell in an hour, but it wasn't enough to do any harm."

The Friday snowfall fell on a total of 104 inches which had come down in the previous eight days.

The men and equipment were volunteered by Mayor Jack Ellis of Belleville, across Lake Ontario from Oswego.

Sharpiro said the five Canadians and their four pieces of equipment were "a big help." He said he has turned down offers of assistance from other Canadian communities.

Kiwanians Ready to Assist In Centennial Year Projects

TRENTON — Speaking to the members of the Trenton Kiwanis Club Thursday night, ex-mayor Kenneth Couch told them that they were the only service club members in town, who had asked specifically "what can we do to assist Trenton's Centennial Project?" Mr. Couch heads up the committee, which will be responsible for the development of Stage One of the waterfront park, south of the community gardens.

Firstly, Mr. Couch urged the Kiwanians to assist their fellow member, Robert Carlton, in his job of planning various Centennial Year events for the town. Mr. Carlton was lately named to head up a committee for this purpose.

"Then," said Mr. Couch, "the club could take on arranging for massed band concerts, using such groups as the Trenton Citizens' Band, the RCAF bands, and bands from other neighboring communities. (In return for the "favor" of appearing in Trenton, the Trenton based bands could join in with area bands to present massed concerts in other communities."

Mr. Couch also suggested that the "Rondeaunettes", under the direction of William Long could stage a "1967" production. The Kiwanis Club has, in the past, sponsored several musical productions by the Rondeaunettes.

A gigantic New Year's party for the youth of the town to usher in 1967 was another project the club could work on, Mr. Couch suggested, adding, "I have noted with a great deal of respect for your club that you urge people to 'attend the church of your choice,' and I think this commendable idea could be expanded in 1967 by organizing special interdenominational church services."

In relation to both Centennial committees, Mr. Couch suggested the club members could supply such things as backstops, bleachers and lighting for the sports field in the waterfront park; assist in writing and editing a history of the town; arrange a pageant to portray the past 100 years in Trenton; assist in tree planting in the park and other parts of town and sponsor contests for home improvement for 1967.

Touching briefly on progress to date at the waterfront parksite, Mr. Couch said that since fall, approximately 20 acres of the land had been covered with topsoil and grass seed sown.

Clerk comptroller O. W. Larry, also a guest of the club, passed around plans for the proposed park, which include a large flower bed arranged to represent each of Canada's 10 provinces. Mr. Larry outlined projects the town had planned for 1966 and those set aside for completion before July 1, 1967.

Commerce Chamber Head To Ask Council Boost Grant

TRENTON — George Kempf, the president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, will present a revised 1966 budget to Trenton council Monday night and at the same time will ask the council to increase the 1965 grant of $3,000 to $5,000.

The new budget figures call for $6,200 for salaries. Chamber manager Nostrand Sprague will receive an increase in pay and will be able to hire part-time secretarial help out of the salary funds.

Office expenses call for $1,268 of the total estimates. Mortgage payments on the new chamber office will take $1,417.32 of the whole and other items include memberships in tourist regions and Ontario and Canadian Chamber memberships, manager's expenses at out-of-town meetings, mileage for the manager, insurance and advertising. Fifteen hundred dollars will be set aside for use by various chamber committees and $1,020 will be spent on office equipment, which includes a duplicator matchine and a new typewriter for the office.

The total budget figure is $13,194.52. The chamber proposes to raise $8,194.52 by trebling membership (which now stands at 130) and by stepping up activity of the building fund committee. Firms, businessmen and individuals will be asked to contribute towards retiring the mortgage on the new chamber office.

King Street Church Inducts Minister

TRENTON Rev. William E. McDowell was last night inducted as minister at King Street United Church. Mr. McDowell replaced Rev. J. T. Irwin, who left Trenton last fall to become the minister of a church in western Canada.

Rev. R. Reid Accepts Call To Hamilton

TRENTON — Rev. D. E. Minor, the pastor at Bethel Pentecostal Church in Rosemount, Montreal, will come to Trenton this spring to replace Rev. Ronald Reid at Bethel Temple. Mr. Reid recently accepted a call to Hamilton, from where he will help build a church at Aancaster, near that city. He will leave Trenton around the middle of this month.

TO GIVE RECITAL

TRENTON — Roy Cornish, the editor of the Trentonian will give an organ recital at the Wesleyan Methodist Church on Dixon Drive at 8.45 p.m. Sunday. Mr. Cornish will present a varied program of Bach chorales, special arrangements of familiar hymns and other selections designed to demonstrate the capabilities of the church's new Conn organ.

sharp pictures that then were relayed to much of the world.

Sir Bernard Lovell, Jodrell Bank director, said the pictures were "quite sensational." He indicated he was puzzled that Soviet officials released some information on them but did not publish the pictures themselves.

"I don't know the reason for that," he said, "but it is slightly strange in that they have taken the trouble to announce the frequency and transmitted on standard scanning lines."

Jodrell's huge, saucer-shaped radio telescope monitored three complete pictures in 45 minutes. The fourth was of poor quality.

ALRIGHT FOR LANDING

Lovell said the first few photographs "tend to confirm the view that the moon's surface is hard, sponge-like and of a pumice stone substance. It would be perfectly satisfactory, not only for the landing of men, but for heavy vehicles."

The scientist added that the dust on the moon's surface seemed to be only a few inches thick in the area photographed.

One photograph showed a swath of ground with clearly-detailed ridges, pockmarks and outcroppings.

In Tucson, Ariz., Dr. Gerard Kuiper, chief U.S. experimenter on moon shots, said it was good to hear the dust was not deep.

"We don't have to worry about this any more," he said, but added that the jagged lava-like surface was nothing like earth. "No one is going to walk very far on this."

Soviet scientists generally were cautious about predicting an early try for manned landing. But astrophysicist Nikolai Barabashov said manned flights were a possibility for the "near future."

Anatoly Blagonravov, a leader of the Russian space program, said Luna IX would help answer vital questions about radiation hazards, seismic activity and the moon's magnetic field and climate.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere and deep appreciation and thanks to all our neighbors, friends and relatives for cards, kind messages of comfort, floral tributes, donations and other acts of kindness expressed during our sad bereavement in the loss of a loving and devoted wife and sister, they will long be remembered. A special thanks to Archdeacon A. S. McConnell for his prayers and most comforting words. Also to the management and staff of the John R. Bush Funeral Home we extend our deep appreciation.
Mrs. A. Selden, F. T. "Frank" Codling, Helen, Clara and Ethel, niece and nephew, Alice and Bobby. The family of Frank Codling.

We wish to thank our friends, relatives and neighbors for cards, gifts and calling on us on the occasion of our 50th wedding anniversary. Special thanks to Rev. B. L. Farrell, Rev. J. J. O'Neil, to the ladies of the Royal Canadian Legion, who catered to the dinner, also to the ladies of the C.W.L. for serving afternoon tea. Thanks to all who helped make this a happy and memorable occasion for us.
Mr. and Mrs. Peter Whalen, Deseronto.

I wish to extend my thanks to my many relatives, friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness while I was a patient in Belleville General Hospital; also thanks to Rev. Southall, Dr. Hosein, Dr. Morphy and to the staff on second floor.
Freeman Howes.

IN MEMORIAM

REID — In loving memory of my dear brother, John Wallace Wesley Reid, who passed away Feb. 4, 1962.

We who loved you sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are ever near.
—Ever remembered by his loving brother Harry.

GIBSON — In loving memory of a dear father, Murney R. Gibson, who was called away suddenly, February 5, 1965.

We were not there dear Dad, to see you die,
To hold your hand or kiss goodbye,
But will remember our whole lives through,
The last words we had with you.
—Ever remembered by daughter Sue, son-in-law Monte and granddaughters Cindy and Sylvia.

GIBSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Murney R. Gibson, who passed away suddenly February 5th, 1965.

He didn't know when he left home,
He would no more return,
That he in death so soon would sleep,
And leave us here to mourn.
We do not know what pain he bore,
We did not see him die,
We only know he passed away,
And never said goodbye.
—Always remembered by wife Ferne, daughter Carolyn.

GIBSON — In loving memory of a dear brother Murney Robert Gibson, who was instantly killed on February 5th 1965.

One long, and, lonely year has passed
Since our great sorrow fell
The shock that we received that day
Will always with us dwell
He wished no one a last farewell
Nor even said goodbye
He had gone, before we knew
And, only God knows why
God gave us strength to fight it
And courage to bear the blow
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know
In Heaven that beautiful city
Where our Savior has gone to prepare
We hope when our journey has ended
We shall meet our loved one there —Ever remembered by brothers sisters and families.

MORGAN — In loving memory of of my dear son W. T. (Bill) Morgan who passed away February 5th, 1958.

Without farewell you fell asleep
Free from weary days of pain
Always a smile through all your troubles
Sleep on and rest.
—Always remembered by your Mother, Mrs. W. A. Morgan.

STAPLES — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Charles William Staples who passed away February 5th, 1960.

Six years have passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away.
God took him home, it was His will,
Within our hearts, he liveth still.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by his family.

RASHOTTE — In loving memory of my dear son Mitchell Rashotte, who passed away February 6th, 1963.

Time speeds on, three years have passed
Since death its gloom, its shadow cast
Within our home where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light,
We miss that light and ever will,
His vacant place there's none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain
For up in heaven we will meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by your mother, Mrs. Clara Rashotte.

RASHOTTE — In loving memory of a dear brother, Mitch, who passed away Feb. 6 1963.

In tears we saw you sinking,
We watched you fade away,
Our hearts were almost broken,
You fought so hard to stay,
But when we saw you sleping,
So peacefully free from pain,
We could not wish you back,
To suffer that again.
—Lovingly remembered, brothers-in-law Ralph and family.

Continued losses in speculatives contributed to sluggishness on Canada's stock markets this week as volumes declined sharply for the second week.

At Toronto volume was 26,539,757 compared with 36,221,236 last week. The market value was $70,839,564 compared with $81,676,549.

D'Eldona Gold Mines led the decline, falling 21 cents to 1.39 on 1,910,433 shares.

The decrease in D'Eldona is reflected in the turnover and values of mines and oils for the week. Volume was 24,304,128 compared with 33,924,160 and value $26,670,763 compared with $36,295,693.

In other speculative mining activity Radiore climbed 31 cent to 1.34 on 1,319,050 shares, while Satellite fell 12 to 46 cents and Wilco 6 to 70 cents.

DYNAMIC UP 33

Among speculative oils Dynamic rose 33 cents to 1.76 and Mill City 15 cents to 1.05. Vandoo dropped 2 to 10 cents.

At Montreal, Patricia Silver fell 62 to 94 cents. Two weeks ago it had been as high as 2.95.

Banks fell for the third week, reflecting uncertainty about whether the government will change the six per cent interest rate ceiling on bank loans.

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce was down 1¾ to 67¾, Royal 1¼ to 77¾ and Montreal 1⅛ to 63½. Toronto-Dominion countered the trend and gained ½ to 66½.

The industrial index, which measures investors' sentiment toward key issues, was down .83 to 174.03.

Ford of Canada moved up 8⅛ to 154 on the strength of increased profits in 1965 to $15,400,000 from $7,400,000 in 1964.

TO SPLIT STOCK

Algoma Steel, which increased its quarterly dividend by 5 to 50 cents and announced it would ask shareholders to approve a two-for-one stock split, was up 1⅞ to 71. MacMillan Bloedel increased 1¼ to 28¼ and Du Pont 1⅛ to 45.

Chrysler dropped 1¼ to 62½, Dofasco ⅞ to 27⅞ and CPR ⅝ to 63⅞.

Golds did well as the index advanced 6.43 to 181.47.

Denison Mines sparked the base metal group as it rose 2⅞ to 40⅝ on rumors of possible progress of selling uranium to France. The index increased 1.76 to a high of 91.93.

Falconbridge was down 2⅝ to 108⅝, Inco 1¼ to 104 and Brunswick ⅛ to 16⅛.

Western Oils were slightly lower with Banff off ⅝ to 11¾ and Dome ⅛ to 17¼. Great Plains added ½ at 12½ and Home Oil ¼ to 18¼.

On index, Western oils were off .13 to 111.19 and the TSE .51 to 164.66.

Quinte Rink Wins Honors In Colts Series

Playing together for the first time as a rink, Ken Monson, Wilfred Weymark Reid Giffin with Neville Burroughs as skip from the Quinte Curling Club won district honors in the Colts series at the local rink on Friday. The rink will now meet the winners of the second section of the district in Arnprior on February 14th and if successful there will meet the winner of Division one from Ottawa. Again if successful the rink will enter the Ontario finals. The last two series named will be a two-out-of-three affair.

There were seven teams entered in the competition at the local rink on Friday, the eighth rink, Cornwall Curling Club, not being present. The rinks entered were Quinte Curling Club, RCAF Station, Napanee, Garrison Club of Kingston, Alcan Club of Kingston, Cataraqui Club of Kingston, and Kingston Curling Club. With only seven rinks entered Cataraqui drew a bye in the first round when Cornwall did not show.

In the morning round the Quinte rink defeated the RCAF Station rink 10-8 in an extra end while Kingston Curling Club won over Napanee 9-6 and Garrison of Kingston won over Alcan also of Kingston, 12-3. In the second round the local rink defeated the bye rink, Cataraqui of Kingston, 8-6, while Garrison won over the Kingston Curling Club 8-7.

This set the stage for the final game between Quinte and Garrison with the local rink coming out on top 8-7. This was an excellent game of curling, each rink winning six ends but Neville Burroughs and his boys scored a big four on the sixth end to practically salt the game away. At the time of the big end, Belleville was lying two shots with last rock to come and Burrough slipped through a narrow port to take out a Garrison rock and count four. The ice was tricky and in the main Burroughs called a better game for the rink's margin of victory. His rink curled well all day and were a happy lot when the last rock was delivered.

The rink is well balanced, all of the players being able to take out and then come back with the "draw." The winning rink had more success in "reading" the ice but the Garrison club made it close and the big "four" end was certainly a great help to the winning rink. The Colts series is for curlers with seven or less years of curling and the local rink has an excellent chance of making the Ontario finals in which eight rinks will compete in a round-robin series. A large gallery was on hand to watch the games and Bill Gault, OCA convener, conducted the several draws to the satsfacton of all. The results follow —

Rotary Club Wants Heavy Entry in the Hobby Show

The encouragement of hobbies as a means of making the best use of increased leisure time is one of the purposes behind Belleville Rotary Club's Science Fair and Hobby Show, according to Rotary President Ernest Burnham.

"Unions are trying to cut down the number of hours people work in a day," said Mr. Burnham. "The fact is, people have more leisure and hobbies are one way they can profitably spend this time."

Mr. Burnham said that having a hobby might even develop into a way of making a living, either before or after retirement.

The Rotary president was commenting on preparations for this year's fair, to be held on April 1 and 2. He said application forms will be available next week at the Public Utilities Commission, Bell Telephone, Jack Ireland's Furniture and James Texts.

"We are anxious to have a lot of people apply for the Hobby Show," said Mr. Burnham. He added that entries will be screened for maximum interest and to ensure variety.

Last year was the first time the club, in co-operation with the schools, combined the Science Fair with a Hobby Show. It was a big success. This year, entries are being solicited from 14 schools in Belleville, Picton, Trenton, Madoc, Marmora, Tweed and centres east to Napanee.

Four prize winners will be sent to the National Science Fair in Windsor, compared with two last year. The overall prize list is being increased.

Mr. Burnham believes the fair stimulates scientific interest in the schools as well as in the community at large.

"We feel it is good for the club, too," said the Rotary president. "It gives us a common interest and a project in which every member can participate."

He noted that one of the four avenues of service in Rotary was community service.

"We are not in this primarily to make money," said Mr. Burnham. "We feel it does a lot of good."

At last week's Rotary meeting, J. C. (Pat) Houston said it was hoped to attract more "mobile" entries like model trains in the hobbies' section.

G. F. Baptiste Is Charged With Assault

DESERONTO — Police have charged George Franklin Baptiste, 19, of no fixed address with the assault of a service station operator with intent to rob him Thursday night.

Baptiste was arrested on a parking lot near the Arlington Hotel by Constable Jason Field while police sought a man for the attack.

The search was organized after Eric Wayne Herman, 18, was struck on the head with a hammer by a man who approached him at Burley's service station. Herman, later treated for a head cut, wrestled his assailant before the man fled.

Stresses Value Of Sports in Training Youth

The Belleville Lions Club was told this week that it is the responsibility of today's parents to "foster a generation of good sports."

Speaking to the bi-monthly Lions meeting, Jack Carson, president of the recently-formed Eastern Ontario Baseball Association, stressed the importance of such community activities as baseball in the discipling of today's youth. Mr. Carson said that although his association "liked to produce winners," and had 15 of their teams in Ontario finals last year, the emphasis was still on sportsmanship.

The association, started two years ago, with a membership of 52 teams, now extends from Toronto east to the Quebec border.

Mr. Carson was introduced by Lion Steve Bany, and thanked on behalf of the club by Wayne Woods.

Massassaga Pupils Build Rink And Buy Water to Flood It

In this day many children are content to have things done for them and to sit back and wait for planned entertainment.

But it isn't always that way and there are still youngsters with initiative and a willingness to do things for themselves.

A case in point is at the five room Massassaga Public School across the bay from Belleville, where the children have built themselves a skating rink and are doing the snow shovelling and rink flooding all by themselves.

And with obtaining large quantities of water somewhat of a problem in the country, the children even collected nickels and dimes to buy their own water for rink flooding.

"They did all the work themselves, and even the smaller children pitched in and helped to move snow for the rink sides," said school principal Mrs. Ronald Giles.

The rink project was commenced a couple of weeks ago, then came the problem of water for flooding.

Flooding with water from the school pump was soon to be found to be a time-consuming job and it was decided that water would have to be hauled by tank truck.

BUYS TANKS OF WATER

But that would cost money and the children toyed with the idea of going to the township school area board for funds.

But on suggestion from the school principal the children agreed that the rink should be a 100 per cent "do it yourself" project, and the cost of two tankloads of water at $16. per tank was collected in nickels and dimes.'

They just got the rink nicely flooded when the big snowstorm of last weekend completely buried the 45 by 90 foot rink.

Since then there has been the problem of clearing the ice of snow.

So yesterday (Friday) was the first real opportunity for enjoying the rink.

"We can't allow all 130 to skate at once so we let them skate one class at a time," said the principal.

Yesterday was the senior pupils' turn to have "ice time" for their PT period while the other children turned out to watch during their recess.

Aid for Oswego

Mayor Jack Ellis' offer of snow-clearing equipment to the city of Oswego, across the lake in New York, was a commendable one. And the American city's acceptance was indicative of how severe was the storm in that area.

Oswego, barely 40 miles away as the crow flies, is invariably the hardest hit in the snow belt region inland from Lake Ontario. Some years ago we recall seeing pictures of the city buried almost as deeply in snow as it is today.

Belleville's offer should help in no small way to cement relations between this part of Ontario and northern New York, and indeed, farther afield. Our neighbors are always quick to help us in various ways when the occasion presents itself. An example was the recent fire which destroyed a large section of downtown Brockville. On that occasion units of the Ogdensburg, N.Y., fire department stood by in case they were needed.

Oswego has an interesting background. Founded in 1772 at the direction of William Burnet, governor of New York and New Jersey, as a step toward establishing closer relations between the British colonists and the Indians, it was the scene of several engagements during the War of Independence and the War of 1812.

With the end of military occupation, the city grew rapidly. Its greatest prosperity ensued with the building of the Oswego canal to its intersection with the Erie canal at Syracuse, and the opening of the Welland canal.

The city's name is of Indian origin. It means "pouring out place," referring to the emptying of the Oswego River into Lake Ontario.

The Great Lakes, it is ironic to reflect, constitute not only a great inland sea linked with the Atlantic by canals and the St. Lawrence, but a barrier to closer links between Canadians and Americans living along the border.

Belleville and Oswego and Rochester, the latter reputedly one of the wealthiest — and certainly one of the most attractive — cities in the United States, would be closer neighbors than they are, were it not for Lake Ontario.

But why blame the lake? It is just that the only direct link is by road, and while Highway 81 on the American side has brought the U.S. centres closer, they are still a fairly long drive from Belleville.

War of Attrition

General Vo Nguyen Giap, who engineered the Viet Minh victory over France in the Indochina War, is convinced the United States cannot win the Viet Nam war by military force.

Giap, who is defence minister and deputy premier in the Hanoi government, predicts the United States will lose the Viet Nam conflict because American troops will be overcome by "passivity" and "low morale."

An expert in guerrilla warfare, Giap said: "They cannot avoid being driven into passivity in strategy, by being compelled to scatter their forces in the defensive as well as in the offensive."

Well, the Americans are engaged in a dangerous war all right, and one where the enemy holds most of the advantages. The Viet Cong rebels are fighting on home ground, have the active support of communist North Viet Nam and China. They live off the land and also have the support of a large part of the civilian population.

The Americans, for all their military power including mastery of the air, appear to be no closer to a military victory than they ever were. To defeat the communists, or force them into negotiations, the United States will need twice or three times the 200,000 or so troops they are currently deploying in Viet Nam.

Meanwhile, Viet Nam is a war of attrition Men are fighting and dying in a war as brutal and futile as any that has ever been fought. But General Giap has not as much cause for optimism as he may suppose.

Communist losses, have been heavy. More than 900 guerillas have been reported killed in a recent drive in coastal Binh provnce about 300 miles northeast of Saigon. General Giap and his superiors in Hanoi are not going to cause the Americans and their allies to lose heart with guerrilla losses like this.

Soviet Achievement

After a long period in the space-race doldrums, the Soviet Union has come up with another notable achievement — the soft-landing of a spaceship on the moon.

The spaceship immediately began sending signals to earth. British scientists reported pictures had been transmitted by the ship.

The soft landing came after four unsuccessful attempts. Photographs and other data supplied by the spaceship's instruments are expected to give the Soviets a valuable lead over the United States in the program to land a man on the moon.

Much will depend on the continued functioning of the instruments. Meanwhile, the actual landing can only be regarded as a tremendous achievement.

Thus the Soviets have entered a new phase in the race to place man on the moon. Yet the Americans are ahead in other spheres. Meanwhile the question of who will get there first must remain a matter or speculation.

Unions Blamed For Cost Spiral

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Our government is determined to produce a large number of skilled mechanics by intensive training and the question arises will all those so trained stay in Canada, or will many of them, like those who have been trained in industrial establishments find their way across the border to the south of us.

This migration is not always prompted by financial considerations, but a skilled mechanic objects to be bossed and dictated to by some individual whose knowledge of the craft is often very rudimentary. If an employer finds a man who has every qualification for a certain position he cannot engage his services unless the man has a union card, and a man who is a known mechanic does not need union backing. In fact he objects to being classed with those members whose claim to being tradesmen is dubious.

If the government abolished the closed shop the unions would lose at least 20% of its membership, but to accomplish that the members of the government would have to undergo an operation for the purpose of removing whatever holds them up and substituting a back bone.

The ever-increasing wage rate will be responsible for one or possibly a second disastrous condition. The one being a depression or the other (even more disastrous), inflation. It is difficult to fathom the mentality of those who decide labor's policy. They know that every raise in the workers wage is subsided by the workers themselves as any raise is followed by a raise in the cost of living. It is very doubtful whether a family having an income of $70 a week lives any better, or even as well as a similar family did when the prevailing rate was $20 a week

Having set a minimum wage, the government should also set a maximum wage. This, of course, would be on a graded scale, the qualifications to be determined by a strict examination which would separate the men from the boys and would assure a prospective employer of the bona-fide of his employee.

While on the subject, all union strikes should be declared illegel and in the event of a breach all personal and property damage to be charged against the union. Having decided on a maximum wage a strict control must be exercised over commodity prices.

There is no justification for any corporation to boast of a gross profit of 1½ billion dollars. The capitalization of any concern should be equal to its physical assets only. Stock splitting should be made illegal as it generally hides excessive profits. Some union executives have more power than any prime minister as they can, by a whim, bring the whole economy of the country to a standstill. A state of blackmail comes into operation when a corporation, having tendered and being awarded a contract, is immediately faced with a threat of a strike with demands that nulify the value of the contract. Industry as well as a large section of the general public is pretty well sick of the continuous succession of this industrial upheaval and the ever increasing cost of living.

Daylight Saving An 'Inconvenience?'

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I noticed a small item in a very recent issue of your worthy paper: "Daylight saving time has been discontinued in Norway after an experimental seven years."

Isn't it about time we scrapped that useless bit of inconvenience every summer, which serves no useful purpose? There was the need for conservation or restriction of use of electric power, but that is no longer necessary.

E. M. Gibson.

Editor's Note:: Norway being close to the Arctic Circle has daylight for about 20 hours a day during the summer months. Consequently, there is less need for daylight saving at that time.

Tranquilizers Differ From Sleeping Pills

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between sleeping pills and tranquilizers? How do they affect the nervous system? Are non-prescription pills of either type reliable? — W. F.

• • •

In general, sleeping pills are usually in the barbital category, either singly or in combination with other drugs, since there are several which have sleep-producing effects.

These drugs act by depressing certain centres of the brain — so you go to sleep. The tranquilizers, however, ordinarly act by altering the chemical phases of nerve impulses in other areas of the nervous system. Thus, muscle relaxation, and a calming effect, promote sleep.

Still others work on the basis of their analgesic, or pain-relieving properties. The salicylates (aspirin and similar agents) are in this category. The antihistamines belong in this general grouping (There are, of course, powerful narcotic pain-killers, but I am not including them in today's discussion. They certainly aren't to be classed as "sleeping pills.")

The non-prescription sleeping pills are usually a combination of salicylate and antihistamine, with possibly a derivative of belladonna added, and in concentrations sufficient to ease discomfort and let a person relax and sleep.

Every drug mentioned so far can be dangerous if used to excess, although the amount that becomes excessive varies. None should be used in combination with alcohol, because the combination can cause anything from slower reflexes to sleepiness stupor and even death.

Be cautious about taking these drugs when driving a car. It doesn't require much slowing of the reflexes, or mental relaxation to make the difference between safety and disaster in traffic.

There are special types of drugs which belong, at least in general, in the tranquilizer group. Some allay vomiting and nausea (and seasickness). Others are called psychic energizers and give the depressed person a "pickup" effect without being, however really stimulants.

The barbiturates are so potent and so capable, unless used in proper amount, of causing addiction that federal law requires that they be dispensed only on prescription. Some of the other drugs I have mentioned can be used in limited quantity without prescription. Even with them, though, I think there's something to be said for using them under prescription because then you know what you are taking and how much.

Some of the tranquilizers can cause addiction to some extent, too, but they certainly have a place in modern treatment, having advantages over barbiturates and bromides in that more subtle effects can be achieved.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that peanut butter will cause senility. I live with an elderly relative who is very fond of it. She covers a slice of bread with it, then dusts it all over with unflavoured gelatine. Is there anything wrong with this combination? — B. W. E.

Peanut butter certainly does not cause senility. It's a perfectly good food. The added gelatine doesn't sound particularly tasty to me, but there's nothing wrong with the combination if your relative likes it.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am allergic to iodine, and would like to know what foods contain it? — Mrs. J. C.

The principal ones are seafood. Also iodized salt. This is not true, however, of fresh-water fish.

Hees, Winters and Fulton Always Where the Action Is

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "Like Thunderball!" sighed the pert young High School Miss in the high blonde haystack-style bouffant, obviously dreaming, as the tall, trim, tanned man in the brush-cut white moustache and Parliament's sharpest set of threads swung by with the easy grace of the trained athlete in top shape.

"Yeah, terrific," breathed the young collegian who could have been her classroom boyfriend, in a tone melding admiration and envy.

They had come up from the Smiths Falls Collegiate with a bus-load of High School students to watch Parliament at work, and were standing in the marbled Hall of Fame waiting for Mr. Speaker Lucien Lamoureaux and his tricornered, black-robed parade to file majestically by in the always impressive daily procession to the House of Commons.

When who should come by first, on his way to his new Front Bench Conservative House desk but one of the three most compellingly interesting political personalities in this Parliament.

Who else but George Hees.

The other two?

Robert Winters and Davie Fulton, of course.

So how are they doing?

Never better.

VETERANS

For old hands — all three are colleagues from the St. Laurent days, Fulton and Winters going back to the closing years of the Mackenzie King era — they're still young men, Hees the senior of them at 55.

All three have been Cabinet Ministers before, Hees in Transport and Trade, Fulton in Justice and Works, and Winters in Reconstruction and Resources, and now in Trade.

And each is setting his sights quite frankly on his Party's Leadership.

Man!

You should see George Hees.

Still the dapper, double-breasted — jacket, weskit and topcoat — fashion plate. Flashing that "Big Hello" smile and casually waving his old familiar "That's my boy" greeting to one and all. Skiing weekends in the nearby Gatineau, and splashing mornings and evenings into his high rise apartment pool to rip off his customary daily 50 lengths.

Even so, he's changed.

Maybe it was his years in the presidency of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges.

Or perhaps it was just that his spell back in the business world which he says he found "duller than hell, soft and easy, too pat and polite," has sobered him with an overwhelming feeling of gratitude at being back where he now knows the exciting action is.

Anyway, he's become what in other days he would have called "a take-charge guy."

For without a word from anyone — including, and especially Conservative Leader Diefenbaker — he has taken over as Opposition Financial critic.

SOLID STUFF

Read his speeches. Hear his questions. Pointed. Penetrating. Lean, clean, hard-headed material. You get it like the House got it, that he knows what he's talking about and will be a match and maybe more for Finance Minister Sharp.

Davie Fulton?

Changed, too.

Thinner. Sharper. More equable. Still quiet, but very much alert. Renewing old and making new friendships. You sense that his last three years in the spectacularly unsuccessful political wilderness of Opposition in British Columbia were not only dismally unrewarding but unhappy, and that he is more than thankful to be back on Parliament Hill where he's determined now to make it big.

His French is better than George Hees, really conversationally fluent enough to give him a buddy-buddy rating with the Quebec MPs.

Davie Fulton, drawing on his years as Conservative Justice Minister, is handling that end of Opposition in the Commons, taking it over almost as a matter of course.

Bob Winters, the wheeler-dealer who gave up his annual 125,-00 Rothschild dollars to return to politics and a shot at the Liberal Leadership?

The Opposition — all four segments of it — leave him respectfully alone. Sure signal that he knew his Trade and Commerce stuff even before he took over that challenging department.

Smooth. Essence of quiet courtesy. Firmly competent. The only politician ever able to charm former Mayor Charlotte Whitton, a buzz-saw if there ever was one.

And you should hear him purr in that "Boardroom Maritime-Harvard" accent of his! Like salted honey.

U.S. Tanks For Jordan

Detroit Free Press

Through a fluke, it has come to light that the United States is beefing up Jordan's army — notably with Patton tanks.

Of course, the United States wouldn't want anyone to be under-privileged in the ability to put on a good war.

Nothing concerning the arms shipments to Jordan would have become known to Americans except for the fluke.

It occurred when a United States Information Agency publication intended strictly for Arab eyes found its way back to Washington and into the hands of an Israeli correspondent.

He naturally informed Israel's embassy, which made its displeasure known and left the State Department with no choice but to admit the truth — which with the State Deparment is pretty much a last resort.

As usual, the excuse was that if Jordan didn't get arms from us, the Soviets would step in.

This is quite a bit like a man arguing that if he doesn't serve martinis to teenagers they'll get them from a nasty fellow across the street — so what choice does he have?

We would suggest that passing out arms hither and yon is no contribution to either world peace or goodwill toward America. It is only necessary to cite India and Pakistan to support this thesis.

If the Middle East blows up some day, we will obviously be largely responsible, but exactly how largely will be as tough to find out as the facts about our involvement in Vietnam.

Five African Lands Agree

Montreal Gazette

Five African countries, under the leadership of the Ivory Coast Republic, have recently adopted an immigration agreement which is of considerable interest. These countries, which have been co-operating with each other for some time, have now signed a convention establishing "double nationality."

This agreement will permit, for example, a citizen of Niger, Upper Volta, Togo or Dahomey to move to the Ivory Coast and receive virtually the same rights and privileges as an Ivorian citizen. He will be able to take part in local government and polites and he wll have the right to vote in elections.

The Ivory Coast will benefit especially from this agreement, since its expanding economy, based on free enterprise, has proved a magnet for Africans in neighboring countries for several years. Like other countries with growing economies, the Ivory Coast has found that liberal immigration laws tend to spur further expansion.

The Ivory Coast Republic has already shown that, even with few natural resources, a Black African country which is realistically led can progress economically at a rapid rate. The decision to establish "double nationality" for immigrants from a number of countries is a good example of the policies that have made this economic expansion possible.

Focus on Career

Ottawa Citizen

Carleton University's dean of students, Mr. R. A. Wendt, complained recently that universities are becoming supervocational schools because of the pressure of employers who want graduates who can do a job and who have a degree to prove it. But this has always been more or less the case; most students by the time they have reached second or third year at a university, have had their eyes on a specific career. It doesn't seem to have done either the universities or the students any harm.

Successful Living

Self-teaching Music Books Very Popular

DEAR DORIS: Like "Country Homemaker," I would like to learn to play the piano; although I am 50 the urge is still there. Could you send me the names of books I could buy?

DORIS CLARK

My son is a wonderful pianist, and taught, too, but now he runs a business and only gets home once in a while. I would have some help with it when he is around. — BROWN EYES.

DEAR DORIS: I have two young boys, very musical, eight and 10 years old. Music teachers are very scarce and expensive. If these beginner's books can give them a start, it would be wonderful.

I think when children are talented with such a wonderful gift from God, they should be helped to develop these talents. We are in need of good musicians in this day and age.

Doris, I am willing to try and learn myself along with the boys. — A PAL.

DEAR DORIS: I have a new piano my husband bought me. We both love music. I play by ear but not very good. Would you please send me the names of those books as I would like very much to improve my playing. I promise you I will certainly practise. — MUSIC LOVER.

DEAR DORIS: I need help. I drink too much! We live miles from any city so I can't join any A.A. there.

Please give me the name of some pamphlets or books that may help me. — MRS. D.

DEAR MRS. D.: To face the fact that you need help is a big step towards getting it. Certainly there is help for you.

We need to know why you drink. Some tip the bottle because they are downhearted and it seems a way out. Or you don't feel good. Or somebody you live with clashes with you. In any case, John Barleycorn is a poor way out. Try to arrange at least one personal talk with the worker at the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation, 24 Harbord Street, Toronto 5, Ontario.

You will be helped with ideas and literature for replacing drink with a better way of coping.

(When writing in, allow Doris four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.)

Signs of Modern Civilization Absent on Island of Janitzio

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOAN

PATZCUARO, Mexico —The romantic-sounding name of the island is Janitzio. One of the five in Lake Patzcuaro, it is shaped like a scoop of ice cream, its garnish a gross, ill-proportioned statue of Morelos that looks unfinished because it is; they ran out of money. Money is always being run out of in Mexico.

On all the islands the people are fishermen. On one they also raise chickens and another is famed for sombreros. But so far as is known, no tourist has ever set foot on them. Janitzio, with 2,000 souls, is the big time. Its chief product is lots of little brown barefoot children, who can beg a "quinto" (five centavos) from the palefaced strangers before they learn how to talk. Friday is tourist day, but outside of that, if you hadn't been here for the past 100 years and didn't come back for the next 100, you'd still find no sign of modern civilization.

You get here in half an hour from Patzcuaro's boat dock in a private water bus that waits an hour for you for $4. For a tenth of that, you can ride the scheduled service, sitting among Tarascan ladies swathed like Moslems in blue-striped black rebozos, embroidered lace shirts and brilliant pearl beads, munching on stalks of sugar cane. You will be as much of a curiosity to them as the pigs and chickens may be to you.

UNIQUE BALLET

Surging ahead at about two knots, the boat picks its way among reeds and lavender water hyacinths undulating in the breeze. When you arrive at the island, and if you are alone and the fishermen are done for the day, the boatman whistles through his teeth. Grinning kids and wizened old men emerge magically from the clutter of nets and shacks and rocks on the shore, paddling ther bark canoes and unfolding their famed pole-mounted butterfly nets to go through their unique ballet of scooping fish out of the water. Other barks paddle by, sometimes in a graceful rhythmic tandem, loaded down with bundles of reeds to be dried for plaited mats.

Not only are there no roads or vehicles on Janitzio, but there are no streets. From the wharf, where the town photographer trots up with his tripod to greet the boat, only rough stone steps and precarious dirt paths climb the hill. The pastel adobe houses with their red tile roofs and flowered balconies, seem to rise straight up, turning off at cockeyed angles amid the pseudo-streets.

Kids and burros and pigs scurry sure-footedly. Sombreroed fishermen with deep Indian eyes and drooping mustaches, mend their nets, or wrap themselves in sarapes to siesta on a straw mat which doubles for drying fish. Every house seems to house a courtyard weaver or pottery maker, souvenir stand and cantina all in one.

House piles on house, as in the Greek islands, and near the top is a little church with a strange statue of Christ, his hands bound with hemp rope. Behind Him little charm-like votives — an arm, a leg, an animal — are hung in thanks for the salvation of these. So are miniature fishing nets, for an auspicious catch.

Next to the church is perhaps the strangest cemetery in the world, a barren dirt expanse with no markers at all save for one or two small flat headstones. Here, through the night of November 1, is held the strange pagan fiesta known as the Night of the Dead.

ALL-NIGHT VIGIL

On the day before, thousands come out to the lake in canoes to shoot wild duck with harpoons, to be made into posole, a festive corn meal-chili-meat dish. At night the lake channel is strung with lights as thousands come with floral wreaths, candles and sweets to keep an eerie all-night vigil that ends in celebration and prayer, a kind of catharsis of mourning. Despite the surrealistic emptiness of the cemetery, each family knows where its departed lie. Few can afford stones.

Patzcuaro, half-way west from Mexico City to Guadalajara, is another of these strange surprises that every turn of the road holds in Mexico. Its mud-brick houses are dressed with carved wooden columns and beams, overhanging tile roofs, and garden walls surrounding scraggly trees and exotic bushes. It takes two blinks and a rub of the eyes to realize that is a basilica there, not a Shinto temple, and this is not Japan.

All doubt is removed in the central market square. A jungle of serape shops encircles it, and on the paths Indian women squat patiently in rows to sell produce, fish, and less recognizable staples. Among them moves the bird man, his high pile of cages strapped to his back.

The portaled colonial buildings surrounding the square's teeming life should have a good hotel with a second floor front view. But the only such view is from the free hotel, the city jail. Naturally, it has wrought iron balconies in front of its barred windows.

Patzcuaro is the heart of one of Mexico's many artistic centres. The Tarascan Indian art is so original, colorful, tasteful, varied and innately sophisticated that it has only been refined, never improved upon by professionals, who come here mainly to draw on it.

VARIED ART

It ranges from lace-like hemp carpets to painted wooden figurines, glazed ceramics and pottery to hand embroidered and woven fabrics, festival masks and imaginative straw "sculptures," more varied, perhaps, than the aboriginal art of any nation on earth.

The best historic introduction to it is Patzcuaro's carefully selective Museum of Popular Arts, where you can see authentic Tarascan kitchens with their great stone stoves and wall racks hung with carved wood mixing implements. Stone floors are artistically inlaid with pieces of cattle bone. There are paper-doll-style doilies for festooning houses at fiesta and spun sugar skulls for the Night of the Dead. A complete Tarascan house with hand-carved wooden furniture of a style much in vogue in Mexican decoration also stands in the court.

Here too are some of the best examples of the homemade votives posted in Mexican churches, including some graphically depicting the fearsome bandit raids of Mexico's lawless post-revolution days.

Patzcuaro, like most of Mexico, is poor, its cobbled streets as they were under the Spaniards, its adobe buildings crumbling pathetically. But recently it began to restore a true architectural treasure, the former Convert of the 11 Patios, complete with arched cloisters, hand-carved stone railings, and delightfully inappropriate—for a convent — Moorish bath borrowed whole from the harems of Islam.

Only in Mexico are you likely to find Greece, North Africa, and Japan rolled into one.

The Orient Influenced Early American Decorative Art

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

The oriental motif has been popular with Europeans since the days of Marco Polo. The first American settlers brought with them their desire for the beauty and culture of their homelands. This included the memory of the oriental decorations used throughout Europe.

Sea captains from the colonies were soon sailing to the Orient and returning to the Eastern seaboard with porcelains and other decorative arts.

Wallpaper was one of the "musts" that the wealthy Easterners imported for their homes. Specially designed, hand-painted paper was made for the individual room. Some of this eighteenth century paper still remains on walls of early homes. Many similar papers are being reproduced and can be used in the twentieth century home.

Q. Horns were placed together to make an odd looking chair found in my attic. Are they unusual?

A. Horn furniture was one of the many types of rustic Victorian furniture. Curved branches, cane, and bamboo were joined to make chairs or tables. Steer and buffalo horns were made into chairs, tables, and even hat-racks. Presidents Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt owned horn chairs.

These chairs were made in limited numbers. Each chair required about a dozen animal horns.

Q. My English cousin sent me six "tooth and egg" spoons. She says they are old silver. I can't clean them. Can you help?

A. "Tooth and egg" is the English dealer's slang term for tutenag, a composition metal that looks like pewter or nickel silver. A zinc alloy was originally called tutenag but through the years the name also has been applied to paktong metal, a white copper mixture. It was used by the Chinese and Europeans in making boxes, spoons, fireplace equipment and candlesticks.

Tutenag will not shine like silver. It can be cleaned to a dull pewter-like finish by using any good commercial metal polish.

Northland Still Home Says Mother

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. William J. Berry, originally of Montreal, came to London the indirect way—via Baffin Island.

Mrs. Berry and her husband went to Frobisher Bay on Baffin Island in April, 1959, when he was posted as an assistant area administrator for Cape Dorset with the department of northern affairs.

The last two years of their stay was at Pond Inlet where they had a three-bedroom prefabricated house with an oil furnace and stove. She learned to speak Eskimo from an Eskimo woman who helped her in household jobs.

During the first year at Pond Inlet she taught kindergarten and organized three patrols of girl guides. She was assisted by two young Eskimo women who were to carry on after she left. "We had a seal oil lamp for the closing ceremony at meetings instead of the usual campfire," she said.

She also was in charge of two hostels or boarding schools of 10 children each for which she recruited four "hostel parents." The hostel mothers were taught the rudiments of nutrition and housekeeping. Just before she left, Mrs. Berry and the Eskimo women finished a cookbook with recipes geared to the stock of the Hudson's Bay Co. store.

New Morality Says Right Is Dependent on Situation

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Ordinarily, lying is considered wrong. But when it would save an innocent person's life, then a lie takes on a modified moral quality. As some see it, the general "wrong" becomes a particular "right."

"What is right depends on the situation," says Dr. Joseph Fletcher, of the Episcopal (Anglican) Theological Seminary in Cambridge, Mass.

This viewpoint is the working approach of the so-called "new morality," which is stirring keen debate today in U.S. religious circles.

Some theologians defend it, insisting that it invokes greater, firmer personal responsibility than rigid rules. Others condemn it, claiming that it undermines God-given codes of conduct.

It is variously called "contextual morality" or "situation ethics."

It holds that every decision on whether an action is good or bad hinges, not on the act itself or on any law, but on whether it would help others in the context of the situation.

"No action is good or right in itself," Dr. Fletcher says. "It depends on whether it hurts or helps people, whether or not it serves love's purpose (understanding love to be personal concern) in the situation."

Objections are raised, however, that this tends to make each person's fallible reasoning the guide as to what actually would serve the broad, long-range interest of others—and that such judgment often errs.

INJUNCTIONS BINDING

Biblical injunctions have "binding moral force," declares the Evangelical weekly, Christianity Today.

"God has not left the nature and demands of agape (His love) so wholly undefined that no person can know what is right or wrong until, in the changing situations of life, he himself decides."

The arguments swirl widely both in Protestantism and Roman Catholicism, in seminaries, church conferences and in troubled letters from laymen. Many misconstrue the new approach as an invitation to licence.

However, Dr. Fletcher maintains it is more deeply demanding than fixed regulations. "The new morality is not a soft morality," he says.

He notes that it does not abandon the old moral standards, but sees them only as "general principles" rather than inflexible rules, with their application governed by real concern for persons in each specific circumstance.

Christ's central teaching is "to love people, not principles," he writes in the Episcopal weekly, The Living Church. He says the well-being of others is the prime consideration—an end which takes precedence over any means or rules.

Sin occurs, he adds, when laws are put ahead of human welfare, when means are substituted for ends, "when things (including rules) are loved and people are used."

Ann Landers

Rude Customers Should Be Treated Courteously

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is apparent from your advice to the young fellow who worked in the ice cream shop that you have never worked the employee's side of the counter.

ANN LANDERS

This poor kid was exasperated because people came in and asked what flavors they had (they had 28) and when he finished rattling them all off they said, "Oh well, I'll take vanilla."

He was sure they did it to annoy him and he wanted a snappy answer. You told him customers don't come in for snappy answers — they come in for ice cream.

As a person who has waited on the public for 28 years I can tell you that there are a lot of mean, miserable creeps in this world who take out their hostility on clerks, waitresses, and folks who can't tell them where to head in.

My first job was jerking sodas. I was 16. My boss told me that whenever I encountered a rude, arrogant, demanding person I should be courteous because that person was probably mad at somebody he couldn't talk back to and I was the substitute. His advice has helped me stay ulcer-free and reasonably sane. Please pass it on to others who have to take a lot of lip on the job. — SMILING SAM.

DEAR SAM: You were lucky to have such a wise boss. And cheers to you for following his advice. But — that little red choo-choo runs both ways.

While it is true that customers are often nasty, clerks can be pretty miserable, too. And the reason for their unpleasantness frequently has nothing to do with the encounter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am so disgusted with my parents I don't know what to do. Let me start by telling you that I am a 15-year-old girl. My parents got a divorce two years ago. I begged them not to, but they did anyway. I live with my mother.

Dad is over here at least three nights a week. When he is around mom talks in a fakey voice like she is on the stage. I have caught them necking on the sofa a few times and it is just nauseating.

Yesterday mom told me that the three of us are going to take a weekend trip. Dad has to go to Philadelphia on business. I think it is disgraceful. After all, they are not man and wife anymore. Should I tell them I am not going on a trip with them unless they get married? — SMARTER THAN I LOOK.

DEAR SMARTER THAN: If you are really smart you will play dumb. It is not your place to tell them anything.

In time your parents will probably remarry — which is the way they should have stayed to begin with.

Polly Bergen Leads Many Lives

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Polly Bergen leads many lives.

A self-admitted "has been" at the age of eight, at 35 Polly is one of the top all-round performers in show business, and is active in many other fields.

"To me life means exhaling," the husky-voiced, blue-eyed singer said between shows at the Hotel Plaza's Persian Room.

"It seems to me I've spent most of my life taking a deep breath before trying to do something I've never done before. When I exhale afterward, I can take off my shoes and relax. Everything then is all right. Nobody threw a tomato at me."

In addition to her night club chores, Polly at present also—

1. Operates three dress shops in Tennessee.
2. Runs her own music publishing firm.
3. Handles her own oilfield and real estate investments.
4. Designs carpets for her brother-in-law, a rug manufacturer.
5. Works for several civic and humanitarian projects.
6. Has started a mail order firm to market a cosmetic skin product for men called "Polly Bergen's whipped pink oil of the turtle."

"The first thing, of course," said Polly," is to catch the turtle. The whole business depends on him."

RUNS HARD

What makes Polly run so hard? Perhaps because she was constantly on the move as a child—always starting over in a new place. As the daughter of a construction engineer, she lived in 27 states and attended 45 grammar and high schools.

"At the age of three and four I was always a dead-cinch $2 prize winner in amateur contests," she said. "But at eight I had become a has-been.

Then at 11 I got my own radio show at $6 a week. I got $15 for my first television appearance —and a case of tomato soup.

"I also worked for $19 a week as a drugstore clerk, $20 a week as a carhop, $22 a week as a short-order cook. I used to spend hours arguing people out of ordering pancakes. I couldn't turn them."

Polly held other jobs briefly as a cocktail waitress, a fur coat model, an usher, and a door-to-door salve pedlar.

"I did all this while going to school," she said. "I was very independent. I really enjoyed it."

Polly then became a band singer, quickly rose to stardom on the supper club circuit—Las Vegas was glad to pay her $7,500 a week—and films, the theatre, television and the recording field.

"Once when I had two television shows going, I must have earned between $500,000 and $1,000,000 a year," she remarked.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

St George's Jr. Guild held its weekly euchre, Thursday evening with prize winners as follows: Mrs. Mabel Moore, Mrs. T. Fitzgibbon; Mrs. J. Sanford; Mrs. D. Joudwa, and Mrs. M. Freeman for lone hands.

QUESTION:

. . . I lost all my recipes which were in storage with other household effects as I was in hospital for some time. The other material things can be replaced but not my scrapbooks which contained treasured recipes of friends and relatives Cooking was one of my few skills — skill with the skillet. I am trying to recall some of the things I used to make. I would like to make a good omelette.

Another thing is meat patties using ground leftover meat, mustard, onions, etc., and make a light batter adding the meat mixture and frying until light and fluffy. I believe there was a bit of baking powder in the batter.

Also Harvard beets . . Mrs. Sheila D.

ANSWER:

I have mailed to you direct my recipes for Fluffy Never-Fail Omelette and Harvard Beets which appeared here May 10, 1963 and October 20, 1964, respectively.

I was pleased with your request for Meat Patties. Currently there is a flurry of requests for using up leftover meat and this will help others.

SATURDAY
Dinner Menu
by Mary
Moore

Old-Fashioned Split Pea Soup (see Thurs.); Blueberry Muffins (see Mon. for Muffin Mix); Tossed Green Salad; Apple Pie; Cheddar Cheese; Tea.

MEAT FRITTERS (PATTIES):

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon single-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1/3 cup milk, 1 tablespoon melted shortening, 1 cup ground leftover beef (or other meat or cooked drained vegetables or fish), deep shortening or oil for frying.

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Beat in egg, milk and shortening until smooth. Add ground meat (or vegetables or fish). Fry in deep fat at 360 deg. Fahr. (Dip spoon in hot fat then dip up spoonful of batter and with second spoon push batter into fat.) Turn over when underside is brown and cook other side — about 4 or 5 minutes in all.

There is a little doubt in my mind about you wanting to fry your Meat Patties in deep fat so I am adding Beef Rissoles which may be fried in deep fat or shallow fat or baked:

BEEF RISSOLES (croquettes):

Two cups minced, cooked beef, ½ teaspoon grated onion, ½ tablespoon chopped parsley, salt and pepper, 3 tablespoons fat, 6 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup stock (or water to which you have added 1 beef bouillon cube). Add onion, parsley and seasonings to meat. Make thick sauce by melting the fat, stirring in the flour and when blended the stock until thick. Add meat mixture and cool. Shape into cones. Roll in crumbs, beaten egg and crumbs. Fry in deep fat at 390 deg. F. or in shallow fat in frying pan, or bake at 375 deg.

Often this is served with Tomato Sauce.

F. for 35 minutes.

Lines on Life

Should Listen More

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Many days we speak with many people. We should be listening, more.

Often, as we listen we learn lessons which we can apply to our own lives. As we listen to the desires, ambitions, hopes, joys and frustrations of others, there inevitably comes a moment when we wish we had the temerity to stop the conversation with but two words. We would like to tell our friends: "Grow up!" When we listen we become the objective experts. Suddenly we see how childishness destroys many adult lives.

If we could tell that woman whose torments we have heard her describe, to follow through all the way on the possibilities of her rationality — she would soon solve her own problems. If we could tell that man whose fears of offending keep him from loving, to act out the ultimate implications of what it means to be a man, he might finally become one.

The most difficult human effort is the one which requires us to grow up — a conscious, self-aware effort to outgrow our primitive nature is rare because it is so demanding. Our hair grows by itself; our bodies respond to a law of growth which does not depend upon our own will. But we have to will our growth if we are to grow up spiritually. Else, we remain emotional kids dressed up in adult clothing.

We are plagued a whole lifetime through with the remnants of our childish and primitive worlds: our juvenile delinquencies persist.

We begin life responding to light, to love, to warmth — to the cozy and the snug. But love is linked to its twin — to hate. The infant learns about both, together. He discovers his dependence upon his mother for warmth and light, and he loves her for these. But he learns to hate her, when she frustrates his wish, when the lights are turned off, or taken away.

As long as we remain tied to our childish worlds, we will always retain something of the hatefulness of our younger days. Not until we wilfully grow away from our childishness, and tear the bonds that link our loves to our hates, can we become fully human.

This takes a great deal of strength and perseverance. But it is the only way to "grow up." We may grow big, grow tall, grow wide — even grow down.

But to "grow up" we must "grow away" from our primitive life by asking new questions.

Once, all we were concerned about was: Is it pleasant? A grown-up's question is different. He asks: Is it rational?

A Lift for Living

Every Person Must Be True To Something Beyond Self

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd nearly lost his life in a violent blizzard on his first expedition to the South Pole. He had left his hut on a brief trip of exploration. A snow storm came up suddenly, and the blinding whiteness wiped out his sense of direction.

The location of his hut was but a guess. Because the temperature was far below zero, Byrd knew that if he followed his own inclination in any direction and it proved wrong, he would be utterly lost and soon dead in the stiffening Antarctic temperatures.

Byrd always carried a long pole with him so he could feel for holes in the ice. He drove the pole into the snow and tied his scarf to the top of the pole. Fluttering in the terrible icy winds, the scarf attracted Byrd's attention, and Byrd never let himself move out of sight of that pole. The pole with the waving scarf attached became the explorer's centre, to which he could return again and again.

Admiral Byrd struck out in search of his hut three times and missed. Three times he returned to his centre of reference. His fourth attempt to find his hut was successful. The great explorer later declared that having a centre to return to in moments of uncertainty saved his life.

FIX ATTENTION

We all need to fix our attention on something outside ourselves, on something more reliable than our own impulses, wishes, and guesses, something that can answer our uncertainties and doubts.

We have heard quoted many times the advice of Polonius in Shakespeare's "Hamlet,

"This above all: to thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

The apparent nobility of these lines disguises their less obvious sentimental nonsense, of which Shakespeare was doubtlessly aware. Loyalty to oneself is never enough: everyone must be true to something beyond himself.

Let us suppose that a child in the early grades has a highly original conception of arithmetic. During class recitation he declares, "Two plus two equals six and six plus six equals sixteen." Can you imagine the teacher congratulating him, saying, "Very good, Tommy! Of course that is not the answer I expected, but if it is your belief that those figures are right, that is splendid." To thine own self be true?

The mathematician must be true to something beyond himself. So must the hunter in the deep woods. He may think his compass is mistaken and that his own guess is right, but he will be safer to follow his compass, which is true to something beyond the hunter and faithful to something beyond itself — the earth's magnetic pole.

A navigator had better be true to the stars by which he sails, rather than to his own whims or moods, or he is lost. Some people who boast of their individualism remind one of the senile, demented sea captain who tried to navigate his ship by the stars he had painted on the ceiling of his ship's cabin.

We have an abundance of such people represented in abstract, impressionistic art. They have no stars to steer by beyond their own cramped little cabin, no standards beyond their own impressions.

Great art is never simply a form of self-expression. It always expresses something beyond the artist — a beauty more enduring than his mood. It communicates a truth more lasting than the artist's brush or hand or brain. Great art stretches across the ages far beyond the artist's own time.

While it begins as a purely private experience, the stirring of the artist's own feelings and imagination, before the work takes final form the artist reaches beyond himself to find some touch of the universal to illumine his work. Only then can his art speak to all men everywhere who behold it.

The abstractionists who communicate nothing but their own confusion are hardly artists at all. They do not so much care for the language of art as for the private moods that make sense to no one but themselves. Their interest is not in subject matter; it is self-interest. And this is why they have nothing significant to say that will last and why the products of their minds and hands are such poor and melancholy things.

The art of Christian living is found in this: the Christian is one who has a loyalty beyond himself. He is true to Christ. He lives beyond impulse and passing mood, beyond guess work, beyond the dither of perpetual uncertainty, beyond the bidding of the crowd and beyond narrow self-interest.

Christ is the centre, the magnetic pole toward which the Christian's life points, the source from which he gets his bearings. Christ's teaching, guidance and example enable him to say, "This is the right way." "This is good." "This is honorable." "This is God's will."

To thine ownself be true? Christians have better guidance than that slogan. It is, "Be true to Christ."

Lighting the Way

By Walter S. Crone

THE DRAFT LEFT HIM COLD

Patrick W. Richardson of Los Angeles, was 21 years of age and ripe for United States Army service. Having received his draft notice, he quit his job. In order to make a quick sale of his car valued at $700, he let it go for $300 His friends arranged a party for him, and he accepted parting gifts from them. About this same time, he was convicted of drunken driving, but was successful in having the sentence suspended so he could accept the Army's call.

On the day assigned him, Richardson showed up at the induction Station. There he learned that the Army had discovered that he was the wrong Patrick W. Richardson!

Many of us view our mistakes in the light of "experience", and experience is one thing we can't get for nothing! If we would save ourselves much disappointment and grief, we should commit our lives and all of our affairs into the hands of Almighty God He never makes a mistake!

Congregational Meetings

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

NAPANEE — Trinity United Church annual meeting began as a happy family gathering with members of the congregation sitting down together to a pot-luck supper. Then the children left for the Sunday School assembly hall, where Roy Lawrence, as in other years, entertained them with a film. This year it was Walt Disney's "Nature's Half-Acre," and many of the adults regretted not being able to join the children.

A highlight of the evening was the burning of a redeemed note representing the payment of $2,500 This was the pleasant task of Mr. John Gibson, an honorary elder.

On behalf of the Explorer group, Janey Woolsey presented a cheque for $100 to Mr. Jesse MacLean, chairman of the M. and M. committee. The gift is to be used for the mission work of the church in Canada and overseas. This represented a large contribution coming from a few young girls.

WILL CLEAR DEBT BY MARCH

A third financial event was the presentation of a cheque by the UCW, a cheque which cut into the last $1,000 of Trinity's debt. Hope was expressed that the debt could be cleared entirely before the anniversary in March.

Werk Poole, chairman of the Board of Stewards, announced plans for a visitation of the congregation this fall.

Limbert Graham, a member of the session, spoke in glowing terms of the work which is being done by the minister, the Rev. E. Irvine Johnston and Mrs. Johnston.

Special features of the work of the church were noted. Infant care during the services is arranged by Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Gerald Perry and Mrs Jack Spencer with the assistance of many women of the church. The Cub pack is under the leadership of Mrs. Eleanor Tack and Mrs. Dibb, and the Scouts are led by Kennetn Coleman.

The special mission projects include: providing space for the retarded children's nursery school for the vacation school, and for Alcoholics Anonymous; a gift to a student minister who is at Queen's Theological College, and his family; and fostering a boy in Greece. This is a UCW project.

Miss Gandier's Sewing class came in for special attention. Organized by the late Miss Lilith Gandier as a project in missionary work for her Sunday school class in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, it has continued in Trinity Church since Church union. During the year this class furnished treats at Christmas for all patients in the nursing home, and gave for al shut-ins of the church, provided beding for a burned out local family, gave financial aid the local public health nurse.

For the first time, women were elected as elders in Trinity United Church. Mrs. George Switzer is now an honorary elder, and Mrs. Percy Asselstine and Mrs. F. B. Mills are elders. Dale Clarke, Donald Hogarth, Lorne VanLuven and Lewis Wagar were also elected as elders.

The recording steward is A. D. Mossop, and the secretary of the Board of Stewards is Warren Gilbert.

New members of the Board of Stewards are Dr. Douglas Galt, Edward Hooper, Laing Howitt, and William Shurtleff. Roy Lawrence, Douglas Mayhew, William Raycraft and Elburn Zeran, also elected, had served at other times.

The pastor reported that he had performed 28 baptisms during the year and 12 marriages, and officiated at 43 funerals or burial services. During the year, 33 new members have been welcomed to the church.

Club Activities

GRACE CHURCH COUPLES CLUB

NAPANEE — Grace Church Couples Club, organized a month ago, had its first regular meeting Wednesday evening, with over 60 people having a thoroughly good time.

Bob Hicks, co-president, was in the chair, and called on Mr. and Mrs. David Smith to conduct the opening devotional period.

February 12 a sleighing party has been planned to include children, also, and then everyone will gather at the church for a bean supper. Two days later, all who wish will visit the still unopened hospital, where Mr. J. C. Hepburn, the administrator, and Mr. William Humphrey, the maintenance supervisor, will lead them on a tour of the hospital, which will be ready to receive its first patient March 1.

The program conveners, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Martin, took charge, and supervised a singing game to start the program. Group singing under Gail Rogers leadership followed, and Mrs. Grant Sexsmith sang two familiar songs.

The program included a humorous skit based on an executive meeting held the week before at the home of the joint presidents. Taking part were: Keith and Muriel McTaggart, Irene and Bill Hinch, Bob and Mary Esther Hicks, Eleanor and Don Hart, Carman Thompson, Lorraine Boomhour, and Bud Martin. Relay games supervised by the McTaggarts brought the program to a close, and everyone enjoyed refreshments arranged by the social conveners, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Rogers.

The first regular meeting was voted an unqualified success.

R. Russell Is New Division Court Clerk

NAPANEE — The Division Court for Lennox and Addington has a new clerk. Robert A. Russell, an insurance salesman, was sworn in Monday afternoon by Judge G. F. Smith of Napanee, and took up his new duties the following morning.

"Bob" Russell is a Napanee boy, and he and his brother John operated a food market here after returning from the Second World War, where he serve. in the Royal Canadian Air Force. Three years ago they sold the IGA store.

Mr. Russell expects to open an office in the Doyle's Window Sales building, the former Daly Tea Co. building.

He succeeds W. V. Webster, clerk for the division court for 12 years. Mr. Webster retired late in 1965 because of failing health. County Crown Attorney Kenneth S. Ham has been filling the position temporarily.

Employment Rate High

NAPANEE — Paul Cox, National Employment officer in Napanee, reports that the unemployment situation here is a good one. It has been a good winter. There have been temporary layoffs, as some plants made adjustments, but most of these men have been called in again.

Tradesmen are available, however, painters, plumbers and carpenters, most of them between jobs. Their services for house renovations can be obtained more easily now then during the summer, Mr. Cox adds, and he urges householders to get these jobs done now.

At the end of January 551 men were registered, as against 576 the year before. In December there wer 435. Unemployed females numbered 203, at the end of January, as against 261 at that time in 1965. In December, only 139 were registered, but Mr. Cox says the picture is not as black as it looks. Many of these were short term layoffs, and many had not previously been in the labor force, had registered for possible employment in the new hospital. All of these have been interviewed, and many have been hired Others are now being interviewed for the second time.

Continue Mass Picketing at Oshawa Paper

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Defiance of the use of court injunctions in labor disputes and a willingness to go to jail if necessary in any battle with police has been expressed by union leaders in this industrial city of 75,000.

The union men were discussing Friday night possible results of labor action in the American Newspaper Guild's dispute with the Oshawa Times, where mass picketing has continued despite a court injunction issued last Monday which ordered pickets kept to a maximum of 10.

More than 100 pickets set up lines early today at the three entrances of the plant. The number ebbed and flowed in the 10 - degree temperature and dropped to about 25 later in the day.

On Friday, management applied to the Ontario Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus to enforce an order restricting picketing, it also sought an amendment barring all picketing.

Queensboro

QUEENSBORO — Miss Jessie Green has returned to her home here after spending the last two months in Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Green of Toronto are spending the winter here with her.

Mrs. Fred Holmes of Madoc was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Goldie Holmes.

Mrs. Harry Declair, Mrs. C. A. McMurray, Mrs. Harold Tokley, Mrs. Kenneth Cassidy, Mrs. Kenneth Sexsmith and Mrs. James Gordon spent Wednesday in Belleville and attended the annual meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial United Church Women held in Bridge Street United Church.

Mrs. James Clarke has returned home after spending several weeks as a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Caffin were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Raw.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Franklin spent a few days last week with Mrs. Martha Shangraw at Harrowsmith. Mrs. Shangraw returned home with them on the weekend.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Which is the best way to go to Port Arthur and Fort William and how long would it take this time of year? — A. R. Belleville

ANSWER: Your best route for your trip to Port Arthur, would be the Trans-Canada Highway. Stay on 401 to Toronto to Highway 400 north, then 12 103 and 69 to Sudbury, turn west on 17 to Sault Ste. Marie and then on to Port Arthur. This highway is well plowed at all times and sanded where necessary. The Ontario road map may be obtained at the Ontario Motor League office. This is a 1,150 mile trip, average driving time is 20 hours.

QUESTION: Could you please tell me when the Indianapolis 500 race will be run? Also what the hotel situation will be like? — G. G. Trenton.

ANSWER: The Indianapolis 500 race will be run Monday, May 30, with time trials on May 13, 14, 20 and 21. Gates will be open at 7 a.m. on Saturday and 9 a.m. on Sunday; admission will be $2.

All hotels and motels require a 3-day minimum reservation at advanced rates with full amount to be paid in advance. Rates are almost doubled and very few single reservations are available. All motels in the speedway area are already completely filled. The rates for private homes are approximately $7.50 per person per day, full amount to be paid in advance. Most of the private homes require a minimum of three nights, however some will take for two nights. The majority have double beds and share the bath, but a few have twin beds and private full or half baths.

QUESTION: I am interested in a week's holiday for two sometime in the spring around Easter. I was thinking about Florida or Bermuda. What is the less expensive, for a couple, including transportation and all other expenses? At what time are the off-season rates available? The time could be anywhere from March to the end of April no later. — "Curious"

ANSWER: April 15 and on, would be the best for lower priced accommodation. As for transportation, car travel of course is the cheapest, next in line would be bus. For a trip like you outlined, why not go by bus, on a eeludsed tour and let them look after all the details?

South) said he believes they are legal and should be pressed until the rebel government of Ian Smith is brought down.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada hasn't lost much as a result of the sanctions. The annual trade with Rhodesia amounted to "a paltry $6,000,000 or $8,000,000."

"We did not introduce sanctions against South Africa because the trade there amounted to $40,000,000 or $50,000,000."

The Conservative leader said the British government would be happy to have Canada try to end the situation.

"Every day that it continues, irreparable harm is being done there. Wounds are being inflicted, wounds of the soul, sentimental wounds that are harder to heal than physical wounds."

ENCOURAGES TREASON

External Affairs Minister Martin said Canada can't deal with a government that doesn't legally exist. Such action would encourage treason and rebellion.

It would damage Canadian relations with African, Caribbean and Asian countries, he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker also suggested an international convention of "average men and women" from NATO and Western European countries to discuss the possibility of an Atlantic federation.

If President de Gaulle had his way, NATO would end in 1969 and an Atlantic compact should be considered, he said.

Former defence minister Douglas Harkness said Canada should either pull out of the international truce supervisory commission in Viet Nam or greatly reduce its role.

COSTS MILLIONS

He said the commission has been immobilized for four years. Despite this, it had probably cost Canada $1,300,000 to $2,000,000 last year.

Terry Nuggent (PC—Edmonton-Strathcona) said Americans are in Viet Nam illegally. He challenged Mr. Martin to justify U.S. action there.

Gore

THE GORE — Miss Pat Townsend of Toronto was a weekend guest of her parents: Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Townsend.

Among those in Toronto on Saturday attending the Canada Farm and Industrial Equipment show at the coliseum were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Redner, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Redner, Wilbert and Ronald Green, Gerald Brooks and Morris Pulver.

Mrs. Morris Pulver and Mrs. Floyd Carter spent Thursday and Friday in Picton taking the leaders' course for the girls 4-H-club project on supper menus.

The A.O.T.S. club of the Rednerville Pastoral Charge held its February meeting at Centre on Wednesday evening. Supper was served by the members of the U.C.W. A film, "What causes motor accidents," was shown.

Foxboro

FOXBORO — Mrs. George Hicks returned home on Saturday night after spending the past month in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schell were in Milton on Saturday attending the wedding of their nephew.

Mr. Harold returned to his home after spending some time as a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Skinner were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Buskard on Saturday night in honor of their silver wedding anniversary.

OPEN SCHOOLS TO ALL

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico will have enough teachers and schools to offer education to all the nation's children in 1970, the education ministry reports. There were 5,600 new teachers graduated in 1965.

Christian, Hindu, Buddhist, Jew Share B.C. Ashram

Written for CP

By JEAN BAKER

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — The shake-shingled cottage on Kootenay Lake looks like a summer home but the function of Yasodhara Ashram belies its appearance.

This is a community believing in the universality of religions. Here Christian, Hindu, Buddhist and Jew pray, chant and meditate together.

The ashram—an Indian na [illegible] for a group of students seeking spiritual truth—was established last July on 83 acres of fruitland and forest rolling back from the mountain lake.

Its founders are two Germans whose names in this Temple of All Religions are Swami Sivananda-Radha and Swami Premanda. The former was Sylvia Hellman, who danced on the German concert stage, and the latter Joseph J. Gnilka, a building contractor.

Both have studied at Rishekesh, an Indian ashram, and have taken their vows of sannyasa, dedicating themselves to "the service of God and man."

RABBI JOINS

With them at present are a young rabbi, a 25-year-old surveyor from England and a 26-year-old assistant surveyor from Alberta, a mother and her two children and a teacher from the school at Riondel, 28 miles away.

All have separate living quarters in small cottages and eat at the main lodge beneath a large painting of the Buddha.

Each member goes into the community or country daily to work and contributes his earnings to the ashram.

They worship together in the peak-roofed main room overlooking the lake. They sit in a circle, one member playing the harmonium and everyone singing. They may chant manteas or Negro spirituals, or burst into a kind of hootenanny to guitar [illegible]

"God is universal, yet man has followed many paths in seeking Him," says Swami Radha. "All religions advocate the fundamental principles of truth, love, selflessness and moderation.

"They are also alike in making use of certain essential spiritual practices, such as prayer, chanting and meditation."

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Sports Editor

I've been tabbed an egghead, a nitwit, a front-runner, a creature that children should shy away from a prophet without a country or a brain and one who occupies a high spot on the payroll of one Robert Marvin Hull, formerly of Point Anne and now a prominent figure in pro hockey circles up around Chicago way.

I am not particularly popular in some sets. There's one that congregates about once a week and hassles about hockey, bullfighting, marital troubles and the bull market. This suds syndicate between frequent tonsil lubrications, does not hesitate, if they cannot settle an argument, to reach Mr. Bell's instrument and dial any number anywhere from two to four ayem.

They cover a wide range. I've had 2.30-3.15 a.m. calls asking from how many burps the former Australian wonder horse Phar Lp could belch in a given ten-minutes, to the name of the yougster Babe Ruth visited in Loose Tooth, Arizona back in 1942.

The current topic and question in sports circles especially hockey and feminine clubs is "Can Bobby Hull beat the record?"

(I know, I know, I promised to lay off the subject in order not to put the whammy on Hull).

But since the SSOFB (Suds Syndicate of Froth Blowers) hauled me ou of my nest at 2.45 a.m. the other day, I've decided to re-enter the lists but from a different point.

I'm going to put the whammy on the whammy. I'm going to double lens the evil eye.

The beery question that stuttered over my telephone three hours before yawning time, was "Hull has the 50-record in the bag - or should have. Do you think he can score 50 in 50 games to equal Rocket Richard's game record?"

The Point Ann wizard himself doesn't even suggest that he will perform the feat of scoring 50 times in 50 NHL games and become the first to achieve that number of goals since the Rocket did it in the 1944-45 season.

Records, like hearts and promises, were made to be broken and it is one of the peculiar quirks of our mental machinery that when an athlete, I don't care what phase of athletics, nears a world record, or shows signs of beating it, John Fan's support mechanism starts to click for the guy to break the mark — even if the title holder is a close friend.

A lot of hockey buffs appear to have taken for granted that Hull will exceed the 50-goals mark over the seasonal schedule of 70 games. As was noted they're now concentrating on the beat the fifty-fifty record.

I do not buy that. Hull is but six goals away from the half-century mark. In my years of covering the sports beat I've discovered that no contest is over and finished until, figuratively speaking, the last man is out in the bottom of the ninth.

I also discovered that there is superstition as well as sentiment in sport. I'm not superstitious. I'll shoo a black cat out of my way on Friday; walk under a ladder; throw my hat on a bed and whistle in a dressing room.

Hull has scored 44 goals in the 41 games he has played. He has 25 games left to break the 50-record over a season and nine games to score seven goals to beat the Richard goal-a-game mark.

So I'm putting the whammy on the whammies with all fingers crossed. Not a few times have I seen. read and heard about the last-minute jinx or an eleventh hour gremlin swooping down to do its nefarious work. I'm not going to mention them. That's my big whammy.

Hawks, Leafs Tangle Back-To-Back

By GARY McCARTHY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Noel Price, rugged veteran defenceman, could well be nicknamed "Suitcase" Price.

The six-foot, 185-pound rearguard has played with seven teams, prior to this season, since he turned professional in 1956.

And the 30-year-old native of Brockville, Ont., can add two more teams this year to his list—Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Price started the 1965-66 campaign with the Aces but was called up to the Canadiens Thursday morning after defenceman Jean-Guy Talbot suffered a sudden back ailment.

Price played an outstanding game for the Canadiens against Toronto Maple Leafs Thursday night with solid body checking and picked up two assists, including the play that helped Jean Beliveau score the winning goal as Montreal edged the Leafs 5-4.

Price is expected to see action in both of the Canadiens' weekend games — against Detroit Red Wings in Montreal tonight and against the Rangers in New York Sunday night.

In Saturday's other scheduled NHL games, Chicago Black Hawks play at Toronto and New York meets the Bruins in Boston.

In Sunday's other games, Toronto is at Chicago and Boston at Detroit.

Price played one game with Rochester Americans of the AHL in 1956-57 and was then shipped to Winnipeg of the Western League where he played in 70 games.

The Canadiens are expected to be without another defenceman for tonight's game against the Red Wings, who are tied for first place with Chicago. Ted Harris has been sidelined for more than two weeks with a shoulder fracture.

WINGS LOSE TWO

The Red Wings will be without defenceman Doug Barkley, sidelined with a serious eye injury, and Ab MacDonald, who hasn't seen much action since straining a thigh muscle recently. MacDonald was sent to Memphis of the Central League to play himself into condition.

Toronto netminder Terry Sawchuk tonight faces the job of stopping Chicago's record-seeking Bobby Hull.

Hull, the league's leading goal scorer with 44, needs only seven more goals in his next 25 games to break the record of 50 goals in a season.

The left winger, who has payed 41 of Chicago's 45 games, shares the record of 50 goals in a season with former Montreal stars Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

The last time the two teams met in Toronto, the Leafs blanked the Hawks 4-0.

Toronto will be without veteran netminder Johnny Bower and defenceman Marcel Pronovost. Bower was injured in the pregame warmup last Saturday and Pronovost suffered a leg injury against the Rangers in New York last Sunday.

Bob Baun will take Pronovost's place on the Toronto bench against Chicago. Baun returned to the Leafs Thursday night after being sidelined nine weeks with torn knee ligaments.

Rookie Brit Selby, who suffered a cut over the left eye during a fight with Montreal's John Ferguson Thursday night, is also expected to play. Selby required seven stitches to close the cut.

Quebec Bonspiel

Montreal Rink Eyes Twin Honors

By AL McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—It's one down and two to go as far as skip Carl Ott of Montreal's Outremont Curling Club is concerned in the Quebec International Bonspiel.

Ott skipped his Outremont foursome to victory and a 9-0 record in the final round of the Chateau Frontenac section A trophy play Friday. He now has a stranglehold on another prize—the grand aggregate award—presented annually to the rink finishing the bonspiel with the best won-lost record.

Earlier in the day the Outremont quartet racked up their eighth straight in downing Bruce Crutchfield's Quebec rink 11-7 in quarter-final play for the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy, considered the top prize of the week-long bonspiel.

Three Ontario rinks, one from New Brunswick, and one from the U.S. won the other trophies awarded Friday night.

Neil Speicher's Toronto rink won the Francois Jobin Gold Cup in Section B play by beating Middleton's rink 9-5. Burlington, Ont., which has seven rinks entered, gained recognition with Ernie Dennison's capture of the Dow Section C award.

WON BOWL

Dennison, who sports an 8-1 record with two games remaining, beat Toronto's Ulfe Blok-Andersen 14-4 in C section play.

Veteran Nels Findlay scored the third Ontario victory. The Galt skip carried off the Wedgwood Bowl as section F winner by beating Jim Grant of Baie d'Urfe, Que., 15-11.

Dr. Robert Chalmers of Fredericton won the Waltham Watch Landry-Jacot section D trophy when he doubled the score on Jacques Girard of Quebec Jacques Cartier 10-5.

The lone winner from a field of nine U.S. rinks, was Ken Moebius of Milwaukee, Wis. Moebius guided his foursome past Hamilton's R. V. Kemp 15-13 to carry off the Holt-Renfrew section E trophy.

In other quarter-final play for the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy, Dennison beat Dr. Maurice Campbell of Trois-Rivieres, Que., 6-5, while Dr. Hambley beat Jim Fraser's St. Catharines, Ont., rink 9-8.

MANTLE LEAVES HOSPITAL

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP)—Baseball's Mickey Mantle will leave St. Mary's Hospital this weekend following an operation by Mayo Clinic physicians to remove a bone chip from his right shoulder. The New York Yankee star will remain here for several weeks for physical therapy.

Bull Did The Throwing!

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Bloodless bull fighting made its debut in the Harris County dome stadium Friday night. It was greeted with the gusto usually accorded a championship football team.

One of the world's finest matadors, Paco Camino of Spain, was the top attraction of what was promoted as the U.S. premier of bull fighting.

Jaime Bravo of Mexico, one of the first to appear before the estimated 32,000 spectators, delightened, then frightened, the crowd with his daring.

As Bravo enticed the bull to charge, the hulking black beast plunged toward the matador's body, lifted him into the air on his horns and pitched him back to the ground. The crowd gasped.

But Bravo leaped to his feet and the spectators applauded in relief He later flashed his cape before the bull repeatedly, as both the crowd and the dome's famous scoreboard rewarded him with "Ole! Ole! Ole!"

Again the bull pitched Bravo into the air, but again he escaped unhurt.

Slight apprehension, bred by controversy surrounding the $300,000 venture, faded among the spectators at the appearance of the first fighters.

It appeared, judging from the crowd's reaction, that the event was just what a district judge "ordered" earlier this week when he ruled in favor of the bullfight in an injunction suit.

Judge Wilmer B. Hunt said he construed the exhibition as one of "skill and daring and grace" and not as a battle between a man and an animal, therefore legal in Texas.

None of the bulls was wounded in any way.

Senior Scoring

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Joe Hogan of Galt Hornets and Jack Price of Oakville Oaks continued their duel for Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series scoring honors with Hogan maintaining a one-point lead.

Hogan scored three points during the week, giving him 51 on 19 goals and a league-leading 32 assists. Price, who leads in goals with 25, also has 25 assists for 50 points.

Centre Bob Robinson of Woodstock Athletics moved into contention with a six-point performance this week. He has 19 goals and 29 assists for 48 points.

Harold (Boat) Hurley of Guelph Regals retained his lead in goaltending with a 3.42 average.

Opinions Differ

Hoffa Plans Sports Union

DETROIT (AP) — James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, has organized an impressive array of sports leaders—against his plan to unionize professional athletes.

Hoffa said Friday that his union is embarking on a campaign to enlist players from "baseball, football, basketball, hockey, et cetera" in a giant union that would be a separate division of the Teamsters.

Hoffa's announcement came after the disclosure that one of his assistants, Charles (Chuck) O'Brien, had met this week with veteran members of Detroit Lions of the National Football League, who were reported to be disgruntled over their salaries.

O'Brien said he got "a good reception" in talking with more than a dozen members of the Lions. But Hoffa's announcement drew a chorus of wry comment from various sports leaders.

"Why doesn't he try to organize corporate presidents?" retorted Commissioner Joe Foss of the American Football League.

BUNNING COMMENTS

"I think Hoffa has about as much chance of getting baseball players in his union as I have of getting to the moon without a rocket," said pitcher Jim Bunning of Philadelphia Phillies, an executive council member of baseball's Players' Association.

"To successfully organize a group, I think there must be some discontent," said Bill Jennings, president of New York Rangers. "I know of none in the National Hockey league."

"We can make truck drivers out of 'em (football players) real easy," snapped Lions' owner William Clay Ford.

Baseball's new commissioner, Gen. William Eckert, said "The players have their own organization. I have noticed only the finest relationship between players and owners."

Figure Championships

Toronto Skaters Dominate

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Toronto competitors dominate the list of entries for the 1966 Canadian figure-skating championships being held here Feb. 5-12.

Oldtimers Win 10-4

EDMONTON (CP)—The Ontario branch of the National Hockey League old - timers trounced Edmonton Nuggets of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League 10-4 in an exhibition game here Friday night.

The old-timers were led by Brian Cullen and Danny Lewicki with two goals each. Harry Watson, Murray Henderson, Barry Cullen, Bob Beckett, Cal Gardner and Sid Smith added the others.

Senior OHA

Galt, Guelph Keep Pace

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Athletics downed Galt Hornets 7-6 Frday night but Guelph Regals defeated Oakville Oaks 6-2 to maintain their six-point edge over the Hornets in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings.

Bobby Robinson, with his second goal of the night, tied it up in the third and Don MacGregor fired in the winner with five minutes remaining in the game.

Ted Power, also with two, Jerry Serviss and Gerry Stringle completed the scoring for Woodstock.

Carl Hatt had two goals for Galt and Larry Zilliotto, Jim Rendall, Bob Hall and Ivan Tennant got the others.

Joe Maio and Bob Pole scored twice each for the Regals, and Dave Luciuk and Terry Oliver got one each.

Jack Price scored both Oakville goals.

Flyers Drubbed By Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Junior Canadiens turned on the power in the last period Friday night to break a 2-2 tie and defeat Niagara Falls Flyers 5-2 in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action.

Kitchener Rangers downed Toronto Marlboros 8-3.

Lucien Grenier led the Montreal comeback with two goals and Michel Lapalme completed the scoring. Carol Vadnais and Jacques Lemaire scored the other two goals. Bud Debrody got both goals for the Flyers.

Kitchener took a 7-1 lead with help from Kenny Gratton who scored three times. Bill Hway scored twice and singles went to Randy Legge. Bob Cook and Walt Tkaczuk.

Toronto scorers were Jim McKenny, Brent Imlach and Tom Martin.

Waterloo, Galt Rinks In Finals

GALT (CP)—Bob Mann of Waterloo Glenbrier moved into the Ontario Curling Association finals Friday night with a 10-8 victory over John Ross of Toronto Parkway.

Mann, District 8 champion, needed a victory in the sudden-death final game to eliminate Ross and take the best-of-three playoff with the District 7 champion two games to one.

Vice-skip Gerry Hanson, second Ross Campbell and lead Paul Campbell will accompany Mann to the provincial finals in Brampton next week.

GALT (CP)—A Galt Curling Club rink skipped by Bob Serviss won the District 8A Rose Bowl curling championship Friday with a 7-4 victory over Syd Smithers, also of Galt.

Smithers eliminated Norm Constantine of Guelph 10-6 in a morning preliminary round and then downed Doug Schlichter of Kitchener 12-4 in afternoon semi-finals.

Serviss drew a morning bye and then eliminated Hal Pounder of Stratford 10-5 in the semi-finals.

SARNIA (CP)—Sarnia rinks flooded the main event of the Bluewater bonspiel Friday—entering teams out of four in semi-final play.

Royal Smith, Bob Rand and Bob Ireson all advanced to the semi-finals with Norm Anderson's rink from Forest, Ont., the only out-of-town rink participating.

Defeated in quarter-final play were Gil Walker of London, Ont., Don Hicks of Richmond Hill, Ron Fleet of St. Thomas and Sid Smithers of Galt.

Defeat Norwood Jrs., Bantams Lose

Nicholson Seniors Win

By DAVID HURST

Nicholson College senior basketballers chalked up their third victory in a row here last night, defeating Norwood High School 57-31 in a Quinte COSSA "B" game.

The Norwood teams reversed the divisions in the other games of the triple-header their juniors winning 74-24 and the bantams taking a 31-30 win.

The Nicholson seniors outplayed their opponents at both ends of the court with Doug Meagher doing some fine offensive work and defensive rebounding. He scored 11 points.

Excellent clutch shooting by John Doran and Peter Gleason added to the offensive. Doran led his team with 17 points with Gleason sinking the ball for 14 points.

Other scorers for Nicholson were David Hurst with 13 and Jim Lawlor with two.

B. Scarlett led the Norwood points getters with 13; A. Curtis and P. Hebor each scoring 6.

The junior game was scarcely a contest with the visitors winning by 50 points.

Starring were Roy Haig and Don Selby each with 17 points, Lyman Harden with 15 and Terry Stillman with 12.

Scoring for Nicholson were Pat Beirne with 8, Brad Scully, five and Bob Morley with four.

The bantam game was a close fought affair, a single point separating the socres.

Nicholson scorers were Dale Selby, 13; Murray Bullock, 6; and Bob Fleming and Jim Garden with four each.

Terrell, Clay Mar. 29

CHICAGO (AP) — World heavyweight champion Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell, designated champion by the World Boxing Association will meet in a 15-round title bout at Chicago's International Amphitheatre Tuesday, March 29.

The formal signing of contracts for the match was announced at a press conference Friday by co - promoters Irv Schoenwald and Ben Bentley.

The March 29 date was demanded by the promoters, although Clay's camp held out for a time for either April 12 or 19.

Main Bout Inc., with Mike Malitz as spokesman, said the bout would be carried on closed-circuit television.

Clay will get 50 per cent of all receipts while Terrell will get 20 per cent across the board.

Crothers Brilliant In New York Meet

Wins 880, Relay

NEW YORK (CP) — Bill Crothers returned to Madison Square Garden — and the half mile—Thursday night and easily vindicated his sad showing here last week in the mile.

The 25 - year - old Markham, Ont., pharmacist won the half mile in 1:51.8, equalling the record for the Knights of Columbus indoor athletic meet, and then sparked Toronto's East York Track Club to victory in the one-mile relay.

And in the Crothers tradition he did it all seemingly without half trying.

"I ran the race I wanted to," said the limp-limbed Crothers, a master at the art of relaxation. "But I laid back too long for any record time."

The world indoor record of 1:49.8 is held by Tom Farrell of New York who Thursday won the 1,000 yards, beating Toronto's Ergas Leps by inches in a last-minute struggle after Leps seemed to have it in the bag.

RUN SLOW MILE

In the mile, won by John Davis of New Zealand in a dull 4:04.2, Dave Dailey of the East York Club and Jim Irons of Toronto Olympic placed fifth and sixth respectively in the six-man event.

Crothers' victory brought him the Francis Cardinal Spellman Jubilee Trophy. Cardinal Spellman presented the cup.

In the half - mile Thursday, Crothers ran last most of the way, moving to second in the five-man field with two laps remaining and breezed to the front at the start of the final lap.

He soon had 10 yards between himself and second - place George Germann of South Orange, N.J., and finished about seven yards ahead. Germann's time was 1:52.7 and Frank Tomeo of the U.S. marines, who in 1962 set the games record matched by Crothers Thursday, came third in 1:53.5.

Crothers saved the day for East York in the relay, about an hour after the half - mile event, when he did the anchor leg in 47.7.

East York was in second place when Crothers took over and in his quarter wrested the lead from New York Pioneer Club and kept extending the gap down to the tape.

The first three East York legs were run by Dave McClure, Al Brereton and George Shepherd.

ROTATE TROOPS

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will rotate its troops in Cyprus in April if the United Nations extends its peace - keeping mandate there beyond March 26, the defence department said Friday. Ready to move into the island are the 2nd battalion of the Black Watch, Camp Gagetown, N.B., and B. Squadron of the 8th Canadian Hussars, Camp Petawawa, Ont.

Given Trophy, Scores Four

Silver-And-Goals Night For Bob Boyle

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

They could have billed this one as "Bobby Boyle Night".

Rollins Juniors' starry centre not only received the club's MVP award for last season but scored four goals and assisted on two others to pace a 10-4 whipping of the Cobourg Cougars.

In another junior "B" tilt Trenton and Peterborough played to a 4-4 tie.

The Petes are here against Rollins in a "must" game for both clubs at 8.15 Monday night.

Boyle was presented with the Bobby Hull Trophy as the 1964-65 MVP by Mrs. Robert Hull Sr. between periods last night. Meanwhile, Grant Hagerman received the Bill Cook Memorial Trophy, from Dick Beare, as the player best combining sportsmanship and ability.

Belleville spotted the Cougars two quick goals before taking a 4-2 first period lead. They upped it to 8-3 by the end of the second while outshooting the visitors on the night 48-36 Nineteen of Cobourg's shots came in the first period, most of them in the fir[illegible]e minutes.

Boyle boosted [illegible] seasonal goal output to 22 and his points total to 41 with his six-point performance. His fourth goal, at 14.42 of the middle frame was a masterpiece. He carried the length of the ice, leaping over a defenceman to get in alone for the marker.

Rollins' slow start enabled Paul Massey and Frank Godfrey to build Cobourg's 2-0 lead by 2.17. Pringle slapped one home for the winners at 5.18 and Boyle's first tied it seconds later. He put the club ahead to stay at 8.14 with the teams five aside and Fleming added the fourth at 15.37.

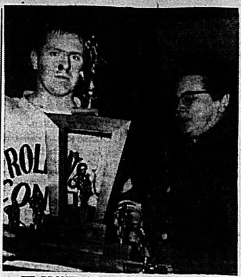
Belleville made it 6-2 while Duval was off early in the second. Boyle set Fleming up on a pretty two-on-one play at 2.17 and coverted Pott's pass at 2.58. Gus Bambridge got one for Cobourg before White rattled another home off the post at 9.39. Then came Boyle's fourth.

Stewart and Townsend for Belleville and Massey's second for Cobourg accounted for the third - period scoring.

Aiding Boyle on the Rollins' attack was Pete Fleming with two goals and an assist and defence ace Doug Potts with four assists, Harold Townsend, Larry Stewart, Steve White and Jim Pringle also scored. Carl Boomhower got two assists and Dale Duval one.

Cobourg is reported to have a number of players under suspension and had only ten dressed for the game. Belleville is still missing Grant Hagerman with a knee injury that is slow in recovery.

The losers took six of 11 minor penalties.



HE PROVED IT — Bobby Boyle receives the Bobby Hull Trophy as the Rollins Juniors "most valuable player" from Mrs. Hull Sr. at last night's game. Bobby showed his appreciation by whipping home four goals in the team's 10-4 win.

WELL-DESERVED — Grant Hagerman was adjudged the player showing the best sportsmanship and ability in the ranks of the juniors and receives the Bill Cook Memorial Trophy from Dick Beare.

Cobourg: Austin, Campbell, R. Stevenson, Elinesky, G. Stevenson, Gillis, Godfrey, Buttar, Bambridge, Massey.

Belleville: Brant, Potts, Towneend, Boomhower, Pringle, Duval, Marks, Boyle, Fleming, White, Stewart.

Referee - Gord Lowe, of Kingston.

Linesmen - Flori Goegan and Lou Smrke, of Belleville.

SUMMARY

FIRST PERIOD

1. Cobourg - Massey (Bambridge) 1.51
2. Cobourg - Godfrey (Bambridge, R. Stevenson) 2.17
3. Belleville - Pringle (Boomhower, Duval) 5.18
4. Belleville - Boyle (Fleming) 5.52
5. Belleville - Boyle (Potts) 8.14
6. Belleville - Fleming (Boyle) 15.37

Penalties: R. Stevenson, White.

SECOND PERIOD

Rangers, Blazers Tie 1-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota Rangers and league-leading Oklahoma City Blazers put on a defensive show Friday night and wound up in a 1-1 Central Professional Hockey League tie in Oklahoma City.

Neither team could score until the final period when Ranger Paul Andrea hit at 1:15 and Blazer Ron Buchanan scored at 4:08.

The tie increased Oklahoma City's advantage over second-place St. Louis Braves to three points.

In the only other league game Friday night, Memphis Wings were bombed by Houston Apollos 5-1 in Memphis.

Rochester Clips Loss String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Americans, who have run into trouble with their American Hockey League colleagues recently, found the antidote Friday night—an interlocking game with a Western League club.

The defending champions were in the throes of a four-game losing streak that was whittling away their substantial lead in the AHL's Western Division when San Francisco Seals came to town and dropped a 5-3 decision.

In other AHL games, Cleveland Barons edged Springfield Indians 3-2, and Baltimore Clippers and Buffalo Bisons tied 2-2.

Veteran Dick Gamble, the league scoring leader, put on a show against the Seals, scoring one goal and setting up two by Jim Pappin and another by Mike Walton. Bronco Horvath got the other. Al Nicholson, John Gravel and Mike Harvey replied for San Francisco.

Joe Szura's second goal of the game with 3½ minutes left enabled Cleveland to snap the Indians' seven-game home winning streak. Keith McCreary also counted for the Barons while Yves Locas and Gerry Foley were the Springfield marksmen.

Billy Carter scored with just seven seconds of regulation time remaining to give the Bisons their first point of the season against Baltimore. The earlier Buffalo goals came from Pat Hannigan and Billy Dea, while Ray Cullen, Marc Dufour and Larry Regan were the Baltimore scorers.

Joe Atwell New President

Larks Sign Darrell Mudra As Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announced two surprise appointments Friday.

The club announced that Darrell Mudra has signed a three-year contract as coach and Joe Atwell has been elected club president.

Mudra, 37, former head coach of North Dakota State University, had turned down Montreal's offer to coach the club about a month ago.

Mudra said he thought he had made a mistake in refusing the Alouettes first offer, reported to be a two-year contract at $30,000 annually.

"It is an interesting challenge and I think we all have a lot of work ahead of us," Mudra said.

A week ago the Alouettes were planning to announce the appointment of Joe Restic, assistant coach of Hamilton Tiger - Cats, as Montreal head coach but he turned down the job. Then Ted Workman announced he was stepping down as the Als' general manager.

Atwell succeeds Workman as president. They are co-owners.

SHARES WORK

Workman said that the appointment of Atwell as president was so that the latter would "share the responsibility of the organization and take some of the pressure off me."

However, Workman would not say what position he now holds with the club.

Mudra succeeds Jim Trimble, released from the club last November.

In 1958, Mudra went to Colorado State as an assistant coach, and to work on his doctorate in psychology and physical education, which he completed in 1964.

Mudra, strong on offensive ingenuity, coached at Adams State from 1959 to 1962.

He joined North Dakota State as head coach and athleic director in 1963. North Dakota had not won a championship for 30 years and Mudra's record for that year was three wins and five losses.

However, in 1964 his team won 10 games and lost one and went to the Mineral Bowl game. His team had an 11-0 won-lost record in 1965 and won the Pecan Bowl, beating Grambling College 20-7.

ITALIAN BEATS AMERICAN

ROME (AP) — Italy's Nino Benvenuti, undefeated world junior - middleweight champion, won a 12-round decision over Don Fullmer of the United States Friday night in a non-title fight. The win boosted Benvenuti's hopes of gaining a middleweight title fight with champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria.

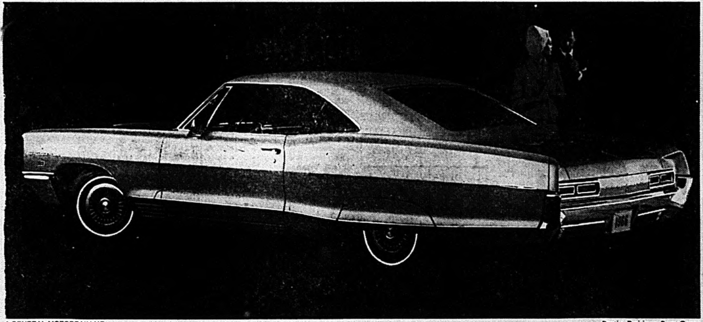
If you could go for a new brand of performance with this kind of beauty...



A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Pontiac Parisienne Sport Coupe

...then you don't have far to go! It's as near as your Pontiac dealer's!

Pontiac's beauty wins a lot of friends. You can tell that just by looking at it. But should you wish to find out what Pontiac's new brand of performance can do for you, you really have to drive the car. Before you do, let us tell you one thing: Once you've pulled away from the curb in a new Pontiac, be prepared to smile. You're pointed toward excitement. Acceleration is quick . . . very quick. Freeway cruising is smooth and quiet. And on the roughest, twistiest roads you can find, you'll be surprised that a car with so luxurious a big-car ride can be so agile. Before we forget the practical side of Pontiac, let's remember that each one of its 54 handsome models is a full-sized family car priced just right for the performance-lover with a budget to keep. Sound like we consider Pontiac the perfect car for you? We do. Visit your Pontiac dealer today and discover why. He is listed below. The Success Car has done it again.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The University of Toronto Blues slammed home 14 goals in hockey action Friday night to move within one point of the league leading University of Western Ontario Mustangs in Ontario Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association hockey action.

The Blues defeated the cellar - dwelling Guelph Redmen 14-2.

In Montreal, McGill University Redmen scored four goals in the third period to defeat Queen's Golden Gaels 6-3 and move into a tie for sixth place with Montreal Carabins.

Ward Passi scored three goals, and Gord Cunningham, Pete Burwash, Paul Laurent, Murray Stroud and Pat Monahan scored two each. A single goal went to Hank Monteith.

Dave Pellett and John Forsyth scored for the Redmen.

Dave Lough scored a pair of goals for Queen's. Jim Tait got the other.

"Era of Challenge and Change" Topic Given at I.O.D.E. Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E. Campbellford held their annual dinner Wednesday evening in the auditorium of St. John's United Church. Members of the order invited their husbands and friends as guests and about 175 attended.

Mrs. W. A. Kingston, Regent presided with Mr. and Mrs. Kingston at head table were: Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Benor, provincial representative; Mr. and Mrs. G. Vandewater, 1st Vice-Regent; Mr. and Mrs. F. M Rutherford, 2nd Vice-Regent; Mr. and Mrs. George Vice, Past Regent, and guest speaker Rev. T. B. Asbell of Mark Street United Church, Peterborough and Mrs. Asbell.

Mrs. Helen Anderson gave the toast to the guests which was responded to by Mr. Hilton Beatty.

Mrs. G. Vandewater introduced the speaker Rev. T. B. Asbell who is a graduate of Mount Allison University, New Brunswick, having held pastoral appointments in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario. Rev. Asbell was a padre with the Navy in World War II. The subject of his address was "The Era of Challenge and Change."

PRELUDE TO ADDRESS

As a prelude to his address a tape recording was given, partially, of a lecture by Harold Bosley an outstanding Methodist leader in the United States. This was part of the 5th lecture by this distinguished theologian at a religious conference in Whitby a few years ago. The gist of the lecture was the serious situation of the nations of the world with the weapons now in existence which could destroy life and civilization in a brief period of time.

CHOICE OF LIFE OR DEATH

The lecturer went on to state the great nations have bombs and the capacity to deliver them; he said it is not a choice between Communism and democracy, it is a choice between life and death, there is no middle ground. It does not matter who strikes first, the enemy has power to retaliate, everyone has a responsibility.

Rev. A. Asbell outlined what he considered the personal responsibility of every person as far as opportunity allowed. He stated a great process of change was in progress and steadily growing almost beyond imagination. There should be long range planning in church and state and in the minds of individuals to meet the challenge of today.

There must be courage of conviction to protest and publicize wrong doing, there must be a purpose in life, and a positive approach to do something worthwhile. There are the hungry, and the poor, and hunger is the greatest enemy of peace in the world. There are two elements contesting, those who look back with nostalgia on the past and who think what was good enough in the past is good enough for the present, and the world of the present and future reaching out for unheard of developments.

Mr. Asbell outlined the purpose of his radio program, Ask the Padre, heard five days a week over CHEX, where questions are phoned to the Padre and to which he expresses his opinion and direction. He said in the course of his remarks that Canada and particularly Ontario is fast becoming urbanized.

The speaker also felt that a radio program such as "Ask the Padre" was an outlet to protest and publicize in the areas of pornography, unsuitable T.V. programs, unclean paper back books, such protest could bring to the attention of the public the things that are wrong, and pressure on the proper sources to have some action taken, he said the protests are waged in a desire to help and this area is everyone's responibility.

Mrs. F. M. Rutherford expressed the appreciation of Bemersyde Chapter to Mr. Asbell.

Mr. Francis De Caroll favored with four vocal numbers which were warmly received.

Mrs. George Vice thanked Mr. De Carroll and the committee who arranged the program. Mrs. Donald Bennett presented the retiring Regent Mrs. W. A. Kingston with a gift and Mrs. Kingston also received a corsage as did Mrs. Asbell.

MATHEWS SIGNS

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Eddie Mathews, Atlanta Braves third baseman, has signed to play another year. It was the 15th major-league baseball contract for the 34-year-old slugger, who is reported to have received a raise over the estimated $50,000 he got for the 1965 season.

Says Golf Going To Country

TORONTO (CP)—E. Duncan Millican of Montreal, new president of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, said Friday the modern growth of major Canadian cities is forcing golf clubs into the suburbs.

He said high taxes resulting from rising land values have forced some established golf clubs to move out of Montreal and Toronto. In some cases, valuable golf course land was expropriated for commercial development forcing the club to seek another location.

He said this appears to be the fate for golf clubs in Canada's large, fast-growing cities.

Millican, 54, an insurance company executive, was interviewed following his election Friday as president at the association's annual meeting. He succeeds R. Bruce Forbes of Brantford.

Sarnia Minors Unbeaten In Tourney

PORT HURON, Mich. (CP)—Sarnia Black Hawks peewees and bantams of the Sarnia Minor Athletic Association won their third game in a row in the annual Silver Stick hockey tournament Friday.

AT THE BELLE — Doris Day stars in the romantic comedy, "Do Not Disturb", in CinemaScope and De Luxe comedy, showing Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

AT THE PARK — Margaret Rutherford, as Miss Marple, self-appointed investigator in a baffling murder case, explains the significance of her newest clue to detective inspector Craddock (Charles Tingwell) in "Murder Most Foul", newest of the popular Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer Agatha Christie mystery-thrillers opening Monday at the Park Theatre. On the same program the taut drama "Once a Thief" starring Alain Delon, Ann-Margaret, Van Heflin and Jack Palance. Both features are first showings. One complete show starts at 7.30.

AT THE PARK — Glamorous Ann-Margaret, voted one the year's top box-office stars, plays her latest role opposite French movie idol Alain Delon, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Once a Thief". This new romantic team sets off explosive fireworks in the taut drama of an ex-crook forced back into a life of crime. The picture was filmed entirely on locations in San Francisco and opens at the Park Theatre Monday. On the same program Margaret Rutherford in the comedy "Murder Most Foul". Both features are first showings. One complete show starts at 7.30 p.m.

Nationals Shade St. Hyacinthe

MONTREAL (CP) — Playing coach Jackie McLeod scored two goals in the third period to give Canada's national hockey team a 3-2 victory over St. Hyacinthe Gaulois in an exhibition hockey game Friday night.

McLeod scored the winner at 19:37 of the final period.

The Nationals travel to Hull, Que., for a game today against an Ottawa and District Athletic Association Senior all - star team. They meet the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series All-Stars in Guelph Sunday.

22 Hours of Cancelled Programs to Be Replaced

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The selling season is on, here and in the "think shops" of New York's Madison Avenue.

Decisions are being made that will determine the new television shows next season. A hundred or more pilots will be steering the shoals of unresponsive sponsors and uninterested networks.

Only one out of every four pilots will be chosen, the three networks having 22 hours of cancelled programs to replace.

Here are some of the proposed series the trade believes have good chances to be sold:

House of Wax—An hour version of the three-dimensional horror picture from Warner Brothers starring Cesare Danova and Wilfed Hyde-White.

The Sheriff — Contemporary heroics in a small California town with Gilbert Roland and Jim Stacy.

April Savage—A western starring Robert Lansing, drop-out of 12 O'Clock High.

The Jean Arthur Show—With her playing a criminal lawyer pitted against a prosecutor who happens to be her son.

Pistols and Petticoats—Featuring Ann Sheridan as a Calamity Jane type.

The Tammy Grimes Show—Situation comedy.

Mr. Terrific — With Alan Young as a milquetoast who turns into a superman.

The Pet Set—Barbara Rush as a veterinarian, Jason Evers as her lawyer husband.

Pursuit—Telly Savalas on the run a la Fugitive-Run for your Life.

Reckoning 8 Richard Beymer, Audrey Totter, Sidney Blackmer and seven other regulars in a serial of small-town life. Sound familiar?

The Girl from U.N.C.L.E.—Enough said?

The Rounders — Ron Hayes and Pat Wayne in the movie roles played by Henry Fonda and Glenn Ford.

From Here to Eternity—Darren McGavin in the Burt Lancaster role.

Iron Horse—Which would return Dale Robertson to television as operator of a frontier railway.

The Voice of Gruber Hill—Kay Stevens as operator of a small-town television station.

As you can perceive, the 1966-67 season promises more of the same.

Portland Shades Vancouver

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Scoring leaders of the Western and American hockey leagues showed their stuff in two games Friday night.

Dick Gamble of Rochester Americans scored once and assisted in three other goals as the AHL club defeated San Francisco Seals of the WHL 5-3 in an interlocking game.

Cliff Schmautz scored his 32nd goal of the WHL season as Portland Buckaroos overcame a 2-2 tie to defeat Vancouver Canucks 3-2.

Billy McNeill scored a goal and an assist for Vancouver.

Schmautz shattered the hopes of more than 4,000 Vancouver fans when he scored at 5:18 of the third period. Gerry Goyer and Art Jones got the other Portland goals. Howie Hughes scored his 29th for Vancouver.

Jim Pappin scored twice for Rochester and Mike Walton and Bronco Horvath got the others. For San Francisco it was Al Nicholson, Mike Harvey and John Gravel.

The Trots

WINDSOR (CP) — Horrells Sandy surged to a four-length vctory over Macduffs Lassie Friday night at Windsor Raceway to win the featured Invitational Trot for L and S Stables of Hyde Park, N.Y.

Ron Feagan brought home Sonnie Jim Abbe from Abbe Stables of Buffalo, N.Y., for Feagan's fourth consecutive win at Windsor this year.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For February 6

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Question of obtaining what is earned may arise. Have facts, figures available. Be specific. Not wise to mix business with pleasure. State case clearly. Then you gain respect.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Take time to be analytical. Applies especially when dealing with member of opposite sex. Patience, logic required. Tendency is to fly off handle. Overcome it!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Be articulate, explain views clearly. Stick to basic issues. When one in authority demands action, don't be stampeded. Adhere to style, principles . . .heed spiritual counsel.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Necessary to settle down! Coordinate thoughts, opinions. Do not run off on wild-goose chase . . . avoid unnecessary journey. Get sufficient rest. Stop scattering forces.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): What you feel is security may be transitory. Rely upon facts, not speculation. Fine for dealing with people of solid reputation. Best to say No to get-rich-quick scheme.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Much action indicated where agreements, public acceptance enter picture. Study Leo message. Don't wear yourself too thin. Realize timing is essential. Then you succeed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Basic duties may require much time. Plan ahead. Realize delaying tasks may prove costly. Be a self-starter. Take the initiative. New contact now proves fruitful later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be sure your views are consistent with the facts. Otherwise, close relationships are strained. Trust inner voice. Hunch about product, person apt to be valid.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Controversy at home base is but temporary. Advice of spiritual counselor helps. Gain cooperation of special group, organization. Don't take persons, situations for granted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Long range plans may require revision. No time to let pride stand in way of progress. Friend who advocates extreme methods may be off-base. You can advance toward goal if sensible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Study Leo, Virgo messages. Realize down-to-earth view is essential today. Be alert for hints, clues. Finances of mate or partner could require your personal attention. Be there!

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You learn facts concerning basic problems, issues. Events now call for direct action. If you delay, you create frustration. Inner turmoil is merely signal to get going!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are basically a diplomat, loyal to country and family. Would make excellent advisor to political leaders.

• • •

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Labor agreements — and conflicts — grab headlines.

For February 7

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Ideas, movement, change featured now. Avoid disputes with relatives. Be charming when surprise visit occurs. Key is patience, mature attitude. Don't rush!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — Mar. 20): Not wise to attempt expansion too quickly. Avoid extravagance. Study Aries message. Patch up domestic differences. Strive for harmony. Older friend may require a special aid.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Analyze motives. Don't fall prey to wishful thinking. Element of luck rides with you — but don't press it too hard. Fine for long-range planning . . . improving home comforts.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Pressure of added responsibility is evident. Combine past experience with current project. Not wise to try too many things at one time. Concentrate — perfect abilities.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Finish what you start. Be thorough. Opportunity exists to expand sphere of influence. Friend can aid cause. Show gratitude, turn on charm. Exhibit natural sense of showmanship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Be aware of career possibilities. Study contracts, special agreements. You can take initiative . . . be independent in thought, action. Highlight original approach.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Indirect approach now gains best results. Don't attempt to force decisions, issues. Share knowledge. Satisfy curiosity. Ask, observe — and learn.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be flexible. Those you depend upon may be too busy to help. Turn to new directions. Then experience widens — to your benefit. Key is willingness to expand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Exciting experiences; friends highlight day. Agreements affecting family security also figure prominently. To make most of this period . . . be thorough, cautious, observant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Friend who offers advice concerning travel, special study due to enter picture. Be perceptive. Read between the lines. You may be more aware than so-called experts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Be creative. Find new ways of self-expression. Get off beaten path. Means be pioneering. Show others that you have mind of your own. Then you earn respect.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Caution sign is up. Means take time now to review facts, figures. Don't permit impulse to rule logic. Many observe. You are in position to impress higher-ups. Do so!

The Golden Years

A Look at Deeper Meanings Of Thing Called Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

There are times when one who writes or reads a column such as this should look beyond the rheumatism and the pensions and into the deeper meanings of retirement.

So what follows here is that kind of look. You may want to pass it up. Other features in the paper may be less disturbing to you.

Why is it that you come up to age 65 or so and stop your life's work? Most of us know the practical answers to that. Pensions, life insurance and annuities, are pegged to age 65. It would be a great nuisance to change things. Some businesses would lose money, or at least would not make so much money. There would be confusion in the ranks of employers and government and welfare people whose thinking is attuned to your stopping work at 65. There would be a crisis in the theories of many presumed authorities in these matters: that if you didn't go at 65 there would be no jobs for the 24-year-olds who want a rung on the ladder.

But there is something beyond the practical to think about. And one of these must surely be that God — or Nature, if you prefer — is wrong. Or that everybody else is.

WHY NOTHINGNESS?

There was nothing in the Commandments, or anywhere else, that requires living things on the earth to give up 15 years or so before dying, losing the means of achieving, losing the status 40 years of work have won . . . and sliding into "retirement" and nothingness.

If Whatever-It-Is that rules our destiny here had wanted us to spend 22 years preparing to live, 15 years forgetting how, and only 40-odd years to be worthy, then perhaps we would have been put here only after puberty and sent along after the menopause.

Which would have been quite a trick. But He who can make the grass grow green in the spring could have managed it.

Why is it that we are taught to believe the 65-year-old is weary and wants to lay down his tools? The most simple of these surveys that we worship these days would show that 40-year-olds have a far more passionate desire to be done with it all. If, tomorrow, the young were offered the inducements to quit that the 65-year-old is offered—pensions, etc.— by next Monday there would be nobody around to run the streetcars.

Why does our society let the very act of retirement tarnish a man? A man who can run a complex organization, manage personnel, or operate an intricate machine three months before he retires can't get a job running an elevator three months after he retires. What standards have we adopted that a roast-beef retirement dinner and a gold watch can so change a man's value?

NOTHING NOBLER

Why is it that our society has placed almost the whole emphasis of retirement on those things which other civilizations have thought decadent? A tender climate, a comfortable chair, travel, pleasure, sloppy attire, and the privilege of sleeping late — these are the signboards with which we sell the idea of retirement. Is there nothing nobler?

There has to be some meaning to growing old. Certainly to growing beyond the age of 65. But since, for now, the men and women who are graying aren't going to change retirement practices and had best ride them in peace, they themselves must find what the meaning is. To each it will be different. In the confines of their reduced income and lowered status, and in an age that thinks fishing is it, they can find it — best of all perhaps in their church, in things that grow out of the ground, and in books that tell what greatness others have done after age 65.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

EXEMPTIONS MORE THAN INCOME

Numerous inquiries were received last year from retired taxpayers, wanting to know if it was necessary for them to file an income tax return, when their exemptions exceeded their income.

When there have been no tax deductions made from income received in the taxation year and the income does not exceed the allowable exemptions it is not necessary to file a return. However, if the taxpayer had reported a taxable amount in all his prior years' returns, he should file a return for the first year he was non-taxable. This would show the income tax department he is now retired and they would not request any more returns from him.

Should the taxpayer have the type of income from which he is allowed to make certain deductions for expenses, then he should always file a return, whether it shows a taxable amount or not. He may have claimed certain expenses against the income that are not of deductible nature. This would apply in regard to rental income where the taxpayer may have deducted expenses of a capital nature. It is only current expenses that may be used to reduce rental income.

When a taxpayer has not filed a return on account of not having a taxable income, and later on in the year receives a request from the tax department for a return for that year, he should complete a return showing he is not taxable. This is much better than writing them a letter saying "no taxable income for the year." This nil return will then be in the taxpayer's file and prevent such requests in future years.

For apersonal reply, enclose

For a personal reply, enclose stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I had no income this year of a taxable nature as I was off work due to an injury. Should I file a return?

Answer: Yes. You may have income in future years and the continuity of your file in the Income Tax Department should be maintained.

Question 2: I am retired and have had no taxable income for several years. I have always filed a return although I have had no tax to pay. Is this necessary?

Answer: No. Do not file any more returns.

Emotional Letter From Mr. K Solved Cuban Missile Crisis

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the last missing clues in the Cuban missile crisis has been disclosed with the publication of an emotional, rambling letter from Soviet Premier Khrushchev offering a solution.

The letter to the late President John F. Kennedy had been left out of previous accounts of the 1962 missile confrontation.

In it, Khrushchev implies that Fidel Castro would demobilize the missile force in exchange for a no-invasion pledge.

The letter, which led to ending the U.S.-Russian confrontation, is contained in The Missile Crisis, by Elie Abel, chief of the London bureau of the National Broadcasting Company. At that time he was NBC's diplomatic correspondent.

The book is published by J. B Lippincott Co. of Philadelphia.

Abel said that Krushchev suggests that Kennedy issue a no-invasion pledge and recall the American fleet guarding the seas around Cuba. With such a pledge there would be no further need to keep Russian military specialists in Cuba, the former Soviet leader said.

URGES SELF-CONTROL

The letter, quoted by Abel, concludes:

"If you have not lost your self-control, and sensibly conceive what this might lead to, then, Mr. President, we and you ought not now to pull on the ends of the rope in which you have tied the knot of war, because the more we pull, the tighter the knot will be tied.

"And a moment may come when the knot will be tied so tight that even he who tied it will not have the strength to untie it, and then it will be necessary to cut that knot. And what that would mean is not for me to explain to you, because you yourself understand perfectly of what terrible forces our countries dispose.

"Consequently, if there is no intention to tighten that knot and thereby doom the world to catastrophe of thermonuclear war, then let us not only relax the forces pulling on the ends of the rope, let us take measures to untie that knot. We (the leaders of the Soviet Union) are ready for this."

Abel said state department experts agreed that khrushchev had probably dictated the letter to a secretary, then hurriedly dispatched it without editing or discussing it with other Soviet leaders. It was received in Washington the night of Oct. 26, 1962.

Former state secretary Dean Acheson is quoted as saying that Khrushchev appeared to be "either tight or scared" when he wrote the letter.

The letter was acted upon in good faith by the United States and led to subsequent withdrawal of the Soviet missiles from Cuba and the lessening of tensions.

Luna Just Had Excess Power Soviet Says of Extra Photos

MOSCOW (CP) — Luna IX, the Soviet moon probe, used up nearly all its remaining electrical energy with a two-hour radio transmission of data and pictures of the moon's surface Sunday night, the Soviet news agency Tass announced today.

"Further radio communications with Luna IX will be discontinued," Tass said.

"Earlier, prior to reception of the transmissions Sunday night, the Russians said their moon rocket had fulfilled its mission.

However, Tass said Luna IX, "still had a certain amount of power left in excess of the rated level," and an additional two hours of communications were received beginning at 11:37 p.m. (3:37 p.m. EST) Sunday.

"During this transmission period," Tass said, "telemetric information on the functioning of the probe's systems, its temperature regime and repeated television pictures of certain patches of the lunar panorama were received from Luna IX."

Two of the pictures and part of a third were intercepted by Britain's Jodrell Bank radio observatory, which said the photos were not as good as earlier ones and the moon probe's transmitters were down to half strength.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Jodrell Bank, said the observatory would train its huge radio telescope on the moon when it rises over Britain tonight in case Luna IX was still broadcasting. But he said he thought any signals picked up would be the last from the first earth object to land undamaged on the moon.

Tass said that since Luna IX made its historic landing Thursday, Russian scientists have had seven radio communication periods with the moon station, totalling eight hours and five minutes.

"The unique television images of the lunar surface and the scientific information received from the probe will be studied and analysed," the Soviet agency said.

"The results of this study will be published in the press."

A sudden switch in the frequency of the signals from the moon-probe Sunday night led to speculation that Luna IX was moving, possibly lifting off the lunar surface.

However, a scanning of space in the region around the moon by Jodrell Bank's powerful radio telescope suggested that Luna IX was staying put.

"There is no evidence that the probe is anywhere but on the lunar surface," Lovell said.

"The level of the signal has been going down since the landing," Lovell said.

The Russians said earlier that Luaa IX was an airtight container with built-in power. There was no indication that it had solar batteries which the sun could recharge for extended picture-taking and transmission.

Luna IX resumed broadcasting Sunday after Soviet authorities said the final radio session ended at 12:41 p.m. EST Saturday and "the planned program of lunar research by means of the automatic station Luna IX

Spending Programs On Tap

OTTAWA (CP)—Government spending programs, which allow MPs a chance for free wheeling debate, are back on the Commons schedule today.

Works Minister McIlraith, government House leader, announced Friday that interim supply would be brought before the House today. Following that the House is expected to wind up consideration of the spending program for external affairs and move on to transport.

Debate on the external affairs department estimates has covered a host of topics since they first came before the House Thursday. There are several issues in the transport field that likely will get a thorough going over before those estimates are passed.

The interim supply bill to cover ordinary spending by the government for February also opens up an avenue for wide-ranging debate. MPs often use interim supply as a vehicle to set out their views on particular problems concerning their constituencies.

Latin America, Rhodesia and Viet Nam were prime topics in the debate Friday.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker called for a statement on where the government stands in relation to membership in the Organization of American States.

Oshawa Strike Tightens

By JACK GRAY

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)—Big labor today began to set the stage for a possible large-scale collision between unions and the law over legal restrictions in labor disputes.

Union leaders of this area left this morning for a meeting in the Toronto office of David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor (CLC).

Fred Jones of Toronto, international representative of the American Newspaper Guild, said the meeting was to discuss arrangements for conference with union leaders from all over Ontario in Oshawa Tuesday night.

The Ontario Supreme Court is to rule earlier Tuesday on the legal limits of a restraining picketing order obtained by the Oshawa Times. A strike has kept The Times, the city's only

Levesque Charges Big Business Short-changes French Charities

MONTREAL (CP)—Rene Levesque, family and social welfare minister, said Sunday that big business is discriminating against French Canadians in the area of charity donations.

Speaking at a meeting of 4,000 Federation of French Catholic charity volunteer workers who are planning to launch a fund-raising campaign March 1, Mr. Levesque said the province "can no longer tolerate the abusive situation" in which big business in the Montreal metropolitan area donates "10 to 15 times more to minority (charity) campaigns" than it does to French-Canadian charities.

He said in the future the government would take into account how much a charity has received from industry before granting it a subsidy.

Mr. Levesque said that in a given year big business in the Montreal area gives $2,000,000 to charitable groups aiding the 30 - per cent minority English and ethnic part of the population, compared with only $800,000 to the French majority.

He said the situation will have to change and that big business will have to accept its role as "a good citizen" and think in terms of the majority and not just the minority.

"Industry is not embarrassed about taking money from French Canadians but they fail to do their share when it comes to charitable donations."

In a speech Saturday, Mr. Levesque said Quebec is the only centre in the world where ethnic groups are "best understood, respected and welcomed."

He was speaking at the official opening of $750,000 building for elderly persons constructed by the Canadian Polish Welfare Institute, Mr. Levesque said: "I do not know of any other place in Canada, North America or for that matter the whole world, where ethnic groups settle—baggage and all—and are more respected and welcomed."

Wider Grounds for Divorce Sought by Bar Association

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association has called for wider grounds for divorce.

The mid-winter meeting of the Ontario section ended here Saturday after passing a resolution advocating the grounds, now restricted to adultery, include:

—Desertion without cause for at least three years;

—Cruelty as understood in Ontario law;

—Wilful refusal to consummate marriage.

The resolution originally recommended the grounds include imprisonment for not less than three years, frequent convictions of crime and judicial separation obtained by the plaintiff in a proposed divorce action.

These three clauses were rejected. The first two were dropped after Chief Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario High Court of Justice suggested that a man could be convicted of a crime on the evidence of his wife, whose motive might be that she wanted grounds for divorce.

The separation clause was rejected because it was agreed it could open the way for one of the marriage partners to blackmail the other.

The resolution proposed that the Ontario government ask the federal government to implement the recommendations.

During a panel discussion of the resolution, Pierre Berton appealed for the widest possible grounds for divorce.

He said: "Thousands of people are living in a prison made by the law—a marriage that won't work which the law won't let them escape. It's true we have a low divorce rate. We have a high misery rate."

Rev. John Kelly, superior of St. Michael's College, termed Mr. Berton's argument emotional.

"I think we should be making marriage harder to get into. This would cut down the incidence of divorce action," he said.

He proposed extensive premarital counselling to "get rid of the subterfuge, lying, immorality and perjury in divorce cases."

Earlier Saturday, the lawyers passed a resolution which said the rights of citizens should not be subverted by threats of mob violence.

It called on the provincial government to enforce the law in the strike at the Oshawa Times where labor organizations, supporting the striking Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild (CLC), have defied a court order limiting the number of pickets at the newspaper to 10.

An amendment to the original resolution was also passed. It was proposed by Professor Harry Arthurs of Osgoode Hall Law School. This called on the provincial government to set up a committee including management and labor to review the law on injunctions to recommend fair procedure and rules.

Prof. Arthurs said it would be hypocritical to treat the Oshawa incident as an isolated case because "our society is shot through with people who defy laws in order to bring their injustices before the public." He cited the civil rights struggle in the United States South.

LBJ Rebukes Critics Of Viet Nam Policies

Thant and Pope Try To Arrange Talks

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Secretary - General U Thant and Pope Paul were reported working independently today to get non-aligned governments to take an active role in the drive for a Viet Nam peace settlement.

Thant was understood to be seeking neutral help in setting up a conference of eight parties to include the Viet Cong. Others would be Britain, France, Russia, China, the United States, North Viet Nam and South Viet Nam.

The pontiff is trying to organize a summit conference of neutral nations in Geneva to mediate for an end to the war.

Thant has been conferring with envoys of non - aligned states during the last two weeks. He apparently feels the neutrals can overcome the obstacles to bringing the eight parties together.

The main difficulties are (1) Communist insistence that the UN has no right to deal with Viet Nam, (2) Soviet coolness to British proposals that the two nations, as co - chairmen of the Geneva accords on Viet Nam, reconvene the Geneva conferences (3) apparent unreadiness of the United States to accept the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front at the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front at the conference table, and (4) North Vietnam's recent insistence that the National Liberation Front be the only representative of the South Vietnamese people at any conference.

The UN Security Council has agreed to a U.S. request to debate Viet Nam but is delaying the debate while private consultations are held to promote a Geneva conference.

Pope Paul began making contact with non - aligned governments shortly after his recommendation Jan. 29 for UN arbitration through neutral nations.

Papal envoys have relayed the pontiff's proposal for a neutral summit meeting to the Swiss and Austrian governments. Both nations gave a positive response, and Austria said it had consulted other states. Among those reported polled by Austria were Sweden, Finland and Syria.

Vatican sources have not made clear whether the Pope has in mind a full - dress meeting of all willing neutrals or a preliminary session to pave the way for such a conference.

U.S. Military Authorities Say Effort Stepped Up

SAIGON (Reuters) — United States military authorities today announced an increased war effort in Viet Nam.

A U.S. spokesman here said air raids on North Viet Nam had been stepped up and the number of American troops in South Viet Nam had gone above the 200,000 mark.

The announcement came before the second day of talks in Honolulu today between President Johnson and South Vietnamese leaders that were expected to make a big impact on the future conduct of the war.

The spokesman said the number of U.S. troops in South Viet Nam now stands at approximately 200,000 compared with a previous figure of 197,000.

He also said there had been a significant linkup of American, South Vietnamese and south Korean troops in the biggest combined operation of the war.

The troops are striking at Viet Cong strongholds in central South Viet Nam.

The spokesman said the U.S. Army now has 128,000 men in South Viet Nam, the marines 38,000, the air force 25,000 and the navy and coast guard 10,000.

The latter figure does not include the thousands of men in the 7th Fleet carrier squadrons cruising in the South China Sea and joining in the bombing and coastal bombardment of Viet Nam.

The bombing of North Viet Nam announced today represented a new high in the renewed aerial offensive against the Communist state.

The principal target was the former French base in Dien Bien Phu, 80 miles south of the Chinese border and only four miles from Laos.

Air force pilots flying F-105 Thunderchief fighter - bombers hit the area a number of times and reported damaging a military centre, now a training base for the North Vietnamese armed forces.

Air force and navy pilots also hit bridges, barracks and roads in other parts of the north and dropped leaflets in the Hanoi area. The spokesman said all planes returned safely despite light anti-aircraft fire.

In ground operations, U.S. troops converged on Viet Cong forces in two massive operations on the coast of South Viet Nam.

Associated Press Correspondent Edwin White quoted a South Vietnamese spokesman as saying the Viet Cong had been relatively quiet in the last few days.

"I do not know what it means, but their troop activity in the field is at a minimum," he said.

In Washington, President Johnson was described as convinced that the limited bombing was an essential element in his strategy for preventing the conquest of South Viet Nam.

By FRANK CORMIER

HONOLULU (AP) — President Johnson scheduled talks today with leaders of South Viet Nam after taking a stand-and-fight stance in a sharp reply to critics at home of his Vietnamese policies.

U.S. officials said civilian programs would be emphasized during the three-day conference that winds up Tuesday.

However, Johnson and the South Vietnamese stressed "military determination" in public statements.

Johnson, welcoming the South Vietnamese Sunday night, said the United States must stand firm against Hanoi and the Viet Cong guerrillas or "we will have to fight again some place else — at what cost no one knows."

Nguyen Van Thieu, South Viet Nam's head of state, responded: "Your words have gone beyond the usual welcoming address, for they told Viet Nam and the world of a renewed and much stronger determination on the part of the United States to draw a line and stop Communist aggression in Viet Nam, and now."

FIRES CRITICISM

Johnson, in greeting Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky at airport ceremonies, criticized the "special pleaders who counsel retreat in Viet Nam." He said:

> They belong to a group that has always been blind to experience and deaf to hope.

The president maintained that it is as important now to resist communism in South Viet Nam as it was to oppose it in Europe after the Second World War.

"Our stand must be as firm as ever," he said.

"If we allow the Communists to win in Viet Nam, it will become easier and more appetizing for them to take over other countries in other parts of the world. We will have to fight again some place else—at what cost no one knows. That is why it is vitally important to every American family that we stop the Communists in South Viet Nam."

Thieu was reported determined to argue here for a hard-line military policy, includin intensified direct moves against North Viet Nam.

The roster of conferees from both countries was heavy with experts anxious to press for political and social progress in South Viet Nam, with the aim of strengthening the appeal of the Ky government, labelled "puppets" by Hanoi.

However, there were indications—at least in huddles among U.S. officials—that future military policy would get a full hearing.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in South Viet Nam, conferred at length with the president and indicated at a press conference that he wants more U.S. troops sent to South Viet Nam to invade Communist strongholds and shatter the enemy's "main

Truce Body Ignored

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—The International Control Commission on Viet Nam is being "completely ignored" and Canada should withdraw its membership, T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, said Saturday.

And he added Canada should press for both North Vietnamese and Communist Chinese membership in the United Nations.

Mr. Douglas was addressing high school students from Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba who were attending a mock federal-provincial conference and university students here for an intercollegiate debating tournament at the University of Waterloo.

He said the Canadian pretence that there is an effective International Control Commission on Viet Nam is a "hypocritical farce." Poland and India are also members of the three-country commission.

Asked by a student what he would do if his party was in power, Mr. Douglas replied that he would do anything to force the United States to reconsider its Viet Nam policies.

SUGGESTS COURSE

"What Canada should do and should have done long ago is that as a member of the International Control Commission, when we discovered as he did five or six years ago that the South Vietnamese and Ameri-

After Year of Bombing North LBJ Thinks Raids Essential

WASHINGTON (AP)—A year after he ordered the first air strike against North Viet Nam, President Johnson is reported convinced that the limited bombings are an essential element of his strategy for defeating Communist efforts to conquer South Viet Nam.

He may suspend the bombing again in coming months as he did during his peace offensive after Christmas. He may vary its intensity. But his biggest problem will be to keep the bombing within the bounds he has set.

The president is under two opposing pressures on this phase of his Vietnamese war strategy.

Many foreign governments and critics in congress, basically opposed to the bombing, made appeals last month to continue the suspension indefinitely

Other congressional and military advocates of intensified war would like to see the attacks increased to include Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, and the port of Haiphong.

Johnson and his top advisers, however, are said to believe that a radical escalation of attacks to include Hanoi and Haiphong would carry risks outweighing possible benefits.

Their views are based on basic U.S. policy aims which at present do not call for the destruction of North Viet Nam as a Communist state, and on the possible reactions of China and the Soviet Union both of which might intervene directly if the destruction of North Viet Nam appeared imminent.

The reasons advanced here for continuing the bombing are both military and diplomatic:

1. Attacks on military bases, supply centres and supply lines in the north reduce the ability of North Viet Nam to send men and arms to the Communist forces fighting in the south, officials say.

2. The bombing makes North Viet Nam feel the weight of war and in this broad sense is a retaliatory action for North Viet Nam's assistance to the Viet Cong guerrilla forces in the south.

3. The bombing is negotiable; that is, it is an operation which can be stopped at any time the president believes such action would promote peace prospects or bring about a ceasefire. Policy makers say this is an important element of their consideration in favor of bombing since there is little in the situation in South Viet Nam that is negotiable.

4. By contrast with the U.S. experience in the Korean War, the bombing has established and maintained the principle of "no privileged sanctuary." This could have an important bearing on China's policy toward the Vietnamese conflict since it means the Chinese could not begin sending in their own armed forces without expecting U.S. attacks on their bases.

Snow Removal Crew Back From Oswego Rescue Trip

Members of Belleville's travelling snow removal crew, home from their two-day good will trip to Oswego, are back at their regular jobs today, after arriving back from the snowbound Upper New York State centre late Saturday night.

The four public works employees, sent to Oswego Thursday night to lend a neighborly hand in removing 102 inches of snow, arrived back in Belleville shortly after nine o'clock Saturday night.

"They treated us swell," Belleville roads foreman Garnet Maines was quoted as saying on return home.

The four-man Belleville works department crew, Mr. Maines, Kenneth Belcour, Glenn Parks and John Beverley, along with Ronald Snider, float driver for Mel Barriage, were put up at the Pontiac Hotel, across the street from the Oswego city hall.

With a state of emergency declared in Oswego where 102 inches of snow fell a week ago, Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis and city council offered the use of local snow removal equipment and Thursday night two front end loaders, a snow blower and dump truck were taken to Oswego and put to work removing snow.

Oswego Mayor Ralph Shapiro was a big help in getting said the Belleville equipment streets cleared.

Erhard Will Have Talks With de Gaulle

PARIS (Reuters)—West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard arrived here by train today for talks with President de Gaulle against a back-ground of divergent views on western defence and European co-operation.

He was accompanied by Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder and Economics Minister Kurt Schmuecker.

Erhard said in a television broadcast before he left Bonn Sunday night that he was going to Paris with an open mind for the sixth series of talks under the French-German Friendship Treaty signed in 1963.

Students Attend "Career Day" At Hospital

Approximately 100 high school students from the Bay of Quinte area ranging from Picton to Bancroft and from Napanee to Trenton, attended a medical laboratory technology "career day" at Belleville General Hospital Saturday morning.

Purpose of the "career day" was to interest high school students in careers as medical laboratory technologists.

Following registration at Education Hall, the visiting students heard talks from Hospital Adminisrator Stan Johnston, department director Dr. A. N Rota, and chief technologist C. V. Peffers. Later the students were divided into groups and taken on tours of the hospital laboratory.

Suspect Arson In Two Fires At Sarnia

SARNIA (CP) — Arson is suspected in two fires Saturday night in offices of The Observer, this city's daily newspaper.

An official of the Ontario fire marshal's office in Windsor is to arrive today to begin an investigation.

H. G. MacLean, an editor at The Observer, said there was considerable smoke and water damage to the building, but it was not expected to interrupt publication.

Firemen said one of the fires was found burning in a cabinet of records in the circulation department and another in a room adjoining the composing department.

"The two fires were remote from each other," Deputy Chief Clifford Hansen said. "This is what leads us to believe arson is involved."

force" elements, estimated at about 77,000 men.

Asked how many additional troops he thought he would need, Westmoreland replied:

"This a matter I look forward to discussing with Secretary McNamara during the coming days. This is a matter under constant study."

Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara is one of four cabinet officers taking part in the meetings.

The United States now has more than 197,000 men in South Viet Nam. There have been estimates that the American strength may rise to about 400,000 by next summer, and possibly more later. But any new decisions on troop strength in South Viet Nam are likely to require longer consideration than the few days allotted to this conference.

GREEK BAPTISM — Tiny Maria Zegouras is christened Sunday evening in a ceremony of the Greek Orthodox Church at St. George's Hall. Father Dimitrois, of Kingston immerses the infant in the Baptismal Font, assisted by the child's grandmother, Mrs. Maria Zegouras.

Greek Orthodox Baptism Is Held Here on Sunday

An important event for Belleville's Greek community took place last night, but the guest of honor was not too impressed with the whole affair.

In a colorful ceremony at St. George's Hall, six-months-old Maria Zegouras was officially introduced into the Greek Orthodox Church and her friends and relatives from as far away as Kitchener.

Miss Zegouras was not available for comment on the evening's proceedings, but she loudly expressed her displeasure when she was given the traditional three immersions in the Baptismal Font The baptism, first of the seven sacraments of the Greek Orthodox faith, is actually tantamount to a christening and a confirmation. An interesting feature of the Greek ceremony is the cutting of a small lock of the infant's hair as a symbol of obedience.

Father Dimitrios of Kingston performed the baptism of Maria, whose proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zegouras of Belleville's Greek-Canadian community.

Following the ceremony, a festive spirit prevailed at a banquet and dance held for the guests at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Book Published in City Causes Controversy in West Germany

A book written and published in Belleville is currently causing some heated controversy in Germany.

The book, "About Soest," was written by Jacob Sawatzky, former mathematics and physics teacher at Moira Secondary School. He was in Belleville Sunday negotiating another edition of the book.

Published in July 1965 by Richard Ellis Printers, sales of the book were minimal until recently when a German reporter wrote a critique on it. Following that, controversy developed over certain sections of the book.

"Being in Canada and out of touch with the situation now in Soest," said Mr. Sawatzky, "I am not positively sure of the reason for the controversy.

"However, I am reasonably sure it is over the section describing the bombing of Soest by the Canadians in 1944.

"The book contains an interview with a Canadian flyer who had flown in that raid. In it he said he hit only the railroad station and not the village and he suspected he hit oil tanks because the area burned like match boxes.

"The Germans claim it was the half-timbered town houses that "burned like matchboxes" and not oil tanks. They claim 60 per cent of these houses in the city were destroyed needlessly."

The controversy has sparked several newspaper articles and radio debates in the Soest area in recent months. As a result, over 300 copies of the book have been sold there in the past few weeks.

MANY REQUESTS

The author has received many requests from Germany and from Canada for the book but he has yet to find a way to ship copies economically to Germany.

"I have 800 sitting in my basement I could sell if I could only get them over there," he said.

One request for the book was sent to Richard Ellis with a German five mark coin enclosed. (The book sells for four marks in Germany and $1.50 in Canada.)

The Canadian Army journal, "The Beaver", carried a review of "About Soest" which read, in part, "Every Canadian soldier and his family should read it so that they will know Soest is more than just a mispronounced name where Canadians are, but a city with a proud history of its own."

Mr. Sawatzky, born in the Southern Ukraine, taught at Moira Secondary School from 1960 to 1962. He was' granted a loan of service to the Department of National Defence and sent to Soest along with his wife Marguerite, also a teacher, in 1962. The Sawatzkys taught Canadian children there until 1964, then returned to Belleville to teach during 1964 and 1965. He now teaches mathematics in West Hill, near Toronto.

There are 5,000 Canadian army men plus their families now stationed in Soest. There are over 80 Canadian school teachers there now and another 75 close by teaching the children of Canadian armed service personnel.

ASSEMBLED IN CITY

Mr. Sawatzky gathered the material for his book while teaching in Soest and assembled it on his return to Belleville. He dedicated the book to Brenda Margaret, his 10-month-old daughter.

A comprehensive history of the interesting city of Soest, the book explores the city from its earliest beginnings to the present day. It also contains numerous maps and illustrations.

Incidents described in the book are fascinating reading for anyone interested in historical development. Some are humorous too. One describes a unique trick used to the besieged city of Soest in 1444 to show their enemies, the Werlers, how much food they had in the city.

"The stoutest lady of Soest, the respectable Frau Buergermeister, mounted the wall, turned her back to the curious Werlers, bent down, and had her massive buttocks fully exposed to the naked view of the incredulous adversaries."

Wars aren't what they used to be.

The book is available in Belleville and the James Text Book Store. Price is $1.50.

Believes Millions Killed In Repressing Red Coup

AMSTERDAM (AP) — An Indonesian source today estimated that after the failure of last year's Communist coup in Indonesia millions of people were killed—far more than the 87,000 officially announced by President Sukarno and the 200,000 published in press reports.

The figure was given in a story published by the Gelderlander newspaper at Nijmegen by its London correspondent, Henk Van Maaurik, who was travelling in Indonesia after the abortive coup of Nov. 1 last year.

Van Maurik wrote he got a letter from an "intelligent and thoughtful" Indonesian relative saying, "I am starting to believe that millions of persons have been murdered—Communists and innocents."

Another wrote him from East Java: "In one hour I saw more than a hundred beheaded persons floating in the Brantas river."

Van Maurik said that in the area of Jogjakarta-Suarakarta-Klaten in Central Jav, where he visited himself in November, at least 60,000 killings took place. The number of people killed in the island of Bali alone was estimated at 70,000, he said.

Little Progress Reported

WINDSOR, Ont.)cp)—Both sides seeking an end to the 2½-week old southern Ontario trucking strike are hoping the early days of this week will be the pause that refreshes before further bargaining bouts.

At the close of three days of negotiations here between representatives of the independent Teamsters Union and the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the 55 trucking firms involved in the dispute, little progress had been reported.

Ray Taggart, president of Local 879, Hamilton, and chairman of the union's joint bargaining committee, said the pause in negotiations would enable the union membership at each of the five centres affected to be instructed on the progress thus far. He said the talks would likely resume at the end of the week at Hamilton or Toronto.

A spokesman for the bureau said a meeting of the entire group's membership would be held today to allow for discussion on union demands.

OPTIMISM GONE

The meetings here ended Sunday with an absence of the early optimism that marked the opening day's sessions. At the close of Sunday's meeting, a union spokesman said that only 15 of the 61 points facing negotiators had been dealt with.

The strike has affected firms here, in London, Hamilton, Toronto and Kingston. The talks here were the first between the union and the bureau since the strike began Jan. 20.

At that time the union, representing more than 10,000 truck drivers, warehouse workers and mechanics in the province, rejected a conciliation board's suggested contract.

The contract offered a 3½ year-pat with pay inreases of up to 56 cents an hour and a work week reducing to 43 hours by the end of the contract's life.

The union is seeking an eventual 40-hour week over a 28-month contract, among a variety of financial and work-regulatory demands.

Prior to the opening of the meetings here, a union spokesman said the international union had thrown in its weight "100 per cent" behind the demands of the Canadian union and that President James Hoffa had advised on an unyielding course of action.

Before the dispute, drivers here had received $2 hourly.

power, he said, they kept saying Canada should join. Since they had come to power, they kept brushing aside questions about OAS by saying this was under 'serious consideration."

He also suggested Canada should send a mediator to Rhodesia to appeal to the breakaway government of Ian Smith to renounce its unilateral declaration of independence.

External Affairs Minister Martin said the Smith government is illegal and should not be recognized in any way.

Transport Minister Pickersgill was peppered with questions Friday about Canadian Pacific Railway policies.

Mr. Pickersgill said he hoped CPR representatives would appear before the Commons transportation committee to answer questions about planning for the railway's passenger operations.

But he said he hoped such an appearance would not have to go into the matter of stations being shut down by the CPR, particularly in the West, or complaints of railway workers about diminishing job opportunities.

The question of CPR passenger service alone is a broad enough one for the committee to tackle, Mr. Pickersgill said.

So the station abandonment and employment opportunity questions probably will be posed again during study of transport department estimates.

CLEAR AIR FOR BIRDS

National Liberation Front True Representatives of S. Viet Nam Says Russia

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP)—North Viet Nam's demand that the United States recognize the heads of the National Liberation Front as sole true representatives of the people of South Viet Nam raises a question: Who are these leaders?

They are little known outside areas of South Viet Nam held by the Viet Cong Brigade and perhaps not too well known in those areas.

They are more likely to be a political facade for the Viet Cong than to be in control of the Viet Cong.

The front's commission for foreign relations has published a booklet on its leaders. It was distributed here by the office of the front's Moscow representative. The office declined to answer additional questions but information is available from other sources.

The head of the front is Nguyen Hu Tho, 55. Trained in law in France, he practised in Saigon, now capital of South Viet Nam.

During Ho Chi Minh's war against the French in Indochina, Tho's "courageous defence of members of the (Ho's) resistance brought before the court earned him recognition by his colleagues as an outstanding representative of the Vietnamese intelligentsia," the booklet says. Ho now is president of North Viet Nam.

WENT TO JAIL

Tho was deported from Saigon after leading demonstrations in early 1950. He lived in the north until the 1954 Geneva agreement that ended French rule, then returned to Saigon and was soon jailed for activities against the Ngo Dinh Diem regime of South Viet Nam.

Tho was released in 1961 and has been in the jungles since then. Communist journalists who have met him recently say he is a wispy little man in khaki living in a well-built hideaway.

Tho's title is President of the Presidium of the Central Committee of the Front.

The front is organized in a classic Communist way. The 11-man presidium is the steering committee for a larger central committee. The committee united against the Saigon government.

The only presidium member identified as a member of the Viet Nam People's Revolutionary party—the South Viet Nam Communist party—is Vo Chi Cong, 53. A rebel from the age of 18, he was sentenced by the French to life at hard labor but escaped at the end of the Second World War.

IDENTIFY OTHER LEADERS

Abih Aleo, 64, a Protestant from the Edeh minority nationality and a former French army officer sentenced to death by the French in 1946 for revolutionary activities. He is a founder and now president of autonomous nationalities' movement of Tay Nguyen.

Dr. Phung Vun Chung, 56, was a physician working for the Diem government until 1960 when he joined the Viet Cong. He is identified as president of the South Viet Nam Military and Civil Health Council.

Ven. Thom Me The Nhem, 40, a Buddhist monk who is president of the Buddhist Chastisement Council of Bac Lieu Province. He is supposed to represent "patriotic Cambodians" in South Viet Nam.

Huynh Tan Phat, 52, an architect and propagandist who is secretary-general of the South Viet Nam Democratic party.

Tran Nam Trung, 52, a professional revolutionary who is notable primarily for the lack of official information given on him. He represents the Liberation Army, the Viet Cong.

Land Owners To Meet With City Council

Property owners and tenants along that section of North Front street scheduled for rebuilding this year, are invited to attend a meeting at the Tops Motor Hotel Wednesday evening to hear the land acquisition procedure to be followed by the city.

Mayor J. R. Ellis, members of council and other city officials will be in attendance to explain land acquisition procedures and to answer questions.

The city proposes to reconstruct North Front street from just north of College Hill to 401 highway. The present 60-foot road allowance is proposed to be widened to 76 feet and except for sections where the road already has been widened on the west side, will require about eight feet of property on both sides of the street.

Since the city wishes to commence reconstruction as early as possible in the spring it is necessary that land acquisition be completed as soon as possible. Expropriation procedure on the part of the city will be taken only if an amicable settlement cannot be reached.

Mayors, Reeves Approve of Regional Govt.

NORTH BAY (CP)—An executive meeting of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves Saturday approved a brief recommending regional government for Ontario.

The brief was presented by Reeve Bob Speck of Toronto Township, chairman of a five-man association committee that investigated the prospects of regional governments for the province.

The brief recommended that cities form the nucleus of resuch governments take the suvh governments take the place of present county councils.

Luna May Be Sitting On Gold Mine

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP)—Russia's moon - landed Luna IX spacecraft may be sitting on a gold mine.

The sharply - defined surface pictures transmitted by Luna IX show a glassy volcanic lava and bed like many found in California, lunar geologist Harold Masursky said Saturday.

A study of the pictures seems to prove beyond doubt that volcanoes have exploded over vast areas of the moon and may still be active in some sectors, Masursky said.

He said the lava flow type indicated in the pictures often is associated with veins of gold and other metals on earth.

Professional Engineers To Hear Talk

Mr. David L. McLeish, P. Eng., a technical representative with Union Carbide Canada Limited, will be the guest speaker at the regular dinner meeting of the Quinte Chapter of the Association of Professional Engineering of Ontario.

The dinner will be this Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in the Prince Edward Suite of the Hotel Quinte and will be preceeded at 6.30 by a reception for the guest speaker.

Mr. McLeish is a specialist in cryogenics with the product development department of the Company's Gas Products operating group,and it is about this new and interesting subject that he will address the meeting.

Cryogenics deals with the science of developing and utilizing the ultra low temperatures associated with such gases as oxygen, nitrogen, argon helium, and neon, and more of its familiar applications are found in the fields of neuro surgery, the preservation of biologicals, missile development and production, and in the use of medium and ultra high vacuum in industry and science.

The Quinte Chapter of the Association encompasses the Quinte district as far north as Bancroft and has 150 members on its roster. All profesional engineers in the area are cordially invited to hear this most timely address.

Modern Pressures

Modern man, his way of life threatened increasingly by the pressures of materialism, the threat of automation and the cult of impersonality, may sometimes wonder how much further his worth as an individual can be eroded without society as a whole being the loser.

The pressures are there, and they are being brought to bear on young and old alike. Business pressures . . . educational pressures . . . social pressures associated with the sedentary life that most people live . . . and the pressures that go hand in hand with racial intolerance.

Prime Minister Pearson is one of several Canadians who have commented on this theme of late. In a message prepared for Brotherhood Week February 20-27, Mr. Pearson notes that while the activities of a minority dedicated to hate, extremism and bigotry have been reduced within the last two years, there is no room for complacency.

"Racial and religious discrimination — despite inherent Canadian revulsion to them — still are practised in our midst," he said.

And so they are. And why does such prejudice exist? Because there is always that basic weakness in man that makes him react strangely to people and things that are in some way different, or outside his normal experience, makes him feel uncomfortable in the presence of people of different race and color, whose eyes are perhaps "oddly made." And as the song lyricist added satirically, you have got to be "carefully taught" to hate such things .So there is still prejudice abroad and it is handed down from father to son.

And what of those other pressures we mentioned. Belleville YMCA secretary Bert Messacar had some thoughtful observations on this theme when he addressed the Kiwanis Club last Tuesday.

He said in part: "To me, there is a feeling of pressure as others plan for us. I am alarmed at the free acceptance of having other people plan our lives for us.

"One of the most insidious factors...is the whole matter of boards, and councils. Most of the time we do not elect people to these boards, yet there is little or no appealing of their decisions.

"We need to take a good look at these planning boards and at government by order-in-council and the effect they have upon us.

Mr. Messacar in effect was appealing for a greater degree of individual awareness of what is going on in our midst, of decisions being made on the public's behalf, and a heightened individual response to such decisions where necessary.

Some time ago a western Ontario editor complained editorially that the "neighborhood grouch" seemed to be on the way out. He is the man who constantly chides and nags and argues and queries every mood a council or other administrative body may make. Any community is the poorer that has no one with an axe to grind.

Mr. Messacar put it this way: "We must not be afraid to be characters. We need to dare to be a Daniel. A person with no enemies does nothing constructive.

"And we need to live for the best we know," said Mr. Messacar. "We still can tell truth from untruth, love from hate, and should act accordingly." True indeed.

We turn now to another aspect of this subject. And that is, the new morality, the changes being wrought today with regard to human relationships. There is a permissiveness in our society which is greater and more widespread, perhaps, than it has been at any time since the days of the Roman Empire.

But do we have to condone this trend? During a recent panel discussion in Oshawa, Det. Sgt. Powell of that city said: "Our whole society is sick, money-worshipping and rife with sexual promiscuity and race prejudice. Illegitimate births have tripled since 1940.

"Sex is used as a 'come-on' in selling, and our children are rushed into early sexual activity.

"Girls are presented into demonstrating that they have the right type of attractiveness," he said. "Society seems to be getting more promiscuous all the time. I don't know what the answer is."

There is one man's opinion of the so-called new morality, or sexual revolution. And it has seldom been voiced with such force or conviction. Can we afford to be any less concerned?

These then are some of the pressures that society faces today. No one need feel afraid of them — but we should be at least concerned. To be properly concerned about them is one of the marks of civilized man. How far such pressures succeed in hurting society depends on the extent we as individuals allow them to affect our daily lives.

There was a lot of merit in the brief submitted to the Air Transport Board by the North western Ontario Associated Chambers of Commerce urging much tighter regulation of U.S. aircraft that fly into our lake and wilderness areas. The freedom with which these aircraft can come and go, without filing flight plans and submitting to checks on exit, encourages exploitation of our fish and game resources, is damaging to Canadian operators and could lead to many other abuses.

Two Centre Lines Are Driving Hazard

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 86 years young, but have difficulty with my eyes. When driving my car I find there are two white centre lines in place of the true one. It is deceiving and inconvenient. This has bothered me for two years. Are there any vitamins that would remedy this? — A. J. L.

• • •

I most urgently advise you to see an eye specialist and determine whether your sight is good enough for you to keep driving.

Older folks, by which I mean 66, 76, 86 or even 96, should remain active, but they should not do some things which might be dangerous.

If you see two centre lines instead of one, it is more than inconvenient. It is dangerous. Not just for you, but for others. If you follow one line, you may hit a car you are meeting. If you follow the other, you may go into a ditch.

Vitamins won't cure this. Something more serious is wrong with your eyes. It may be something that an eye specialist can correct. It may not. I can't say.

But we mature people often wonder why our youngsters are such idiots, why they do the things they do. Well, some of us do equally dumb things when we are older—like driving a car when our eyes won't tell us where the centre of the road really is.

All I can say is this: The young get into some of their scrapes from ignorance. They haven't learned the dangers that need to be avoided.

When we are 86 (I have another quarter century to go before I reach that respectable age) we are old enough to be smarter. Yes, we still want to drive — but we should be intelligent enough to know when age has impaired our eyesight, or bearing, or coordination and it's time to quit driving.

Dear Dr. Molner: I cannot convince my wife that she ought to consult a physician about her difficulty. For several years she has been troubled with nausea which manifests itself only in sleeping hours. She is 55 and otherwise in good health.

She is basically a fearful sort of personality and is occasionally subject to dreams of violence. She cannot say whether such a dream precedes a bout of nausea, which lasts about 10 hours. — H. K.

This is a switch. Usually husbands rather than wives have to be coaxed, led, bullied or nagged to see the doctor.

Nausea in sleeping hours is unusual, the likeliest possibility being hiatal hernia, since this tends to become troublesome when one is reclining for any length of time. (Distress also is likely to follow a large meal, or food taken just before retiring.)

If her violent dreams had anything to do with this, I suspect that she would have observed the connection. Her fear-sensitive nature, however, may have a lot to do with her refusal to go to the doctor. Reassuring her that the doctor may be able to help her, but in all likelihood will not find anything perilously wrong, may help get her to consult a physician. (If the hiatal hernia suggestion happens to be valid X-rays will show it.)

Dear Dr. Molner: Is eye make-up (like eyebrow pencil, mascara, etc.) harmful? — R. B.

No, they are not harmful although (obviously) they may be irritating if they get in the eyes. As with any cosmetics, not to mention soap, pollen and all sorts of things, they may bother people who happen to be allergic to them, but pains are taken to keep these products as free from allergic substances as possible. Caution: Use your own eyebrow pencil and do not exchange it with others. Eye infection has been traced to using another's brow pencil.

Big Win for Labor Party

Montreal Gazette

The victory of the British Labor Party in this week's by-election in Hull fully deserves the adjective "stunning".

It is dificult to understand why the British voters should be swinging towards Labor in such an overwhelming manner. After all, Prime Minister Wilson has not done much since coming to office that the Conservative party would not have done in his place. He has done little to attack the underlying causes of Britain's economic problems.

Perhaps it is the very conservatism of his policies that explains Mr. Wilson's success. Although he has made many impressive speeches about changing the face of Britain, he has done nothing radical. Hence, voters who in the last election were dissatisfied with the Tories, but would not vote Labor for fear of its radicalism, may now have been assured that Mr. Wilson is really a reliable and statesmanlike person who can be depended upon not to indulge in a lot of socialist extremism.

The irony of this is that it is Mr. Wilson's narrow majority in Parliament which has forced him to be so conservative and which has helped to discipline the left-wing of his party. If the voters give Mr. Wilson a large majority he will then come under heavy left-wing pressure to do a lot of things he is currently avoiding because of his Parliamentary situation.

However, it appears that a handsome majority is Mr. Wilson's for asking. And under the circumstances, he would be a strange politician if he refused to ask.

Queen May Come in 1967

Hamilton Spectator

Nothing could be more natural than for the Queen of Canada to visit her domain during the biggest celebration in its history. It comes as something of a surprise that only now, in 1966, are discussions taking place to ensure her presence during some part of the 1967 centennial year.

Republicanism is undergoing one of its periodic revivals these days, and one of the reasons for this is undoubtedly a feeling of remoteness from the monarchy. Elizabeth II is our Queen, but we see and read of her most often in the context of her British role.

One way to offset this is to arrange for frequent trips to this side of the Atlantic, stripped of much of the red tape and formality that today makes them so cumbersome to arrange. The obvious time to start is July 1, 1967.

Community Television

Peterborough Examiner

The Board of Broadcast Governors is concerned about what it calls "jurisdictional problems" concerning community antenna television systems. By this we suppose is meant that the B.B.G. wants a ruling from Parliament giving it formal licensing authority over C.A.T.V. systems. It has been reviewing licence applications without legislative authority.

This gives rise to the question of why the B.B.G. or the Government should be concerned. The cable television operators are not broadcasters, being concerned only with providing a wider selection of television programming. This is a service to the television viewer. And in view of local television stations' almost total failure to provide attractive offerings outside the network programming — the C.A.T.V. service is a valuable one.

The reason for concern, of course, has nothing to do with what is convenient for the average television viewer. In granting licences to cable television operators, the consideration will be whether such an operation would make existing television station operations uneconomical by whittling away their advertising revenue. The granting of licences to cable television operators on this basis would be simple pandering to private interests and any such effort should be abandoned. The cable television operator provides a worthwhile and desirable service of which the public has every right to avail itself.

A '13-Letter Swear Word!'

A Letter in the Manchester Guardian

What does "sophisticated" mean? During a period of 10 days, either in the "Guardian" or on the BBC, the word was used in the following contexts: we heard of a sophisticated ant, a sophisticated heron, sophisticated music, and sophisticatel youth; there was "ironic sophistication in the air of as peoples bamboozled"; we were warned of "sophisticated version of the familiar threat of wthdrawal from the Commonwealth"; a parachute was "so sophisticated and sensitive that it frightens the life out of you"; we were informed that the quality of education was "measurable by sophisticated sampling," and a small boy surprised his audience by coming to a "sophisticated conclusion."

The French, it seems, have produced "a sophisticated rocket, but it works"; and one of our entertainers danced "with sophisticated abandon." We were troubled to learn that our aircraft industry faces "sophisticated problems"; but more ominous was your correspondent's view that the recent sabotage on the Zambia power line "had obviously been carried out by fairly sophisticated people." Nevertheless we were comforted to hear that the Prime Minister had sent a "sophisticated air squadron" to Ndola.

Is this a new 13-letter swear word or is it an escape for clever folk who don't know what they mean or don't mean what they say? What does the word mean? Chamber's latest edition says: "Adulterated: impure: not genuine: falsified: artificialized: worldly-wise and disillusioned." Apply these definitions to ants, herons, small boys and saboteurs! — Yours etc.

Awesome Choice Before Men

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

From Aristotle to the moderns, man has been variously defined as many kinds of animal — as a "rational" animal, as a "problem-solving" animal, as a "self-conscious" animal, an animal with "tools" and "language" and "history."

But perhaps the most satisfactory definition I have ever heard is the one that calls man the "unfinished" animal. Alone of all the species, man seems to have been assigned the task of completing himself.

Every other species is complete, and has been so for countless years. The tiger, the rabbit, the dog, the eagle, the earthworm, are (so to speak) finished products. There is nothing more for them to be or do; no further possibilities, for good or evil, are open to them.

We, on the other hand, seem to have been conferred the dreadful freedom to finish shaping ourselves in whatever way we will. We can become more like Socrates, or more like the men who put him to death. We — alone of all living creatures — can elevate ourselves, or degrade ourselves, or totally destroy ourselves.

Other animals have a nature; we as Ortega suggested, have a history. This means that we are not "given," as they are — we have an infinite number of moves, and combinations, on that chessboard called "human nature.'

The only important question facing mankind today is "How shall we complete ourselves?" For the first time, we have the technology, the energy, the knowledge and the resources, to unify the human race, to feed everyone, to protect all from want, to lift the living level of the have-nots without lowering the level of the haves.

Yet, while all this is happening on the intellectual and physical and technical fronts, precisely the opposite is happening on the political, the social, and the emotional fronts. We are more divisive, more hostile, more suspicious, more chauvinistic, more irrational than at any time in the present century.

Every thinking person knows that the smallest possible unit of survival today is the human race. This has been forced upon us by atomic fission; neither philosophy nor religion, but the stark demands of science call for an ultimate decision on our part — co-operation or catastrophe.

Man is still evolving, by his own hands, with his own mind and feelings. We have the power to finish ourselves or to finish ourselves off. This is the frightening burden of our freedom, a burden not carried by any other creature. If we cannot rise to this responsibility, will we not perish, to be replaced with some other species morefitted for the task? For one thing is sure — we cannotcontinue to survive in this uncompleted state an animal so bitterly divided against itself.

Stock Market Can Be Risky

Toronto Star

Canadians are often criticized for not investing their savings in business ventures. We are told that we have only ourselves to blame for the growing extent of foreign ownership of the Canadian economy; that we want a booming industry and a high standard of living, but we are not willing to take financial risks.

This is unfair. True, only a small proportion of Canadians own stocks, about 12 per cent of urban households. But this is not an indication that we are risk-shy by nature, rather it's due to the fact that the average wage-earner simply does not earn enough to take chances on the stock market.

Only one out of every ten Canadian taxpayers earns more than $7,000-a-year. And seven out of ten must make ends meet on $5,000 or less.

Families that do manage to save a few hundred dollars properly place their savings in banks, insurance companies and government bonds, where they will be secure.

No responsible person would advise people with limited savings to invest in risk securities that rise and fall in value.

Crime Wrangle

Sherbrooke Record

Canada's overlords of crime, if they actually exist, must be chuckling to themselves as they see the leading law enforcement officers engaging in a bitter wrangle over who should or should not operate the central intelligence bureau on criminal affairs which it is hoped to create. For the time being, at least, Ottawa and Quebec seem more concerned with justifying their opposition policies than in getting on with the war against crime.

Convict Youth Of Assault With Air Pistol

A 17-year-old youth who fired an air gun from a moving car on a main Belleville street [illegible] struck a passing teenager [illegible] was placed on a year's probation.

James Clifford Van Meer, Wall Street, Trenton, was convicted after a charge of firing the air pistol with intent to wound was reduced to assault.

Testimony showed 16-year-old Tom Johnston, 84 Foster Ave., Belleville, needed six stitches to close a scalp wound after the incident.

Johnston said he was walking on Dundas Street East near Ann Street, when he heard a report and was struck on the head. Immediately after he observed four youths in a passing car and took its number.

Van Meer's defence lawyer Reginald Nourse, of Picton, introduced evidence to show the youth was aiming at a nearby roadside post.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills ordered Van Meer to pay $42 costs — [illegible] included Johnston's med[illegible] fees.

He ordered the youth to report each month to probation authorities in Trenton.

"You will not for six months be out after 11 p.m. on any night of the week unless you're accompanied by one of your parents or by an adult person approved by your parents and the probation officer," the magistrate ordered.

Funerals

MRS. ANDREW SHURIE

TRENTON — The funeral of Mrs. Naomi Adella Shurie formerly of Trenton, was held Saturday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home to Mount Evergreen Cemetery. Rev. D. Wilson, of St. Andrew's Church was the officiating clergyman and the bearers were D. R. Fraser, O. W. Larry, Allan Weaver and Allan Miller.

Born in Rockland, Ont., Mrs. Shurie had lived in Toronto for the past 27 years until her death there last Thursday. She was in her 96th year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wallace, Mrs. Shurie was predeceased by her husband, the late Andrew Shurie, and a son, John Andrew Shurie.

Educated in Ottawa, she taught Sunday School in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church while residing in Trenton. She had also been a member of the Rebekah Lodge and the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's.

Mrs. Shurie is survived by two daughters, Miss Barbara Shurie, of Toronto, and Margaret (Mrs. Robert Cooper), also of Toronto. She also leaves three grandchildren, John Kenneth Shurie, Niagara Falls, James Wallace Shurie, Toronto and Joan (Mrs. William) McCagherty), of Vancouver, B.C., and seven great-grandchildren.

MRS. MAUDE ROWE

TRENTON — The funeral of Mrs. Maude Rowe of R. R. 4 Trenton was held Thursday from Rushnell Funeral Centre, Trenton. Cremation took place at the Toronto Crematorium with the Rev. F. Love officiating.

Mrs. Rowe died last Tuesday in the Green Acres Nursing Home after being ill for a month. She was in her 87th year.

Born in Prince Edward County, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Willet Maybee, Mrs. Rowe resided at R. R. 4 Trenton for the past 30 years. She was an adherent of the United Church.

Mrs. Rowe is survived by a son Gerald of Trenton, and a daughter Kathleen (Mrs. Arthur McKinney) of Ottawa. She also leaves a sister, Mrs. Teresa Mahon, of Duncan B.C.

Few Displays of Rancor, Fire That Dominated Last Session

Oshawa

newspaper, from publishing since late in January.

Some of the most prominent labor leaders in Canada joined a picket line of about 100 in front of The Times this morning. After an hour, the pickets thinned to about 20.

Doug Sutton, vice-president of Local 222 of the United Auto Workers of America (CLC), said: "We could put 10,000 out there if necessary."

The Oshawa Labor Council, with a membership of 23,000 in this city of some 75,000, says it is being supported by unions from out of town in the trial of strength.

The showdown could come later this week after the Ontario Supreme Court rules on a writ of mandamus sought by Thomson Newspapers Ltd., owner of The Times. Action could come no matter which way it rules.

Here is what the company is seeking:

—To compel police to enforce an injunction limiting the number of pickets issued a week ago;

—To have arrested anyone who refuses to abide by the injunction and charge him with contempt;

—To have the sheriff read the Riot Act, if necessary;

—To amend the original order so that all pickets would be banned from the Times building.

LIMITS NUMBER

The original injunction limited the number of pickets to 10—four at the front door, three at the side and three at rear.

Since the injunction was obtained last Monday up to 150 pickets at a time have moved in tight circles in front of the building. Across the street in a service station, one police cruiser and sometimes two are parked as constables watch the demonstrations.

Early today about 100 pickets moved in front of The Times, among them George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers (CLC) William Mahoney, Canadian director of the United Steel Workers (CLC), and Murray Cottrill, publicity director of the Steelworkers and president of the UAW local at the time of the 1937 General Motors strike here.

The 36-member Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild (CLC) went on strike at the plant Jan. 27. It seeks job security in the face of automation and increased pay. Since the strike started the evening paper hasn't published.

The guild says it is conforming to the terms of the injunction. It says other unions swell the ranks of the pickets from time to time.

The owners of The Times have a heavy investment in a modern three-storey plant with rentals to a big furniture company on the first floor and to two insurance firms and other tenants on the third. The picketing has created some problems for these tenants.

THERE'S NO VIOLENCE

There has been no violence but jeers and catcalls greet anyone entering the building. In one case police escorted a man through the picket line.

Fred Jones, international representative of the American Newspaper Guild, of which the TNG is an affiliate, told a press conference Friday he was ready to go to jail if necessary to challenge the "bad law" that permits the use of injunctions in limiting pickets.

At the same press conference injunctions were also criticized by members of an inter-union liaison committee representing every major union in Oshawa.

Mayor Lyman Gifford, in a Saturday night interview, tended to go along with the union view.

"Is it fitting," he asked, "that our governments have put statutes on the books so that people can go to the courts and get orders for the police to do their will? This is not democracy. The legislation is not democratic."

ARE TURNED BACK

Turned back at the picket lines have been press men and printers trying to report to work at The Times.

Thomas Thomson, local president of the International Typographical Union (CLC), said he had been notified that an application by the newspaper to prosecute the 33 printers and nine press men for an unlawful strike had been withdrawn.

The Oshawa guild unit is seeking a $20-a-week salary increase. Rates for reporters now start at $50 a week increasing to a maximum $100 for experienced reporters. The newspaper offered $10 in three stages retroactive to last July 1 when its first contract with the guild expired.

OTTAWA (CP)—Almost three weeks of the new Parliament have elapsed with few displays of the rancor and fire that dominated the last one.

The question periods and the debates have been subdued most of the time, and on occasion downright dull.

The opposition parties have flailed the government on three major issues — the apparent death of the Fulton-Favreau formula, the U.S. guidelines on foreign investment, and the Spencer spy case—but without the loud and rapidfire gang attacks seen from 1963 to 1965.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker still makes the Commons echo with his thunderous voice, but even he seems to have taken a tranquillizer on some days

Party spokesmen see several reasons for the almost-gentlemanly behavior shown so far.

Most of the political issues around at the moment were featured in the Nov. 8 election campaign and don't arouse much public attention now Few new issues have crystalized yet.

PARTIES STILL TESTING

The parties are still testing each other, like boxers in the opening round. The opposition must wait for the government's legislation to unfold in the House before positions on new issues can be formed.

The government, particularly, appears subdued by the election results that returned it to its minority position in the 265-seat House. After the Liberal victory in 1963, the Commons worked in a continuous atmosphere of election fever with the parties joustling for positions.

Issues can blow up as quickly as a summer thunderstorm, but the earliest foreseeable storm is early summer, about the time of the next federal - provincial conference with the premiers.

The tax structure committee recommending changes in tax-sharing arrangements will have reported by then, and the provinces will begin drawing battle lines to try to win concessions.

The July 1, 1967, target date for the federal government to start a national medical insurance program will be just over a year away. The federal government will need commitments from most of the provinces before then or face a storm in the Commons.

Education, an important issue in the last election campaign, will be up for discussion between Prime Minister Pearson and the premiers.

cans were violating the Geneva agreement, we should have insisted on the two co-chairmen—Great Britain and the Soviet Union — reconvening the Geneva conference in order to enforce the terms of that agreement.

"And if the Soviet Union had refused to reconvene that conference we should have, as a public protest, withdrawn from the International Control Commission."

The NDP leader also said that economic sanctions imposed on Rhodesia by the Canadian government were legal and fully justified.

He said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker was wrong in condemning such sanctions in Parliament last week.

On domestic issues, Mr. Douglas said free university tuition and a vast manpower training program were needed in Canada to allow the country to compete in the world.

33 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 33 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend, including 26 in traffic mishaps.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, also showed three fire deaths, one drowning and three persons killed in miscellaneous accidents.

Quebec and Ontario each reported nine fatalities. All nine in Quebec were traffic deaths.

Ontario had six highway fatalities, one death in a fire, a skydiver killed when his parachute did not open and a girl killed when a hockey net frame fell on her.

British Columbia registered six deaths—three in traffic, two in fires and one person struck by a train.

Manitoba had three highway deaths, while Saskatchewan and Newfoundland reported one traffic fatality.

New Brunswick had two highway fatalities while in Nova Scotia one person was killed in traffic and another drowned.

Prince Edward Island and Alberta were fatality-free.

has been fulfilled."

Moscow television released a third picture showing a rocky area north of Luna IX and two sections of the spacecraft itself. A broadcasting official said more photos probably will be shown on TV.

The British, who have released seven intercepted photos, got a one-day jump on the Russians by showing the first ones Friday.

As Soviet scientists studied the pictures, Dr. Nikolai P. Barabashov said they "prove beyond doubt that the upper layer of luna soil is a sponge-like rough-textured mass scattered with individual sharp-edged fragments of various size."

Barabashov, chairman of the committee for the study of physical conditions on the moon, added: "Simultaneously it has become clear that this layer is strong enough to support more or less heavy objects."

British astronomer Dr. Raymond Lyttleton, who went to Jodrell Bank to examine the pictures, said the Luna IX probe could result in the United States reconsidering the construction of future moon vehicles.

He said the pictures indicated that the dust problem on the ocean of storms was not so great as first thought.

COULD CHANGE PLANS

American space experts now could consider revising their plans for a six-legged moon vehicle and fill the weight surplus with more instruments, he said.

Lyttleton said the latest moon enterprise could mean that men would be on the moon in 1969—a year before the American deadline.

In Washington, a U.S. space official expressed doubt that Russian photos would speed up the American moon landing.

"The Russians have performed a tremendous feat," said the official, who asked that he not be identified. "But one big problem for us is the exchange of data. If past experience is any criteria, we will not get very much material.

"And the photos alone would not be enough. You can't design a spacecraft on the basis of photographs, especially ones that we would get second hand. That's instant science."

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD A. CHASE

Chase – Vanderwater

Suzanne Pearl Vanderwater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Vanderwater of Belleville and Harold Arthur Chase, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chase of Trenton, were united in marriage by Rev. James Payton in Grace United Church, Trenton, on Saturday, January 29, 1966. Mr. Donald Burke played the wedding music and Miss Sandra Wickens, cousin of the bride, sang two selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length dress of white chantilly lace with a matching fitted bodice with wrist length lily-point sleeves. Her waist length bouffant veil was caught with a crown of white forget-me-nots and she carried a bouquet of red roses mingled with lily of the valley.

Miss Marlene Rachan of Belleville, as bridesmaid, wore a robin egg blue lace dress featuring a fitted bodice and straight skirt with a three-quarter length jacket to match. She carried a bouquet of baby 'mums tinted to match her gown.

Mr. Carl Downs of Trenton, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsman and Mr. Barry Cartier, and Mr. Harry Downs Jr. of Trenton, were ushers.

At the reception, held in Grace United Church parlors, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece suit of jade green lace, winter white accessories and a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a brown lace dress, brown accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

For her wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo the bride chose a three-piece suit of rose linen with brown accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

On their return, the couple will live on Marmora Street in Trenton.

2,000 Women Travel Traplines in Northland

TORONTO (CP)—Women are usually content to wear fur while men look after trapping and preparing it. But there are exceptions—more than 2,000 of them in Ontario alone.

The Ontario department of lands and forests says more than 2,000 women travel the rugged snow trails over their traplines in northern forests. They go on foot, by canoe before the freezeup and by other crude means, transporting their food and equipment.

About half of the province's more than 4,000 Indian trappers are accompanied by their wives on the traplines, says J. L. Grew, wild fur management supervisor for the department.

Some of the Indian women, including widows, hold licences of their own., They set traps along with the men.

Women trappers excel, however, in the finer trapping arts —the preparation of the pelts, an important job if top prices are to be obtained during the winter fur auctions.

In 1962, Mrs. June Gilbert of Savant Lake, in northwestern Ontario, won the department's Trappers Trophy in competition with nearly 2,000 other trappers. She submitted the best bundle of fur, which she trapped and prepared herself. It was the first time the award had gone to a woman.

Carl Monk of Port Arthur, a fisheries management officer, tells of two women trappers he came across in the wilderness around Northern Light Lake.

Mrs. Tempest Benson of Saganaga Lake and Mrs. Lillian Plummer of Gunflint Lake, both over 50, had their winter operations base set up in a cabin on an island in the lake.

To get there, they had paddled their 18-foot canoe from Gunflint Lake, making 10 portages en route. They carried with them enough supplies, traps and other gear to last through the trapping season.

The two Ojibway women are among eight Indian and three white women trappers with licences in the Port Arthur district.

"These trappers are no tenderfeet," Mr. Monk commented. In four days they had taken 20 large beaver.

Congregational Meeting

ST MARGARET'S ON-THE-HILL CHURCH

On Monday evening, the annal Vestry meeting of St. Margaret's was held in the Parish Hall. The Rector, the Rev. J. A. Dunlop, opened the meeting with prayer and presided over the meeting. In his message to the Vestry the Rector referred to the various church groups as auxiliaries of the whole life and work of the church. Their work must be moshed into the life of the whole church. "We are a world church, not a national or sectional church, and this something we often forget" he said. "We must forget our narrow parochialism if we are to take our rightful place as a world church".

Letters expressing greetings and offering a prayer for Divine guidance were received from Christ Church and St. Thomas. Also a letter of thanks was received from the lay reader, Mr. Fraser Ritchie.

The financial statement was presented by the Wardens and showed another successful year, with all obligations paid in full. The 1966 Budget was presented by Mr. Douglas Fort and accepted by the meeting. A vote of thanks to the Rector, the Wardens and leaders of the various church organizations was passed unanimously.

The following officers were elected for the year 1966: Rector's warden, Mr. Charles Male; people's warden, Mr. Charles Cooke; deputy wardens, Mr. Arthur Bradford, Mr. Fred Catton; junior wardens, Messrs. Ronald and Robert Bailey; treasurer, Mr. Jossph Hawkins; envelope secretary, Mrs. Fred Catton; delegates to Synod, J. Ritchie, C. Whittemore, J. H. McDonald, F. Catton, G. McQueen, C. Cooke; vestry council, D. Fort, M. Coles, G. Mountford, J. Miles, R. Worrell. R. White, L. Lenny, F. Hulsman, F. Howard, W. Durnford, D. Allen, M. Hall, S. Luffman, A. Rump, E. Tucker, R. Yard, K. Flynn, J. Hawkins.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

"AT HOME"

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Wood, Ameliasburg R.R. 1, will be "At Home" to friends, relatives and neighbors at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Wood, Ameliasburg, on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary on Wednesday, February 16, 1966, from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m.

The winners at the fourth-Tuesday January session of the Belleville Duplicate Bridge Club were: Ward-Lewis with 47½ points and an award of ·25 fractional master-points; the Townsends with 42½ and .13; McGlashon-Adams with 42 and .08; and the Bazuks with 38 and .06. With only five tables in play, the movement used was the Howell, in which couples sometimes play North-South and at other times East-West. The average was 36 points.

All those who are thinking of attending are requested to come out and try the game before the big Master-Point night in March. Everyone interested is urged to be on hand — with or without a partner — this Tuesday night, February 8, at 7.30, Quinte Hotel.

Women's Institutes

SIDNEY W I

Mrs. Carman Dafoe, convener of education, introduced Mrs. Burle Summers to the members of Sidney South Women's Institute for the February meeting at the home of Mrs. Harold Regensberg on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Summers with use of slides, gave a most interesting travelogue of a trip and a four-year stay which she and her husband spent in Australia. She began her talk describing the crossing of Canada, the Rockies, Vancouver and Hawaii. There was a beautiful sunset as the ship left New Zealand and pictures as they arrived at the busy harbor of Sydney. Canberra was shown as a modern planned capital. Many botanical gardens were shown as well as tropical fruit plantations. She showed pictures of sheep-raising, farmlands, the fishing industry, horse racing and every day living in the towns.

PROGRAM ON EDUCATION

Since the program was on education, Mrs. Summers talked of the colleges and the opportunities the children of Australia have to further their education by the Commonwealth plan.

There were many shots of kangaroos, kola bears, anteaters and the brightly feathered birds of Australia.

Dealing with the homeward voyage around the world, Mrs. Summers showed pictures of Singapore, Aden, the Mediterranean Sea, England and Scotland.

Mrs. Douglas Reid conducted the business wherein it was noted that the brush had been cleared away in the old Hogle Cemetery. The classes for the 4-H leaders, Mrs. M. Mywaart, Mrs. J. Caddick, Mrs. J. Tomalty and Mrs. D. Douglas are to be held in Stirling February 10 and 11. Mrs. Ross Windsor, Mrs. Douglas Reid, Mrs. Findlay Scrimshaw and Mrs. Roy Nobes were appointed to the nominating committee to select the coming year's officers.

Mrs. Regensberg and her assistants, Mrs. Philip Ray, Mrs. Douglas Plumpton and Mrs. Jack Caddick served tasty refreshments and a social time was enjoyed. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Carman Dafoe with Mrs. J. W, Sargent in charge of the program.

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS W. DOUCET

Doucet – Goodman

White poms and red carnations formed the background setting in Holy Rosary Church, Belleville on Saturday, January 8, 1966, at 11 a.m., when Alma Irene Goodman, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. E. L. Goodman, Belleville, was united in marriage to Francis Wallace Lorenzo Doucet, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Doucet of Bathurst, N.B. Father Rufus Debono officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length bridal gown of peau de soie featuring a rounded neckline long lily-point sleeves and a semi-full skirt. Lace applique highlighted with pearl bead work accented the front of the skirt and the same design of lace was carried out in the full length lace train. An elbow length veil fell from a crown headdress with petals studded with teardrop pearls. She carried a bouquet of feathered white carnations and red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Ruth Millage, sister of the bride, and the two bridesmaids, Mrs. Marguerite Goodman, and Mrs. Nancy Finkle, were identically attired in street-length midnight blue silk velvet: The fitted bodices topped bell-shaped skirts which were shirred with self colored nailheads from waist to hemline. Short cap sleeves and scoop necklines further enhanced the ensembles. All wore blue velvet floral headdresses to match their dresses and each carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of white poms mingled with fern.

Mr. Ronald Doucet attended his brother and Mr. Earl Goodman, brother of the bride and Mr. Keith Jensen of Montreal, were the ushers.

During the reception at Club Canara, Mrs. K. Goodman rendered a selection accompanied by Mrs. Doris Ogborne at the piano. Here, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece ensemble of pink lace with matching accessories and a corsage of pink gardenias with white feathered carnations. Mrs. Elsie Baldwin, eldest sister of the bridegroom assisted the bride's mother.

For the wedding trip to Washington, D.C., Erwin, Pa., and Montreal, Quebec, the bride chose for travelling a green suit enhanced with fox fur trim, golden colored accessories and a yellow gardenia corsage. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Doucet will reside in Belleville.

BRICK BOOKENDS

No gold bricking here — These bricks are working hard at being a pair of bookends.

Tape pieces of cardboard over the bricks (the type of cardboard found in shoe boxes is ideal), and glue strips of felt onto the cardboard to fit the six sides neatly. Add appropriate designs in felt for a girl's or boy's room.

Choose colors to blend with surrounding decor. A combination of strong shades of gold, green, orange, black, brown, and white is extremely effective.

If half bricks are available, they can be given a similar treatment and then used as door stops. In this case, a little foam padding glued next to the brick is a sensible precaution against the possibility of a stubbed bare toe. — SUSANNA

CORDUROY VELVET HEART SHAPED SHOE TREES

Whether your new springtime shoes are squared swingers, open-toed pumps, rounded or pointed; are made of patent, fabric, skin or soft leather; pamper them when not on your feet by keeping them filled out softly with these nylon stuffed shoe hearts . . . so much kinder to dainty, feminine footwear from relentless metal and wooden shoe trees.

Good old cut-up nylon stockings serve as the filler inside a pretty corduroy velvet heart. Attach a short loop of satin cord as a pull.

Keeps shoes in shape without buckling. — SUSANNA

Perpetual Borrowers Borrow Trouble

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: Our neighbors borrow everything from clothes to groceries, especially food, at least three times a day or more!

I know we should love our neighbors but how far does this have to go? I've tried dropping hints. I don't mind lending things once in a while but this is ridiculous, especially when the biggest part of the time they don't return it.

It's really beyond me what to do. I would like to stay on speaking terms with them but I know as soon as I ask them to quit borrowing they will get mad and there will be an argument. — TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED:

You could either:

1. Start borrowing back;
2. Run out of stocks ("Sorry, you used my last egg yesterday!"); or
3. Help the lady get organized. If she is young and new at keeping house, it's ten to one she has no shopping reminder list. Give her one. And don't shrink from a heart-to-heart talk in which you point out that borrowing habits will make bad friends for her.

There's just a chance she'll take your advice in the spirit in which it is given.

DEAR DORIS: I help with a gym class. We had a New Year's party for the girls and it was an absolute flop. I came home all upset and confused. How come I get that way?

Sometimes I feel like crying my head off when Mom gets mad at me and sometimes for no reason at all. What causes me to be like this? I am not a high strung person and it usually takes quite a bit to get me angry. I am 15. — UNSTRUNG.

DEAR UNSTRUNG: That figures. You and a million or so other teen-agers weep buckets into their plilows and wonder why. But dry your tears.

Your emotions are having trouble keeping up with your glands, and that's a fact. In the short space of seven or eight years a boy or girl moves from childhood into adulthood both physically and emotionally; and that's what makes for teen-age turmoil, tantrums, and tears before triumph!

Make allowances for yourself. Lean on Mom next time you are tempted to write to me. She's been through it and will help you if you let her.

DEAR DORIS: My daughter-in-law still regrets the fact that she didn't have a white wedding. She was dressed in pale pink, as she was pregnant and her father wouldn't hear of anything else. She just had a small family supper.

Now, three years later, she wants to have a white wedding; what she calls a "Mock Wedding," with a large guest list and a ceremony in the church. And a wedding gown and veil? Is this possible? — MAW-IN-LAW.

DEAR MAW-IN-LAW: Not in my book. Why not an anniversary party, as big and splashy as she likes? People would only laugh at a pretense such as she is dreaming up.

She and her husband could arrange with her minister to read over the ceremony and speak their vows again, in the privacy of his study, if this would give them both a realization that their union is worthy and lasting. What people think is not nearly so important as what she and her husband feel for each other.

DEAR DORIS: I too have a piano idle, and would be very interested in learning to play at home. — A BEGINNER AT 55.

DEAR MUSIC LOVERS, Old Beginners and ALL: The list is on its way to you. Last time I encouraged a woman 55 to learn an instrument a facetious (and anonymous) reader wrote in to suggest she should be practising playing a harp.

I was so offended on her behalf I destroyed the letter. Now I'd say to him (I'm sure is was a him) that I'd entertain serious doubts as to his ever arriving at a location where he could hear it, if she did.

(Try turning your trouble into triumph by getting help from a trained social worker. Doris can put you on the right track.)

Two Sociologists Predict Canada Some Day to Have a Woman P.M.

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto sociologists share the opinion that Canada some day will have a woman prime minister.

"Not in this century" says Dr. Murray Ross, president of York University and a specialist in sociology, economics and psychology.

Dr. Benjamin Schlesinger, associate professor at the University of Toronto's school of social work, believes it could be sooner. He says there is a growing dissatisfaction with male leadership.

Dr. Ross says all studies show women to be as intelligent as men, and there is no evidence that women are not equal to men in administrative and executive ability.

Women have assumed more varied tasks since the turn of the century and this will lead to women taking on more leadership roles.

Dr. Ross says Canada's first woman prime minister will not enter Ottawa until the 21st century — unless an "unusual" woman offers herself.

In Dr. Schlesinger's opinion, the main barrier to a female prime minister is tradition "but Canada has broken tradition in other ways."

MOTHERHOOD AN ASSET

He said child-bearing, rather than being a handicap on the way to the highest office, would be an asset.

"The prime minister wouldn't be a young woman. She would be middle-aged, and the country perhaps would welcome somebody who has borne children, who centres a family.

"Another thing — woman exerts a peaceful influence," Dr. Schlesinger said. "People might choose a woman with that in mind—peace."

He scoffs at any suggestion that political savvy is a male monopoly. "Judy LaMarsh seems to have it."

Both sociologists were asked if they could name any woman with the attributes of a prime minister.

"Phyllis Ross of the University of British Columbia, by all accounts," said Dr. Ross.

Mrs. Ross, no relation to Dr. Ross, is the wife of former B.C. lieutenant - governor Frank Ross. In the 1930s she was chief research economist to the Dominion tariff board and during the Second World War was a key figure in the wartime prices and trade board.

FAVOR MADAME VANIER

Dr. Schlesinger nominated the wife of Canada's governor-general as of prime minister quality.

"Madame Vanier is intelligent, concerned for her country and its people," he said. "She has a stabilizing influence. She commands respect."

Madame Vanier got a similar nomination from political economist Pauline Jewett, who lost her Liberal Commons seat in Northumberland to George Hees in the November federal election.

"Madame Vanier has shown she has everything a prime minister needs except political skill, which she also might have," said Miss Jewett. "It's necessary in a prime minister besides intelligence, education and speaking ability."

Miss Jewett, former head of political science at Carleton University, Ottawa, who is writing a primer of politics, says she can foresee a woman prime minister within 25 years. "But there would have to be a change in the political hierarchy."

Charlotte Whitton, former mayor of Ottawa, shares her views.

'Ordinary people would vote in a woman prime minister, but as things are now they wouldn't get the choice," Dr. Whitton said. "Leaders are chosen by the bosses of politics, at least in the two old parties, and a woman won't be prime minister if they can help it."

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose held its first meeting of the month with Sr. Regent Nellie Scrymgeour presiding.

The bus trip to the mid-winter conference in Toronto was cancelled because of weather conditions. Plans were made to hold a St. Patrick's bazaar. A bake sale auction, with Ida Lake as auctioneer, was held. A draw prize donated by Marg Lake was won by Nellie Shandraw and tickets are to be sold on a blanket donated by Margaret Lake.

Co-workers Joyce McCannon will hold a jewelry demonstration at the next meeting.

Winners at the euchre held [illegible]da Lake's home were Mabel Green, S. Thompson, Marguerite Kellar and Nellie Scrymgeour. Yvette Newton won the door prize.

IODE Chapter Lists Officers

The regular monthly meeting of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held in the Officers' Mess on Wednesday evening with the Regent, Mrs. K. D. H. Willcocks, in the chair.

Mrs. P. M. Till thanked those who had assisted at the Blood [illegible]or Clinic held last week and reported a total of 170 hours of work was given by the members during the year. The next clinic will be held in June.

The hospitality convener, Mrs. A. Cunningham thanked all who had assisted with refreshments for the Fantasy Ball. The Regent thanked the conveners Mrs. H. L. Kokesh and Mrs. F. R. Allan. The decoration theme of "winter" was artistically carried out by Mrs. W. E. Refausse.

Mrs. A. Duffy reported 165 sewn and knitted articles sent during the year.

Mrs. E. F. Smith, past Regent, introduced two new members and the Regent took the induction. Mrs. R. B. McSherry and Mrs. R. B. Milroy were welcomed into the Chapter.

Mrs. C. Bristol, chairman of nominations committee, gave [illegible] report and the following officers were installed by Mrs. E. F. Smith: honorary Regent, Mrs. P. H. Wills; honorary 1st Vice Regent, Mrs. J. Porritt; Regent, Mrs. K. D. H. Willcocks; 1st Vice-Regent, Mrs. A. Cunningham; secretary, Mrs. M. Evans; treasurer, Mrs. H. L. MEAT PRICES REAL PROBLEM

I am worried. Regardless of the news of our booming economy and affluent society I saw little shoppers bending over the meat counter, bunting and choosing meats their families would like and that they could a package or two of hamburg, a package of wieners and a afford. Most of them selected chicken. One imaginative girl selected a 16-pound turkey at 49c per pound. One girl chose a medium-sized roast and a half beef heart.

I believe the girl with the turkey had the best buy. But I copied the pot roast and beef heart purchase and came home to transform them into the best possible meat courses for my critical family.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Breaded Pan-Fried Baby Beef Liver; Creamed Fresh Frozen Limas; Carrots with Parsley Butter; Salad Greens with French Dressing; Lattice Cherry Pie; Tea.

POT ROAST with Brown gravy:

(Note: Today's pot roast is made by the alternate method — simmered in water first and then browned. My usual procedure is to brown the meat thoroughly at the beginning.)

4½-pound blade roast, 1 quart hot water, 2 or 3 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 or 3 beef bouillon cubes (or equivalent in "gravy-maker"), ¼ cup flour (for gravy).

In a heavy deep saucepan cover the meat with water and simmer covered for 4 hours turning it over twice during this cooking period. During last hour add 2 teaspoons salt and the pepper. Pour off liquid. Measure 1½ cups, and return it to meat. Reserve remaining liquid. Now cook the meat uncovered over low heat, turning at frequent intervals until all liquid is evaporated. There will be nothing but fat left beneath. Pour off fat. To make gravy measure ¼ cup fat into small saucepan and add flour and blend. Add beef bouillon cubes or gravy maker. Stir in 2 cups of the reserved broth until thick and cubes are dissolved. Taste the gravy to see if it is salty enough for you. Serve the pot roast and brown gravy wth fluffy mashed potatoes.

BEEF HEART (for slicing for sandwiches or lunches):

In large saucepan add hot water to cover half beef heart and 1 teaspoon salt, 1 bay leaf and 6 Juniper berries or peppercorns or ¼ teaspoon black pepper. Simmer covered for 4 hours. Use sliced hot or cool in broth and after trimming away fat and arteries at top use sliced for sandwiches or cold meat plates. Lovely with:

Mustard Sauce (to be served with ham or beef):

In the top of the double boiler mix together 4 teaspoons dry mustard, 2 teaspoons granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons white vinegar, 8 teaspoons cold water, (2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons), 2 large eggs. Beat with rotary beater to mix smoothly. Stir constantly over boiling water until thick. Remove from heat and double boiler and beat with rotary beater until smooth. Cool. Whip ¼ pint (½ cup plus 2 tablespoons) 32% cream until stiff and fold in. Store in covered jar in refrigerator. This will keep for 1 week (or longer).

NOTES:

1) This Mustard Sauce may be extended and moderated by the addition of ¼ pint (½ cup plus 2 tablespoons) fresh dairy sour cream. My sisters liked this variation very much especially on boiling hot split baked potatoes. 2) I tried it as the spread in place of butter and mayonnaise on a cold roast beef sandwich and it was dandy.

Clip and save this special and highly recommended recipe.

Birth-control Pills Not Used In Russia

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet doctors have doubts about birth-control pills used in the West but they claim to have the best method of abortion—so simple and harmless that frequent abortions are possible.

"The only negative feature is that women who have used it do not like to use contraceptives, since it's so easy," says Dr. Olga K. Nikonchik, a specialist in obstetrics and gynecology. She is with the ministry of health protection.

Birth - control pills are not used in Russia, she said, "because we consider them to be harmful by disturbing hormone functions."

Experiments on laboratory animals are being made with pills purchased abroad.

But Dr. Nikonchik and other Soviet doctors indicated that acceptance here of the pill will be slow or may never come because of an ingrained suspicion of any tampering with normal hormone functions.

Abortion methods standard in the West were used until a new one was invented about six years ago.

A device called a vacuum aspirator consists of an electric vacuum pump and a long tube that removes the embryo. The mucous surface of the uterus is not removed, so less harm is caused than in other methods, Dr. Nikonchik said.

The process is best used five or six weeks after conception. After 12 weeks other methods must be used. The vacuum method requires only a few minutes but women are placed in hospital three or four days to ensure proper rest.

"There is no limit to the number of abortions. A woman could conceive within a month after one, and have another abortion, but we teach her to protect herself," the doctor said.

The operations are free. The decision is solely the woman's. The father of the unborn child has no voice in the matter.

Another Soviet official was asked whether foreigners could come to the Soviet Union for abortions. The answer was no.

Dr. Nikonchik refused to give the number of Soviet abortions. The figure would be compared with those of countries where abortion is seldom legally admitted and would make the Soviet Union look bad, she said.

In addition to the official but secret Soviet figures, there are private abortions here.

Apparently they are performed on unmarried girls who want to avoid missing work for three days and having to give their employers the standard hospital form explaining an absence. Deaths have been reported from private abortions.

Women's Institutes

REDNERSVILLE WI

The Rednersville Women's Institute held its January meeting at the Belmont dining room in Belleville recently. The president, Mrs. Hubert Townsend, opened the meeting and welcomed the members who all enjoyed the tasty banquet. There were 29 members, one charter member and two life members present.

A letter from the adopted boy, Lee Kwak-Yuen in Hong Kong was received and passed around for everyone to read. The short course choosing and using fabrics will take place March 10 at Albury Church and members are requested to bring their own box lunch.

Mrs. Winston Pulver will be the delegate to the officers' conference to be held at the University of Guelph May 4 and 5.

Mr. Clarences Canclief was program convener and during this time songs and readings were given, a contest conducted and concluded with a geography match. Mrs. Beuford Peck gave a report on the district activity meeting. Mrs. H. Montgomery gave a report on plan of the township and the county for the Centennial.

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.I.

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. Merv. Burkholder opened her home for the February meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute with about 20 members in attendance.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner with the president, Mrs. W. Motley presiding. Mrs. W. Barber, district director, reported on a meeting she had recently attended.

The topic for the meeting was resolutions and safety and Mrs. Burkholder was convener.

Mrs. Burkholder took as her motto "Safety with People", and she presented a study in human relations. Mrs. K. Motley assisted with a reading. It was emphasized that safety begins first in the family group.

A sing song was enjoyed with Mrs. Farmer at the piano.

Mrs. Allan Wallbridge reported on a Centennial meeting which she had attended.

Mrs. Harold Motley thanked the hostess for her hospitality. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Frank Roblin, Miss Lilly Anderson and Mrs. Willet Barber served refreshments.

Safari on Horseback Calls for Planning

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 24-year-old girl with some unusual questions. I was raised in Kentucky. All my life I have been crazy about horses. I've had my own horse since I was 10 years old.

ANN LANDERS

I have always wanted to ride from Kentucky to California by horseback. Is that such a crazy idea? I'm an excellent horsewoman and in good health. I would take my time and follow the highway road maps all the way. According to my calculations if I leave in May I could be in California by August.

The horse I would take is a registered stallion and I wouldn't ride him more than four or five hours a day the first week. (I could take more but maybe the horse couldn't.)

Each night we would stop and I'd knock on some doors and ask to be put up for the night. My parents are in favor of the trip but we want to know what you think about it. Please say it sounds O.K. I've been dreaming of this for years. — READY.

DEAR READY: I see no reason why you should not make the trip but I urge you to check in advance about lodging. I don't know how the room clerks at the Conrad Hilton would react if they looked up and saw you and Trigger in the lobby.

DEAR READERS: A writer who signed herself "Thumbs Down On European Husbands" had a lot to say against the Continental Spouse. She said ten years with the dingbat was enough, — and now she is married to an American who treats her like a human being.

I invited comments from the readers and here are some samples from this week's mail:

From Nebraska: I don't know anything about being married to a European, but I do know something about being married to an American.

My husband is Cherokee Indian — and that's about as American as you can get. I am raising two boys and taking care of a large home. I do the laundry, ironing, cooking, cleaning, painting (inside and out), care for the lawn, put on storm windows and screens, and I work part time in town. My husband has never wiped a dish, carried a basket of laundry, made himself a cup of coffee or walked the floor with a sick child. Men are men the world over and there are good ones and bad ones in every country.

From Racine, Wis.: I am an American who is married to a Swiss and I am glad of it. One of the reasons for the increase in juvenile delinquency in this country is the lack of a strong male voice in the family. My husband is the boss (European style) and that's the way it should be. I don't try to put a house dress on him nor do I try to wear his trousers like my American neighbors.

New Orleans: I am a European husband who is married to an American woman. She was a WAC. We met in Naples. I would like to know who started the rumor that European men get waited on by their American wives. My wife hasn't heard about it yet. I have always prepared dinner and done the dishes. I scrub the floors and do the waxing and polishing. I also do the marketing and the laundry on weekends. I'm not complaining. I just want to keep the record straight. Thank you.

Detroit: My European husband found the ideal solution. He combined the best of the old world and new world. He believes in the European philosophy that the husband is the master of the house and the wife does as she is told. But he went completely American when it came to wives working outside the home and bringing in a paycheque. He also thought I should hand it over to him. When I rebelled against the dictatorship he did something that men on both continents have been known to do. He disappeared.

April Election Is Certainty Says Times

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson appears to be edging closer to a decision on a spring general election, possibly in April.

Speculation over a possible spring poll gained momentum during the weekend amid accumulating signs that Wilson and his Labor party are riding a high tide of national popularity despite his announced intentions to continue the country's economic squeeze.

Many of the Sunday newspapers predicted a spring vote with some suggesting the Socialists even hope to win back the race-sensitive Smethwick riding at the edge of Birmingham, lost by former foreign secretary Patrick Gordon Walker in the Oct. 15, 1964 general election.

Wilson has kept silent about a possible election date and he may not reach any personal decision until his return from his Moscow conference with Soviet Premier Kosygin Feb. 21-24.

He spent the weekend at Chequers, his official country residence in Buckinghamshire, conferring privately in a joint meeting of his cabinet and party executive to map out new legislation and possibly a new election platform.

The Sunday Times said an April election now is almost a certainty. The Observer suggested the Chequers meeting sets the spring election stage with Wilson poised to fire the starting-gun.

Changed Rocket Without Telling His Teacher

TORONTO (CP) — A boy whose homemade rocket exploded injuring a teacher and seven students in a suburban school yard Feb. 1 did not tell the teacher he had added new chemicals to the propellant, says a report from three school superintendents.

The report is to be submitted today to the board of education.

The rocket exploded at Dorset Park School in Scarborough while it was being launched by Andrew Baca, 14. No one was injured seriously.

Teacher Bruce Carmody said Andrew tried to explain the ingredients of the propellant in the foot - long rocket by using a chemical formula, which was incorrect, but seemed to indicate the chemicals were not an explosive combination.

Mr. Carmody said he took an interest in the boy's rocketry to provide some control over it. He said Andrew was originally experimenting with gunpowder, and that he had forbidden it.

"I thought if he was left to continue alone he might injure or kill himself," the teacher is quoted in the report.

Recover Car In Florida

MADOC — Charlie Derry, local garage operator, John McCann, Madoc police chief, and Jack Francis had an unexpected trip to Tallahassee, Florida this week. Mr. Derry sold a new car and received a cheque in payment from a customer. The cheque could not be cashed by the local bank and the purchaser could not be located. Police were notified and the car was later found in Tallahassee where it was being offered for sale at a considerably reduced price by the purchaser. He was later arrested and held by police for extradition. The party flew down on Tuesday from Malton to Tallahassee. They expect to pick up the car and bring it and the purchaser back to Madoc Friday.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Once again snow has forced the cancellation of service at St. John's. The annual Vestry meeting scheduled for after Sunday's service will be held on Tuesday evening, after the choir practice.

The schools were closed and there was no traffic through the lane until late on Monday evening, and no deliveries.

On Tuesday evening Mr and Mrs. Wesley Reid, and Mrs. Percy Akey of Cannifton, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dearborn of Belleville and Mrs. Leonard Reid of Rossmore, attended a birthday party for Milton Akey.

On Friday evening the Cubs of 'B' pack had a swim party at the Tops Motel. Everyone had a good time despite the frigid weather. There were 22 boys in attendance.

Wayne Reid, of Rossmore, spent the weekend with his cousins Dale and Dana Akey.

Two workmen at Canada Cement were taken ill at work and taken to hospital. They are Mr. Burt Henderson and Mr. Maracle.

Mr. Charles Hart is also in hospital.

Northport

NORTHPORT — Mrs. David Barker has been a patient in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham Gale and family, Oshawa spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mills and family and on Saturday attended the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. Gales' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Potter, in Demorestville.

The February meeting of the U.C.W. was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Hazel Aman of Solmesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl VanAlstine, Trent Road, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kotchapaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurel Williams and family, Big Island and Miss Donna Williams, Toronto were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Beith Barker.

Miss Sally Labrash, Reg. N., of Toronto and Miss Lee Risher, Reg. N., of Peterborough were weekend guests of Miss Elaine Mallett, Reg. N., and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mallett.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hatt and family of Cobourg were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barker and Mrs. D. Folkard and called on Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mowbray and family.

Miss Brenda Stobbart spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stobbart and Jane at the manse.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fraser recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Doug Fraser, Gananoque.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Potter, Demorestville, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday. They were "at home" to friends and relatives at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Potter.

WANT STRONGER LINKS

QUEBEC (CP)—Wally Evans, heading a delegation of 130 businessmen from London, Ont., said Sunday the people of Ontario want to strengthen the links of friendship and economics with the people of Quebec.

EMPLOYMENT NEWS

The local employment trend during the past week showed a quiet labor demand, as reflected by employers' orders for additional workers, received at the National Employmemnt Service Office. Possibly, the recent heavy snowfalls are responsible to some degree, for this static local employment condition.

The labor demand out-of-town continues to be excellent, not only for the skilled tradesmen, but also for the semi-skilled and unskilled worker. An illustration of this, the fact that during the past week personel repnresentatives of 2 world renowned organizations utilized local NES Boardroom for the interviewing and selecting of urgently required additional workers.

On Wednesday of this week, members of the local NES Office, accompanied by Mr. E. Buckley, the area co-ordinator of Canadian Vocational Training Program 5, travelled to Bancroft to interview and advise unemployed persons of that district, who were interested in taking an educational up-grading course and eventually a retraining course. It is hoped that this will result in obtaining a sufficient number of interested persons, both female and male, to establish an educational up-grading course to commence at the (Bancroft High School) on the evening of February 14th... This course is designed to assist those whoe education is lower than Grade 10. Upon obtaining this Grade 10 level further scholastic and vocational training will be available to them.

AID HANDICAPPED

Assistance to the handicapped person is another phase of activity of the National Employment Service Office through its special service officers. In order to assist handicapped people to find an occupational field these officers must consider a variety of factors of which past experiences, aptitude, interest and present health are only a few. Listed in files at present, seeking suitable employment, there is a very fine gentleman of good appearance and of pleasant personality, who is 62 years of age. He has recovered from a heart attack and is now fit for light work. He requires a job which entails no heavy lifting. If you, as an employer, have a vacancy of a watchman's nature or anticipate one in the near future, please contact the NES office and enquire for one of the special services officers who would be pleased to give you further information.

The following employment openings are available through the local NES office.

In the female division openings are available out-of-town for telephone operators for permanent work, for applicants with previous work experience, a Grade 9 education will be acceptable otherwise Grade 10 is a minimum. One position calls for a Grade 12 or higher. Another attractive employment opportunity is for airplane stewardesses. The requirements are as follows: single only, at time of employment under 26 but over 20 years of age, height 5' 2" to 5' 8", weight in proportion to height within the 105 to 135 lb- range, possession of at least high school junior matriculation or commercial or business equivalent. During the 5-week training period a monthly salary of $150 is paid with meals and hotel accommodation also paid during this period. Thereafter, an excellent salary is paid with a monthly flying time of 65 to 80 depending upon the type of aircraft. Stenographic positions are open in Northern Ontario.

Stenographic positions are open in Northern Canada. The company would prefer 2 to 3 years experience in office work but will consider inexperienced persons. However, a speed of 100 words per minute in shorthand and 60 words in typing is essential for the successful applicants.

Local requirements call for an experienced window trimmer and a qualified hairdresser.

In the male division locally, a garage has a vacancy for an apprentice automobile repair mechanic. Career employment opportunities are available in the financial, banking and retail fields for those young men possessing a Grade 12 or higher education.

An unusual opportunity exists here for a man with exceptional driving ability and experience. The job entails driving a bus on chartered trips. A pleasant manner, neat appearance, demonstrated ability to meet and deal with the public and proven reliability are important requisites.

A glass company still has an opening for an experienced glazier. It is preferred that the applicant be 25 years of age or over.

If you are interested in any of these positions, seeking employment or thinking of re-entering the labor market, please contact the local National Employment Service Office at 324 Church Street, Belleville, Ont.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

NOTCH PROVISION

This provision is outlined in Section 32 (8) of the Income Tax Act and is designed to give a measure of tax relief when the income of a dependant in the year exceeds the statutory limit of $950, by just a small amount.

Many taxpayers try to apply this section but few of them ever do it correctly as laid down in the Income Tax Act, and as stated on the income tax return. When the income of the dependant is over $950, the taxpayer in order to claim exemption for them must add the excess directly to his own tax payable on the line indicated as "Tax Adjustments."

Before the taxpayer completes his return, he should work it out to see whether any relief is obtained by applying this section. First claim the dependant and add the excess over $950 to the tax payable. Secondly do not claim exemption for the dependant, then compute the tax. Whichever of these two methods produce the lesser tax payable should be used.

The most common error made by the taxpayer in trying to apply this section is to add the dependant's income in excess of $950 to his own income, instead of adding it to his tax. I have had letters asking if this was a misprint on the return, where it said "Add to Tax Payable." They were of the opinion it should read "income."

I cannot give any stated amount of the excess over $950 that would create an advantage when applying this section as it varies according to the income of the taxpayer. However a much greater excess over $950 will give an advantage when the taxpayer is claiming the equivalent to married status ($1000) than when he is only allowed $550 for the dependant.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: My son aged 18 earned $961 in 1965. How do I claim him?

Answer: Claim $550 exemption and add $11 to your tax on the line indicated as "Tax Adjustments."

Question 2: My mother lives with us. Now she gets the old age pension and her total income is over $1,200. Is there any way I can claim her?

Answer: No. The notch provision would not be to your advantage.

Demonstration Given by Judo Club

TWEED — Tweed Judo Club under the direction of Mr. Don Dalrymple of Belleville put on a demonstration in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall on Wednesday evening. Mr. Dalrymple instructor of the Tweed Club is a member of the Hatashita Club of Toronto and holder of the Black Belt.

The club was organized in Tweed about one year ago and at present has about 25 members including six girls. The two youngest members are David Kwan and Brian Fisher, both 12 years old.

Those participating in Wednesday nights demonstration were Doug Blake, Claude Leclair, Fred Albert, Carl Morgan, Allen Lanigan, Eddie La Barge, Brian Fisher, David Kwan, Christine Deshane and Janice Alexaxnder.

The winners of the draw prize was Mr. Bud Brant of Belleville.

Following the demonstration cards and refreshments were enjoyed.

The next heavyweight championship drag race has been scheduled for Chicago's International Amphitheatre on March 29th.

Ernie Terrell, the World Boxing Association's designated champion, whose detractors claim he is the best unicycle exponent the ring has ever seen, will tangle with one Cassuis Clay, known in Black Muslim circles as Muhamid Ali.

Which brings up the question; Can Muhamid frug faster forward than Terrell can watusi in reverse gear?

Terrell is a giant of a man who stands nearly four feet while touching his toes. He has a reach longer than a tax collector and when doing a handstand resembles a huge "X".

Terrell was little known in fistic circles four years ago when he was adding to his ring income by warbling folk songs and twanging a guitar with a combo in a part of home-town Chicago.

The giant Chicagoan still head-man's his combo called the "Heavyweights" and has appeared in some Toronto night-spots. His fingers cut off arms that permit him to scratch his knees without bending.

On the other hand, Clay is foot-lightning when in action in the ring. He has one speed - fast - and when his chassis was on the assembly line, they omitted the reverse gear. He knows the Terrell style and his "engine" will likely be souped-up for the March 29th foot-race spectacular.

The International Amphitheatre, within bull-bellow hearing of Chicago's famous stockyards, holds about 15,000. The receipts including the close-circuit television take all over the continent and parts of Europe, will estimate a couple million silver men.

The Clay deposit vaults are being readied for a big invasion. For Cassius will pocket half of all receipts whether they be fifty cents of fifty million.

And Terrell's creditors, if any, shouldn't worry. The big warbler will collect twenty per cent across the board and I'll exchange that for my income tax rebate any time.

I am not aware of Muhamid's financial situation but he does have to part with $12,500 annually for the next decade to cover alimony costs. He was divorced some time ago from his first wife on the grounds that he insisted she wear the attire of Black Muslim women instead of the lacy frilly habiliments that adorn the gals on our side.

However, be that as it may. Columnists and sports writers covering the press conference where the announcement of the upcoming Waltzing Matilda was made, raised eyebrows at a strangely subdued Clay.

Where was the loud-mouthed bombastic Cassius of former press get-togethers? As Mushmouth puts it, "Clay clammed up tighter than a half-stoned oyster". In former occasions the boys of the tonsil and typewriter merely sat with pencil and mike poised waiting for the colorful words of prediction. They never came.

Then some venturesome soul posed the question "Who will win?". Jaws slackened and pencils hung in midair as Clay said nothing. He shook his head negatively. For the first time in his professional career, he refused to predict the outcome, let alone the round when he would finish the business at hand.

Terrell, however, seized the opportunity to get in a word of braggadacio. He said something to the effect that there wasn't much to it, he would beat Clay.

That hurt slightly, but in a note that was barbed slightly with sarcasm, Clay danced to the Terrell tune."

'There's nothing to it. A baby could do it", was his terse remark.

What I would like to know can Clay's tremendous ego keep him under the shroud of silence he has adopted? The former Ali Blabby of the ring has been suddenly struck with a silence virus. Formerly his rantings were no small factor in the filling of arenas and places where TV was available.

He might be clever enough to adopt a new style of publicity. I don't thing he thinks Terrell can defeat him. Perhaps he believes a host of fans are of that opinion and will pay to see it done. Perhaps Mr. Clay has more brains in his handsome naggin than a lot of people give him credit for.

Jack Carson Steps Down

Dick Ellis Heads EOBA

Richard Ellis, well-known sportsman of this city, was named president of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association at its annual meeting in Port Hope Saturday.

Ellis succeeds Jack Carson of Belleville, one of the organizers of the association and its guiding light during its two years of existence.

Delegates elected Jim Gilmer, Port Hope first vice-president; Ted Skelcher, Ajax, second-vice and George Bedard, Frankford, third vice-president.

Representatives of the associations' three zones named their representatives to the executive.

From Zone One (Newcastle west to Ajax) is Art Parry, Oshawa; from Zone Two (Cobourg west to Newcastle) Arnold Wade, Newtonville and from Zone Three (Cobourg east to Belleville) S. Colson of this city.

The meeting was well attended, some 75 per cent of voting delegates being present. These numbered above 60.

"The enthusiasm and interest shown in all phases of the association's activities augers well for this year," commented past-president Carson. "If anything, and taking the annual meeting as a criterion, the EOBA should increase the success it enjoyed in 1965."

Some wrinkles were ironed out, greater part of them arising from misinterpretation of the rules as laid down.

A recommendation from the Belleville delegation to the effect that all umpires be screened by the senior umpire and a member of the executive was turned down.

Jim Bishop of an Oshawa radio station was the guest speaker who urged the delegates to co-operate with the news media to the full in order to give publicity to all concerned.

"Reporters" he said, "cannot attend a dozen games at once and it is up to you fellows to see they get the scores and other news items as soon as possible. And don't wait a week to do it."

Bishop pointed out that in some coaches of losing teams do not report games results. This is not fair, he said. Home teams should see to it that games are given the press immediately following the game, win, lose or draw.

A dinner at 6 p.m. wound up the meeting's activities.

Hull Scoreless * * * * *

Habs, Hawks, Wings Share Top Rung

* * * * * Gump Blanks Blues

By GARY McCARTHY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto Maple Leafs seem determined to keep Bobby Hull from breaking that National Hockey League record of 50 goals in a season. But it wasn't always that way.

Oct. 23—opening night of the 1965-66 season — Hull scored three as Chicago Black Hawks blanked the Leafs 4-0. In their next meeting Nov. 7, the Hawks whipped the Leafs 9-0 as Hull scored another three goals and picked up three assists.

Now, when the goals really count, Hull is finding Toronto elusive. The Leafs held him to three assists as they split a weekend series with the Hawks—winning 5-2 in Toronto Saturday and losing 3-2 in Chicago Sunday.

In Saturday's other NHL action, Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens battled to a 2-2 tie and Boston Bruins downed New York Rangers 5-3. Sunday Montreal blanked New York 4-0 and Boston tied 3-3 with Detroit.

Hull, with a league-leading 44 goals, has 23 games left to score seven goals to break the record of 50 in a season. He shares the record with Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, two retired Montreal players.

TAKES TO ASSIST

The best the 27-year-old native of Point Anne, Ont., could do Saturday was pick up two assists on Chicago's goals by Phil Esposito and defenceman Pat Stapleton.

Toronto marksmen were Frank Mahovlich, defenceman Allen Stanley, Eddie Shack, defenceman Larry Hillman and right winger Ron Ellis.

Mahovlich's goal was his 20th of the season and marked the sixth consecutive season he has scored 20 goals or more and the eighth time in nine full NHL seasons.

STAN MIKITA

Veteran Leaf netminder Terry Sawchuk, in a superlative performance, handled 39 shots and had no chance on the two that beat him. Rookie Hawks netminder Dave Dryden had 28 shots fired at him.

Sunday night Stan Mikita scored his 23rd and 24th of the season and assisted on Eric Nesterenko's winner as the Hawks edged the Leafs 3-2. Nesterenko's goal, his 12th of the season, came with a minute and 55 seconds remaining in the game.

Toronto scorers were George Armstrong with his seventh and centre Dave Keon with his 16th.

Chicago netminder Glenn Hall fresh from a week's vacation, handled 32 shots to Sawchuk's 27.

Chicago's victory boosted the Hawks into a three-way tie for first place with Detroit and Montreal.

BUCYK REACHES 500

Boston winger Johnny Bucyk reached the 500-point mark of his NHL career with a pair of goals and Tommy Williams also contributed a pair Saturday night as the Bruins beat the Rangers. John McKenzie was the other Boston goal-getter.

Vic Hadfield, Doug Robinson and Jean Ratelle scored for New York.

The Bruins snapped a three-game losing streak with the victory.

McKenzie's 11th goal of the season with less than eight minutes left capped a three-goal Boston third period, giving the Bruins their tie with the Red Wings Sunday night.

Bucyk and Williams also tallied for Boston. Bucyk's goal was his 14th of the season and the 196th of his 11-year NHL career. Williams' was his 13th of the season.

Alex Delvecchio, Ron Murphy and Paul Henderson scored for Detroit.

The tie gave the Bruins their first point in 10 games this season with Detroit.

In their tie with the Canadiens Saturday night, the Wings got goals from Parker MacDonald and Gary Bergman while Gilles Tremblay and Claude Provost scored for Montreal.

Detroit's Bryan Watson and Provost started fighting in the second period and it took officials about five minutes to break up the melee. Watson was given a double minor and a misconduct while Provost served a minor and a misconduct.

GUMP EARNS SHUTOUT

Lorne Worsley's steady netminding led the Canadiens over the Rangers Sunday night. Worsley stopped 22 shots as he registered his first shutout of the current season. The Canadiens peppered Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin with 38 shots.

Bobby Rousseau, Ralph Backstrom, Provost and Tremblay scored for the Canadiens.

Tremblay's goal, his 17th of the season, sailed 90 feet into an empty net after the Rangers replaced Giacomin with a sixth skater in a last-minute bid to get on the scoreboard.

The victory was Montreal's eighth in nine games against the fifth-place Rangers.

Referee Frank Udvari called 22 penalites. New York's Reggie Fleming drew a minor, two majors and a misconduct for a total of 22 minutes.

The Ranger forward battled Montreal's Terry Harper at the start of the second period after Henri Richard of Montreal and New York's Vic Hadfield tangled in the opening period.

No games are scheduled until Wednesday when the Rangers go to Toronto and Detroit plays in Chicago.

Hawks' Czech Bounces

CHICAGO (AP) — Hanging the "tough guy" tag on Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks was no mistake and the little centre proved it Sunday night.

Mikita, wearing a plastic helmet to protect 13 stitches taken in his head 24 hours earlier, scored two goals and set up another in leading the Hawks to a 3-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

The triumph lifted Chicago into a three-way tie for first place with Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League race.

"Can you imagine that performance," marvelled Hawk coach Billy Reay. "A guy tries to cut his head off last night and he bounced right back and picks us up a win."

In Toronto Saturday night, the Hawks went down to defeat 5-2. During the game, Kent Douglas slashed Mikita with his stick and cut open his forehead.

DONS HELMET

Mikita, one of the toughest but smallest players in the league at 165 pounds, went down for stitches and then came back to finish the game wearing his white plastic helmet.

Mikita had the helmet on again Sunday as he scored goal in each of the first two periods and then set up Eric Nesterenko with the game-winning goal in the final two minutes of play.

"I like that helmet," said Mikita after the game. "I just might wear it all the time. It gives you more confidence when you get into corners and you're not afraid someone might put your head into the glass."

His three points put him in second place with 57 to 73 for teammate Bobby Hull, who went without a goal for the second straight game and now has 44 for the season.

13-year-old Dazzles Judges

Burka, Knight Still Champions

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The defending champions have all won their way back to Canada's figure skating team for another shot at the world championships in Davos, Switzerland later this month. But they'll be hearing more from a 13-year-old Vancouver girl who didn't make the team.

Karen Magnussen, the 1965 junior champion, was well down the list in the women's singles following the completion of Saturday's compulsory figures, which account for 60 per cent of the total points.

But she was second only to Petra Burka, the world champion, in the free-skating phase of the competition, in which she dazzled the judges with a program of spins, jumps and ballet moves. She finished fourth over-all, just 3.3 points shy of third place and a ticket to Davos.

Miss Burka, 19 shooting for her third consecutive Canadian title, had it wrapped up comfortably before the free skating began and finished nearly 70 points ahead of another Toronto skater, Valerie Jones. Roberta Laurent of Toronto, strong in the compulsory figures, beat out Miss Magnussen for third place.

RETAINS CROWN

Donald Knight, the 18-year-old senior men's titleholder from Dundas, Ont., defended his title, helped largely by a strong performance in the compulsory figures Saturday.

Putting in a strong bid to prove the Canadian Figure Skating Association wrong was 29-year-old Dr. Charles Snelling of Toronto. The association said last year he was too old to compete in world events, but Snelling showed them otherwise, winning a place on the team by finishing second to Knight. Third man on the men's team is Jay Humphry of Vancouver.

For the 16-year-old Humphry, it will be his second chance in world competition. He finished third behind Snelling last year, but was picked ahead of Snelling because the association said he had more world skating potential.

Carole Forrest and Kevin Lethbridge, both of Toronto, won the dance competition despite a fall during their free-dance presentation. They will be accompanied by Gail Snyder and Wayne Palmer, also both of Toronto.

COME FROM BEHIND

Paul and Susan Huehnergard of Toronto made the team with a come-from-behind repeat victory in the senior pairs event. The couple, who won the Canadian pairs title in 1965, trailed Alex and Chris Shields, of Toronto by 1.5 points after the compulsory figures. But they came back in the free skating.

Moving into Peterborough are about 80 competitors from across Canada, who have won regional honors and will compete in junior novice events at the end of the week.

Winners and second and third-place finishers in senior regional events will compete for the national junior title. The newly-created novice class is open to the top-three finishers in regional junior events.

Bisons Whip Finland 7-2

TURIN, Italy (AP) — University of Manitoba Bisons, representing Canada, trounced Finland 7-2 Saturday as the hockey competition got under way in the World Student Winter Games in this Italian city.

In other Saturday games, Russia and Romania tied 1-1 and Italy defeated Yugoslavia 4-3.

Enough Players For Six New Clubs

NHL Expansion

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

NEW YORK (CP) — President Clarence Campbell said Sunday the planned expansion of the National Hockey League should stimulate an expansion of minor professional hockey in North America.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

Whether it does or not, he said in an interview, there are enough pro hockey players around now to ensure that six new clubs will be able to take to the ice in the 1967-68 NHL season and play big league hockey.

Jack Adams, who for many years was general manager of Detroit Red Wings, agreed with him.

In fact, said Adams, the Central Professional Hockey League, of which he is the president, will almost be able to take care of the increased demand for major league players by itself.

"Our league is full of good kids being groomed for the NHL," he said.

MEET TODAY

Campbell and the NHL governors—owners of the six existing clubs—will meet here today, Tuesday and Wednesday to sit in judgment on 15 applications for the six new NHL franchises.

Campbell said at least two of the six will probably be awarded at this week's meetings and the rest in June.

When the NHL announced its expansion plans last February, the 1968-69 season was the target date, but Campbell said Sunday there is "scarcely any doubt" the new teams will be active a season earlier.

The new teams, which will comprise a new division of the NHL by themselves, would be able to participate in the NHL player draft as soon as they are admitted to the league.

Five of the 15 franchise bids have come from Los Angeles, but no city will have more than one team.

SEVERAL APPLY

There are two applications from Pittsburgh and one each from Vancouver, San Francisco, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Baltimore, Buffalo, Cleveland and Philadelphia. All these cities except Philadelphia have minor league clubs at present.

Campbell declined comment on the chances of any of them, other than to note that Vancouver is the only Canadian city in the running and "as a large and growing centre that will have a suitable arena, it has to be taken very seriously."

Adams, in New York to receive the Lester Patrick Memorial Trophy tonight for his services to hockey in the United States, said the NHL is expanding "not a moment too soon, for there will be lots of young players knocking on its doors in the next few seasons."

The NHL's expansion meetings begin today with the governors interviewing groups from Los Angeles, Minnapolis, Baltimore, San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Buffalo. Campbell said no announcements are likely to be made before Wednesday.

International Bonspiel

Quebec Wins Top Awards; Ont. Seven

By AL McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—While Quebec rinks took the top three prizes and one lesser trophy in the 53rd annual Quebec International Bonspiel which ended Saturday, the province of Ontario was the winner numerically in the week-long 14-trophy event.

Quebec rinks took home three trophies and the Seagram's Grand Aggregate Shield, while Ontario won seven awards, the Maritimes three and the United States one

The Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy—ranked the top prize in the event—was won by Gerry Jobin's Quebec Jacques Cartier rink when he downed Dr. Bill Hambley of the Hamilton Thistle Club 10-2 in Saturday's final round.

Dr. Hambley, making his first appearance in the bonspiel, worked to the final of the Lieutenant-Governor's play by beating Burlington, Ont., skip Ernie Dennison 13-5.

Dr. Hambley was third in the Grand Aggregate with an 8-2 record.

Top Ontario winner was Neil Speicher's Toronto Royal Canadian quartet. Speicher skipped his rink to a 9-5 win over Don Middleton of Chatham, N.B., for the section B Francois Jobin Gold up.

Dennison took home the section trophy for his 14-4 win over Toronto Mississauga's Ulfe Blok-Andersen, while Nels Findlay of Galt was the winner of the Wedgwood Bowl in section F play with a 15-11 win over Jim Grant of Baie d'Urfe, Que.

Other Ontario winners were Murray Thorpe with another Burlington, Ont., entry, Harold Frye of St. Thomas and veteran Herb White of Oshawa.

Rollins Jrs., Petes Here Tonight

Rollins Juniors will carry a slim one - point lead over the position into their OHA Eastern Junior "B" puck clash with Peterborough Don Byes here tonight.

Belleville holds third place with 28 points, followed by the Byes with 27 and Trenton with 25.

It adds up to a key tilt for both clubs if they hope to stay ahead of Trenton in the battle for playoff spots.

And a reminder to hockey fans. This game, one of several re - scheduled, will get underway at 8.15 sharp so note that change in time from the usual Friday night games.

After tonight, Rollins face a tough grind, meeting Oshawa here Friday then travelling to Kingston on Sunday.

It's a tough week and the locals are badly in need of a top effort tonight, all the way along the line.

Championships Cancelled

German Bob-Sledder Killed

CORTINA D' AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—An atmosphere of gloom and disagreement today hung over the 1966 world bobsled championships that closed but never really ended.

Still being questioned, as a grim West German team prepared to send home the body of its ace pilot, was whether an international jury was justified in cancelling the four-man races because of the German's death and poor weather conditions. Canada was the defending champion.

Anton Pensberger, 27-year-old textile worker and bobsledder, was killed Saturday night when his bob shot off the 1,860-yard Ronco Olympic ice chute.

The four-man sled, zooming down and around at nearly 62 miles an hour, went out of control when Pensberger apparently lost hold of a runner steering handle. It crashed in a woods 60 metres away.

Pensberger died in a hospital one hour later without regaining consciousness, his spinal column and skull fractured. The other three men suffered various injuries.

Most severely hurt was brakeman Ludwig Siebert, 27. He broke his pelvis, fractured a thigh bone, snapped his elbow and suffered internal bleeding. Doctors expected to keep him on the critical list another two days.

The international jury halted the four - man championship, saying the track, weakened by days of exceptionally warm weather, was not hard enough to sustain the wear and tear of speeding sleds any more.

It also awarded the gold medals of victory — which should have been pinned on the championship winners—to the disaster-scarred German crew.

Dissenting with the jury, Tony Brooke, British team manager, said:

"The track was raceable and fit. This course is one of the best in the world, if not the best of them all.

"I saw many sleds being kept inside the track, not by the ability of pilots but because the chute was built so well. I think, therefore, the race might have gone on."

The anadians under Victor Emery of Montreal said officially that nothing could be gained by racing on a partly melted track. But some of the Canadians conceded privately that they would have preferred to have gone on.

Generals Take Wings

Rangers Whip Habs 6-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eighth-place Kitchener Rangers extended their winning streak to two games Sunday night by defeating Montreal Junior Canadiens 6-4 in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action.

In other weekend games Oshawa Generals moved into a second-place tie with Niagara Falls Flyers by defeating Hamilton Red Wings 7-4. St. Catharines Black Hawks continued their domination over Toronto Marlboros by edging them 4-3.

Bob Cook led Sunday's attack with two goals and Bob Jones, Don Luce, Walter Tkaczuk and John Beechey added the others for Rangers.

Three of the Montreal goals were scored by Christian Bordeleau. Norm Ferguson got the other.

St. Catharines, winners of three of their five games with Toronto, got goals from Kerry Bond, Steve Latinovich, Jan Popiel and Ken Laidlaw.

Tom Martin, Mike Corrigan and Brent Imlach scored for Toronto.

Bill Heindl scored twice for Oshawa, with other goals going to Bobby Orr, Chris Hayes, Danny O'Shea, Bill Little and Billy White.

Peter Mahovlich, Sandy Gibbons, Don Giesebrecht and Gary Marsh scored for Hamilton.

Ontario Minors Win Tournament

PORT HURON, Mich. (CP)—Ontario athletes aged 10 to 14 captured all the championships and all but one all-star berth as the annual Silver Stick North American hockey championships ended Sunday.

Toronto Marlboro bantams continued their domination by winning the Bantam A title with three shutout victories.

In the final the Marlboros had their toughest opposition as they downed Toronto Butter Beeps 7-0. In semi-final play Saturday night the Marlboros won 9-0 over Sarnia. In semi-final play Sunday morning, the Butter Beeps whipped Port Huron 8-0.

Toronto Township Police walked off with the Pee Wee AA title, downing Ottawa Nationals 3-1 in the final. Earlier in the day, Ottawa won 3-1 over Barrie and late Saturday night Toronto Police defeated Oakville 5-1.

Arnprior, one of five Ottawa-area teams in the tournament, captured the Pee Wee A championship with a 3-0 victory over Lindsay in the final. Lindsay then won the Bantam A title with a 2-1 win over Smiths Falls in the final after downing Watford 8-1 in semi-final play.

Fifty-three teams and more than 1,000 boys competed.

Three Zeros Scored In A.H.L.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

On Saturday night, goaltender Bob Perrault of Rochester Americans fished the puck out of his net seven times. On Sunday, playing against the same team, he had a shutout.

It was that kind of weekend in the American Hockey League.

Three of Sunday's games produced shutouts—Rochester's 3-0 decision over Pittsburgh Hornets, Cleveland Barons' 4-0 margin over Baltimore Clippers and a 5-0 romp for Buffalo Bisons over visiting San Francisco Seals of the Western League. The fourth was a 6-1 victory for Hershey Bears over Providence Reds.

Saturday produced a couple of squeakers as Quebec Aces needed Leon Rochefort's overtime goal to subdue Springfield Indians 4-3 and Cleveland just got by San Francisco 3-2. But the Hornets bombed Perrault and the Americans 7-0 and Hershey clobbered Buffalo 8-1.

Gerry Ehman, Jim Pappin and Stan Smrke brought the Americans back to respectability by scoring against the Hornets Sunday after the debacle in Pittsburgh the night before. Andre Pronovost scored two for the Hornets in the Saturday game and Bob Wall, Norm Beaudin, Billy Harris, Don McKenney and Ted Hampson shared in the target practice.

Braves Whip, Tie Memphis

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Louis Braves crept closer to first-place Oklahoma City Blazers in the Central Hockey League during the weekend by picking up a tie and a victory.

The Braves tied 2 - 2 with Memphis Wings Saturday and downed the Wings 2-0 Sunday. They now are one point behind the Blazers, blanked 6-0 by last-place Tulsa Saturday and tied 4-4 with Houston Apollos Sunday.

In other weekend games, the Apollos defeated Minnesota Rangers 7-2 Saturday and the Rangers downed Tulsa Oilers 4-1 Sunday.

Nationals Win Pair

GUELPH (CP) — The Canadian national team scored five goals after Guelph Regals had taken an early 1-0 lead, to defeat the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series leaders 5-1 Sunday.

Nationals wrapped up the game with a three-goal outburst in the final period scoring two goals each were Roger Bourbonnais and playing-coach Jack McLeod. Marshall Johnston counted their other goal.

George Montague scored the Guelph goal.

Garrison Club Praised

Badminton Tourney Success

Belleville Garrison, Peterborough and Whitby badminton clubs took major honors at the Central Ontario Badminton Association "B" doubles tournament here Saturday.

The Garirson Club's Loreen Potts and Billie Waldron won the women's doubles from clubmates Betty Walmsley and Jackie Gilbert. The consolation event went to June Humphries and Ghisele Boian of the Trenton club.

The Peterborough club swept the mixed doubles and sent a runners - up to the men's doubles.

In the mixed events Jim and Barbara Pritchard defeated fellow club players Lionel and Betty Ownsworth with Gary Thibert and Ruth Atell of the same club winning the consolation.

Glen Carlson and John Mobancon of Trenton won the consolation.

Tournament entries from various district clubs were upwards of 180.

The tournament was the best of its division held here due in no small factor to new court floors and playing facilities. Guest players were loud in their praise of the host club's arrangements and hospitality.

Major Alex Cunningham, second-in-command of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, welcomed the tournament entries on behalf of Lieut. Col. W. H. K. Willcocks officer commanding the armouries.

Central Ontario Badminton Association president Bert Bowen of Peterborough complimented the host club on the success of the tournament.

With Major Cunningham and Garrison Club president Ted Smith Mr. Bowen presented the trophies to the winners.

The draw chairman Merv Potts said that the tournament play was exceptionally keen and closely contested especially in the semi - final competition.

He said that for the first time in the history of the club an interclub singles tourney with a Montreal Badminton Club will be held in the near future.

Refreshments and a dance in the officers' mess rounded out the tournament.

Gas House Hockey League

Marysville whipped the Komets 8-3 and Sunoco and Mustangs played a 3-3 deadlock as the Gas House Hockey League's regular schedule drew to a close last night.

John Holgate paced Marysville with four goals while Carm Milligan scored three and helped on one. Bob McCauley notched the other goal. Gary Tucker, Wayne Pascoe and Richard Markatuski had lone assists.

George Flynn, with a pair, and Lee McBrian scored for the Komets. Dave Jarvis got two helpers and Duke Doran one.

In the tie, Jerry Hill, Larry Fritze and Hugh Petrie scored for Sunoco and Gerry Brennan had the only assist.

Jack Garvin scored two and helped on the other for Mustangs. Jim Horwood had a goal and assist, Joe Clapp and Rod Turner an assist each.

DURBAN (Reuters) — Gary Player, South African holder of the United States open golf title, won his country's 72-hole Natal Open Sunday.

Wins Hope Golf Classic

Sanders Birdies Palmer In Playoff

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) Knocking six strokes off par in the final eight holes is something right out of Arnold Palmer's famed "charge" book of golf.

Doug Sanders stole the idea and became the 1966 winner of the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

To be more accurate, Sanders was seven shots under par for the last nine holes.

For it was on the first hole of a sudden - death playoff with Palmer that Sanders got a birdie 2 and collected the winner's $15,000.

Sanders' 15-foot putt on the 145-yard 15th hole at the Indian Wells Country Club, capped a day of dramatics in the final round of the 90-hole, five-day Hope affair.

He came from six strokes back at the outset to shoot 35-31—66 over the par 72 course. In the last eight holes he had four birdies and an eagle for a 90-hole total of 349.

Palmer, only two shots off the pace, shot a 70 to tie Sanders at the 18th hole when he holed a four-footer for a birdie.

Palmer's consolation was $8,000.

George Knudson of Toronto qualified for the final round but finished out of the money when his closing 71 gave him a 365 total.

Kesselring Is Pro Until 1967

TORONTO (CP)—Jerry Kesselring of Toronto, four - time winner of the Ontario Open who played professional golf from 1954 to 1961, will be unable to play as an amateur in 1966.

D. D. Jones of Calgary, chairman of the Amateurs reinstatement committee of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, said the former champion will be eligible for tournaments until Jan. 1, 1967.

Rules require a professional of five years standing to wait five years for reinstatement. However, novice professionals have one year to decide whether they'll make golf a career, after which they may revert to amateur play without penalty.

Others to be returned to amateur status include Gary Bartlett, 24, of Brantford; Lynn Ainslie, 23, and Len Blacker, 26, of Lindsay and Emile Smiley, 27, of Ottawa.

Economic Loss in Oswego Storm Placed at Million

By ROBERT G. PELKEY

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP)—There was little advance warning of the punishing storm that brought this Lake Ontario port city of 23,000 population to its knees and immobilized it under 102 inches of gale-driven snow.

On Saturday night, Jan. 29, Murray Gould fondled his Christmas snowshoes and wondered whether he would have a chance to use them.

It was a typical Saturday night as emptying theatres discharged a flow of young persons onto downtown sidewalks.

Most of a 16-inch snowfall three days earlier had been cleared away and the night was calm.

Within a few hours, as one resident put it later, while leaning against an eight-foot-high wall of snow, "all hell broke loose."

A steady snowfall began about 3 a.m. Sunday. Within three hours, winds had increased to 50 miles an hour, spawning one of the century's worst blizzards in northern New York State.

Before it ended 42 hours later, most of central New York was virtually paralysed under drifts up to 30 feet high.

BORE THE BRUNT

Oswego, no stranger to violent storms, bore the brunt. The winds rammed the snow into drifts that clogged the city's 87 miles of streets and isolated inhabitants.

In less than two days, the city's average annual snowfall of 88 inches had been exceeded by more than a foot and what had been an unusually mild winter was transformed into a nightmare of snow-filled streets, closed schools, factories and stores.

Mayor Ralph Shapiro declared a state of emergency and asked for civil defence aid.

"Never before has the city been confronted with the prospect of physically removing two-thirds this much snow," he said.

As Oswego's plight became known, more than 55 pieces of equipment poured into town from as far away as Long Island, N.Y. and Belleville, Ont.

Youngsters, freed from schoolwork for the week, cavorted in the mountains of snow. Grown-ups flocked to the business district from all directions to shop, watch the snow-fighting operations or to take pictures.

SNOW BOGGED STREETS

Banks of snow, up to eight feet high and nearly as wide, lined streets down which plows had pushed. Shoulder - width paths between stores and homes were jammed with workers, shoppers and the curious.

Red rags, veterans of other storms, had been attached to the top of automobile radio antennas. This is one of the tricks used in places like Oswego, where snowbanks frequently block the view at intersections. The red flag, visible above drifts, is the only indication of a car's approach.

The worst previous storm in the city's history—a freak of 1958—dumped 90 inches of snow on the city and virtually nowhere else.

There was no drifting that time, and Shapiro said the 1958 storm "couldn't hold a candle to this one."

Powerful winds and heavy drifting that reduced visibility to zero forced plows to remain idle until the storm ended at midnight Monday night.

By then, Shapiro said, "the situation was so bad the city's 11 pieces of snow-fighting equipment were useless."

Fires, famine and power failures that were feared failed to materialize.

"We were very fortunate," he said.

By Wednesday, most streets were open, and business was restored virtually to normel.

Shapiro estimated the economic loss caused by the storm at more than $1,000,000.

Council Gives Licence for Nursing Home

MADOC — A special meeting of Madoc village council was held on Friday when council granted a nursing home licence to Mr. R. P. Kelly, subject to the approval of the local Medical Officer of Health, Dr. S. R. Beatty.

Mr. Kelly has since been granted the approval, after an inspection by Dr. Beatty.

Provincial authorities will also inspect the home before granting a provincial licence.

Mrs. Gordon, a registered nurse from Toronto, formerly of Madoc, has been engaged. Mr. Kelly plans to open the home by the end of February.

Deseronto

DESERONTO — Robert Bell of R.R. 1, Selby was admitted once more to the Kingston General Hospital for a heart condition Saturday night. He returned home only a few days ago.

Mrs. Merton Cummings of Thomas Street has returned from the Kingston General Hospital where she had spent nearly two months because of a heart condition.

Stanley Embury was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital last Wednesday.

Mrs. Russel Finley, Mrs. Ralph Aylsworth, Mrs. Rockwell Hawley, and Mrs. Russel Boyes, all of the United Church, attended the meeting of the Belleville Presbytery of the UCW held in Bridge Street United Church last Wednesday.

Donald Detlor of Edmund Street who has been under treatment in the Kingston General Hospital for several weeks, underwent surgery last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Clute of Thomas Street were both discharged from hospital last Saturday and are now with their daughter, Mrs. De Verd Powell of the Deseronto Road. Mr. Clute was admitted to the Kingston General Hospital shortly after Christmas, and Mrs. Clute to the Hotel Dieu Hospital a few days later.

Napanee Can Supply Water For Deseronto and Selby

NAPANEE — People of this area are very much alive to the water question, especially in the town of Deseronto, which is in dire need of a better supply. Napanee now has plenty. As a matter of fact, it can supply Deseronto now, and when the proposed reservoir is built at Third and Fourth Depot Lakes, the supply will be doubled

Asked whether he favored supplying water to Deseronto from the Napanee system or bringing it from Lake Ontario, Mr. Claude Knight said "Both. It will take ten years to bring it from Lake Ontario, and ours is available now. We are going ahead with our plans, believing that we can supply not only Deseronto but also the nearby townships and Selby until such time as the pipe line is laid from the lake. Both could still be used after that."

Mr. Knight is the secretary-treasurer of the Napanee Region Conservation Authority. The field officer is Mr. John King of Cannifton.

NAPANEE WATER PLENTIFUL

Since the dam was built at Second Depot Lake, there has been no lack of water in Napanee. When the new dam is built at Third Depot Lake, the new reservoir will be from 15 to 18 feet deep, flooding back into the Fourth Depot Lake, Mr. Knight says. The field officer has informed him that they now have options on land totalling $45,000 which expire March 1.

Mayor Gerald Lott of Deseronto and Mayor Lorne Smart of Napanee both welcome the new proposals. As for Selby, "We already have water and a sewer as far as the new OPP barracks on 401," Mayor Smart says.

The next step is for Napanee and Deseronto to send formal notice to the Ontario Water Resources Commission, and then to get an estimate of the cost per 1,000 gallons. "As far as Deseronto is concerned, the whole thing rests on that cost," Mayor Lott says. "If it is too high, we just can't have it," he ads.

But, if all goes well, Deseronto could be using water from the Napanee River within a year and a half to two years he believes. That is a lot sooner than the ten years it would take to bring water from Lake Ontario.

One Hospital Wing Completed, Will Admit Patients March 1st

NAPANEE — "A wing of the hospital will be turned over to us Wednesday or Thursday of this week, Lennox and Addington County hospital administrator J. C. Hepburn reports. "It will be a tight schedule, but that is what we have been promised."

There is still work to be done on all the rest of the building he adds, on the lobby, administration areas, operating rooms, case rooms, the emergency area, the X-ray laboratory, the physiotherapy area, the kitchen, cafeteria, pharmacy, central supply rooms, power plant and storage areas. But work is proceeding according to schedule, and, come what may, the hospital will open its doors for patients March 1. "But we shall probably have workmen in the building until June," he adds.

"We cannot take 78 the first day, nor the first week," he acknowledges, "but we expect to take up to ten the first week and increase by at least ten each week until we are full." The official opening will not be until September, however.

A hospital requires many thousands of pieces of equipment of at least 4,000 types and most of these are already here or are on order. "But I suppose there will be something we have forgotten," Mr. Hepburn admits. "We keep checking and can only hope nothing will be missing."

The X-ray machine alone presents a major problem. It is estimated to weigh beaween six and seven tons, and came packed in 29 crates. It required a three-ton truck and four trips with a pick-up truck to transport it from the station to the hospital. Six men were required to lift each crate. They are waiting now for the ceiling to be reinforced before completing the installation.

The county has dreamed of a hospital for so many long years that it is hard to realize that within a month it will be open to receive its first patient. But nobody is anxious for that honor. "It is the one place where those in charge are not hurt if folk do not come to stay," the administrator quips.

Strict Laws Protect Game, Native Birds

NAPANEE — In the weekly report of the Tweed district of Department of Lands and Forests, R. B. Page draws attention to the fact that "the birds in Ontario except, crows, cow birds, blackbirds, starlings and house-sparrows are protected under the combined laws of the Migratory Birds Convention Act and the Games and Fisheries Act." Any person who destroys any other type of birds, including hawks, is breaking the law and "will be dealt with according to the provisions of the above-mentioned laws."

It is illegal, also, to keep protected birds or game animals in captivity except where a licence has been issued to do so. "Game" means all animals and birds protected in the Province of Ontario.

Town Official Predicts 2½ Mill Rise in Tax Rate

NAPANEE — Will Napanee taxes be higher next year? Reeve Claude Knight, chairman of the finance committee does not see how it can be helped, but he hopes it will not be more than two and one quarter or two and one half mills.

"We have met with all the other committees", he said, "and in every case there are additional expenses for which we must budget."

There has been an increase in wages or salaries for practically every town employee, he explains, police, firemen, town clerk, deputy-town clerk, assessor, street employees and their foreman, caretaker for the town dump, and the garbage collector. All of these increases were reasonable, and were to be expected in view of the increase in the cost of living, he explained.

MORE EQUIPMENT NEEDED

New equipment was bought last year, and more is needed. Requests for plowing the sidewalks are increasing, and the town is taking steps to purchase a plow. Mayor Lorne Smart had expected one to be here on trial before this, he says.

Snow removal will about average up with other years, officials believe, as there has been practically no snow until the two bad storms recently. The town now has two snow blowers, the old one, and the one on the new tractor which also has all sorts of other equipment.

"There just does not seem to be any place we can cut down," Reeve Knight said. "We need more teachers, and we cannot allow education to suffer. The debentures on the new hospital will require about two and one-quarter mills, both the mayor and the reeve reminded this reporter. "We want the hospital, but we must pay for it over the years. And that payment must come out of our taxes."

People do not want to pay more taxes, but they should realize that the town expenses, like their own, are constantly rising. If the citizen would look at the returns he gets for what he pays in taxes, he would not be as resentful, the mayor says. For example, it costs the town $12 per year per household for garbage collection. What householder would not pay a dollar a month rather than have to dispose of his own garbage?

It will be two weeks, probably, before the budget can be brought down. School requisitions are not yet in, and the auditor has not completed his work.

It looks very much as though the tax rate for Napanee will be higher this year. But not much.

Napanee Personals

NAPANEE — James Stapley of the Hawley district was admitted to the Kingston General Hospital last Thursday, and underwent surgery Monday. Mr. Stapley has many relatives in the Belleville area.

Kenneth Dickson of the Sillsville district has been under observation and treatment in Kingston General Hospital since early last week.

Mrs. Rufus Ackerman of Hawley, who has been under treatment for a heart condition for several weeks, is showing improvement, and hopes to be discharged from the Kingston General Hospital shortly.

Mrs. Rosa Boyce of Campbellford has been staying with her sister, Mrs. Spencer Griffiths of the Anderson district, since the death of Mr. Griffiths in the Kingston General Hospital last Friday.

Missing Boy, 4, Causes Squabble In Quebec Town

AYLMER, Que. (CP)—Mayor Eric Acland resigned as chairman of the police commission Monday night after a stormy meeting of town council supported his action suspending Police Chief Roger Boucher during the second day of an abandoned search for a missing four-year-old boy.

The mayor suspended Chief Boucher last Friday, the day following the disappearance of Donald Gauthier, a ward of the Children's Aid Society.

A four-day search by up to 300 volunteers, police and firemen failed to produce any leads to the whereabouts of the child, who was last reported seen walking away from his home on a country road north of this town 10 miles west of Hull, Que., on the Ottawa River.

Monday night's meeting of town council crackled with taunts, jeers and reported threats as 300 townspeople jammed the council chamber, most to support the suspended chief.

Catcalls all but drowned out Mayor Acland as he read aloud a detailed report explaining his decision to suspend Chief Boucher at the height of the search

Pope Paul Alters Book Censorship

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul has abolished the curia office that judges writing for the Roman Catholic church's index of forbidden books.

The Pope's action did not mean an end to the index or surveillance of books by church authorities, but Vatican sources said it signified a totally new approach.

The curia office known as the Section for the Censure of books was omitted in the listings of the 1966 pontifical yearbook which came out today.

Abolition of the censure office is part of a broad revision of the curia's Holy Office—the successor to the Inquisition and a bastion of conservatism — that Pope Paul ordered Dec. 7, the day before the closing of the Vatican ecumenical council.

The change does not abolish

Approve Supply Bills

OTTAWA (CP)—The Conservatives again criticize the Liberals on the Rhodesian problem Monday night after giving grudging approval to a total of $1,700,000,000 to meet the government's February bills.

The debate on the spending program for the external affairs department came back to the floor of the Commons after the House spent the bulk of the day on interim supply—getting authoritization for the money to pay the month's normal expenses.

It was a day that brought a couple of flurries, both of them sparked by the New Democrats. They tried unsuccessfully early in the sitting to have business adjourned so the Commons could debate the "explosive" situation being built up by a Newspaper Guild strike at The Times in Oshawa. That was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux on grounds it is a provincial problem.

During the evening they called for a surprise vote on the new rules under which the Commons is operating that have eliminated the normal dinner adjournment. That went down to defeat when the Liberals and Conservatives in the House banded together.

Before getting back to the external affairs debate, which started last Thursday, the government took a chiding from Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre). He described the interim supply motion asking for money for the 11th month of the fiscal year as a precedent.

He recalled Liberal criticism in 1962 when the former Conservative government had presented an interim supply bill for January, the 10th month.

External Affairs Minister Martin drew an unalloyed blast from Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek), who said the external affairs minister is undermining Canada's reputation abroad and is reluctant to keep the Commons informed.

Either Mr. Martin denied his own statements or Prime Minister Pearson denied them for him.

Mr. McIntosh said there was confusion on Canadian policy for Viet Nam, Rhodesia, Communist China, the Organization of American States and NATO's future.

Mr. Martin asked whether Mr. McIntosh would support commitment of Canadian troops to Viet Nam.

"If need be, I would be prepared to support the commitment of Canadian troops," the Prairie MP said.

Thinks Russia May Send Man Around Moon Soon

From Reuters-AP

JODRELL BANK, England (CP)—Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory, has predicted that the Russians might sent up a manned spacecraft to orbit the moon late this year or early in 1967.

"I would certainly expect, possibly later this year or early next year, a circumnavigation of the moon by men without landing," he said in an interview Monday.

Lovell added that within the next few months the Russians might land a robot tractor or animals on the moon.

Lovell said the next step in the Russian program to land a man on the moon might come with the next full moon March 7. He predicted the Russians would try soft landings on other parts of the moon.

He said it was clear the Russians were driving hard toward a manned landing on the moon.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A trend to milder weather will continue for at least the next two days over Ontario. Along with the milder weather comes the threat of rain or snow. No organized storm centre has developed but such a disturbance is expected to become organized in the southwestern United States today, resulting in a widespread precipitation area moving across the Great Lakes late today and Wednesday. With temperatures continuing to moderate today this precipitation is expected to mainly rain in the south and snow in central and Northern Ontario.

Johnson Finds South Viet Nam Rulers Are Men of Like Mind

By FRANK CORMIER

HONOLULU (AP) — President Johnson scheduled an extra meeting today with the leaders of South Viet Nam after reviewing with them military aspects of the war—a war they want intensified.

Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said Johnson will have two meetings during the day with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and other officials of the Saigon government. Only one session was scheduled originally, but Moyers said the talks are going so well Johnson wants to "keep the momentum."

Moyers did not claim, however, that Johnson and his guests had reached unanimity on all questions. When asked if this were the case, he replied, "I would say there was a great deal of empathy among the participants."

Johnson met for more than three hours Monday night with top members of the Saigon delegation. It was at this session that military strategy and tactics were discussed. The participants also included Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Viet Nam, who hinted Sunday he wants more troops.

SCHEDULED TO END

The mid - Pacific conference was scheduled to wind up today. However, Moyers said he understood there was a possibility the South Vietnamese officials might remain in Honolulu until Wednesday.

Moyers was asked if any new directions in the war were discussed at the meeting Monday night in Johnson's hotel suite. He said he could not go into that.

Asked if the South Vietnamese had sought a blockade of North Viet Nam's major port, Haiphong, and broader bombing operations in the north, Moyers said the conferees did not talk about specific numbers or types of operations.

The thrust of the discussion, he reported, was an effort to mesh military plans with programs aimed at eliminating communism's appeal through political and social reforms.

He described the meeting as "one of the most intimate and comprehensive sessions" Johnson has held with any foreign leaders.

Ky at the first formal session of the conference Monday told Johnson his government will neither surrender to the Communists nor compromise with them. His no-compromise stand could affect any attempt at achieving a negotiated settlement since negotiations normally involve compromises.

SEES WISDOM

However, Ky told the president the Saigon government recognizes the wisdom of exhausting every approach to peace.

Johnson, saying he spoke for an overwhelming majority of Americans, thanked Ky "for your statement that the search for peace must continue because in our hearts we know that is so."

Both men spoke, too, of a firm military stance.

Ky said the strength of anti-Communist forces in South Viet Nam must be increased because that is the only language the Communists understand.

Urge Revision of Procedures In Handling Young Offenders

OTTAWA (CP)—A complete revision of laws and institutions dealing with juvenile delinquents—starting with the abolition of the phrase juvenile delinquent—was proposed Monday in a report to the federal government.

A committee of five federal officials set up four years ago by the former Conservative government made 100 specific recommendations to modernize and standardize the handling of children and teen-agers who get into trouble with the law.

Federal grants to the provinces, applied research, uniform standards in provincial services and more accurate crime statistics are proposed. The emphasis is on rehabilitation as opposed to punishment.

The committee, headed by Penitentiaries Commissioner Allen MacLeod, found an alarming increase in delinquency in recent years and a jungle of conflicting procedures for dealing with it.

Children as young as seven still are being packed off to reform schools under a federal statute passed in 1908.

The report says the number of juveniles found delinquent by courts of law jumped by 27 per cent between 1957 and 1961, three times the rate of population increase. In 1961, a total of 1,860 children were sentenced to training schools.

The same year, the last for which complete statistics are available, 14,804 children aged seven to 15 were brought before courts, of whom 13,357 were found delinquent. About half the delinquents usually are placed on probation, the rest sent to training schools or mental institutions.

Main recommendations in brief:

—Appointment of better qualified juvenile court judges with increased powers and income and special training. The judges would travel to smaller towns now without juvenile courts.

—Revision of the Juvenile Delinquents Act of 1908, changing its title to the Children and Young Persons Act and replacing the label juvenile delinquent with "young offender" in more serious cases.

—Raising the minimum age of criminal responsibility to 10 or 12 from seven and

Strike Debate Crushed

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts tackled the Oshawa newspaper strike behind the scenes Monday while the legislature voted down attempts to call an emergency debate on the issue.

Mr. Robarts said he met labor leaders earlier in the day and as a result a meeting of both sides in the dispute was set for today.

Meanwhile, Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said he is confident there will be no outbreak of violence during the strike that started Jan. 27.

CHARGES FEAR

—Edward Dunlop (PC—Forest Hill) said the New Democratic Party is opposing the Conservative government's medical care insurance plan because it "fears the plan will succeed."

—Allan Grossman, reforms institutions minister, announced that Ontario has replaced bread and water as the sole diet of detention prisoners in reformatories. They now also get meat loaf once a day.

Multi-Million Fire Closes Wabush Iron Ore Mill

FIRE CAUSES HEAVY DAMAGE — This is a recent aerial photo of the mining and processing complex of Wabush Mines at Wabush, Labrador, which was heavily damaged by fire Monday. The fire was still burning but under control at last report. There were no injuries reported, but damage is expected to reach as high as $30,000,000. (CP Wirephoto)

WABUSH, Labrador (CP) — Fire Monday night damaged a concentrator building at the Wabush Mines Co. here, closing the iron ore mill indefinitely.

Extent of the damage to the steel and concrete building, opened last June, was to be made today. It was expected to run into millions of dollars since costly, custom-built equipment is located there.

Gordon Pushie of St. John's, company representative in Newfoundland, said early today operations of the $250,000,000 development are "obviously going to be shut down because part of the building is burned out and the separator section of the building is burned out."

The fire, which broke out about 5 p.m., was confined to a section of the mill building housing a spiral separator. The machine separates and classifies the iron ore.

The fire sent a column of smoke thousands of feet in the air. A section of the roof of the mill building collapsed at the height of the blaze, reports said, and large slabs of concrete siding crashed to the ground.

A company official here, who asked not to be named, said it was apparent "that production in the whole mine development will have to be slowed. But we can't say for how long until we know the whole extent of the damage."

There were no injuries in the fire of unknown origin, but Mr. Pushie said he understood it flared along rubber conveyor belts and carried to the separator.

Reports Conflict on Possible Combined Meeting on Strike

OSHAWA (CP)—There were conflicting reports early today over whether a union-company meeting has been arranged in the 12-day strike at the Oshawa Times, this city's only daily newspaper.

Fred Jones, international representative of the American Newspaper Guild (CLC), said his union has not been informed of any proposed meeting.

First word of the meeting was announced Monday in the Ontario legislature by Premier Robarts. He said it was in accordance with the usual conciliation procedures within the labor department.

Mr. Jones said union leaders, at a meeting with provincial cabinet ministers in Toronto Monday, were told the government was "trying to set up a meeting with Thomson Newspapers Ltd.," owner of The Times. But none had been arranged definitely.

"I find it rather strange that a meeting has been set without notifying us," he said.

Mr. Jones and Oshawa guild representative Mrs. Mary Gandy were in Toronto for the 10 a.m. Supreme Court hearing on a Thomson Newspaper Ltd. application for a writ of Mandamus. It asks that municipal and provincial authorities be ordered to enforce an earlier injunction limiting to 10 the number of pickets at the Times plant. The newspaper is also seeking a ban on all picketing.

The union representatives took with them affidavits from seven guild members.

About 75 pickets were at The Times building this morning, 40 of them at the front door.

CNIB Sponsors Research To Aid, Prevent Blindness

"The good eye health of every person in Canada has long been a concern of the CNIB," says A. N. Magill, Managing Director of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind. He was discussing the decision of his organization and The Canadian Council of the Blind to devote White Cane Week, Feb. 6 to Feb. 12, their annual education period, to the preservation of sight.

Since 1962, the CNIB has developed the E. A. Baker Foundation for Prevention of Blindness to provide scholarships and fellowships to ophthalmologists and their allied services for research, equipment and other facilities not available through regular channels.

"Through this service to doctors, we hope to contribute to the eye health of the nation," Mr. Magill says. Working under a Baker Foundation grant, one of 11 made during the past year an oculist discovered a new lesion of the cornea, which is affecting up to 80 percent of all males over 40 in the Canadian Arctic. His discovery points the need for a constructive eye care program in the far north

The CNIB also takes part in glaucoma surveys on a community basis to detect this disease in its early stages. "We estimate that 100,000 Canadians over 40 years of age have glaucoma today and don't know it because of its painless attack on sight," the Managing Director said.

Working with Industrial Accident Prevention Associations and Workmen's Compensation Boards, the CNIB operates the Wise Owl Club of Canada to encourage industrial employees to wear safety glasses. "Although 500 plants hold charters in the club, each year more than 300,00 eye accidents occur in industry alone," Mr. Magill explains.

Two in Hospital Following Car Accident

Two women are in the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston as the result of a two-car accident Sunday in Erinsville, in front of Harry Esterbrooke's service station, on Highway 41.

Mrs. Bert Scullion, wife of the driver, and a passenger, Mrs. Fred Richmond, both of Tamworth were treated by Dr. Hunt of Tamworth and are reported by the hospital authorities to be in satisfactory condition, suffering mostly from cuts and abrasions. Mrs. Richmond is said by friends to have required several stitches because of scalp lacerations, and to have one hand injured. Mrs. Scullion is reported to have been in oxygen overnight. The driver of the late-model car was bruised but was not hospitalized.

The Scullion car was proceeding north on the way to the church in Erinsville, when a collision occurred with a car driven by Thomas Edward McGuire of Erinsville. McGuire has been charged with careless driving. He was unhurt.

Damage to Mr. Scullion's car is estimated at $2,000, and to McGuire's car at $200. Constable Ian Brodie investigated.

Erinsville is 23 miles north of Napanee.

Teenager Sent To Jail for Six Months

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today sent a Belleville teenager to jail for theft of a car he didn't drive.

Grant C. Lawrence, 19, R. R. 5 Belleville, was sentenced to six months definite and six months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory.

Thursday the magistrate was told Lawrence was a passenger in a car driven by a companion which had been stolen on Church Street. His companion was arrested on a similar count.

Lawernce pleaded not guilty to the charge but was convicted by the magistrate, who called for a pre-sentence report on the youth.

Magistrate Wills said he would recommend the youth be sent to the Brampton trades reformatory centre.

"I think the pre-sentence report indicates you need some sentence for a period of time where you can learn something," he added.

VINCENT REGAN

TRENTON — The funeral of Vincent Regan of Marmora street, Trenton, was held Monday morning from St. Alphonsus Church, Wooler, to Codrington Roman Catholic Cemetery. Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. G F. Sullivan. The bearers were Earl Bonter, John Hawkins, Charles Johnston, Calvin Sweet, Ray Hunt and Fred Payette.

In failing health for the past few months, Mr. Regan died Sunday, January 30 at Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 57th year.

Born in Trenton, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Regan, Mr. Regan received his education in Trenton schools, and was a member of St. Peter's Church. Self-employed for a number of years, Mr. Regan had previously been a welder with General Motors Co., Ltd. of Canada.

Mr. Regan is survived by three sisters, Teresa (Mrs. Samuel Shaw), Margaret (Mrs. James Colohan) and Loretta (Mrs. William Effinger), all of New York State.

SPENCER WESLEY GRIFFITHS

NAPANEE — After years of ill health because of a heart condition, Spencer Wesley Griffiths died in the Kingston General Hospital on Friday last. Most of the last years of his life was spent in hospital. He was in his 70th year.

The son of Sidney Philip Griffiths and Mary Elizabeth Ferguson, he was born and educated at Adolphustown, later moving with them to the Anderson district 36 years ago. He was a highly respected farmer throughout his life and an active member of Anderson United Church, which is built on a corner of his farm. He was a member of the Board of Stewards at the time of his death. He served overseas with the Canadian Army in 1918-19.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Edith Baldwin, and by one son, Ralph, at home and three grandchildren. A son Grant, died in his third year. Surviving also are his sisters, Mrs. Roy Brown (Reta) of Trenton, Mrs. Lawrence Moore (Bessie) of Napanee and Mrs. Walter Joyce (Ada) also of Napanee, and one brother, Kenneth of Anderson, R.R. 3, Napanee.

Student minister Ralph H. Day conducted the funeral service, which was held on Monday in the chapel of the Tierney Funeral Home.

The bearers were Sam Baird, Douglas McGraw, Stewart Perry, Rockwell Parks, Clarence Baker and Bill Hanna.

Interment was in Riverview Cemetery.

Eye Operation Is Required After Stabbing

Police are seeking a Belleville man after a stabbing in which his acquaintance had to undergo an eye operation.

Detectives say 24-year-old Clifford Chrysler of Hastings, was stabbed in an altercation on Cedar Street Sunday.

He was rushed to Belleville General Hospital where doctors later operated on his eye in an attempt to save its sight, say police.

Yesterday a warrant was sworn out against Gary Edward Corey, 23, formerly also of Hastings and now a resident of Belleville.

Councillor Ross Burtt Makes Plea for Older Folks

TRENTON — Veteran councillor Ross Burtt expressed the opinion last night at council's regular meeting that it was time council gave some thought to the plight of the town's senior citizens.

Citing CJBQ's morning program, "Why Not Call?", the councillor said there had been a lot of young people call in to complain about having to do so much homework. On the other hand, some of the younger people were complaining about no recreational facilities in the town.

"When the majority of us councillors were young, we created our own fun," said the councillor, "it's time we did something for the older folks."

At the request of the councillor, Welfare Administrator A. Gordon Davis read a report in which he said it had cost the town $4,365 last year to support older people in area nursing homes. Mr. Davis said there were now 15 Trenton persons being kept in homes and another 12 in hospital who could be moved into a Home for the Aged . . . if the town had one. With $64 of each person's Old Age pension being applied to the projected cost of $5 per day for all services in a government approved home, and a 70 per cent government grant on the remainder of the cost, net cost to the town would be less if the town provided for the aged, Mr. Davis said.

Initial cost of a 50-bed Home for the Aged would be $600,000. The provincial government would pay one half of this.

Mr. Davis also said there were another eight or ten persons in town eking out an existence in rented rooms who could be looked after properly in a home.

Mr. Burtt, who is chairman of the welfare committee, Councilor D. R. Fraser, chairman of finance and Mr. Davis will pursue the matter further and report to council as a whole on their findings.

Station Becomes Little Bit of Auld Scotland

TRENTON — Saturday night the Social Centre at RCAF Station Trenton became a little bit of Auld Scotland when the Pipes and Drums of RCAF attended the annual Robbie Burns' dinner and dance. Chairman for the evening was Flt. Lt. G. H. Howie.

Bearer (drummer) R. M. Miller brought in the Haggis; his attendant was Drummer J. E. Bode and the piper was Sgt. P. Stuparyk.

The Address to the Haggis was given by Piper W. McMahon, " . . . . . . weel are ye worthy of a grace as lang's my arm," and the Selkirk Grace was delivered by Pipe Major A. R. Howie.

Toasts were given by the chairman, (The Queen); Piper D. K. Fox (The Guests) and Drummer R. P. Pinault, (The Lassies).

The banquet was brought to an end by the singing of Auld Lang Syne and during the dancing which followed, the drum and pipe band highland dancers performed the Sword Dance.

Batawa Man Treated for Back Injuries

A Batawa man is being treated for back injuries and multiple face cuts after his car rolled over on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway near Belleville last night.

Police say Alvin Gospodaric, 56, was driving east on the four-lane highway when he lost control of his car near the Wallbridge Road interchange.

The vehicle crossed the median and rolled over on the westbound lanes.

Council Briefs

TRENTON — Trenton council last night tabled a Chamber of Commerce request for a $5,000 grant this year until budget time. The request will be considered by the finance committee and a recommendation made to council. Last year, council gave a $3,000 grant to the chamber.

Council will also consider a request from the Lake Ontario Development Association for a renewal of the town's membership in L.O.D.A.

"Increasing emphasis is being placed on regional development and regional administration," said the L.O.D.A. brief.

Arnie Hoornweeg, who has been acting as technical assistant to town engineer Eric Aldersey will take over as zoning by-law administrator; will supply technical work for the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board; will direct the operations of the building inspector, (William Anderson) and the plumbing and weed inspector, (H. S. Pane) and carry out technical details and the secretaria work of the traffic committee and parking authority. Mr. Hoorweeg will, also supervise the engineering department in Mr. Aldersey's absence.

Denis Ferguson will be henceforth considered as "junior engineer" and take over many of Mr. Hoornweeg's present duties. Mr. Ferguson will also assist in drafting, design and estimates and will process applications for approval of works to the Department of Highways and Ontario Water Resources Commission. A junior draftsman will be hired to prepare blueprints, and the town will advertise for a superintendent for the works' yard.

Councillor Paul Tripp, acting chairman of the public Works' committee, (chairman C. V. Graham is vacationing in Florida), said at last night's council meeting that he and the other committee member, D. R. Fraser, had come under fire for the layoff of men from the public works' department in the absence of Mr. Graham. Councillor Tripp defended his and Mr. Fraser's approval of the layoffs by saying there just wasn't work for the men to do. He said the layoffs had been carried out according to the union agreement and seniority was adhered to.

The town will hire an appraiser to give a value on land immediately surrounding the fire hall. This action comes out of a request from the Parking Authority, which might want to buy up the fire hall and the surrounding land in the future for parking purposes. The hall itself has been evaluated for insurance purposes.
